BALLEBORO MAN ACCUSED OF WIFE'S MURDER
AIRLINER, SMALL PLANE COLLIDE, 25 KILLED

Accident Occurs As Big Plane Nears Washington Field

Pilot of Military Craft Was on Flight Tests

Washington, Nov. 1 — (AP) — At least 25 persons were killed today in the collision of an Eastern Air Lines passenger plane and a Bolivian military plane.

Fourteen bodies were removed from the airliner within the first half-hour of rescue efforts. The wrecked plane was resting partly in the Potomac River.

The Civil Aeronautics Administration said the smaller plane was a P-38 of the Bolivian air force.

The airliner was a DC-4. Planes of this type can carry 50 or more passengers.

Government officials said the Bolivian government has brought two P-38 planes from the United States about three or four weeks ago for the Bolivian air force.

One was sent to Bolivia. The other has been kept here pending routine clearance.

Strike in Air

The two planes struck while in the air. Those who saw the collisions said there was an explosion o the airliner.

P. M. Clifford of Washington, who witnessed the collision, estimated the planes were about 300 feet in the air.

He said the smaller plane plunged into the Potomac and disappeared.

"I was driving south when I suddenly looked up," Clifford said. "I saw a ball of fire and a trail of smoke about 300 feet above the ground and one plane falling."

"I parked my car and ran to the river bank. I saw them bring a woman out of the wreckage and several men. They were terribly battered. I could not stand to look any more."

The under-belly of the airplane was ripped open.

Volunteers working with police and firemen had the first bodies removed from the plane before

Gordon Calls on U.S. to Open Her Markets to World Trade

New York, N.Y., Nov. 1 — Unless North America, and especially the United States, provides a much larger, more accessible and more profitable market for the goods of other nations, there can be no economic stability in the world, Clarence Decatur Gordon, governor of the Bank of Canada, said here yesterday.

Addressing the 36th National Foreign Trade Convention, Mr. Gordon called upon the United States to accept the challenge of the times and remove the barriers to imports instead of continuing the policy of patching up European economy by capital donations.

Directs Remarks at U.S.

The Canadian banker, soon to assume the presidency of the great Canadian National Railways System, repeatedly used the term "North America" in his plea for a new approach to international trade and the payments problems. But the substance of his prepared address left no doubt that his remarks were directed to the United States and its protectionist policies.

He bluntly told his listeners that currency devaluation was no cure-all for fundamental ills; that nothing less than "a radical and far-reaching change in the whole tenor of North American thinking" would bring order out of economic chaos.

Mr. Gordon said the export and import trade of European countries with each other and with the rest of the world has continuously increased in all directions save with North America. This led him to add confidently that there has been failure to recognize the nature of the problem; that on both sides of the Atlantic there has been little understanding of a fundamental change in relationships in the economies of Europe and North America.

"Since this change has affected the United States sooner and to a greater degree than Canada, i

Invisible Ray of Light May Decide Fate of Life on Earth Say Scientists

By RALPH DIGHTON

Los Angeles, Nov. 1 — (AP)— Life and death on this planet may hang by so nebulous a thread as an invisible ray of light.

The theory, startling announcements Monday, one by the California Institute of Technology, the other by the University of California at Los Angeles, brought this grim spectre into the realm of scientific speculation:

Fifty miles above the earth exists a heretofore unknown layer of ozone, molecules with which myriads of the rays of deadly violet rays to infra-red heat rays. This was announced by Dr. Joseph Kaplan, Professor of Physics at the University of California at Los Angeles.

If some sudden piercing of the earth's atmospheric shield—perhaps by a comet or an atomic explosion— should let that layer of oxygen molecules escape, life might vanish from the face of the globe under the bombardment of ultra-violet radiation from the sun.

The effect of certain types of ultra-violet rays on living organisms may be judged from announcement of Caltech's Dr. Reuben Dulbecco, who Monday disclosed discovery of two types of "death rays" in his studies with invisible light.

A certain kind of light, he said, can kill bacteria, other bacterial virus, and another kind of light can bring the same organism back to life.

The killing light is an ultra-violet shortwave, "life ray" is a barely visible light wave.

The shortwave killed by these rays, said Dr. Dulbecco, control the growth processes of cells in the body. Every cell contains one of these viruses, he believes, may allow the cells to grow wild, as in the case of cancer.

Thus, if an overdose of ultra-violet rays from the sun did nothing else, it might touch off a cancerous epidemic, Dr. Dulbecco indicated.

The likelihood of such an explosion is fantastic, he pointed out, "but within the realm of speculation."

GOVT.'S HOUSING PROGRAM PLACED BEFORE COMMONS

Aimed at Reducing Down Payments

Ottawa, Nov. 1 — (CP)—Rejuvenation of the housing industry Monday placed the government's new housing program before the Commons.

However, he said he was unable to say whether domestic rent controls will be extended beyond March 31, 1950.

Mr. Winters, pressed for a statement by Donald Fleming (PC — Toronto Eglinton), said he is in no position to enunciate government policy on the rent controls that will automatically expire unless new legislation is passed.

Mr. Fleming, the official opposition's housing critic, said the program could not be discussed properly unless members knew government policy on controls. If the controls were to be handed back to the provinces, the provincial government should be given plenty of warning.

The housing legislation was advanced through preliminary stages — a resolution was adopted and the bill on which it was based was introduced and given first reading.

However, opposition members said they did not believe the legislation goes far enough.

Wants Co-operation

Mr. Winters said the legislation is aimed at reducing down payments on new homes and at opening the way for federal - provincial — municipal co-operation in the housing field.

The government plans to amend the National Housing Act to reduce approximately by half the down payment required of prospective home owners.

Under the new legislation, the builders still will be able to borrow a maximum of $8,500 on a new house. But the home buyer can obtain one-sixth of the amount to be borrowed. Using the maximum figure that would amount to approximately $1,400.

HEAVY GRAIN SHIPMENTS

Regina, Nov. 1 — (CP)—About 1,000,000 bushels of grain were exported through the Hudson Bay port of Churchill in the 1949 shipping season, it was learned here. Other grain exports were handled, the Saskatchewan Department of Co-Operatives reported Monday. The shipping season this year was from Aug. 5 to Oct. 10.

P.C. Wins Leeds By-Election in Straight Fight

Hugh Reynolds Defeats Liberal Opponent

Brockville, Nov. 1 (CP)—Hugh Reynolds, Progressive Conservative, won Monday's Provincial by-election in Leeds in a straight fight with Liberal Ernest Miller and held the seat for the government forces.

Mr. Reynolds, 45-year-old Brockville coal merchant, received 10,758 votes, compared with 8,063 for Mr. Miller, farmer from nearby Mallorytown.

Until late afternoon, a steady rain fell throughout the 1,100 square miles of the eastern Ontario constituency along the St. Lawrence River. But late in the day the weather cleared and brought out such a rush of late voters that it was found 79 per cent of the 23,803 eligible voters had cast ballots.

In Toronto, Premier Frost hailed the result "a dandy victory." He added:

"It is a mandate for us to go ahead and redouble our efforts in the interests of good government."

Farquhar Oliver, Ontario Liberal leade, could not be reached for comment Monday night. He was reported on his way to Toronto from his farm at Priceville, near Owen Sound.

Act Chief Issue

Chief issue in the hotly-contested campaign was the Charitable Gifts Act passed at the last session of the legislature. It requires charitable foundations—such as the Atkinson Foundation which owns the Toronto Daily Star and the Star Weekly—to distribute at least 10 per cent of their interest in any business within seven years.

Liberal speakers, including Mr Oliver and several members of parliament, accused the government of trying to legislate the Star out of existence. Premier Frost, who spoke on behalf of Mr. Reynolds, denied the accusation and said that the Act is designed "to make sure that the taxpayers' money really goes to charity."

The by-election was made necessary by the death during the

Leaside Boy of Fifteen Stabbed In Abdomen at Soccer Game

Toronto, Nov. 1 — (CP)—Sid- ney Norman, 15, of suburban Leaside was stabbed in the stomach Monday during a soccer game at Ralph Road public school, police said today.

Municipal officials said he suffered a two-inch knife wound, but described his condition as satisfactory.

Norman told police he entered an argument with a 14-year-old pupil who was acting as referee. The boy told Norman the latter "smarten up," he said.

"We started pushing," Norman said. "He told me to get back in line. I told him to hold his horses. Then he asked me if I wanted a punch in the nose. I said 'Sure'. He said 'I can use something better' and he stabbed me."

First 'Evil Blood'

"I just stood there and didn't know the knife was in me until I felt the blood," he said.

The 14-year-old referee told police of the argument with the wounded boy.

"I pulled out my knife and he kept walking up to me," he said. "The knife must have pierced him."

Classmates said Anson Taylor, the teacher in charge, had left the game at the time to arrange a movie to supervise a girls' physical training class.

Detective police said the weapon was "a vicious - looking bone-handled knife" with a blade three inches long that sprang into place when a button on the handle was pressed.

Two Provincial Premiers Indicate Conference Date Acceptable

Ottawa, Nov. 1.—(CP)—Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent has proposed Jan. 1 as the starting date for the forthcoming Dominion-Provincial Conference on constitutional matters.

Thus far two provincial premiers have indicated acceptance. Mr. St. Laurent suggested the date in telegrams mailed Monday to the 10 premiers. Copies of the correspondence were tabled Monday in the Commons.

Premier Frost of Ontario immediately indicated the date is "okay" with him.

Premier Macdonald of Nova Scotia said "we will try to accommodate ourselves to whatever date seems most generally suitable."

Premier Campbell of Manitoba withheld comment on the proposal.

BETHLEHEM STEEL ADOPTS PENSION PLAN FOR WORKERS

May Mean Quick End To Coal, Steel Strikes

Cleveland, Nov. 1—(CP)— A welfare-pension plan agreement that sends 80,000 striking C.I.O. steel workers back to their jobs with Bethlehem Steel Corporation today buoyed government hopes for a quick end to both the steel and coal strikes which have made idle more than 1,000,000 workers.

Government officials said in Washington they expect other steel firms will follow in the footsteps of Bethlehem, the second largest steel producer in the United States, which signed an agreement here Monday night with the United Steel workers.

The government officials said that now that a break has come in the steel strike, definite moves may be expected in coal because of the close relations of the two basic industries.

Shattering a well-worn precedent of waiting to see what the country's No. 1 producer— U.S. Steel Corporation — would do, Bethlehem came to terms with Philip Murray, president of the C.I.O. and the striking steel workers.

Murray, here for the C.I.O.'s national convention, made no effort to conceal his jubilation.

He cried at a rally:

"American industry might as well recognize this fact. That it will be required in the future to maintain its elderly workers on a reasonably decent basis—without their going to the poorhouse, public charity or relatives or friends for help."

The main feature of Bethlehem's terms was a minimum $100 monthly pension for all employees with 25 years service reaching the age of 65 or over. Monthly the payments will receive $85. After 15 years, $65.

The shooting puzzled police, who said they have warned hunters in the immediate area.

Kilbon's friends also quoted him as saying his wife was to have been taken to the Ontario mental hospital at Whitby today.

Investigators from Cobourg, sent to Baltiboro following a telephone report received by district headquarters of provincial police at Peterborough, said they found Kilbon standing in the kitchen, his wife's body slumped over the breakfast table. A .22 rifle was nearby.

Baltiboro is 18 miles south of Peterborough.

Kilbon was arraigned on the murder charge before a Justice of the Peace immediately following his arrival here escorted by Douglas Wilson and Constable Don Nicol of Cobourg.

Police declined to discuss the case pending the arrival from Toronto of an officer from the Provincial Criminal Investigation Department.

Kilbon moved to the Baltiboro farm three years ago from Peterborough where he worked for the Peterborough Canoe Co., which is founded.

His wife was said to have suffered from a serious nervous disorder. Kilbon was reported to be her constant companion.

Cold Weather Chills Pranksters, Parties Keep Down Mischief

(By The Canadian Press)

An icy wind and occasional flurries of snow kept down Hallowe'en mischief to a minimum in Ontario Monday night. But the wintry weather didn't spoil plans of most communities to give colorful pranksters a treat.

Clubs and city councils, merchants and churches, schools and property-proud citizens gathered round to persuade the kids with the promise of fun that the fear of the rampage wasn't really worth while.

Candies there were, tons of them; apples and peanuts, too, and there were the galloping movies and cakes, fireworks and bandfests and dances and all the mischievous glints from the youngsters' eyes.

And one of the cities that proved an exception was Windsor. A gang of pranksters, in traditional style, chopped down a tree 14 inches in circumference.

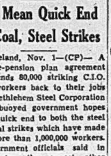
St. Thomas was probably the only Ontario city to receive the full "Hallowe'en treatment." Extra police were called on duty when some streets were virtually blocked out when stones from sling shots found their jampot targets. Automobiles were splashed with paint and bicycles were hung on Hydro poles. Broken bottles littered streets.

On the other hand police from Toronto, Strathroy, Paris, Hamilton, and Brampton, like those of other cities and towns reported with relieved sighs that this Hallowe'en was the quietest in years.

There was a double reason for Belleville to visit Brockville's downtown business section. Those who had gathered to hear returns of the Leeds by-election were entertained by the annual Hallowe'en Parade, which was sponsored by various service clubs.

Monday night was not without its accidents, however. In Kitchener Margaret Boeling, a seven-year-old girl, was injured when struck by a car as she dashed from the street in a Hallowe'en costume.

Monday night was also an occasion to remember for Alderman Thomas H. Currah of St. Thomas and his twin brother, Edgar, of Sloan Lake, Man., known as the Hallowe'en twins, they met for the first time in 39 years to celebrate their birthday together.



George Armstrong, Texas oilman and manufacturer endowed financially embarrassed Jefferson Military College of Natchez, Miss., with $50,000,000 and found the school's trustees would not accept it. Armstrong's endowment was conditional on the school teaching and disseminating the doctrine of superiority of North European and Mediterranean races and the school's trustees unanimously rejected the condition and endowment. Armstrong said he won't a school of his own.—Central Press Canadian.

Citizens Urged By the Mayor To Wear Poppy

The National Poppy Committee of the Canadian Legion have designated Saturday November 5th as Poppy Day across Canada. I particularly request that all loyal and patriotic citizens having purchased wreaths shall display them in their homes or their businesses and then deposit them at the Cenotaph on Remembrance Day, Nov. 11th., 1949, in honor of our fallen Heroes.

The sacrifices made by our Canadian men and women, in the past two wars are again recalled to memory as we observe Remembrance Day. We as citizens are prone to ignore the debt we owe them. To some, November 11th brings back only too vividly the sacrifice made but to many others, the past is forgotten too readily.

As Mayor of the City of Belleville, I personally request each and every citizen to consider it a duty to purchase a poppy and display it with the utmost pride in the wartime 14th Field Regiment, RCA.

The help extended to Veterans, Veterans' wives and their families by the Poppy Fund, is very noteworthy. While it is true that Veterans under certain circumstances, have advantage of specific legislation over the Poppy allowance, it must be remembered that when an ex-serviceman is up in any Veteran's family, speed is the essential requirement in the purchasing of goods and in this way the Poppy Fund shows its true value.

Therefore let us as citizens, wear a poppy on November 5th and then attend the 11th gather at the Cenotaph to again pay our respects to those who gave their all.

Let their memory be not forgotten.

D. L. Storey,
Mayor.

Third Prize Winner in Essay Contest

Marion Gelsthorpe of Forn GIXD in B.C.I. was winner of the third prize in the essay contest sponsored during "Stopping Week". Herewith is the essay submitted:

Why My Parents Enjoy Shopping In Belleville.

After living in Montreal where my parents lived for over twenty years, Belleville is very friendly after the hustle and bustle of a large city.

The clerks in the stores in Belleville seem to take a great personal interest in their customers and their needs while in the larger cities the stores are so crowded and the clerks are so rushed, that they haven't time to give you the same attention.

My mother finds that the various stores are amply stocked to supply all her needs such as grocery and meat stores, drug stores, dress shops and variety stores. Particularly attractive to her are the gift shops, with their very beautiful chinaware, not forgetting the dry goods stores with their fine linens and various woollen goods.

My father's interests are centred around the hardware stores with their large assortment of machinery and tools needed for his various hobbies. The men's stores meet all his requirements.

My parents also find that the quality of the merchandise in very fine and most of the stores carry regular branded goods.

The store windows are tastefully laid out and attractive with something of interest for the whole family.

Prices in Belleville compare favorably with prices in stores in larger cities, which should encourage people to "Buy in Belleville".

Planned Youth Program Surest Way to Strong Farm Future Deputy Minister Tells Rotary

From the standpoint of the agricultural industry in Ontario, a planned youth program is the surest way of providing a strong organization with thorough training, concerted effort and the necessary capital that agriculture and industry as partners will build the Canadian way of life the way it should be in the province and Dominion, Clifford D. Graham, provincial deputy minister of agriculture said here yesterday.

Speaking at the Rotary Club before its members and a large number of farmer guests, the speaker, declared that if the young people are not included in future plans, the proposed programme of growth is doomed. He was proud to say, he added, that young people are taking interest and a part in providing for the farm future of Ontario.

This is substantiated in the fact that while in 1948 Ontario had 1165 junior farmer clubs with 10,000 members, these numbers had increased in 1949 to 1,215 clubs with a total membership of 11,501, each carrying on an individual project.

Favored Rural-Urban Relations

"Farmers' Day" was an innovation now held by the Rotary Club," the deputy minister said. Rural-urban relations is the best to think as the foundation of national unity. Close relationship of the cities and rural areas is understanding between people and the right kind of groups and organization. National unity comes only with the knowledge gained in closer association with each the other.

"Agriculture," he said, "is a comprehensive term. It needs many phases of science to help solve its many problems. Above all it is the art and practice of cultivation of land in order to bring it up and raising and production of food. Scientific research enters into the picture but unless it is set in a practical form it is of little value."

Munitions For Peace

One third of the population is engaged in agriculture, the deputy minister pointed out. In 1948 Ontario's production was an all-time high, one of the reasons why agriculture is the foundation of sound economy of the nation, with its circulation and associated industries supplies the food for the growing population and a surplus for export purposes. Export of foodstuffs is one of the greatest ammunitions for peace the world has ever had.

With regard to future relations with other countries, Ontario should compare itself with these "Here we have 45 people to the square mile, China has 1,000 people to each 100 acres. Holland has 718 persons to the square mile, Belgium, 711; England 710 and the entire United Kingdom 507. This gives an idea of their positions in regard to agriculture.

Farm Fundamentals

The fundamentals of agriculture are proper land use, soil water and plants. It is like a three-legged stool, "You know what happens to the stool if one leg is shorter than the others.

"This takes acceptance of 2½ acres to maintain a human being for one year." Deputy Minister said, and Canada averages from six to seven arable acres per person. The United States three acres and the farther east the west you go it dwindles to about ½ acre per person.

Livestock Important

He pointed out the importance of the livestock branch of agriculture, which, he said, brought 70 cents of every dollar of income to the farmer. The United States shipped cattle to 20 countries last year and in Great Britain, breeders are advertising Canadian sires.

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian Stan Barber with Rotarian Fred Wilson extending club appreciation of the informative address.

President Fred Deacon extended a warm welcome to the farmer guests each of whom was formally introduced to the club by his individual host.

Discussion of the forthcoming Vulkoff Ballet revealed there were still some tickets available. The committee urged each Rotarian to take an extra one. Rotarian Claire Hayes was the "free master" with Jack Deacon and Leo Riggs leading the sing song which featured yesterday's "Old MacDonald Had a Farm." Among the guests were Messrs. Roscoe Robson, M.L.A. and Elmer Sandercock M.L.A.

Costume Party Features Old Time Dance

A large crowd of goblins, cowboys, clowns, mice, bathing beauties and gypsies plus many others danced to the tunes of the "Quinte Melodeers" and the fiddlin' of the Sweet Bros. Quinte Old Timers at a Sweet Bros. sponsored Hallowe'en party at Tobey's Hall last evening and old alike came draped in old cloths and comic costumes to enjoy the fun packed evening.

When the time to start awarding the many prizes, Phil Flagler, master of ceremonies, had his hands full to find a difficult time in choosing the best square dancers but he finally came up with Mr. and Mrs. Leo Caul as the champions of the floor.

Selecting the winners for the best comic costume proved no small task for the four non-costumed judges as they picked Lillian Foster. "Bandmaster" Barbara Kyle and "Old Country Gentleman" Bunnett walked off with the prizes for the best costumes. The young lady in the best comic costume was Doreen Kemp (it's hard to say just what she was representing). Miss Kemp's male counterpart, a circus clown and a very good one, too, was Don Foster.

The best old time step dancer, as acclaimed by the crowd, was 51-year-old Cliff Gerow.

Other prize winners were: soup dance, Bob Rolland and Muriel Jamieson; balloon dance, Aileen Wright; door prize, Floyd Ray; oldest married couple, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Brown with 49 years of married bliss and spot dances, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Doherty, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brooker, Margaret Mann and Norm Whatman, and John St. Pierre and Ann McGee.

W.C. Cochrane Honored By C-E Association

Last Friday evening a meeting was held by the Belleville branch of the Customs-Excise Officers' Association, the zone including Napanee, Trenton, Picton and Belleville. Officers from various ports assembled to pay tribute to a retiring member, W. C. Cochrane, Collector of Customs and Excise at Napanee.

Mr. Cochrane, an old resident of Deseronto, needs no introduction to older people of the community, as he is well remembered as one of the "Dundalk Boys" together with such artists as Pat Rafferty and Al Pringle, he was well known by the men overseas in the 1914-18 war, as well as by people across Canada from the splendid performances on the Canadian tour.

Mr. L. Andrews, president of the zone, on behalf of the members presented Mr. Cochrane with an engraved pen and pencil set. Mr. Cochrane accepted the gift and in tendering his gratitude, gave a short talk on a few of his experiences, highlighted by some very humorous remarks.

Refreshments were served at conclusion of the meeting.

IN MEMORIAM

COOK — In loving memory of a dear brother, Ralph Bernard Clifford Cook, R.C.A.F. killed in action on November 1st, 1944.
Sometimes I feel so sad
In an airman's grave to dwell
Lies one dear brother, among the brave
He never thought his country's call
Would ever reach his ears at all,
And bring him from his home
A soldier's noble end.
Inserted sadly remembered by brother Bob and sister Donna. N1

COOK — In loving memory of a dear father, Ralph Bernard Clifford Cook, R.C.A.F. killed in action on November 1st, 1944.
Peaceful be thy silent sleep, dear son,
It is sweet to breath thy name;
In life we loved you dearly,
In death we do the same.
It is hard to part with your son,
And hard to bear alone his ill;
Oh, this would be a heaven
If we could meet in yonder again.
You are gone but not forgotten,
Never shall your memory fade,
Sweetest thoughts shall ever linger,
Of the boy we loved so dear.
Sadly missed by mother, dad and Larry. N1

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 1 —(CP)— Base metals took over the spotlight on the Toronto Stock Exchange today, rising briskly in mid-session into new high ground for the year.

Industrials, golds and western oils tended slightly easier.

Volume for the first four hours was 620,000 shares, with 194,000 shares less than Monday's similar period.

Noranda Mines led the strong upturn in base metals, rising briskly in a new high at 67 for up 2 1-2. Quemont and Mining Corporation, associated with Noranda were also at new highs for the year or longer. Waite Amulet, another member of the group also churned upwards. The strong advance in these leaders lifted the base metal price evel into new high ground for the year.

In industrials, papers, steels and foods tended slightly lower for the occasional recessions.

Senior golds were steady and penny losers outnumbered juniors.

Royalite, Anglo-Canadian, Calgary and Edmonton and Okalta all were higher, ranging up to a 15 cents in western oils.

Pension Scheme For Civic Workers Is Discussed

The question of pensions for local civic employees was reopened in city council meeting evening when members were informed that fire fighting personnel had declined to accept the original scheme proposed which did not provide for back service.

Chairman of the pension committee, Alderman Angus Duffy, briefly outlined two other pension schemes providing for back service and explained the additional cost to the city. He stated his committee was looking to council for direction.

George Whitman, chairman of the staff committee, addressed council suggesting a pensions scheme providing for back pensions which would be budgeted for each year according to the number of men going on pension. This plan, he stated would save the city money. He asked the council to accept the plan used by Peterborough.

Harold Churchers, representative of the North American Life also spoke to council favoring a pension scheme and asked that the council pension committee meet with their representatives when the plan could be explained in full.

Alderman Lummiss, chairman of public works asked why the public works employees had not been considered in the pension scheme. He was told by Alderman Duffy that council had directed only that the policemen and city hall staff be considered at the outset, but that the public works staff would be brought in later.

Alderman Jack Allin also said he would demand inclusion of the public works staff in the pension plan. "The public works employees are just as important to this city as are the members of other departments," he said.

More information on pension plans available will be obtained before council acts on the matter, it was decided.

Finance Committee to Consider Salaries of Mayor, Aldermen

Future remuneration for the mayor and members of city council will be considered by the finance committee of city council it was decided Monday evening.

The matter was brought up by Acting Mayor Alderman H. J. Clarke who pointed out that the mayor receives seven times as much as a member of council can receive if they attend all council meetings. The mayor is paid $2,100 per year, while members of council receive $300 annually, if they attend all meetings.

"It doesn't matter to me as I do not expect to be in council much longer," stated Alderman Clarke, "but for one am unwilling to admit the mayor is worth seven times any of the council.

At the beginning of the year the mayor was granted an increase in remuneration bringing the amount up to $1,500 per year, plus $600 expenses.

"Am I right in assuming the increase was given to the mayor because of the extra work entailed as chairman of the hospital board?" asked Alderman Allin.

Alderman Clarke replied the increase given had nothing to do with the hospital board.

"Have we the right to fix the mayor's salary for next year?" asked Alderman Allin. "We can recommend to next year's council," replied Mr. Clarke.

Here Alderman Thomas brought in a motion that the acting mayor appoint a committee to consider future remuneration for the mayor and members of the council.

Council and Parks Board Will Discuss Development Plans for Zwick's Island

City council will hold a special meeting with members of the local parks board to discuss the development plans for Zwick's Island it was decided Monday evening.

Decision to hold the special meeting came as a result of a conclave of parks commission officials and a special committee of council which was held yesterday for the same purpose. Out of the above meeting came a recommendation to place before the electors the question of commercialization of Zwick's Island.

The parks board meeting had previously turned down a recommendation to lease the island to a Chicago firm which was willing to sign a lease for the development of the island on a plan approved by the city. This plan calls for leaving one third of the island in its natural state, the erection of suitable docking facilities and for a beach 200 feet in length. Express Commercialization Claim

When the letter from the parks commission was read to council Alderman H. J. Allin noted that support was being given to commercialization of the island. He said he had many telephone calls substantiating this.

"I've had at least 120 persons phone me to express approval of the island being developed," counterpointed Alderman Duffy. Fifty years ago city council was debating whether to do something with the island and there has still been nothing done.

Alderman Armstrong outlined the terms under which the island was proposed to be leased, stating that all expense would be borne by the lessee. He noted, however, that the public would still feel development of the island was going to cost the taxpayer money. He felt the parks board were looking for guidance in the matter.

Should Know All Facts

Alderman H. J. Allin felt council should have all the facts in the matter before it was asked to decide and suggested a joint meeting of council and board. Alderman Tice stated the board wanted the voice of council on whether the island should be commercialized. He said the Chicago firm was willing to spend $1 million on the island on terms agreeable to the city, but another interested party would develop the park only if it could be purchased. Council had decided against sale of the island," he said.

Alderman Brown said natural park site the city had left. He urged the city spend money in its development. Several others demurred claiming the island was the city's too much money.

The recommendation for the joint meeting of the council to hold a special meeting to discuss the matter, was then passed.

Option Will be Taken on Barlow Property for Use as Park Area

City council will take an option on the Barlow property at the corner of Bridge and Mac-Donald Ave., with the intention of purchasing the six-area tract as a park site.

This was agreed by members of council following a report following a lengthy discussion as to the relative merits of the Barlow property compared with an area in the Parkwood Heights district owned by Fred Tatham.

Council had previously voted to purchase the latter area at the request from the city solicitor as to the method of paying the $6,500 which is the price named the discussion. The solicitor stated the approval of the ratepayers of council could be secured for immediate purchase of the area, but that until next year when it could be considered in the 1950 estimates.

Says Property Too Low

"There is nothing irregular here," stated Alderman Allin. "Last spring the parks board and also a committee from council turned the purchase of the property down as the price was said to be too low. It would take thousands of yards of fill to bring it up to the proper level to prevent flooding."

Alderman Duffy pointed out, however, that since that time three roads had been constructed in the area which cut off drainage into the proposed park land. He said he would be glad to obtain the property up.

Alderman Allin still claimed the area was a natural watercourse to which Alderman Duffy replied if the public works department was going to continue draining water down natural watercourses they may as well dig up Victoria Ave.

Could Be Drained

Chairman of the parks board, Rigby W. Rollins agreed the Dozier property was lower than the Barlow property but he said the board had approved of the former tract. He saw no reason why the Barlow property could not be satisfactorily drained and approved of the purchase on the grounds that "it might be good business."

Alderman Duffy noted that if the city did not require all the land for park area a part could be sold for building lots.

Alderman Jack Allin wanted the question of the purchase of the property submitted to the ratepayers. "They will be paying the shot and should have some say," he said.

Alderman Tice asked where there was other property in the city which could be used as a park. Belleville had the poorest park system in the province, he said, claim'ed council must provide for the children.

Alderman Clarke claimed the area was formerly a cedar swamp but when Alderman Hyde asked regarding the objection to the Dozier property he was told by Alderman Armstrong that this was actually lower than the Barlow property. Alderman Armstrong stated council had acted on the request from Parkwood Heights district that a park area be provided for that district. Serves Eastshires Breaks

Alderman Duffy was of the opinion the Barlow property could be purchased legally this year providing council did not over spend its budget. The solicitor said this was not exactly the correct interpretation as the regulations called for approval of the municipal board before spending any money not on the budget.

Tatham Refused Individual Lots in Bay View Area Unless Company Completes Contract

City council will sell no more lots in the Bayview housing subdivision to the Tatham Company Ltd., unless they contract to take the entire number of lots they have tentatively agreed to purchase.

The Tatham Company were said to have tentatively agreed to take approximately 10 lots in the Bayview area but thus far have formally acquired only three of the lots. At last night's meeting the firm applied for deeds to an additional six lots in the eares.

Alderman Clarke was adamant however, and demanded that the Tatham Company enter into a contract similar to the one given by the Mayer Construction Company, which has agreed to take 12 lots in the area at a price of $300. The price to the Tatham Company is $250 per lots, for lots on the inside of the subdivision.

Request Read to Council

The letter from the Tatham Company requesting six additional lots in the area, was then read to council. The letter may been addressed to Alderman Armstrong.

"I'd like to know just who is selling these lots," objected Alderman Clarke. "Council appointed the campbroller and I to sell the lots and I have heard nothing of this offer."

Alderman Armstrong stated the request from Tatham had only been received and there had been no time to present it to council before.

Alderman Lloyd referred to the $300 price for lots being paid by Tatham's and stated this firm was receiving a commission not received by Mayer. "Let's get a contract for all the lots from Tatham," he said.

Trying to be On Time

Here it was learned by council that a by-law for the sale of the six lots to Tatham's had been prepared by the city solicitor. Alderman Lattimer objected to by claiming it was rather unusual for a by-law to be prepared before the recommendation to sell the lots was passed in council.

"The solicitor in preparing the by-law was only trying to be on time", pointed out Alderman Duffy. "Naturally if the recommendation was not passed the by-law would not be presented. He said there had been nothing to indicate Tathams were not prepared to take all the lots for which they had tentatively agreed.

Alderman Thomas pointed out that sale of lots to Tathams in units of three amounted practically to individual sale. He said the lots had been offered for sale to the public at a considerably higher price than $250.

"If you want to sell them individually I can sell the whole caboodle at $250 each," Alderman Clarke said.

Two Sides to Question

"There is no use kidding ourselves," stated Alderman Lummiss. "Under the present system if Tatham can sell the houses then they will purchase the lots if they don't want them we have no contract."

Alderman Allin said there were two sides to look at. He said the services on some of the lots were not built on, then the city stood to lose. "If you are going to sell the lots at $300 then sell them to private individuals as well," he urged. Alderman Tice stated that the 3 lots sold to Tatham were being utilized for low rental. "If they build a bungalow on each, "Sell to anyone who will build on it a house is built said the alderman.

Approving of the recommendation to get a contract from Tathams for the purchase of the entire number of lots were Alderman Allin, Brown, Clarke, Hyde, Lattimer, Lloyd, Lummiss, Thomas and Wright.

Opposing the motion were Aldermen Harry Allen, Armstrong, Duffy, Liddle and Tice. Mayor D. L. Storey was not present.

POLICE BLOTTER

It possibly was considered an early Hallowe'en trick but Monday morning a fire extension ladder was reported stolen from Truck and Farm Supply on South Church Street.

Another late night police had several calls from residents who complained that Hallowe'en celebrants were making themselves obnoxious No material damage was reported, however.

An auto was reported on its side in the ditch at Moira Street, and Bridge Street East. Police found the car deserted, a check of the licence revealing it was registered in the name of Robert Vaughan, of the O.S.D. The owner still had not been contacted this morning by police.

Question of Snow Removal From Walks Referred Back To Committee for Discussion

Members of the public works committee will reconsider the matter of sidewalk snowploughing this winter, it was decided at council Monday evening.

Alderman Bruce Lattimer introduced a recommendation to rescind the motion of two weeks ago when it was decided to discontinue plowing of sidewalks with jeeps because of lack of equipment.

"Granted, sidewalk snowplowing in the city has not been perfect," stated Alderman Lattimer in speaking to his recommendation, "but nevertheless it did assist greatly in getting the snow from the walks."

"Since the decision of council two weeks ago to discontinue snowplowing I have had dozens of calls. Generally speaking the people feel that jeep snowplowing should be continued.

This same feeling was held by Alderman Liddle and Alderman H. J. Clarke who stated many people were unable to shovel their walks and for some shovellers were not available to do the work satisfactorily.

Need More Equipment

Alderman H. J. Allin stated the recommendation to discontinue sidewalk plowing had been tabled by the public works committee pending the seeking of council. He felt the decision to do away with the jeeps did not do a good job but on the other hand there were many people, who were unable to shovel their walks.

"If we had the proper equipment we could do a good job, but the purchase of additional equipment is a matter of finance. I am willing to go ahead and do what I can but it is the wish of council," he said.

At the suggestion of Alderman Thomas city engineer Charles Mott told council that "probably four more jeeps were needed to adequately take care of sidewalk snowploving. He said there were 30 miles of sidewalks in the city.

The engineer said that jeeps equipped with a V-plow would cost approximately $2,500 each, or $10,000 for the four needed.

"In the day of progress it is asking the residents just a little too much to shovel their own sidewalks," stated Alderman Tice. He said that back in 1947 he had advocated the purchase of four more jeeps for sidewalk plowing. "It must be remembered that the walks belong to the corporation and householders pay taxes," said the alderman.

Alderman Clarke felt that prompt action following a snowfall would assist greatly in clearing the walks. Alderman Armstrong stated the matter should be referred back to the public works committee for further consideration. "If we are going to have service, then let us give uniform service throughout the city," he said.

Need Night Shift

"The trouble is that we need a night shift on the public works department," stated Alderman Thompson. "Then I believe we could do a job."

In reply city engineer Mott stated that in past years the city had been zoned with plowing operations commencing when 4 inches of snow had fallen.

"We were all over that ground previously," interjected Alderman Lummiss as chairman of public works. "The trouble is that we just haven't enough equipment. But if the city wants to push another ten grand on jeeps, then it is okay by me."

Alderman Brown asked what the city intended to do about areas where there was no road system. He asked if the city was prepared to shovel these areas. The matter was then referred back to public works for further consideration.

ACCIDENT

the confusion subsided at the scene. Investigating constables were backed up on the highway which was blocked by police for about two hours.

Boatmen were going back and forth over the river looking for the bodies.

The Civil Aeronautics Administration branch here said on the military plane at Rice Bridoux, director of civil aviation in Ottawa.

Account of Crash

The C.A.A. gave this account of the actual crash:

The Dakota was on a test flight from National Airport, As he came back toward the field he asked for landing instructions and was advised by the field to have that he was second to come down, behind the military plane.

The tower ordered Bridoux to circle the field so as to come in after the other aircraft had landed.

He did not acknowledge the call, which the control tower repeated several times.

Tower observers saw him coming directly in and he failed to pull up. There was no indication that he heard or understood the order.

Bolivian embassy officials said they were informed a test pilot who had been trained in various United States schools. He was 28.

Officials said he had originally planned to leave with the plane at 10 a.m. but bad weather had delayed his departure in order make further tests of the plane.

LOOKING FORWARD

Time is flying though fine weather in America has made it appear that the time is not so late as it is. It is little over seven weeks to the great mid-winter feast of Christmas.

But while generally people have not been looking so far ahead, there are people, the toy-makers and other producers who have been busy all year in preparation for the great festivities of December 25th.

Toy-makers have been very active. For British children there is a large number of new toys ready or in preparation for the visit of Santa Claus who will arrive even though the pound is devalued. One toy is described by the BBC as combining old and new fashions, a remarkable contradiction in terms. It is a racing snail which the rider drives by sitting on the shell, holding its horns and pushing its head up and down.

This is an indication of the toy which will call out the child's imagination and give him almost endless delight. The toys, of course, will cater to every type of child, those mechanically-minded will find clockwork toys made with a watchmaker's precision, speeds that are exactly worked out and toy racing cars which have even noise-producing units attached to simulate the racers' lack of a silencer. There is a luxury saloon car right up-to-date with radio in the shape of a music box while the tune played is "Home Sweet Home." For the hearty children there are unbreakable plastic toys.

So while the world at large does not realize that the midwinter holiday season is coming on apace, others have been working on these toys all the year to make Christmas a happy one. It is true in Britain and it is true in Canada and in the United States. For the youngsters their elders work long months getting ready those gifts which never fail to please.

FALLEN LEAVES

Some people burn the fallen leaves in autumn but others save them for their value in organic material.

The Department of Agriculture indicates that the falling and deposit of leaves on the ground is the way nature has of enriching the soil and stopping the runoff of water. Leaf mould is a very great value for improvement of the quality of the soil for the leaves contain many elements, nitrogen, phosphorus, potash, calcium and minerals which are all of importance in increasing the fertility of the soil.

It has been suggested that instead of burning leaves, people pile them on the compost heap, eight inches deep, then dampen them with water and then add alternately two inches of soil. It is said the compost should be kept hollow in the centre so that the rain may soak in. The result will be in a few months fine leaf mould for use on one's land.

That is the way nature replenishes the earth in the forest areas. The growth of the trees comes from the elements in the earth, the air and the rainfall and when the trees shed their leaves, the ground beneath them is covered with them as anyone knows who is familiar with the woods. The wealth of mineral matter which is in the dead leaves goes back to the roots to promote continued growth year after year.

CIDER TIME

This is that time of the year when that familiar product of the autumn season puts in its appearance on the markets everywhere. It is cider.

The juice of the apple has always been a favorite. It has a flavor all its own and it is likely never to lose the appeal it has for the people.

Those who live in the country and make it know what elder means. And in the towns and cities the people have not lost their taste for this delicious beverage, the drink of cool cider.

Markets where country produce is offered weekly are familiar with the tins and jars of cider. Hereabouts this popular juice is at present offered to the people and the buyer needs little coaxing to buy this product of the orchard.

40,000 acres of unused bog lands, which until they were razed in the seventeenth century used to be rich forest land will be cleared in a novel experiment in Norway to provide homesteaders with ready-made modern farms.

JUST FOLKS

AT TEN

He wants a letter for his sweater
And a pair of cleated shoes;
Thinks a headgear so much better
Than a cap he'll quickly lose;
Dreams of days the press will print a
Picture of him, now and then,
As a guard or backfield sprinter,
He did I, when I was ten.

Now he grins at sprains and bruises,
Proudly says; 'T made a score!'
If a game his school team loses,
It's a loss of high concern.
More important than his glasses
(This is gospel truth I pen)
Is to practise forward passes.
I, forget that, when I was ten.

Vain it is today to tell him
Football glory swiftly dies.
Try to study more compel him?
He has goal posts in his eyes.
When the game's great heroes leave it
They must start careers as men.
Say that now? He won't believe it;
Nor would I, when I was ten.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

When a street car or bus reaches either end of its run, it is customary for the motorman or driver to get up and tidy his vehicle before starting on the next round of his route. He does not sweep it or go to any labored extent in cleaning it. He merely looks for lost, or forgotten personal property; picks up newspapers or other large and unsightly debris left behind by his recent passengers.

If he did not do that, his vehicle would be a perfect mess by the end of the ordinary day's round of bus or street car. It generally is a mess anyway.

"The public," declared the bus driver I travel with most, "is mucky. If what they do in my bus is a sample of what they do as they travel the streets, no wonder city streets cleaning costs millions each year. And no wonder women who keep house wear that worn, and weary expression . . .

I asked him which were worse offenders: men or women?

"There isn't much to chose between them," said the bus driver." Both just chuck away whatever happens to come to their hands when travelling in my bus. The women who have been down-town shopping seize the opportunity, when they are comfortably seated in the bus, to go over their purchases. They shift the contents of half a dozen small bags or packages into one bag. All the other paper simply goes on the floor. Cleaning tissue, bills torn up into tidy little pieces, things they find in their purses or pockets, fragments of clothing garters . . I even found an old pair of nylons that some lady had changed. A bus seems to be the perfect location for what you might call personal house cleaning . . .

Men are equally carefree. Newspapers, wrapping paper cartons, and cigarette packets, butts they brought aboard for a last swig, the dottle and ashes from pipes, and there is the natural increment of mud . . .

Human nature are still private individuals, with little public conscience.

The beam bolted and were found half a mile down the road, their barrels tangled around a telephone poll. Bot drivers escaped injury.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

READING

Imagine for one moment the staggering amount of words that flow through the human mind in sixty seconds throughout the world. Each day newspapers, magazines, and books step into the world freshly born, and most of them to die with the day, but there are imprints left in the mind that few of us ever appraise.

The world's greatest remedy for idleness, ennui, self-conceit, and loneliness is — reading. It consoles, as well, and often lifts the spirit into a new heaven and new earth. One of my friends, with whom to talk is a rare delight, so impressed me with his wide knowledge that I asked him what college he had attended. "I never went to a college," he replied. Reading had done for him what a dozen colleges might have failed to do.

The joy behind all reading is that we can make our own selection. And in our own good time—and when not in the mood. If we have wisely gathered about us a group of books, they become as friends, to whom we can go when most in need of them. And we can dismiss them at will, as well. You can't always do that with a real, flesh-and-blood friend.

Logan Pearsall Smith writes of the wise and sensible happiness of reading — "the joy not dulled by Age, this politic and unpunished vice, this unselfish, serene, life-long intoxication." It is all this gifted writer has said—and far more. Not only do we read to learn but to gain the joy and stimulation that it affords.

These silent friends of ours — our books — remain with us forever. They never desert us, nor do they bore us with our confidences. We can select our book friends and our reading matter. You see, we get the best of a bargain being in what he writes, and if it stimulates us, we cling to it and cherish it. That's why great books and great writing never die. Good reading is food to the mind and nourishment to the soul. You can change time and place with reading. Sir Edward Cook once wrote that "It is only in prison that the zest and test of what is readable is to be found." I would not suggest, however, that this test be often used!

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

REASON FOR SURVIVAL

The giant redwoods of California constitute one of the greatest sights in the world. They are older than any living thing on earth. One tree is believed to have been growing when Abraham went out of Ur of the Chaldees. It was a tree more than 2,000 years old when Christ was born. Many of those redwoods are 1,000 or 2,000 years old. They have seen generations come and go, empires rise and fall.

How have they survived so marvelously? Well, there are many reasons, but reason has been that they have been able to withstand fire. Think of the forest fires that through the centuries must have swept over the areas where these giant trees grow. Yet there they stand today, fire made no difference with them.

There are people like that in life. They have been tested and so do I. The fire of sorrow, adversity, disappointment, injuries ill health, and suffering have swept across their lives time and time again yet it has never destroyed them. They may have this quality or that which in a measure withstands the fire. They could live, but the greatest factor has been that they have been able to withstand the fire. They could take it. Other lives were devoured quickly by the crackling flame. But these brave souls the lived on, They could stand the fire.

A VIRUS IS STILL A MYSTERY

A so-called "germ" or "microbe" is so small that a microscope must be used to see it. A virus is much smaller than a germ or microbe, so small in fact that it cannot be seen with an ordinary microscope. Filters made of porcelain will strain out microbes suspended in liquids, but viruses pass right through the filter because of their small size.

Like microbes, some viruses are evidently harmless to man. Many infectious diseases known not to be caused by microbes are assumed to be caused by viruses. The passage of time and further research may show that considerable error lies in this idea.

A great many diseases are definitely known to be caused by viruses. Among these are, CRI, common respiratory infection or the uncomplicated, so — called "cold,") mumps, polio, measles, German measles, small pox, chicken pox, encephalitis, (inflammation of the brain) psittacosis, (parrot fever), influenza, and even warts. Distemper in dogs and a long list of other diseases in lower animals and birds are also caused by viruses.

In man, as a general rule, an attack of virus-caused disease, confers upon the victim a permanent immunity to further attacks. An outstanding exception to the rule is CRI. While CRI is known to be a virus-caused disease, as a rule, one attack of infection has yet been brought forward to account for the exception.

There is not the slightest scientific evidence to support the notion that taking "cold" vaccine in tablets, by mouth, is of any value in immunizing one to any type of respiratory infection. Inasmuch as the specific virus has not been identified, the use of "vaccine" in any form or by any route has not established scientific value in the process of immunizing one to any virus disease of the type known as CRI or the common cold.

Certain vaccines have established their value as preventives beyond any doubt. Small pox vaccine is one of these. So-called "anthrax," which are derived from the serum of animals which have been infected with, and have recovered from virus caused diseases, appear to be of value in preventing or lessening attacks of such diseases as measles and yellow fever. Once a viral disease is in actual process, even in the early stage, symptomless stage, the value of so small that a microscope must be used to see it. Worst Factional War in History Brewing in C.I.O.

Cleveland, Nov. 1 (AP)—The C.I.O. opens its 11th convention Monday torn wide open by the worst factional war in its history.

Ouster of at least three unions under left-wing leadership was indicated, and a roaring right-wing majority, angered by pro-Communist efforts to break into the C.I.O. clamored for the purge of 12 unions by the end of the week.

President Philip Murray, with 45 years in labor unions behind him, was caught in one of the most trying dilemmas of his career: Should he preside over the carving up of the mass-industry federation which he, John L. Lewis, Sidney Hillman and others created more than 12 years ago?

The usually mild-mannered Murray seemed to have given his answer as he opened the convention with a bit at the "small but noisy clique" in the C.I.O. He said was scheming to the Communist labor program.

"I want none of that," Murray said in a report to the 600 delegates. "The C.I.O wants none of that."

Casting out the 12 unions would not necessarily mean shearing off the nearly 1,000,000 members of those unions. Plans are ready to move in fast and set up rival right-wing units in the contested fields.

Certain to be Resisted

That would be certain to be resisted—possibly by creation of a third labor federation, even though such a move would shock by the left-wing leaders now.

Harry Bridges, west coast longshore boss, and leaders of the United Electrical Workers made final appeals to Murray to give them a face-saving way to remain in the C.I.O. Murray listened in private, but pointed to the convention floor for the answer. The unions most likely to be booted out are the United Electrical Workers, Mine, Mill and Smelting Workers, and Farm Equipment Workers.

The other unions likely to be ousted are Bridges' Longshoremen, Marine Cooks and Stewards, American Communications Association, Food, Tobacco and Agricultural Workers, Fur and Leather Workers, Furniture Workers, Fishermen and Allied Workers, United Public Workers, and United Office and Professional Workers.

Need Trained Hospital Aids Says Dr. Cameron

Toronto, Nov. 1 (CP)—Trained hospital aids must be found to help conserve the Dominion's supply of graduate nurses, Dr. G. D. W. Cameron, Federal Deputy Minister of Health, said Monday.

"It would seem wise to base our long range plans" on the assumption that enough graduate nurses can be found to staff Canadian hospitals, Dr. Cameron said in an address prepared for delivery today to the 25th annual convention of the Ontario Hospital Association.

Survey showed 15 to 30 per cent of girls matriculating from high school entered nursing. Because of the demands of business and other professions this proportion was not likely to increase.

Conserve Nurses

The first need is to conserve the supply of graduate nurses "by seeing to it that they are used only for nursing and not for the hundred-and-one other jobs requiring attention around hospitals. Men and women with lower academic standing than graduate nurses could be trained to help care for patients.

"There is no thought of pulling down the professional standard of the registered nurse. The graduate nurse will be required to supervise and direct the junior grade proposed and to perform the more high technical nursing tasks now required in hospital routine."

He added:

"Another factor which may play an important part in the securing of more graduate nurses is the increased success of the two-year school of nursing now being tried out by Canadian Nurses' Association at the Metropolitan Hospital in Windsor with the support of the Canadian Red Cross Society."

The experiment might lead to more attractive training methods and increase in recruitment. Studies of hospital staff needs are under way or complete in all provinces. When the reports were complete some effort would be made by the Dominion Government to co-ordinate standards of recruitment and training methods for nurses and nurses' aids.

Congregation Continues Discussion Forum

Toronto, Nov. 1 — (CP)—The congregation of Bathurst Street United Church Sunday night approved by a vote of approximately 400 to 1 to continue the Sunday evening discussion forums.

Rev. Gordon Domm, minister of the church and the forum have been under fire by fifty Controller David Balfour for alleged pro-communist teachings and views.

In his sermon Sunday night, Mr. Domm, referring to a statement that he made a speech friendly to Stalin, said the speech was delivered in 1943, "in the bitter hours of battle when Russia was our ally."

WEDDINGS

TOMESO—JAMIESON

Tamworth.—At the United Church parsonage, Selby, on Wednesday afternoon, October 26, the Rev. W. R. Merrick united in marriage Ruby Armstrong, of Tamworth, second daughter of Mrs. C. Jamieson of Tamworth, and the late Robert Armstrong, to Geno Tomeso, of Belleville.

The bride looked charming in a suit of royal blue gabardine with wine hat and wine accessories, she wore a corsage of Talisman roses and fern.

The bride's only attendant was her only sister, Miss Armstrong of Belleville, who was beautifully gowned in blue taffeta with black lace overdress, her accessories were black, and she wore a corsage of American Beauty roses and fern.

The groom was assisted by his brother, Mr. Lorenzo Tomeso of Belleville.

After the ceremony, the bridal party motored to the home of the bride's parents, where a reception was held and a buffet luncheon was served.

The bride's table was a picture of loveliness, centred with a pyramid of gladioli, roses, snap dragons, carnations and asters. The three-tier wedding cake was made by the bride's mother and was topped with a miniature bride and groom.

The bride's aunt, Mrs. Herbert Rogers, poured tea.

The bride's mother received in a gown of black satin, corsage of snapdragons and fern.

The happy couple left, amid showers of good wishes, for Belleville, for a short honeymoon after which they left by train for a honeymoon trip to Toronto and Timmins. Upon their return, they will reside at Coleman, where the groom is manager of a florist shop.

Out-of-town guests were: the bride's three brothers. William, and Jack of Belleville, and Bert of Kingston; one sister, Meta, who was bridesmaid; Mr. and Mrs. Russell Alexander of Roslin, and Mr. and Mrs. David Rogers, of Kingston.

BONARLAW

Earl Haslett and Bride Presented With Purse of Money

Bonarlaw.—On Friday evening of last week, a large number of friends and neighbors of Earl Haslett gathered at his parents' home and presented him and his charming young wife, the former Miss Isabel Wilson, Reg'n., of Milton, Ont., with a purse of money. Ernest Stiles read an address congratulating Earl and wishing the young couple much joy and happiness.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Haslett replied thanking the assembled guests and inviting them to call them in their home in Toronto, where they have taken up residence after Earl's recent graduation from the Guelph Agricultural College. He has secured position with the provincial government.

Mr. W. J. Barlow acted as chairman and J. F. Baker led in community singing with Mrs. Jason Baker as accompanist at the piano. Bountiful refreshments were served and a very pleasant social hour was enjoyed.

Short addresses of congratulations and good wishes were given by Mr. Cosbey, Lindsay; Mr. Mumby, Allan McComb, J. F. Baker and Mrs. Harry Haslett.

At the close of the evening's activities all sang "For they are Jolly Good Fellows", and gave the newlyweds three hearty cheers and a tiger. Three hearty

SHANNONVILLE

Sunshine Girls' Club Serves Appetizing Fowl Supper

Shannonville.—The Sunshine Girls' Club of the United Church, assisted by the Sunday School and members of the congregation, served a delicious fowl supper in the local Orange Hall on Thursday evening. Some of the comments heard were that it was some time since they had witnessed such "a spread", and some participants did have a bit of trouble arising from the loaded table.

The supper was well patronized by the Belleville and district folk. It was noted that some of the city folk were especially partial to "the gizzard", which one of the genial waiters produced in large numbers.

Vases of red roses added to the appearance of the tables. These were kindly donated by the Tempest Flower Shop in Belleville. Radio music was supplied during the supper hour.

The proceeds of the evening amounted to nearly the $200 mark and will be added to the Building Fund of a new Sunday School unit at the rear of the church building.

Great credit is due the girls and their staunch helpers for the serving of such a delicious repast.

Holy Trinity Anglican Church Guild Holds Successful Tea, Bazaar

Last Wednesday was an ideal fall day for Holy Trinity Anglican Church Guild's annual bazaar and judging from the number present, the local community was well represented.

The president, Mrs. Sid Fitzgerald, convened this bazaar and afternoon tea. From the variety of articles on display on the sales tables, and the delicious afternoon tea, she had done a very fine job.

Mrs. Herb Houston was acting treasurer, and reported most gratifying receipts at the door.

Mrs. Willis Wilson had little trouble disposing of all her fish in the fish pond as it was an exceedingly good day for fishing, as once school was out.

The tea table presented an attractive appearance with its beautiful lace table cloth, tall white tapers, a silver bowl containing autumn flowers as the centre piece, and a silver tea service at each end of the table. Mrs. R. Topping and Mrs. Caldwell poured tea during the afternoon.

Tempting Cakes, Pies

Mrs. Kilburn and Mrs. Cecil McCarthy were in charge of the home cooking table. Needless to say, the tempting array of cakes, pies, tarts, etc., went "like snow in July."

The fancy table was presided over by Mrs. Williams, and Mrs. Burrows was the fancy work table by Mrs. Mark and Mrs. Harriett Topping. A number took advantage of these attractive displays and did their Christmas shopping early. Noticed were handkerchief made into parasols, stuffed dollis and animals, pin cushions, bolsters, dollies, aprons and other numerous articles.

The Guild members reported not so much sewing had been done for the bazaar this year, but they had many more novelty articles for sale.

Vegetables Sell Readily

The ladies in charge of the vegetable table had no trouble in their sales as all were sold within the first part of the afternoon. Mrs. John Kent and Mrs. J. Topping were the conveners of this table.

Those folk who did not visit the bazaar in the early hours, did not enjoy having a glimpse of the appetising candy display as it all disappeared in a very short time. From the variety on sale, the local ladies excel in the art of confectionery. Miss Mae Topping was in charge of these sales.

Afternoon Tea

Seeing the delicious afternoon tea were Mrs. W. Stewart, Mrs Bruce Porit, Mrs. William Conley and Mrs. Gosbee Johnson.

Replenishing of the plates was in charge of Mrs. Huff, Mrs. Sandy, Mrs. Marion and Miss Craig. Afternoon tea was served at small tables in the centre of the hall.

The climax of the day's activities was a dance in the evening with Mr. H. MacAvoy's orchestra in attendance. All present reported a most enjoyable evening.

The ladies of Holy Trinity Guild are to be commended on their efforts in making this annual bazaar, tea and dance such a success.

Rev. C.W. Neeland Speaks on Decadence Of Society Today

At the evening service in the United Church Rev. C. W. Neeland of Calvin Church, Calgary, was the guest speaker. The junior and senior choirs were in attendance, the latter singing the anthem "What Would I Do Without Thee." Mr. Neeland's choice of Scripture lesson and text from St. Luke 21.

He mentioned the idea voiced by a well-known English writer, that society today was hopelessly corrupt. It had lost all taste for good literature, and now enjoyed crime stories and the comics

In these times get bad, people lose their nerve, then a certain type of literature appears suggesting the world is lost," said Rev. Mr. Neeland. The people in Canada are looking from a protected and safe point of view. They are safe in a fine country and have no prospect of losing their lives, but have they given thanks to God. If they were either a D P. or a Chinese who had experienced the revolution, they might find a truth in this message of Jesus, "Be not terrified these things must come to pass". Mr. Neeland stated that Jesus looked with sorrow at the facts of life, and there should be no cause to fear when trouble comes. That there was no easy or quick solution to the problems in this world.

"When we face death will we realize it is not the end, but that there are better things to come, asked Mr. Neeland. Out of every evil may come something fine. Livingstone inspired missionaries to further efforts in Africa and Stanley became converted. Out

Downtown Streets Filled With Masqueraders Enjoying The Merriment of Hallowe'en

There were high jinks and hilarity in the city last night when Hallowe'en was ushered in and enjoyed, under cloaks of masquerade, by young and old alike.

Costumes bordering from the traditional Negro "Aunt Jemima" to hideous caricatures of Hitler and "Uncle Joe" were seen in all parts of the city with the old fisters favoring the illuminated main thoroughfares and the youngsters candy-and-fruit intent catering to the quieter residential sections.

The beverage rooms and restaurants were the favorite spots of the older Pierro's and Pierrettes. Costumes that beggared description were apparent, with the cool night air having little effect on bare limbs and those who favored the lighter costuming.

Perhaps one of the most magnificent turnouts was that of a six-footer who favored the hula girl. He wore a flowing gold wig with "red lips" and a flowing grass skirt. He dispensed Hawaiian dances in various parts of the city.

Costumes Varied

There were hobos, one a de luxe creation complete with battered derby, ragged patched pants and a bundle of clothing hung on a stick which included a bottle of beverage. Another grandma effect was that of the 65-year-old gentleman who wore a nightgown, vintage 1890, a small poke bonnet and little else. He suffered intermittently from attacks of goose pimples as the cool breeze smote the exposed portions of his anatomy.

Blackface was the most popular costume from little five-year-olds to those in the late sixties. Masks of all descriptions were in evidence. Uniforms of the late war were favored by some of the fair sex who for once wore typical armed forces moustachios. The air force, army and navy were well represented in all ranks.

Many Attend Parties

Shouting, laughing carloads of Hallowe'en celebrants whirled through the city bound for dances and parties. Ghostly visages peered from car windows as the vehicles sped to their various destinations. Clowns, tramps, witches, hobgoblins hunched over steering wheels.

The younger folk had the traditional time of their lives when the annual invasion descended upon households, apartments and in fact wherever a light was showing.

Eerie sounds echoed from darkened lawns and lots. Ghostly figures emerged from behind trees, hedges and fences when the cry, "assault" was made. Windows rattled to unearthly ratlings and wooden noise-making gadgets. "Stand and deliver," was the order of the evening and judging from the well-laden containers which bulged with fruit and candy, the "delivery" was all that could be expected.

Had Time of Lives

Crowds of the little people, garbed in costumes and mixed disguises, the gaudiest description had the time of their lives. They were well-behaved, according to various reports and little or no damage was done by these celebrants.

Small damage was reported in the city. Police stated that generally speaking the celebration was not productive of any serious damaging effects although a mail-box was smashed on a city street and two panes of glass were discovered broken in a service station.

One tallish "grandmother" got himself into somewhat of a predicament. He strode along Front Street with a "grandpa" in tow when suddenly there was a catastrophe. The ancient vintage of panties worn by "Granny" became loose from their moorings and slipped slowly to the pavement. A sudden cold draught of air warned "Granny" of his loss, but he calmly lifted first one foot, then the other and walked on, leaving the frilly garment reposing on the sidewalk.

Coroner's Jury Suggests Student Be Given Award

Recommendation that the meritorious act of 16-year-old Ronald Heaton, Albert College student who Saturday afternoon made an unsuccessful attempt to save the life of John Maracle, be in some manner recognized was made yesterday by a coroner's jury investigating the death of Maracle.

The jury found that Maracle came to his death as result of accidental drowning in the Moira River when he fell from the C.P.R. bridge.

It was revealed at the inquest that the young Albert College student had pulled the unconscious body of a woman from the tracks just before a freight train passed and then jumped into the water in an attempt to save Maracle's life. Maracle, in company with a woman and another man, had been resting on the track prior to the approach of the train.

The inquest was held before Coroner Dr. S. Cronk with Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan questioning the five witnesses called.

Jurymen included David Fisher, James White, Thos. Ruston, Lorne McDougall and Harry Stewart.

Former Resident Of City Honored By Presentation

Branch manager of the North American Life Assurance Company at Peterborough, Mr. David Ketcheson of that city has retired. Last week he was feted by officials and fellow employees in recognition of 30 years outstanding service as manager of the Peterborough district.

Mr. Ketcheson was born in Belleville and was educated here. He is a veteran of the First World War and is well known in the city.

On behalf of the company Mr. Ketcheson was presented with a silver tray while the Oshawa branch presented him with a travelling bag. Although Mr. Ketcheson will retire as branch manager at Peterborough, it is expected he will still be associated with the firm as a sales representative.

POLICE COURT

Three young Oshawa men charged with disturbing the peace today pleaded guilty in city magistrate's court and were each fined $5 and $12.50 costs.

The three young men were charged by provincial police following a rumpus at a Sidney Street residence when the house holder refused them the right to enter the dwelling where the father of one of them was a roomer. The Oshawa youth's father was away at the time.

Court proceedings were otherwise brief with two L.C.A. offenders appearing before Magistrate T. Wills. On his plea of guilty one offender was sentenced to four days, while the other was given three months in jail on a third offence drunk charge.

Twenty traffic charges and parking meter violations were listed for hearing, all but one of the charges being settled out of court. One motorist charged with failure to observe a "stop" sign was found guilty and paid his fine.

GORDON CALLS

hope you will forgive me . . . if I sometimes refer particularly to the United States," Mr. Gordon said. "It seems clear that Canada is, in the course of time, going to reach the same state of economic development as the United States, but that time is not yet.

Tariffs Blamed

"For the present, while we are prepared in some respects to take the lead, for the most part we must appear to be advocating policies for the United States which it is not immediately possible for us to adopt in full ourselves."

Mr. Gordon said that some of the causes for the failure of economic free economies to adjust themselves to changing conditions, lay with the Old World. But a substantial cause of the shortcomings of European industry was the use made of tariffs and other protective devices "to thwart and frustrate every attempt by Europe to develop new markets for its products." The rates of customs duty were often highest on precisely those goods which European and other countries are able to produce most efficiently, he asserted.

"When such action comes from North America, the home of free enterprise, that surely is an extraordinary state of affairs and suggests that economic thinking has not kept pace with economic change," Mr. Gordon said.

Less Protectionist

Speaking of Canada, which he described as "on the whole less protectionist than the United States," Mr. Gordon said: "As regards our trade with Europe, it is becoming more evident that even little Canada can go a long way in the direction which more and more of your own observers believe the United States must go the removal of barriers to imports, the acceptance of foreign competition as an essential factor in a free world economy, and therefore, in your own economy."

"If substantial progress cannot be made in this direction," the Canadian Government official warned, "I believe the consequences for our North American way of life will be far more serious. This issue will involve the acid test of belief in free enterprise and political maturity."

P-C EXECUTIVE

Endorsed by Supporters

Only last week Mr. Drew's leadership was endorsed by his supporters in the Commons at a private dinner. The dinner was closed to the press and the speeches were off the record, but it was learned that Mr. Drew pledged himself to work for a strong party organization for the next general election.

In the last general federal election—the first fought by Mr. Drew—the party's membership dropped from 69 to 41.

The executive meeting is the first since the election. Thirty-seven of the 45 members of the executive attended the opening session. T. M. Macdonnell, president of the association, was in the chair. Defeated in the general election, he regained a Commons seat in the Oct. 24 federal by-election in Toronto-Greenwood.

The statement said that Mr. Drew addressed the delegates. He "referred to the results of the election and the part that the Progressive Conservative party had to play, if democracy was to function properly in this country."

Suggestions Made

Executive officers from each of the provinces reported on local conditions and made suggestions for future organization.

There was some speculation that before the entire adjourns a new party organizer will be chosen, R. A. (Dick) Bell former national director and organizer, recently returned to private law practice.

Two men are mentioned as possible successors. One is Russell Boucher, Ottawa lawyer, who resigned from his Carleton seat to pave the way for Mr. Drew's entry into the Commons after he was appointed party leader a year ago.

The second is Roland Michener, former member of the Ontario cabinet and one of Mr. Drew's personal advisers prior to the last election.

Union Testifies Railways Violate Safety Rules

Ottawa, Nov. 1 (CP)—Safety regulations are being violated on Canadian railways every minute of the day, the Board of Transport Commissioners was told Monday.

Applying for an order telling the railways to increase the number of their sectionmen, the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employees (T.L.C.) declared the safety of the travelling public and of employees is being "constantly jeopardized" through lack of enough sectionmen.

The railways are opposing the application.

Need More Workmen

Morris W. Wright, Ottawa lawyer appearing for the Brotherhood, declared in the opening of the hearings that the union wants the number of employees per section increased without any lengthening of sections.

"It is not a material gain would go to any employee, but the union felt the requested order was necessary to make our safety, both from the standpoint of the public and of employees."

Mr. Wright said certain safety regulations were being observed only in the breaking of them. Maintenance employees were breaking them every minute of every day, with the knowledge and consent of the railways.

The union counsel said maintenance men were being "forced" to break the rules in order to get their work done. For instance "flagging" rules—under which flagmen are supposed to be stationed on each side of a track obstruction—are broken by the "dead letter" because there were too few employees per section. Breakdowns Frequent

Robert Little, Canadian Pacific Railway foreman on the Orangeville section near Owen Sound, testified that his section crew had to break safety rules continually because it did not have enough men to do its work and provide the specified flagging protection.

Besides being unable to comply with flagging rules, he said, his section crew could not comply with the rule that handcar crews must consist of enough men to remove the car from the track in case of emergency.

Mr. Little said he considered four men and a foreman the adequate number for this task. His crew now consists of a foreman, three permanent men and one extra man, he said, and it will be reduced to a foreman and two men in winter.

FATHER, DAUGHTER SAIL FROM EUROPE

Paul Mueller, 62-year-old German, and his daughter, Ags, aged 18, have exchanged the rigors of life in Berlin—with little money, work, or food—for adventure in a 16-foot sailing boat and the prospect of a new life in Argentina. They arrived at Dorset, Eng., and are waiting for favorable weather to begin their long journey. via Ireland, across the Atlantic to South America. They have little in foreign money, but have been hospitably received and provisioned in England. (Central Press Canadian.)

Nickel Plate Mine Strike Is Settled

Hedley, B.C., Nov. 1 — (CP)— Officials of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (C.I.O.) Sunday night announced settlement of a strike by 164 miners at Hedley Nickel Plate mine, second largest gold producer in British Columbia. The men struck Oct. 25.

Local president D. Hesklith said the Union accepted a 24-cents-a-day pay rise retroactive to Sept. 20 and inclusion of all employees in the "operating bonus", which averages 82 cents a shift. Skilled miners, who previously received $1.01 an hour, struck for a 22-per cent increase.

Proposals did not include a reduction from 44 to 40 work hours, sick leave and pension plan concessions, for which the Union also struck. Hedley Mine is a wholly-owned subsidiary of the South American Development Co., Ltd., with offices in New York.

Lack of Steel Will Gradually Close Chrysler

Windsor, Nov. 1 — (CP)—The Chrysler Corporation of Canada Limited announced Mon., gradual plant close down due to lack of steel supplies beginning next Monday. The company statement said that "all passenger car production will be discontinued by Dec. 23, affecting a total of approximately 2,500 men."

The announcement from the Canadian firm followed a statement from the parent organization in Detroit which said Mon. that it is closing three divisions of its Detroit plant at the end of this week.

STEEL BUILT SKYSCRAPERS

Until 1891 when structural steel came into prominence there were no skyscrapers, because of uncertain means of strengthening the walls.

Boards Will Try To Break Deadlock Between Parties

Ottawa, Nov. 1—(CP)—Federal conciliation boards will be established to try to break the deadlock between 146,000 railway employees and their employers.

Labor Minister Mitchell announced Sunday night that two boards were being set up following a report from conciliation officers that railways and their employees were in "fundamental disagreement" on all issues between them.

Negotiations to end the dispute, under way since last summer, bogged down 10 days ago and the Unions requested conciliation action. Negotiations have revolved around Union demands for wage and hour concessions that would amount to some $74,000,000 a year.

One board will deal with the dispute of 118,000 railwaymen who are members of International Unions. The second board will deal with that of the 28,000 members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees and the Brotherhood of Express Employees.

Companies involved are the two transcontinental lines, the Ontario Northland Railway and the Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo railway.

Demand Somewhat Same

While the two groups are carrying on negotiations separately, their demands are somewhat the same. The C.B.R.E. wants a 40-hour week with no reduction in take-home pay, with a 44-cents-an-hour increase on top of that. The International Unions want a six-cent increase on top of the 40-hour week.

Generally, the work week for the employees affected by the demands—those not actually engaged in operating trains is 48 hours.

The boards' job will be, first, to try to get the disputants to agree to a formula for settlement.

Failing that, it will devise proposals of its own and submit them to Labor Minister Mitchell. These need not be accepted by either party.

After a similar situation last year, the Unions rejected a board's findings and called a general strike. The walkout was cancelled on the eve of the deadline after the cabinet negotiated a 17-cents-an-hour wage increase.

WILL RE STAGED AGAIN

Toronto, Nov. 1 (CP) — The Miss Canada contest, which attracted fewer than 1,000 spectators this year, will be staged again in 1950—under a new name. From now on, Executive Director Raymond S. Weaver said Mon., it the Miss Canada Talent, Health and Beauty Pagent.

DOMESTIC, IF NOT NATIONAL, EMERGENCY

Government spokesmen, including President Truman, deny the economy of the U.S. is imperilled by the coal and steel strike, but townsfolk and merchants in the little coal town of Canonsburg, Pa., do not agree. Here striking miner Peter Merlak reads with three of his 15 children looking down at the idled Westland mine. His $210 welfare fund cheque has been stopped and he owes $300 at the company store, which now allows him credit of $4 a day. (Central Canadian Press).

Hunt Two Youths In Purse-Snatching

Owen Sound, Nov. 1—(CP)—Police were searching Mon., for two youths said to be those who is believed to be the first purse-snatching in Owen Sound's modern history Saturday night.

The victim, Mrs. R. Fenton, said two youths came up behind her and her sister-in-law, Mrs. B. Barber, as they walked along a dark street toward a Saturday night church meeting. One grabbed her handbag, containing more than $40 and the pair fled along the street.

The handbag, with half the money still in it, was later found on a lawn.

Warns W. Europe To Show Results In Economic Unity

Paris, Nov. 1 (AP)—Paul G. Hoffman, Marshall Plan Administrator, Monday warned Western Europe to show results early next year in promoting free trade by knocking down national tariff barriers and erasing complex money controls.

He made it plain it might be hard to get more aid funds from the United States Congress unless the Marshall Plan countries showed more willingness to join in a single economic unit.

Goods in the big Western European market, he said, must move freely across the many national boundaries.

Failure to achieve economic unity, Hoffman warned, means "disaster for nations and poverty for peoples."

He made his call for concrete action by early next year in a prepared statement to the general council of the organization for European economic co-operation, the European organization that helps administer the Marshall Plan.

Hoffman said the Marshall Plan countries have made "truly amazing progress" in restoring industrial and agricultural production in the last two years. But he said co-operative action between countries is needed if Western Europe's economic problems are to be solved.

Hoffman said:

"This I believe, means nothing less than an integration of the Western European economy. . . .

"The substance of such integration would be the formation of a single large market within which quantitative restrictions on the movement of goods, monetary barriers to the flow of payments and eventually, all tariffs are permanently swept away.

"The fact that we have in the United States a single market of 150,000,000 consumers has been indispensable to the strength and efficiency of our economy. The creation of a permanent freely-trading area, comprising 270,000,000 consumers in Western Europe would have a multitude of helpful consequences.

"It would accelerate the development of large-scale, low-cost production industries. It would make the effective use of all resources available and stifle of healthy competition more difficult."

Husband Beats Wife to Death With a Hammer

Detroit, Nov. 1—(AP)—A Toledo business man, enraged by his wife's interest in teaching music, beat her to death with a hammer early Monday and then fatally wounded her mother.

Tossing aside the hammer, he jumped in his car and raced to Detroit to tell his daughter about it. He was stopped twice on the way for speeding and released when he told officers he was "on an important errand."

The 57-year-old building material salesman, John A. Harding, was held here for Toledo police.

"I couldn't resist it," he told police here, "I've had the impulse for weeks."

Officers in Toledo, notified by authorities here, rushed to the Harding home. They found Mrs. Mildred Harding, 46, dead in her bedroom. Nearby was her mother, Mrs. Maude Thompson, critically injured.

Mrs. Thompson died in hospital.

Harding said he had become frenzied over his wife's devotion to music and her lack of interest in him. She was his third wife.

U.S. Industry's Profit up First Time in Year

(Copyright 1949 By The Associated Press)

New York, Nov. 1 — Profits of United States industry turned upwards in the third quarter of this year for the first time in 12 months.

They stand only slightly below the all-time high mark of a year ago, when third quarter earnings were the peak in the record year of 1948.

An unusual feature of the third quarter was the substantial increase in earnings of automobile companies which off-set a sharp decline in oil company profits.

The compilation by the Associated Press of earnings reports of 314 leading corporations in all major fields showed them with a total net profit of $1,063,644,061 in the July-September quarter.

That is 4.3 per cent higher than the total of $962,102,819 reported by the same corporations in the second quarter of this year.

It is only 4.1 per cent lower than the $1,046,963,291 earned by these companies in the third quarter of 1948.

Corporation earnings slid lower in the final quarter of 1948. From their third quarter peak, and the decline continued in the first and second quarters of this year.

The upturn was not surprising to those who watched the recession of early 1949 give way gradually to an economic recovery around mid-year. The present profit trend confirms that rebound.

Chrysler and General Motors increased their earnings by more than $58,000,000 in the third quarter of this year over a year ago, while the earnings of 22 oil companies fell nearly $97,000,000 below the level of the third quarter of 1948.

MAN THE HOSE, LADIES!

As part of Tokyo's fire prevention week, fire department officials turned over one of their firehouses to some of the city's housewives, to familiarize them with the workings of the department and impress them with the importance of adequate fire prevention techniques. Some of the lady-firefighters are shown manning the hose in true professional style, after they answered a mock fire call and hurried to put out a small "set" fire. (Central Press Canadian.)

GOVT.'S HOUSING

4 1-8 P.C. Interest

On a $9,000 house, for instance the down payment could be as low as $1,500, about half the amount required under present N.H.A. provisions.

The loans, repayable over 20, 25 and 30-year periods, bear interest at 4 1-8 percent.

The government's program also envisages a Dominion-Provincial partnership on a 75-25 per cent financial basis to undertake a potential three-point program of land assembly, construction of low-cost houses for sale and construction of both low and subsidized rental units. Plans also call for changes in the National Housing Act section dealing with loans for home improvements and home extensions. But the new provisions will not be proclaimed until materials become more plentiful.

The existing legislation provided a maximum loan of 2,000 for the improvement of a home and an additional loan of up to $1,000 for improvements of each unit in the same building. The new legislation would boost the amounts to $2,500 and $1,250 respectively.

Mr. Fleming said Mr. Winters' sober statement did not promise a "new heaven and a new earth" as had government supporters during the general federal election. The government's legislation would have to be more far reaching than anything in Mr. Winters' statement to fill even a fraction of the election promises.

Suggest Royal Commission

Angus MacInnis (CCF-Vancouver East) suggested the government planned to leave mainly to private enterprise the job of providing new homes. Private enterprise would not or perhaps could not provide homes that the average worker could buy.

C. E. Johnston (SC-Bow River) suggested a royal commission on housing. While the government's legislation was a step in the right direction, it did not go far enough.

Ross Thatcher (CCF-Moose Jaw) said the government should undertake subsidized low-rental housing, reduce interest rates on loans from 4 1-8 to 2 1-8 per cent, and make a genuine effort to bring down building costs by construction on a large scale.

At the House opening, Prime Minister St.-Laurent announced he has suggested to provincial premiers that the Dominion-Provincial conference on amendment of the Canadian constitution open in Ottawa Jan. 10, 1950.

After a brief debate, members agreed to the establishment of an atomic-energy committee. Trade Minister Howe said Canadian scientists are helping to remove the barrier that stands between mankind and commercial use of the energy.

In the Senate, debate on a bill abolishing appeal to the judicial committee of the Privy Council was continued by Senator Wishart Robertson, government leader in the Upper House, Senator Arthur Roebuck (L-Ontario) and Senator J. J. Kinley (L-Nova Scotia). All supported the measure.

Statement by Minister

In the Commons' housing debate, Mr. Winters said:

"We have no knowledge of the extent to which provincial governments will participate in arrangements contemplated by the legislation.

"It may well be that certain provinces will feel that the type of housing envisaged is neither necessary nor desirable for that province.

"We have already had indication from some provinces that they contemplate arrangement is a suitable basis for joint co-operation. There is no room for the suggestion that the proposed enabling legislation is binding upon the provinces unless they wish to take advantage of it with respect to specific projects."

Although financial participation by the municipalities may be necessary, their full co-operation will be sought.

Mr. Fleming criticized the government's past efforts in the housing field and said the years 1945-46 inclusive were wasted years" as far as housing was concerned.

Just Taking Care of Needs

In 1946, a cabinet minister — he did not name him—had stated that the housing crisis had passed. But Mr. Winters had said Sept. 21, in announcing his new housing policy that present construction was barely taking care of current needs and was making no inroads into a serious backlog.

Mr. MacInnis said if people are to be adequately housed, he said there is no alternative to government assisted housing except a better, a more equitable distribution of the national income. But now there was a resistance to further wage increases.

Mr. Johnson expressed doubt that Mr. Winters will see the fulfilment of his forecast of 100,000 new homes in 1949. If 75 percent of that number is completed the minister will be lucky, he said.

He said the new legislation should contain some provision to protect the down payment prospective owners make on homes. There were cases where the owners lost their equity because the building firm went into bankruptcy.

P.C. WINS

last session of the legislature of W. B. Reynolds, Progressive Conservative and second cousin of Monday's winner. W. B. Reynolds first won the seat for the Conservatives in 1937, and held it until his death early this year in Toronto.

More Votes Cast

The contest Monday saw 1,656 more votes cast than in the Ontario general election of 1948, when W. B. Reynolds polled 8,018 votes, Mr. Miller 6,413 and a C.C.F. candidate, William J. Miller, 1,832.

It was the third by-election victory for the Progressive Conservative government since last year's Ontario election. The government retained Parry Sound last December in a three-way fight against a Liberal and a C.C.F. candidate and retained Cochrane North last June 1 a straight fight with a C.C.F. candidate.

The Progressive Conservatives now hold 53 seats in the 90-seat legislature. There are 21 C.C.F. members, 13 Liberals, two Labor-Progressives and one Liberal - Labor.

BETHLEHEM STEEL

Some, said Murray, will receive as much as $250 a month.

Company to Pay All

As to the pension cost, the company will pay all—about nine cents a worker an hour. Unlike most other steel firms, Bethlehem has been financing a pension system for 28 years but at a lower rate providing for around $60 a month.

On social insurance — death, sickness, accidents, hospitalization — employees put in 2½ cents an hour into a fund and the company matches it. Employees had been paying all social insurance costs in the past but the exact figure was not announced.

In return, Bethlehem got a contract commitment that the welfare benefit plans won't be touched for a five-year period. Also, the present contract was extended for two years, postponing talk of any wage increase until late 1952.

Government mediation chief W. Cyrus S. Ching said he trusted that "this settlement will lead to industrial peace in the steel industry generally, at a very early date."

A new steel strike started shortly after Murray sent out orders for Bethlehem's 80,000 workers to return to their jobs. The new walkout was at Alleghany—Ludlum Steel Corporation, where 15,000 of Murray's men quit as negotiations collapsed.

Government mediators were considering issuing an invitation to bring coal peace talks to Washington. Negotiations between John L. Lewis' striking miners union and southern coal operators were to resume today at Bluefield, W. Va.

Alouettes Threaten to Quit Big Four Football Playoff If Refused a Night Game

By VIC MORRIN, Jr.
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, Nov. 1 (CP)—Withdrawal by Montreal Alouettes from the Big Four football league's championship playoffs loomed as a possibility today as the Montrealers awaited a league decision on whether they would be allowed a night playoff game here Nov. 9 against Ottawa Rough Riders.

President Leo Dandurand of the Alouettes said Monday night his club "would abandon" the two game, total-point series rather than cede to Rough Riders' demand that the opening game of the series be played in daylight, Wednesday, Nov. 9.

The controversy developed Monday after Mr. Dandurand and E. J. Emerson, president of the Ottawa Club, were unable to come to an agreement over fixing the time of day the Montreal home playoff game would be played.

Today at Toronto, Dr. John O'Connor, president of the League, is scheduled to conduct a telephone or telegraph vote on the impasse by the seven members of the executive committee.

Rough Riders, as Big Four schedule leaders, had the right to call the first game to be played at Montreal, subject to the approval of the date by Alouettes.

Agreed on Dates

Mr. Dandurand and Mr. Emerson agreed that the opening game would be played at Montreal Nov. 9 and the second game was to be at Ottawa Saturday, Nov. 12. But the two men failed to come to a complete agreement when Mr. Dandurand proposed the night contest because "we owe priority to our fans, especially our season ticket holders. Night football is important to them because Monday is a working day afternoon holiday town as are Ottawa and other Ontario cities."

The Montreal president appeared as a last resort said:

"You can say definitely for me that Alouettes will drop out of the Big Four playoffs rather than accept any order from the Big Four Board to play our home game in the afternoon."

At Ottawa Monday night, President Emerson countered with: "Montreal Alouettes will be in danger of losing their franchise in the league if they default the championship game."

He said in a statement that as a first-place club, "we have the prerogative to play our home game Saturday, Nov. 12, as the date for the second game of our home-and-home series with Alouettes for the Big Four championship. We also expect our conference to play a mid-week game in Montreal in the afternoon, Alouettes wish to play at night.

"Should Alouettes default, it is possible that the Ottawa Rough Riders, as the next club in the standings, would be moved into the championship playoff series against Ottawa."

Calgary Stamps Defeat Eskimos

Edmonton, Nov. 1 — (CP) — Calgary Stampeders defeated Edmonton Eskimos 19-7 in a Western Interprovincial Football Union game Monday night that had no effect on the standings. Calgary, Dominion champions, and Saskatchewan Roughriders, already clinched the western play-off positions.

Edmonton's single point was the only score until the third quarter when Calgary's Paul Rowe went over for a major. Pete Thodos scored another touchdown for Calgary in the final frame, converted by Chahley.

Injuries came thick and fast to Esks in the last half as they fought a brilliant defensive battle. Ends Jim MacRae and Dmitri Goloubet and guards Jerry Woodlock and Nate Shore all were sidelined, MacRae with a possible skull fracture.

Stamps laid down a terrific ground offensive pounding to 18 first downs and 362 yards, 121 of them in the final quarter. Esks made 17 yards on the ground and six first downs.

Quarterback Keith Spaith completed five of nine passing attempts for a 65-yard gain in the six while quarterback Bill Bruska hit receivers only twice in 12 trys for a gain of 28 yards.

Campbell Takes Sharp Issue With Player

Montreal, Nov. 1 — (CP)—President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League Monday took sharp issue with a suspended Ontario junior hockey player.

The player, Eddie Crouch of Barrie, was suspended because of contract troubles with Springfield Indians of the American Hockey League.

Crouch said he signed a form in July, 1948, with Springfield's farm team but claims that looked after insurance in case of injury while training with the club."

"That's not true," Campbell snapped when asked to comment. "I have the signed document involving Crouch and the Indians right here in my office.

"Crouch signed a regular form 'A' tryout agreement at Springfield's training camp in September, 1948. This form has nothing to do with insurance.

"Form 'A' deals only with a player's agreement to try out at a club's training camp and the club's responsibility for paying his expenses.

"Crouch may have signed another form dealing with insurance but he definitely signed a try-out form covering the 1948-49 season and covering the Indians' training camp this year."

Discusses Other Cases

Campbell then went on to discuss the cases of two other amateur players suspended at the request of the N. H. L. — Leo Bragsnois of Stratford, and Donald McLaughlin of Halifax.

Bragsnois and McLaughlin were suspended by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association because, after they had signed a form "C" with Springfield "they refused to sign a pro contract tendered . . . in accordance with terms of the agreement."

"These cases are exactly like the Lewicki case," Campbell explained.

(Danny Lewicki, Stratford junior star who refused to accept contract terms with Toronto Maple Leafs of the N. H. L., has been suspended from organized hockey.)

"Bragagnola, in fact, accepted $30 in removal fees from Springfield as receipts," Mr. Campbell said. "It's a clear violation of the form 'C' agreement."

The N. H. L. president said he knew nothing of a report that the Lewicki case might be scheduled for a showdown in Toronto this week.

"That's a matter for Lewicki and the club to decide," Campbell said. "If they reach an agreement, Lewicki then can apply for reinstatement."

Freshman Wins 'A' For His Ability

Earl Lansing, Mich., Nov. 1—(AP) — Freshman Dill Buccell began a recent assignment before a Michigan State College speech class by taking off his trousers.

He was equipped with a flat iron, he gave an illustrated talk entitled: "Press your own pants and save money."

Buccell's speaking ability, polka-dot shorts and bright green garters apparently impressed the instructor. He got an "A".

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Halifax, Nov. 1 — (CP)—Newfoundland sportsmen, an unknown quantity on what they themselves term the "mainland," may soon be showing their wares in competitions in Nova Scotia.

Kevin Gill, St. John's Evening Telegram) O'Neill reports a "rumor . . . that the St. Bon's senior hockey team will make a few flying visits to Sydney, N. S., this winter."

"How they could compete with teams from that section," said O'Neill, "seems difficult to imagine.

"There isn't even the slightest suggestion the local boys will be taking their skates from the attic for at least several months, but the Sydney team now are in full swing on a 74-game schedule."

Baseball squads from the old colony also may show their stuff before too long in Nova Scotia. There have been rumors that a Newfoundland outfit will seek games — perhaps even additional action — in the Antigonish-Pictou-Colchester league next season. So far, however, there's nothing definite.

Maritime Meanderings

Bill (Halifax Mail-Star) Foley comments that "Statistics play an important part in maintaining interest in sport." But Dave (Moncton Times) McKay noted during one Maritime Senior Hockey League game "the wholesale granting of assists . . . with several players picking up goals and unworked for points. On one occasion a player napped in his own rebound, and assists were tallied up."

All this says McKay, "fattens the averages, but detracts from the value of the points."

Few Characters Left in Big Time Says Sullivan

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The time has come when you can't tell the players in any program in the National Hockey League. And it's a pity.

There aren't many characters left in the big time—guys whose playing style or personality, on or off the ice, separate them from the herd. Gone are the big, bad block jetters on their sweaters and, sad to say, the gate-bumpers in a "who's that?" dither. Yes, the N.H.L. is shedding its glamor.

The accent now is on youth with plenty of eager young players pitching along. There is a wonderful sprarts and them tumbling back to a crowded bench for a breather. Individual play-making, pattern-passing forward lines and bang-bang, automatic defencemen who were always good for a big check, goal or other-wise—when they stepped on the ice, are a premium.

Think back over the last eight or nine years and our bet is that you would have no trouble counting 10 players who stood out over the rest like a beacon. We can do it and, at that, it may be on the generous side.

Something's wrong. It wasn't necessarily when Dit Clapper of Boston Bruins and Syl Apps of Toronto Maple Leafs took their turn on the ice. And there was the brilliant Sweeney Schriner and big Babe Pratt, the swashbuckling Toronto defenseman.

The present-day clan includes the brilliant Milt Schmidt of the Bruins, Max Bentley, Toronto Leaf's dippy-doodle kid from Delisle, Sask., with his careening down-the-middle rushes (even if he does play on the corner); bristle-browed and dead-panned Maurice (the Rocket) Richard and those two tough customers — Ken Reardon of Montreal Canadiens and Jack (Black Jack) Stewart of Detroit Red Wings.

Compare This List

Back in the '20s and '30s and nudging into the '40s, you couldn't throw a peanut on the ice without hitting a character.

How about the great Howie Morenz and his breath-taking rushes . . . Eddie Shore, one of the greatest rushing defencemen in the game and a Gibraltar on defence. Remember the Bill Cook-Frank Boucher-Bun Cook forward unit with its almost-perfect pattern passing? And how about Toronto's famous kid line of Charlie Conacher - Joe Primeau - Harvey Jackson? As a unit they were terrific and individually; Conacher colorful.

Recall the big "S" line of Hooley Smith and his characteristic sweeping check, polson Nels Stewart setting up headquarters on the opposing blue line waiting for a pass (Gordie Drillon, a latter-day Stewart?) and Babe Siebert.

Who could miss darting Aurel Joliat, his black cap bobbing up and down as he patrolled the left boards with Canadiens. There was one of the fightingest 135-pound mites on skates.

No Numbers Needed

No sweater numbers were needed for battle-scarred Red Dutton, Sprague Cleghorn, Ace Bailey, Red Horner, and, of course, pint-sized prancing King Clancy. Remember Lionel Conacher, the "Pembroke Peach", one of the greatest all-round athletes of all time, Frank and his rapier-like poke check, Lorne Chabot, bacon and eggs. And newsy Lalonde never needed an introduction in the press box.

Who could miss those rollicking extroverts, Amby Moran and Sprague Cleghorn, not to mention such characters as Duke Keats, Sounk Sparrow, Herb Gardiner, Mickey Mackay and many others.

Of modern times there were fellows such as cyclone Taylor, Hod Stuart, Tom Phillips, Frank Nighbor, Harvey Pulford, Hobey Baker, Lester and Hec Patrick, Lou George and Howard McNamara, the Gold-dust twins and many others.

Three Players Stand Suspended From Hockey

Toronto, Nov. 1.—(CP)—Three players, two from Ontario and one from Halifax, have been suspended from organized amateur and professional hockey because of contract troubles with Springfield Indians of the American Hockey League, it was learned here Monday. The controversial National Hockey League 'C' form is the basis for two of the suspensions.

The 'C' form players are Hedo Bragsnola of Stratford in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior 'A' series and Donald McLaughlin of Halifax, who played Senior 'A' also in the OHA Junior 'A' series, was suspended because he was "dissatisfied with terms of agreement with Springfield" but "refused to sign." They have two practices at the club's training camp at Barrie."

Concerning Bragsnola and McLaughlin, the notices, issued by George L. Dudley of Midland, secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said they signed the 'C' form with Springfield "and refused to sign a pro contract tendered . . . in accordance with the terms of agreement."

The notice said the suspensions were made by Alf Pickard of Regina, president of the C.A.H.A., "at the request of the National Hockey League."

Crouch said in a telephone interview from Barrie he signed form in July, 1948, with Springfield but was told by a team that looked after insurance in case of injury while training with the club. "So as he was not eligible to not obligate him to try out with his week.

Meanwhile, it was learned here that the month-long contract tangling lands between the Toronto Maple Leaf organization and Danny Lewicki, Stratford player who has "put a price tag of $10,000 a year on his pro hockey services," is scheduled for a showdown in Toronto this week. Lewicki has been suspended from organized hockey—amateur and pro—because he refused to accept contract terms with the Leafs, as set out in the N.H.L. 'C' form he signed last July.

Alex Ponton, 53, Leading Football Player, Dies

(By The Canadian Press)

Alex Pontjot, 53, a leading football strategist who coached Toronto Balmy Beach Football Club in 1920-43, died at Toronto Monday.

Ponton, who played quarterback with the Beaches for several years before taking over coaching duties, scored the spectacular touchdown which gave them the Canadian championship over Hamilton Tigers in 1922. He was an outstanding sprinter and represented Canada in the 100 and 220-yard titles at the 1924 Olympics.

The first year he took over coaching duties, Beaches won the Dominion title. When pressure of business forced him to retire, he remained on the Beach executive.

Bernard (Big Duke) Doucet of New Orleans Monday night won a close decision from Gaby (Tiger) Ireland, Montreal, in a 10-round main bout at Montreal. Some 4,500 paying fans witnessed the bout, contributing a gross gate of $11,527. Both fighters scaled 147 pounds. Doucet won currently rates third among contenders for Ray (Sugar) Robinson's world welterweight crown.

Even thought his best rounds were the ninth and 10th the French-Canadian was badly beaten at the finish. He had heavy red welts on both sides of the body and his left eye was bleeding badly.

An official investigating the Lester Fellon-Kid Gavlian fight said Monday Fellon's managers, Bert Lamb had admitted betting on the boxing bout Oct. 21.

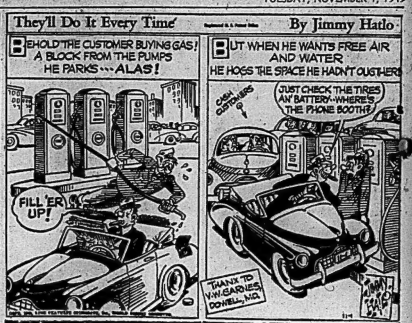
Felton, a Detroit boy, was given a split decision over Gavlian, the heavy favorite in the 10 round welterweight match. The verdict was bitterly criticized by many who saw the fight. The ensuing furore resulted in Governor G. Mennen Williams instructing State Police Commissioner Oswald B. Lenard to aid in an investigation.

Assistant prosecutor John Ricard said Lamb admitted betting on his fighter. Under the law, this could be a misdemeanor. The manager also could lose his licence under boxing commission regulations.

Six former ring champions stood in a silent, impressive line at Paris Monday night in a ceremony commemorating Marcel Cerdan, the French middleweight who died in a plane crash last week.

The Palais Des Sports was plunged into darkness and 15,000 stood as a brilliant spotlight shone on the ring and the arena rang with the "Marsellaise."

Four world champions were among those in attendance. They were George Carpentier, light heavyweight; Marcel Thing, middleweight; Eugene Chiqui, featherweight and Andre Routis, featherweight.



The two were former European champions, Emile Pladner, flyweight, and Maurice Holtzer, featherweight.

Five military jumping teams in New York to compete in the international horse show which opens at Madison Square Garden today, Monday were received at city hall by deputy Mayor John Bennett.

Four of the teams represent the armies of Canada, the Republic of Ireland, Mexico and Chile. The fifth represents a team of Carabineros, federal mounted police of Chile.

At Falkirk, Scotland, the Hull Volants Monday night dropped the opening game of their European exhibition tour when Falkirk Lions shut them out 2-0.

The Quebec squad failed to break the ice against the Lions, champions of the Scottish National Hockey League.

The Volants, of the Eastern Canada Hockey League, will be on the tour for five weeks and will play 18 games. On the swing, of 10,000 miles in the Tourist Class by a travelling hockey team. Most of the trip will be by air.

A slightly flabby Joe Louis shuffled through a four-round exhibition bout at Atlantic City Monday night, his right hand apparently on vacation at this return.

He called on the right only twice in the bout with Lee Savold, an ambitious Newark heavyweight, Savold, 6 feet 2 inches, 214, made two attempts to ruffle the retired heavyweight champion, but the rights snapped the ideas out of his head.

Lightweight champion Ike Williams of Trenton, N.J., has signed to defend his crown in a 15-round bout against Freddie Dawson of Chicago Nov. 28 at Convention Hall Philadelphia, Promoter Phil Glassman announced Monday night.

Glassman said Williams would receive 45 and Dawson 10 per cent of the gate that he said should approximate $72,000.

Williams and Dawson have met three times in recent years in non-title bouts, with the champion emerging the winner twice and one bout a draw.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The Belleville District Hockey League will pry the lid off the 1949-50 season in Memorial Arena on Tuesday, Nov. 8, the executive decided at a meeting held last night. Opening the ceremonies will be the Canadian National Railway Diesels and Northern Electric while the second half of the double bill may see the two RCAF teams, Flyers of Trenton and S.H.D. clash. Belleville Juniors won't see action until Thursday, Nov. 10, when they meet in the first half of a doubleheader against Northern Electric.

The executive decided to use a five-team grouping this year due to the lateness of the starting season, and also due to the fact that it desired the league playoffs to be over date to the fact that it desired the league playoffs to be over date before Ontario Hockey Association schedules start. Dick Beridzman of Trenton offered a last minute entry, but the executive decided against it because of the aforementioned reasons. Manager Jim MacDonald who piloted the Trenton town last season, had notified the league that he found it impossible to forward an entry this year.

Four of the five teams in the loop will take part in the annual playoffs with the first and third and second and fourth squads meeting in the semi-finals. In the event of any two teams being tied, the position in the standing will be decided by the goals for and against.

With plenty of demand for reserved seats, the executive decided after some discussion to reserve the first two rows of seats in the Arena at a charge of 50 cents. There is a fixed number of fans in the city who definitely prefer reserved seats, and these will secure the seating accommodation they desire.

The league adopted a 28-game schedule which is published elsewhere in this edition. Games will be played on Tuesday and Thursday nights, the first game starting at 7.30, and the second as soon afterwards as possible. Teams must be ready to go on the proper time and those guilty of tardiness for no reason will have a healthy fine tacked on their expchequer. Referees Bill Hodges and Shackepers will be appointed by league officials.

Ice is expected in the Arena any day now and the teams will swing into practice action as soon as it is available. The Belleville Juniors are expected to take the ice in preparation for their big test on Friday night against the slurry Trenton MacDurnan Junior "B" squad. They will test what the ice as soon as it is ready and Coach McNaught will take the ice as soon as it is ready and Coach McNaught extends an invitation to all players to attend the workouts as far as possible. As was said before be turn out for these workouts. As was said before every position is open and to the youngsters who have their ability they are able to hold down playing spots, will go the chance to make good with the team.

Efforts will be made to have city officials at the formal opening of the league next Tuesday night. It is hoped to have a capacity crowd on hand to show particular mere thanks to the strength of the respective squads of the league. It is a strength remembered that the power is evenly distributed although Northern Electric and Canadian National Railway Diesels are expected to show particular mere thanks to the strength of the respective squads of the league. It Diesels are expected to show particular mere thanks to the strength of the respective squads of the league. It

The other teams are unknown quantities, but don't sell 'em short. They may pop up with several surprises.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, Nov. 1 — (AP) — Little Billy Conn still swears by his own creation, the double-windpack formation, made a rather startling statement the other day: "Coaches like Lou Little Buff Donelli and Paul Brown are miles ahead of the rest of us." Kerr, watching the single - wing teams of Pittsburgh and Pennsylvania battle it out, was discussing the success of these old-fashioned formations. Now the two-up-to-date "T" experts are ringing in with the Notre Dame single-wing-T which stem from the old stuff . . . Two more teams for nations do so well is that the boys don't know what to do when they're double-teamed," he said. "They're used to playing defence against the T, but it's said to season that when you have two offensive formations, it makes coaching twice as hard for the opposition. They have to teach two defences to use against you."

. . . Maybe Kerr would be smart to let the subject drop there; some rival may come up with a "three platoon" team to cover all the angles.

Foxzami Wins Melbourne Cup At 16-1 Price

Melbourne, Nov. 1. —(AP)— Foxzami, a 16-to-1 shot ridden by Sydney Jockey William Feltham, today won the Melbourne Cup, Australia's greatest horse race.

A crowd of 101,000 jammed Flemington race course to watch Foxzami, son of the French sire Nazami, win the two mile classic by 1 1-4 lengths. Hoyts, at 20 to 1, finished second and Benvole, 13 to 1, was third.

The event was worth £13,500 (about $30,000) and the four-year-old winner's share amounted to approximately £8,750. The big, first contested in 1861, commands more interest than any other sporting event in Australia.

Thirty-one thoroughbreds, representing the cream of the crop from Australia and New Zealand, went to the post.

Foxzami was timed in 3:28 1-5 for the long grind, 1 1-2 seconds slower than the race record.

The 6 to 1 favorite, Delta, winner of last Saturday's Victorian Derby for three-year-olds, struggled home fifth in the big field.

In addition to the purse money and track betting, the cup is the medium of speculation with bookmakers and in sweepstakes tickets.

Jockey Fellows managed to keep Foxzami out of trouble in the run for positions. He had the ultimate winner well placed with the leaders throughout the exacting marathon event.

Vagabond, the early cup favorite, lost prestige with the bettors by showing dismal form in two record starts, another early choice, Carbon Copy, ran so poorly last Saturday that he was withdrawn from today's stake.

The Melbourne Cup annually completes the second leg of Melbourne's big spring racing double. The qualified cup is the first leg. It was run Oct. 15 and was captured by Lincoln a long shot.

The Strikers provided the upset of the season, as they made it a clean sweep over the high-flying Merry Macs. Uniques climbed back into second place, by virtue of their clean sweep over the Happy Gang. The Head Pins picked up four points at the expense of the Skyliners in the other encounter.

Les Douglas Leading Scorer In Hockey Loop

New York, Nov. 1 — (CP) — Les Douglas of Cleveland Barons picked up five points this week and continued to lead the American Hockey League in scoring.

Douglas was on top with 18 points, two more than Cliff Pennington of St. Louis Flyers. Ab DeMarco of Buffalo Bisons was third with 15. Crowded into the No. 4 slot with 14 points were Roy Kelly and Ken Schultz of Cleveland and Paul Gladu of St. Louis.

Douglas gave up the top spot in goal scoring to Simpson and DeMarco, each of whom had 6. Douglas still led the playmakers with 12 assists.

Joe Levandoe of Cincinnati Mohawks was comparatively "good" this week, getting nicked for only one minor penalty, but remained the league's "bad man" with 34 penalty minutes.

Terry Sawchuk continued the standout goalie with two shutouts and an average of 2.22 on 30 goals allowed in nine games.

Cochrane, Nov. 1 (CP) — Alfred Hodson, chief game overseer for the Cochrane district, says that bears now going into hibernation are the leanest in decades and large numbers of them will die of starvation during hibernation. Natural food for the animals has been so scarce, he claims, that many bears eat oats from farm's crops.

Later rounds of bidding can be decided with the aid of two easy rules. Add to these the two most popular forcing signals and you have a system that is complete for all practical purposes.

One rule is: Each raise shows another trick. The other rule is: Follow T-A-N; takeout first, assist next, no-trump last; subject to enough tricks for any raises.

One forcing signal is: A takeout to a new suit is forcing for one round if the chain of new suits is not broken. The other forcing signal is: Any jump bid is forcing to game.

The south hand in a deal is shown here:

♠K Q 6 5 4
♣ 4 2 7 4

Bids started like this:

South	North
1 S	2 D
3 C	3 H

So far the south bidding is correct. With nothing but takeouts to new suits so far employed it is forcing for another round. When asked what south should do next my answer was three no-trump.

Came then the reminder that south had support for clubs—but not yet shown; an assist comes before no-trump in the order of choice; why not show the diamond support before bidding no-trump?

The answer is that south has not enough tricks for the raise march through Plymouth most of the game of the Amethyst were to go to Leyte.

Amethyst Home And Receives Royal Welcome

Plymouth, England, Nov. 1—Britain's most talked about warship of the post-war years, H.M.S. Amethyst, came home today to face the most frightening "barrage" since she successfully ran the gauntlet of Chinese Communist gunfire on the Yangtze.

The "big guns" of a British welcome were brought to bear on the frigate.

Flags, brightly-colored bunting, "welcome home" signs, bands—and some of the pickings of Britain's "who's who"—were all there on the quayside at this ancient British port when the freshly-painted frigate nosed her way in beside the 2,500-ton battleship Vanguard.

And the din was enough to make Sir Francis Drake, Britain's greatest sea captain, turn in his hammock as fourteen 21-gun saluting relatives and "gold braid" naval officers broke into lusty cheers, bands began to play and aircraft roared overhead in salute.

The prominent people—warmed with constant relays of piping hot tea—included the First Lord of the Admiralty, Viscount Hall, the Hon. Sea Lord, Admiral Lord Fraser, the Commander-in-Chief at Plymouth, Admiral Sir Robert Burnett, and local dignitaries.

Lt. Cmdr. J. S. Kerans, commander of the Amethyst, after a series of big welcomes all along the route of the Yangtze Hong Kong, Singapore, Malta, Ceylon and Gibraltar, had briefed his crew for the forthcoming celebrations something like this:

"Don't spoil your night at parties—you are going to meet the King. Go easy on the whiskey, champagne and beer because I am not going to bail you out of jail."

Following speeches of welcome, the Amethyst will sail a hill march through Plymouth most of the game of the Amethyst were to go to Leyte.

In all, 467 Ontario municipalities will receive about $2,300,000 in fire department grants.

Mackenzie's Column Commons Further Curbs Powers Of House of Lords

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Britain's House of Commons Monday night passed a bill which further curbs the powers of the House of Lords, thereby gaining another victory in the generation-old fight between the elected representatives and hereditary peers.

This measure restricts the Lords from holding up for more than one year any legislation passed by the Commons. Heretofore the Lords could delay Commons' measures for two years.

It opens the way for the final passage of the Commons bill nationalizing Britain's huge steel and iron industry.

The predominantly - Conservative Lords had agreed reluctantly to lesser measures for state ownership, but had refused to accept the steel program, which represented the high-point in the Socialist program of nationalization.

It's interesting to note that there was one other way in which Prime Minister Attlee could have beaten the Lords on this steel legislation if necessary, although it would have been an extreme measure he could have followed the precedent set by the late Prime Minister Herbert Asquith back in 1911. This was in connection with an act which would bar the Lords from interfering with any finance bill in Commons.

Ultimatum Issued

The House of Lords was adamant in its refusal to make any such concession. Thereupon Asquith issued an ultimatum that either the Lords would agree or he would call upon the King to create enough new Lords to insure acceptance in the Upper House. The Lords then surrendered, for the Prime Minister could have done exactly as he threatened.

There are 640 members of the Commons and 760 Peers. Some of the latter are hereditary, others are newly appointed by the King, and there are still other categories, including the Bishops of the Church of England.

Actually the majority of the Lords rarely attend the sessions. Most of the Peers who sit regularly are experts who have been appointed because of their knowledge.

While the legislative powers of the Lords are restricted, they perform a useful service. For one thing they serve as a valuable balance wheel for a sometimes impetuous House of Commons.

However, there is growing debate in Britain whether it would not be better to reconstitute the House of Lords by making its membership elective. In that way it would represent the public the same as does the Commons. That is at least in the opinion of the Socialist party would like to see.

Two Youths Held Charged With Robbery

Ashton, Ont., Nov. 1—(CP)—Two youths were arrested near here Monday night and charged with robbery with violence following a highway hold-up.

Police identified the youths as Howard Morissette, 20, of Hull, Que., and Robert Evans, 19, of no fixed abode. They were apprehended less than a mile from the spot where R. W. Stanzel of Smith Falls, Ont., was held up, and his automobile and $100 in cash taken from him.

Stanzel was homeward bound in his automobile from Ottawa and had travelled about 25 miles south of the capital when two youths stopped his car.

One of them pulled a revolver and forced the motorist to drive down a side road. There he was struck over the head with the butt of the weapon and pushed out of the auto. The gunmen made off in the car but overturned it in a ditch.

Morissette and Evans were on foot when arrested. Police said they found a revolver and about $100 in cash in their possession.

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking to himself thawtful, and ma said, William, I hope you're not worrying about Russia having the atomic bomb?

Well no I'm not, at least at this particulier moment, pop said, and ma said, Well please dont worry about it at all, because I assure you there's nuthing to worry about. Whether Russia has the secret or not, she has no inpention of making atomic bombs.

You gosh, thats news, pop said. Is it official? he said, and ma said, Well naturally the Russians aren't admitting it in words of one sillable, but you can take my words for it. Maud Hewe's neffuud who has travelled all over Europe with people he met so few has a frend who knows a cially over there, and that's how the info has leaked out. The Russians simply aren't intrsted in making bombs, even though they did cause one explosion just to give our newspapers something to talk about. So we can stop spending billi-I'ons of untold dollers on bigger and worse bombs, and sleep easily and breathe freely again, she said.

That's cheering news to every taxpayer who's allergic to exploding stims, pop said. But what the dooce is it all about? he said, and ma said, It's about a powder the Russians have invented. It's so dedly that one little pinch of it dropped over the biggest city will leave nothing but a handfull of lifeless dust to tell the tail. So they feel they simply dont need atomic bombs, she said.

But then for Peet sake we've got the powder to worry about, pop said, and ma said, Not at all. If the Russians can produce anything as terrible as that in their laboratories, we can produce something 10 times worse. We'll be catching up to them instead of having them catch up to us, and that's an intirely different story, she said.

Yes' gools, if it was a laffing matter I'd laff, pop said.

Which he did anyways.

Hong Kong Now Boom City, Population Has Been Doubled

By STANLEY RICH

Hong Kong, Nov. 1 (AP) — The Chinese Civil War has turned Hong Kong into a boom city.

Although this British colony on the edge of China stands the risk of losing heavily in the long run, it is now in the odd position of probably being the only area in the Orient that is reaping profits from the continued Communist success.

Hong Kong's population, normally about 1,000,000 has roughly doubled, British military strength has been increased from 8,000 to more than 40,000 men. Wealthy refugees from China are still pouring in.

Furious Spending Spree

As a consequence, Hong Kong businessmen are cashing in on a furious spending spree. Building owners are getting more than $7,000 (Canadian) in "key money" for the privilege of renting three room apartments.

This is on top of $145 (Canadian) monthly rentals—gas and electricity extra.

The Far Eastern Economic Review, the weekly bible of the local business community, estimates that British troops alone are spending the equivalent of $1,000,000 (Canadian) a month for entertainment and purchases.

There is one hitch, however. Hong Kong cannot survive as one of Britain's prime money earners without continuing trade with China. In 1948 the China trade accounted for 60 per cent of the colony's business.

"Big business" has been calmly biding its time, expecting that lucrative China trade would be resumed after the Red capture of Canton. With the Communists now in Canton, however, the general feeling lately has changed from optimism to pessimism. Hong Kong's traders are beginning to ask themselves disturbing questions about the future.

The consensus among the colony's higher business circles is this:

1. The Communists are not likely to launch any military attack on Hong Kong but it is almost inevitable that they eventually will try for indirect control of foreign affiliation and by bureaucratic impediments in the form of import and export licences and travel visas.

2. The Hong Kong government will make every effort to obtain local working arrangements with the Communists regardless of what the foreign office in London does about diplomatic recognition.

Meanwhile, Hong Kong is booming.

PRIME MINISTER

Premier Manning of Alberta was unavailable for comment but it was reported in Edmonton that the Alberta Government would make a date early in January acceptable.

Reaction of the other six premiers has not yet been disclosed.

Purpose of the conference is to seek a means of amending the constitution on matters not wholly within federal jurisdiction.

As a result of a resolution passed by the Commons last Thursday, Parliament will ask the United Kingdom to transfer to Canada the right to amend the constitution on Federal matters.

Will Discuss Many Questions

That leaves matters of purely provincial authority and affairs which are of joint federal-provincial responsibility to be discussed at the meetings.

However, it is expected that the conference will not confine itself to any one segment of constitutional questions.

One point which could come up for discussion is that of a social security scheme. This would need Dominion-Provincial agreement since it involves jurisdiction of both levels of government under the constitution.

Up to the present, Premier Duplessis of Quebec is the only provincial leader who has not indicated definitely that he will attend the conference. The others expressed willingness to attend, leaving only the date to be settled.

Premier Duplessis has expressed disagreement with the Federal government methods of amending the constitution on federal matters. He contends the provinces should have been consulted before recent federal amendments.

Following his graduation from McGill, Mr. Stewart remained at the university for nearly two years as a lecturer and demonstrator. In 1916 he joined the Engineering Department of Imperial Oil at Sarnia Refinery, advanced through many departments of the company's business, and in 1924 was appointed General Manager in charge of all refineries, from coast to coast. In 1944 he was made a Vice-President and Director, In 1947 became Chairman of the Board, and in 1949 was elected President of the Company.

Year-Old Girl Burned to Death In Apartment

Owen Sound, Nov. 1 — (CP) — Maxine Pringle, one-year-old daughter of J. Pringle, a plumber of nearby Chatsworth, was burned to death Monday when fire swept through a two-storey apartment block.

The child was trapped in an upper storey apartment of the four-family brick building while visiting her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Johnson Bannerman, accompanied by her mother.

The mother made repeated attempts to get her daughter out of the building but fireman arrived to rescue her. She died in hospital.

An unidentified woman was burned as she tried to reach the upper storey to help in the rescue.

The fire is believed to have started in an oil storage drum at the rear of the building.

General Motors Places Case Before Minister

Oshawa, Ont., Nov. 1. —(CP)— General Motors of Canada Monday placed its case in the Oshawa Automotive strike before Labor Minister Daley of Ontario, W. A. Wecker, company president, conferred with the Labor Minister at Toronto.

However, there was no indication later that the talks in Toronto had brought settlement of the strike which started last Wednesday any nearer. The union presented its side of the dispute at a conference with the labor minister last week.

Mr. Daley declined comment on the meeting with Mr. Wecker held at his invitation.

Local 222 of the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) called the strike when four union members were dismissed for refusing to work after an assembly line had been stepped up from 40 to 47 cars an hour. Some 5,200 production workers are idle.

Thinks Russians Would Welcome Return to Czarism

New York, Nov. 1 — (CP) — Tihon Kulikovski of Campbellville, Ont., a nephew of former Czar Nicholas II of Russia, landed here Monday on his way home to Canada after a European vacation.

Kulikovski, 32, is a Danish citizen. He was born in the Crimea during the Russian Revolution and his parents escaped with him to Denmark.

After serving with the Danish army and underground forces during the Second World War, he emigrated to Canada, where he now lives with his wife and his mother, Grand Duchess Olga.

"I like it up there," said Kulikovski, an architect employed by a large Canadian department store. "The people are very nice and friendly."

Kulikovski told reporters he thought the Russian people would welcome a return to the Czarist regime. Asked whether he had received word recently about conditions in Russia, he replied with a wide grin:

"No, Uncle Joe doesn't write me too often."

As to whether he intends to acquire Canadian citizenship, he said it would take four years under Canadian law for him to become a citizen and that he is not sure of his future plans in that respect.

COURT ALLOWS APPEAL

Toronto, Nov. 1. —(CP)— No municipality may legally prohibit the use of all its land as a trailer camp, the Ontario Appeal Court ruled Monday.

The court allowed the appeal of Mrs. Elizabeth De Clute from conviction of operating a trailer camp in suburban Scarborough township. A township by-law sets up a township trailer camp and prohibits trailer camps in all other parts of the township.

DAFFY-nition:

PEDESTRIAN — one who, for no good reason at all, walks. It might be noted here that there is only one more primitive method of locomotion than walking, and that is crawling. If therefore you are beginning to be worried about being called a walker or crawler, you have an easy out. As you have probably seen by the papers they've been building a gol-darn contraption called an "auto-mewbile" for the past 50 years and many people have started with the hard-earned dough to become motorists instead of pedestrians.

Now there's a bunch of fellas up the 4-lane highway who have made more motorists out of pedestrians than you can shake a stick at. So we're to think that people have been walking (or crawling) for the past 50,000 years and all of a sudden West End Motor Sales is rapidly changing this primitive pastime—it just makes you stop and think!

MORAL:

If you're tired of walking the boys to see are West End Motor Sales at Herchimer Avenue and Kingston Road. And by-the-way, for we haven't heard, the Greyhound Lines have started a new service to Parkwood Heights, which will take you right up to our lot. Or phone 3766 and we'll pick you up. No obligation.

Martin's Summer

By Vicki Baum

"Now Herr Martin, I said then, 'we're going this evening to the Schweinskabob to eat some pigs' head and cabbage.' 'Thanks,' said he, 'but I've already had dinner.' Well, you'd only to look at the man to see he was starving. 'At my invitation, Herr Martin,' I said, seeing my old woman was to keen on finesse, and so the three of us went to the Schweinskaebel. Well, then, when that last Vesi came to take the order, I say: to her, 'Vesi, my lass', I say 'this is the new swimming instructor. Bring him a good helping for he's had nothing in his belly these three days past,' I say, and I'm paying for him.' Up jumps Herr Martin at that and clears right out of it though he's eaten nothing that evening. So you see how difficult it is to handle a sportsman. And so my old woman she cooked him some eggs and took them out to him in his hut, and he ate them up with out a word and left a clean plate.

"But now we'll have better weather by the looks of it. You could see the Iron Tooth in the mountains through the clouds for a quarter of an hour today, and that always means a change. And now I think of it, you'd better hang up a pleasant handsomer in your roadside here with a picture postcard he has of him-self in his uniform standing and standing beside Rademacher, for even though Rademacher owns him, it was a great honor, as he says to swim against him, and many amateurs have any interest in swimming knows that, he says. And then on the 15th of August he's instruction in swimming, diving, etc, of every description. Now the boy's registered swimmers, by a noted champion swimmer. And something to say about the gymnasium and physical training and the newly appointed trainer, Herr Sindil.

"And after that," says he, "we'll post up a fake temperature near the entrance—comfortable 18 degrees centigrade or so, and then we shall soon have a few come along,' says he, 'for I'm born optimist, Herr Sindil' says he, and well he may be, for let the ladies once catch sight of him and they'll come bathing quick enough even if it snow and hail.

"Well he along here then, in half an hour, to have a talk with you about himself, and I, myself, in the lake now, as a matter of fact, on account of his training. I'm going to swim across to the other side today,' says he, 'and that's more than fifteen hundred meters. Mats can row the boat over to fetch me back.' Mats Follows him about all day long and has from the moment he got out of the train. I'm not too sure, though, that a six-year-old boy like Mats has the strength to row a boat across now that a bit of a west wind's getting up. Now, when he comes along to you don't you say anything about having nothing to eat, or he might refuse then and there to have his name appear at all. He's so full of the fact, you see, that he's a sportsman and not a professional. Oh, to blazes with it, and just look at the lovely weather.'

So ran Herr Bindil's discourse punctuated at appropriate points by murmurs of astonishment and applause from the hall-porter. For some minutes, too, a young girl in a drenched raincoat, who had wandered into the hall from outside, had been listening. She had brown eyes and wore a round cap like those worn by French Alpine troops, and from beneath the cap her light brown hair, ruffled by the wind, blew across her face.

"Who is it who's out there on the lake?' who is it who wants to get across?" she asked in a deep boyish voice, pleasantly broken in the middle notes.

"Why it's the new swimming instructor, miss," replied Herr Bindal at once.

"With this wind from the west? Just look at the lake!" said the girl. "He must be mad. However, he's sure to turn back if he can't get on."

"Him turn back! You don't know him Miss. He's in training. That's what he's doing it for."

The girl snatched her cap from her head and shook a glistening shower of drops from her short bronze-colored hair. Then she walked away and passed through the reading room and breakfast room out onto the covered terrace beside the lake. At this hour of deepening twi-light it was silent and deserted, and the tables where coffee had been served in the afternoon were all forsaken. The girl went to the telescope which—as in front of most of the Fruenhees houses — was mounted on a revolving stand. It was pointing upward as if to observe the white peak of the Iron Tooth behind the rain-clouds. With an impatient movement the girl directed the lens onto the lake, whose surface was now lashed into the squall with a turbulance of dark water and white crests of foam. There she stood examining with one eye to the telescope until everything was lost to sight in darkness and storm.

Far away out on the lake boy-ant as a speck, Martin Martin lay extended at full length in the water and propelled himself with a four-stroke crawl. His supple arms scooped the water as regularly as a pair of paddles and his elastic recoil of his legs whipped them forward, leaving a track of foam in his wake. In his ears and eyes and nostrils were wellknown tingling sensations, the green murmuring twilight of the waves, and as his arm-stroke lifted him out of the water he turned his head toward his left shoulder and drew a deep breath. His breath was much warmer than the water, and there was something in it of expectancy and urgency. Even when a brief shower pattered down its ink drops from a heavy cloud, his breath was neither cooler nor quicker, but the life-giving power and opposed a stronger resistance to his arms.

The lake was cold and very deep. Fed by the glacier streams that flowed in it, its warmest water was colder and colder toward the middle. And in the coldness of it it sometimes gripped the swimmer's flanks as if with hoops and made breathing more difficult. The cold nipped his heels and toes and caused a slight stiffening, and this provoked Martin to blow a trumpet note of annoyance through the water.

When, as far as he could tell, he was about halfway across he felt himself getting tired, and this annoyed and worried him. He trod water, and took a look back over his course and over the lake. He was a little disappointed with what he saw The Fruenhees shore, still not very far off, and all those comfortable and inviting features to which Fuhrmann's Grand Hotel on its projecting spit of land owed its good name, were easily discernible. In the garden below the terrace white-aproned waiters were shutting the big red tea garden umbrellas and carrying them indoors. That pointed to steady rain. There was not a boat on the lake—only one, at least, and this rocked about as it labored heavily to and fro in a perfectly similar fashion. Martin recognized it at once. It was the big, broad-beamed emergency boat of the bathing station manned by little Matz, who appeared to be making no headway against the increasing force of the wind.

Martin raised one arm above the water and sent a short yodel in a perfectly clear tone. The answering call could only be guessed, for it was swept away by the wind. Martin smiled, but he was a little anxious all the same. Now he was getting the boat along, though it was dipping water at the bow, and with him was the stop-watch that he revered like a fetish. The lake was in a lively mood, and the waves broke relentlessly over his head. The Wurmtal shore for which Martin was making was far away and its outlines were obscured by rain, but the white walls and dark trees of Castle Dobberberg stood out clear on an eminence jutting out into the lake. Martin took his bearings once more by the Wurmtal landing stage of the Schwarzbach which he could hear tooting in the distance without being able to see it. The familiar sound made the vacant expanses of the lake seem rather more friendly.

He yodeled across to Matz once more. They were farther apart now and it looked as if the boy had to turn back to the bathing-beach. But perhaps it was the wind from the west that drove him backward, or else he was trying to tack. For a moment Martin considering returning, but if it was only a fleeting idea that he brushed aside at once as he extended himself again in the water and shot forward as if at the start of a race.

He could not keep it up for-long, for the waves grew bigger, and he had to rise to each one and spring at it, so that it sent him more breath than before. But once for a moment he found himself in a stretch of still, black water that lay like a patch of oil amid the tempestuous lake—this to local weather prophets was a message of storms to come, it was warm there. Then he swam on again, using the crawl stroke and getting into mechanicality to a dazed and bewildered state.

After ten minutes of this he was tired out again and making no headway, It seemed to him that he was dragging his limbs not through water but through a thick cohesive mass — an icy lava, cold and yet burning. The lake was now transformed into monstrous waves with swirling valleys between. The sky hung low and lowering. It was very yellow and a veiled metallic light played the black and heavy clouds. The shores had vanished. A confused and angry roar of thunder, tempest and hail broke over Martin's head. A rush of water was dashed against his face when he looked up. It filled his mouth, and for a few seconds he fought for breath while he coughed and choked. A wave beneath him and he_sat like a pigmy on a great wet palm. When after a second or two he opened his eyes again, all was dark. He knew no longer where he was. He did not Know in what direction he ought to swim.

For a while he lay on his back and considered matters. The lake had gone crazy beneath the storm. Martin was tossed hither and thither like a rubber ball. Once he thought of little Matz and wondered whether he had put back in time with his old tub, and also he thought of the safety of his stop watch which had cost him such a sacrifice not to pawn. Then for a time he thought of nothing, for there was no breath left in his body. Suddenly he realized the danger he was in. "Damn it," he said as he tried to turn on his side, "Damn it all!" And then he swam on again. He was panting now. His heart thumped against his ribs, and strength ebbed swiftly from his stiffening limbs. This lasted a long time, when he knew that it was a matter of life and death, the fury of the waters seemed to enter into him. He fought. He plunged his arms into the water as if grappling with an enemy. He cried out, and this-since it cost him breath—was not utterly senseless thing to do. But he had to give violent expression to his rage and sense of impotence. Amid the storm he heard his own panting breath.

ANCIENT LOST CITY DISCOVERED

This heap of stones is part of one of the great historical discoveries of modern times. It is the remains of a city of 100,000 persons, which once quarriered the conquering legions of Alexander the Great and then vanished in the shifting sands. While riding in a jeep across the "Desert of Death" in western Afghanistan last August, Walter A. Fairservis of the American Museum of Natural History, suddenly saw these crumbled ruins of the one-time city. The city was named Peshawarum, and measured six miles long and five miles wide. There were no human remains found in the city, and it is presumed the inhabitants left the site because of lack of water.—Central Press Canadian.

FOUR MEN, WOMAN MISSING, BELIEVED DROWNED

Six Persons Die As Flames Sweep Apartment Bldg.

Seven Others Burned, Hurt In Leap From Windows

Cincinnati, Nov. 2 — (AP) — Six persons died early today in a fire which swept through halfways of a three-story apartment building at the edge of the downtown district and left them trapped in their rooms.

Seven others were burned or hurt in leaps from second-and-third storey windows.

Four other persons who lived in the apartment house escaped without injury.

Five of the dead were reported to have died of burns while a sixth died in a leap from a window.

Ironically, the blaze was extinguished in short order by firemen. Damage was estimated as only about $2,000.

One of the dead was a boy about eight years old.

Charles Dean, a taxi driver, said he was attracted to the scene by screams of women.

Could Sea Fire

"I could see the fire," he said, "and see people at windows and on the fire escape blazing out of the second and third floor windows. It was awful. I saw two people jump and I saw another man get to another building by walking around a ledge on an upper floor window."

"Somebody probably saved his life because they shouted to him not to jump.

Dead were: Coy Shelton, Athens, Tenn.; William Hartman, Cincinnati; Mrs. Alice Hartman, Liberty, Ky.; James Alexander, about eight, and Mrs. McBeath; Goldie Taylor, 53, Cincinnati.

One man was unidentified.

BOATMEN COMB RIVER BED FOR MISSING DEAD

55 Killed When Military Plane Collides With Airliner Over Field

By DON WHITEHEAD

Washington, Nov. 2 — (AP) — Boatmen today combed the bed of the Potomac River for the missing among the 55 men, women and children hurled to death from the air Tuesday in history's worst airplane tragedy.

Many hours following the collision of an Eastern Airlines four-engine passenger transport and a Bolivian fighter plane, the search went on for the 55 passengers whose bodies had not yet been recovered.

Shocked members of Congress, stunned by the loss of one of their own number, promised a complete air safety investigation. The Civil Aeronautics Board said its hearings into the cause of the crash will start in a few days. The airline scheduled a probe of its own.

The disaster occurred as the big transport headed into the National airport for a landing shortly before noon, flying at about 300 feet.

TORCH SINGER BOUND WITH TAPE IN HOTEL ROOM

Suspect Arrested After Chase Through Downtown Streets

Toronto, Nov. 2. (CP) —Patti Page, blonda torch singer, told police today she was bound with adhesive tape in her downtown hotel room by a man who followed the room on the pretext of delivering flowers.

Miss Page's home is in Tulsa, Okla. Friends said her age is 21.

Police arrested a 41-year-old man who gave his name as William Daniel after a chase through downtown streets.

He is charged with assault causing bodily harm. Miss Page said a man knocked on the door, had a box of flowers. When he knocked on the door and was admitted he produced a gun from the box.

She said the man ordered her to sit in a chair and tied her wrists with adhesive tape.

Miss Page, currently appearing in a Toronto theatre, said the man tried to get her who ankles bound in the chair but she screamed and he fled.

She said she was too frightened to tell whether he had a gun.

The man originally threatened her, saying, "I don't want your money I want your body."

BAD TO DESTROY DEER

Beaverton, Ont., Nov. 2 — (CP) — A lumbering buck deer crashed into a car driven by Thomas McGhie Tuesday near this Lake Simcoe town. It then strolt the highway's again. The 250-pound animal had to be destroyed.

PARTIES AGREE CANADA SHOULD REDUCE TARIFFS

Social Credit and C.C.F. Present Resolutions

Ottawa, Nov. 2 (CP)—The Social Credit and C.C.F. parties —often at political odds—found themselves on common ground in parliament, Tuesday.

They agreed that Canada should reduce tariffs to maintain and expand trade with United Kingdom and sterling-area countries.

Victor Quelch (SC—Acadia), a lumber man from Morrisville, said his party supports a C.C.F. non-confidence motion in the government.

The motion, introduced by Ross Thatcher (CCF—Moose Jaw) last week in the form of a subamendment to the budget resolution, urged the government to:

"Give immediate consideration to a reduction of tariffs sufficient to encourage an increase in imports from the United Kingdom and other sterling countries.

Mr. Quelch divided Canada's trade problem into two sections —one involving the United States, the other involving overseas trade. Each would have to be solved separately.

The Soviet Canada sold a lot more to the United Kingdom than she bought from that market. She must be prepared to buy more in order to balance the trade overseas.

As for the U.S., Canada bought considerably more there than she exported to it, he claimed. Either she must buy less from the U.S. or sell more to the U.S.

New Westminster, B.C., Nov. 2 —(CP)—John Carrier, 27, Tuesday was fined $500 for biting Constable Frank Kemp on the forehead and putting him in hospital.

Magistrate H. L. Edmonds termed it a "vicious assault."

RESUME ILLUMINATION OF NIAGARA FALLS

Niagara Falls, Ont., Nov. 2—(CP)— Illumination of Niagara Falls will be resumed tonight and it will continue nightly through the winter, Mayor William L. Houck announced Tuesday. The action follows a plea from Mayor Houck to Hydro-Electric Power Commissioners. Nightly illumination of the falls was discontinued in October when power conservation measures were brought into effect.

Evangelistic Show Overshadows Anything Ever Seen on Coast

Los Angeles, Nov. 2, (AP) — Old-style religion is sweeping the City of the Angels with an Evangelistic show overshadowing even Billy Sunday.

Since it started six weeks ago more than 200,000 men and the winter, Mayor William L. Houck announced Tuesday. The action follows a plea from Mayor Houck to Hydro-Electric Power Commissioners. Nightly illumination of the falls was discontinued in October when power conservation measures were brought into effect.

Since it started six weeks ago more than 200,000 men and women, a 2,000,000 population have filed into a circus tent on the fringe of downtown Los Angeles. And they're still pouring in at the rate of 10,000 every night.

They come to hear the preachments of a dynamic handsome young college graduate named Billy Graham. Churchmen say he has started the greatest religious revival in the history of Southern California.

Graham's oratory is eloquent; his doctrines are home-spun. From the edge of the jostling multitudes, thousands have hit the sawdust trail and announced publicly their decision to return to Christ.

One of them was a brilliant track star at the University of Southern California before the war. His name is Lou Zamperini. A United States Air Force Captain, he crashed in the Pacific, spent 47 days on a raft then was captured by Japanese prison camp.

"It is difficult for anyone who came through those days I did to forget God, but I did," Zamperini said.

Another convert is Stuart Hamblen, popular cowboy crooner and sportsman, who is the Methodist minister. He stepped to the platform to announce that he'll sell his racing stable.

"I will keep El Lobo, but only for sentimental reasons," Hamblen said. "I will never race him again." El Lobo clubbed "the people's choice," won the $50,000 San Antonio stakes at Santa Anita Dec. 27, 1947.

Hamblen's sentiments are typical. "I've quit drinking, everything everybody has done. I've been a sinner."

Graham is 30, nephew of North Carolina's Senator Frank Graham and president of Little Northwestern College in Indianapolis. He has toured the United States and Britain, once drew 75,000 to Soldier Field, Chicago.

DOES HE THINK IT'S PERMANENT?

Occupying what is often called the world's most insecure position is Georges Bidault. The position is that of French premier which he stepped into when his coalition cabinet won a French national assembly vote of confidence 367 to 183 after 24 days of no government at all for the republic.—Central Press Canadian.

F.D.R. AIDE DIES AT 49

General Assembly, adviser to Roosevelt and an international emissary, Stettinius was one of the key men of the last decade. He had been ill for some time. — Central Press Canadian.

Says Medical Students Should Spend Vacations With General Practitioners

Toronto, Nov. 2—(CP) — Dr. Sidney Smith, president of the University of Toronto, suggested Tuesday night that medical students get wider practical training by being apprenticed to general practitioners in rural areas during their vacations.

Dr. Smith, speaking at the Ontario Hospital Association's 25th anniversary banquet, said he raised the question "without consulting my medical colleagues, and as a member of a profession known for their rashness or brashness."

Dr. Smith, a lawyer, was backed up by a number of doctors. Leading Toronto physicians, consulted Tuesday night, said the scheme had been considered in the profession for some time and deserved a good trial.

Another speaker, Dr. A. Kelly, said that if National Health insurance is introduced in Canada, it will mean increased hospital costs, more revenue admitted to hospitals, beds used for patients who do not need them and possibly a lowering of standards in medical care.

Dr. Kelly, assistant secretary of the Canadian Medical Association, said the C.M.A. favors the principle of health insurance on a voluntary prepaid basis, with the government paying premiums for persons unable to pay them.

Dr. Smith emphasized another point in his speech when he said high tuition fees are preventing gifted students in rural areas from entering medical schools.

Health, he said, is a matter of national concern. Both Canadian universities and Canadian hospitals are anxious to aid programs for improvement of Canadian's health.

"But", he continued, "those institutions will only be able to fulfill their responsibilities if greater financial support is not accorded to them.

"We must look for greater assistance from the federal government."

Plan Mercy Flight Into N. Labrador

Halifax, Nov. 2 (CP)—The air force today told of a projected mercy mission in far-north Labrador to remove to hospital an unidentified Hudson's Bay Company official suffering "an unnamed attack."

The air force said it did not know whether the mission has been completed.

Earlier, RCMP. at Fort Chimo reported the man's illness and requested an aeroplane to evacuate him from the Hudson's Bay post, 25 miles north of the Arctic Circle. Flying Canada Inlet States helicopter from Goose Bay, Labrador, was to have performed the task.

The air force said an R.C.A.F. Dakota from Goose Bay then would have flown the patient to Knob Lake, Que., on the Labrador air base. However, no reports have been received here when the request for assistance was made.

U.K. Reluctant To Join European Economic Union

Paris, Nov. 2 — (AP) — Britain, with Commonwealth ties the world over, still is reluctant to join in a European Economic Union.

Sir Stafford Cripps, Britain's Chancellor of the Exchequer, made that clear Tuesday in commenting on United States warnings that Western Europe faces economic disaster unless it breaks down national trade barriers.

Paul G. Hoffman, Marshall Plan administrator, had called on the countries of Europe to "act now to integrate their economies to make Western Europe one big market with goods moving freely among the countries without tariffs or other restrictions."

Sir Stafford, answering Hoffman at a meeting of the General Council of the European Recovery Program, said Britain favored special problems because of her position in the Commonwealth and as a leader in the sterling area.

"We have made it clear from the beginning," Sir Stafford said, "that our first duty is to maintain our responsibilities and interests as a leading partner in the sterling area with support for the development of unity in Europe."

"This is not an easy task for I must make it clear that our relationship with the Commonwealth and sterling area is a very limited one, but spreads into North America through our association with Canada, and into Asia, Africa and Australia, in which continents the foreign trade is predominantly carried through sterling.

"Our position, therefore, is such that we could not 'integrate' our economy into that of Europe in any manner that would prejudice the full discharge of those other responsibilities that I have mentioned."

Prisoner Flees After Kissing His Daughter

Lock Haven, Pa., Nov. 2—(AP) Police today hunted a 26-year-old prisoned who fled through the fence of the Clinton county jail after kissing his four-year-old daughter goodbye in the corridor.

Sheriff George A. Hickoff said he was standing near Robert Hamm Tuesday night as the prisoner was saying goodbye to his wife, two-month-old son and the daughter.

Suddenly he darted out "on the front door and made off down a side alley," Hickoff said.

Mrs. Hamm, holding the baby, shouted after her husband, "Don't run, Bob."

Turning to the sheriff she screamed, "Call the police. Catch him. It will only make a longer term."

Hickoff was to begin an 18-month to three-year sentence today in the Pittsburgh institution for stealing an automobile.

Corn Hybrids Available For Any Areas Or Set of Conditions

Harrow, Ont., Nov. 2—(CP)—Corn hybrids now are available for almost any area or set of conditions in the corn-growing districts of Ontario, G. F. H. Buckberg of the Dominion Experimental Station said today.

Crowers want hybrids that give high yields and also mean early since the reques for assistance in husking-corn areas to plant late-maturing hybrids, he said. In too many cases, the chosen hybrids fail to reach proper maturity with resulting lower prices for the corn when marketed directly from the picker. Too often, corn is picked with very high moisture content and a great deal of spoilage occurs.

'CANADIANIZED' NAVY REQUESTED IN LONG REPORT

Deteriorating Relations Among Levels Stated

Ottawa, Nov. 2 (CP)—A sweeping, searching report on Canada's navy has been placed before the public with many criticisms and recommendations for improvement that reach deep into the training system and into "deteriorating" relations among its three levels of management.

An historical, probably unprecented landmark in Canadian defence, the 27,000-word report of a three-man commission was tabled today in the Commons by Defence Minister Claxton. He explained it recommendations at 41 and said nearly half have been or are being implemented and others are under study.

Findings ranged from lack of adequate facilities for training siring men's grievances to "a notable lack of human understanding" between officers and men; from a broad demand among navy men for greater Canadianization to criticisms of 'soft soap opera" recruiting methods and of too-frequent changes in ships and ship's routines.

It found the chain of naval command weakening at a vital point because of "deteriorating" relations between officers and petty officers and between officers and ratings, with the consequence of general inexperience in many officers, chiefs and petty officers; unfavorable results from giving young officers training in the British navy as a formative stage and then putting them over the Canadian sailor "who is not the same kind of man" as the British tar.

Parcel is Used To Trace Dope

Brampton, Nov. 2 (CP) — A package of smoking kits, trailed by the R.C.M.P. from Vancouver to Peel County, resulted in the conviction today of Steve Moran, 28, of Port Credit on a charge of possession of narcotics.

Pleading guilty, Moran was sentenced to one year definite and six months indefinite. A fine of $500 or one year consecutive was also imposed.

A charge of receiving against his mother, Mrs. Annabelle Moran was withdrawn.

The R.C.M.P. officers said it was believed Moran was a member of a ring supplying Toronto addicts. The parcel arrived from the west coast.

Constable James A. MacAuley of the R.C.M.P. told how Moran's home was searched and a parcel addressed to Steve Moran, Port Credit, found in a Vancouver post office. They found in the parcel the original 250 capsules of morphine in the kit, replacing the rest with sugar of milk.

F. B. I. AGENT DEAD

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 2 — (AP) — A young agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation apparently shot and killed himself Tuesday night. The body of Charles H. Hayes, 25, was found sprawled on a bed in his room at the Buffalo Athletic Club. A revolver was in his right hand. Medical Examiner John Hyland said it was suicide.

Clinic Gives Five Reasons Why 'Tired Business Man' Gets Tired

Philadelphia, Nov. 2 — (AP) — What makes a "tired business man" tired?

Maybe, says the Benjamin Rush Mental Clinic of the Pennsylvania Hospital, because he:

1. Stuffs his business troubles in his brief case and totes them home at night.

2. Goes out to lunch and does more business talking than eating.

3. Can't take a real vacation because he thinks he's too indispensable.

4. Doesn't have a hobby but goes out once a week for a strenuous physical workout to cure all his ills.

5. Doesn't know — or practice— moderation in either work or play.

That's the thumbnail sketch the clinic painted today from its treatment of 2,000-odd tired business men since February, 1948.

Many men had to be told "to be the boss of their jobs — not the slave of those jobs."

On such advice hangs the difference between the healthy business man and the one on the verge of an emotional or physical breakdown, the Clinic said.

Upturned Boat Is Found Adrift Near Thessalon

Hunting Party on Way To Lodge in North Country

Thessalon, Nov. 2 — (CP) — Heavy seas today hampered the search for four men and a woman, missing and believed drowned in the stormy waters of the North Channel.

Gale warnings issued Tuesday night were still in effect early today. Five boats are moving in Lake Huron waters and flying was hazardous.

North Channel is the body of water between Manitoulin Island and the Northern Ontario mainland.

Their 18-foot motorboat, empty and overturned, was washed ashore on Cockburn Island, 34 miles southeast of here, late Tuesday.

Listed as missing are Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hostetler of Sturgis, Mich.; Vernon and Perry Hostetler of LaGrange, Ind., brothers of Paul, and Charles Hostetler of White Pigeon, Mich., father of the three. Mrs. Paul Hostetler was reported to be an expectant mother.

The weather was clear today but, a strong wind was blowing up as five small fishing boats renewed the search. One boat headed for Cockburn Island.

The party, in hunting clothes, left here for a deer-hunting trip to Cockburn Island where the season opened Tuesday. Since that time no report of the group's whereabouts has been received at this Algoma District town 25 miles east of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., elsewhere on the mainland or at nearby points on Manitoulin Island.

Police Co-operating

Ontario Provincial Police officers from Thessalon and Blind River on the mainland and from Little Current on Manitoulin Island are co-operating in the search.

Opl. Louis Needham, officer in charge at Little Current, said a search party today will scour islands and mainland in the hope that the missing hunters struggled ashore after their tiny craft foundered.

A friend of the Hostetlers named McMillan found the upturned boat on the island. He had set out in a small craft to search for his friends after realizing they were long overdue.

Paul Hostetler operated fashionable tourist camps at Little Basswood Lake near Sowerby in the Thessalon district. His brothers, Perry, was married and the father of four children.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, Nov. 2 (CP)—Synopsis—Cool air is extending southeastward from Northern Ontario and Manitoba and will cover the entire province by this evening. Scattered showers will occur in advance of it and some showers are expected in the cool air in the lee of the Great Lakes. Frosts will occur in Northern Ontario. Clearing is expected in all regions tonight as a ridge of cool day is forecast for Thursday. Regional forecasts are valid until midnight Thursday.

Falls Under Wheels of Truck After Jumping Off the Running Board

Crushed beneath the rear wheels of a tractor trailer, William Bamford, 69, well known local market gardener, was instantly killed Tuesday evening when he jumped off a truck in front of his home one mile north of the city.

Mr. Bamford had walked 400 yards to a neighborhood store on the Foxboro highway to purchase groceries and on his return was offered a ride by Kenneth Sweet, driver of Diamond Construction Company, Bamford rode on the running board of the truck and believed to have stepped off while the truck was in motion.

The accident occurred directly in front of the Bamford driveway on North Park Street. As he jumped off the running board he slipped and fell under the dual wheels.

Mr. Bamford was a familiar figure on the Belleville market where each week he offered his customary truck load of vegetables to his customers. Monday he attended Farmers' Day as guest of the local Rotary Club.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Beatrice Bamford, and one daughter residing at Fitzroy Harbor, Ont.

Edward Follwell Special Speaker In Speaking Course

Edward F. Follwell, prominent lawyer and well-known Belleville citizen, was the special speaker Monday evening at the Y.M.C.A. in Speaking workshop. An interested group of class members listened attentively to his helpful and practical address on methods of gathering material for a public speech.

Mr. Follwell said a speech was really an intensified conversation, and that preparation for a public talk should come naturally, from within the individual. Think yourself empty, explore your mind", he said, and you'll be surprised at how many ideas of a real and vital nature come to the surface.

Whenever an idea comes, Ted Follwell emphasized, it should be written down. Ideas are of an elusive nature, coming at odd moments, and care should be taken to put them down on paper before they are forgotten and lost. In this way a stock of ideas will be created and the process of gathering material will be considerably eased.

Careful Reading Aid

Ted Follwell said that careful reading was a valuable aid in gathering material for a speech. He showed in a few minutes how many different talks of a wide interest could be built from one newspaper item. He received pleasure in the facilities the Corby Library offered both students and the competence and willingness to assist individuals of Miss Delaney and the staff members at the library. During the evening he passed around a list of books which he recommended as of special interest to class members.

Other methods of gathering material for a speech suggested by Ted Follwell were—writing letters to someone who has a special knowledge in some subject, consulting an authority, who will not only give you first hand information but in most cases a cordial reception as well. Interviews Mr. Follwell maintained, usually would prove to be the most helpful. Asking your friends was another way of gathering material, and through this method one often picked up some surprising facts.

Short Speeches Given

Bill Pope, program secretary at the Y.M.C.A., was chairman and introduced the speaker. Members of the class were all given an opportunity to participate in the program, and all attending made short speeches on the general subject of "One Incident in My Life." Next week the class has taken for an assignment the topic, "My Home Town," and "with the wide variety of backgrounds represented by class members, many interesting speeches are anticipated.

'Know Your Church' Campaign Will Be Sponsored by City United Churches

Following a recent meeting of the official boards of the three United Churches of the city, representatives appointed at that meeting met last evening at the home of Mr. D. G. Williams, Victoria Avenue.

Mr. Reverend Donald C. Amos was named chairman of the joint committee, and Mr. C. W. Burr was named as secretary.

Reviewing the meanings and suggestions made by the Reverend George Williams, of the Committee of Direction for the 25th anniversary, it was agreed to carry out the "Every Family Visitation" in the three churches, simultaneously. The date for beginning visitations was set for Sunday, the 30th, which will be in harmony with similar plans across Canada.

The local committee is preparing material which will be used in the churches, and in the press, and will be paralleled by information presented in the weekly United Church of Canada broadcast on Wednesday from the local station.

Believing that an informed church is an effective church, a real effort is being made to fulfil the theme of this pre-celebration period, which is, "Know Your Church."

Each local church will have opportunity to inform a fine corps of visitors to undertake this worthwhile task. A joint meeting of those who will be making the calls is planned for the third week in November.

The radio broadcast and pictorial relating to the work of the church, will be featured at this educational meeting.

Mr. Gough then went on to cover in detail the many problems that can and have been solved by the organization. How each department may have its own problems and difficulties. Many questions were then brought up and favorable answers were forthcoming. Mr. Gough stressed the fact that every effort is being made to handle matters as judiciously as possible.

Must be Interested

Mr. Kane, representing the Firemen's Union, pointed out the need of organization, and the good that it can do, not only for the employee but for the employer. It was also pointed out that the members must be sufficiently interested in their own welfare, and that of the other members, in order to make a success of any undertaking.

The toast to the King was given by the President, Mr. D. McDonald, then the new officers for the coming year were introduced. Mr. MacDonald re-elected as President, Mr. Gould, Vice President, Mr. D. Smith, Secretary Treasurer.

A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. B. Yarwood, vocalist for the evening, and to Mrs. J. Gould, pianist. The musical achievements of the two ladies were keenly appreciated by all members.

It was evident that the annual banquet was an outstanding success in every respect.

Part of the party was broadcast over C.J.B.Q. from 11:00-11:30 P.M.

The three door prizes went to Billy Collins, Ivanhoe, Shirley Kelly, Foxboro and Jim Jones, Belleville.

Costume prize winners were: Mr. and Mrs. Walter Haley of Tweed dressed as cowboy and cowgirl won first prize; Romona Woodley and Fred Hoskings of Belleville won second prize and Miss Hoeback and Cecil Smith of Frankford took third prize.

A jolly good time was had by all, and the management of Vanity Fair and the Town Valley Ramblers extend thanks to every one who helped make the affair a big success.

This was decided Monday evening by members of city council when, following a request from parks commission chairman W. Harry Rollins, they passed the recommendation to place the matter before the people.

The commission and council Mr. Rollins noted that since the Belleville parks commission had been set up the population of the city had doubled and the expenses of operating the city parks system had been considerably increased. At the present time the city parks board received one mill of the city tax rate.

"Our expenses will again be increased next year and we will be unable to carry out all necessary work if we are forced to stay within one present budget," stated Mr. Rollins. "I would ask that the proper question be submitted to the ratepayers asking their approval of the two mills being granted the parks commission."

Outstanding Program Features Madoc Kiwanis Club First Anniversary

Members of Kiwanis Club and their wives from Riverdale, Peterborough, Belleville, Dunbarton, Lindsay and Oshawa gathered at the Madoc Armouries Tuesday evening to celebrate with Madoc Club their first anniversary of service in the community. It was one of the finest nights ever staged in Madoc and showed the progress the Madoc Club made in the first year of its existence.

Belleville Club sponsored this organization one year ago and more than 60 from that club were on hand with Ted Schoch, past president of the Belleville Club and the officer in the chair when the Madoc Club was formed. He acted as master of ceremonies and handled this duty in a most capable manner. The Belleville party travelled to the function in Harwood bus and all thoroughly enjoyed the show.

The dinner tables were tastefully decorated for the occasion and a most sumptuous repast was served by the women of the Catholic Women's League of Madoc. At the conclusion of the dinner and the addresses, the floor was cleared and Bill Warham and his orchestra provided music for dancing till the early hours of the morning. Kelvin Kincaid, the first president of the host club, was in the chair during the early part of the meeting, welcomed all visitors and thanked every club in the district for the assistance and guidance that had been contributed throughout the year.

Many Prominent Kiwanians

Many prominent officers in Kiwanis International were on hand, including Lieutenant Governor Albert Hinton, of Riverdale Club, Lieutenant Governor-elect Bill Richardson of Peterborough, past Lieutenant Governor Cliff Ellis, also past Lieutenant Governor of Belleville, past international president Bill Colburne of Toronto and many others. John L. Burden, K.C., past international vice-president of Toronto, was the principal speaker, he being introduced by the Riverdale Club and appreciation for the address was given by Ken Holmes, chairman in charge of program for the evening.

The toast to the ladies was proposed by George Duffin, president-elect of the Madoc Club, which was graciously replied to by Mrs. Cliff Baragar, president of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Belleville Club.

The program submitted by the host club was under the direction of Stanley Hawthorne and was composed entirely of local talent. It was one of the finest concerts musically ever given in this village. Of special interest was a group of high school students, who sang most acceptably, several numbers. Those contributing to the program besides Mr. Hawthorne, who acted as accompanist, were Mrs. Wesley Hulin, Mrs. Kenneth Nicol, Miss Irma Burris, Miss Joan Burris, Miss Katharine Hart, William Rothwell, Reg Shadbolt, Jack Hatch, Carl Blakely, Dalton Holmes, Arthur Bronson, Gerald Lebay and Raymond Smith. All of these artists are wives, daughters or sons of members of the club excepting Mr. Rothwell, who is the principal of the public school.

Many Splendid Prizes

Every member of Madoc club became a booster for the evening and many of the visiting women went home with valuable prizes, which included artist watches, silver trays and other articles. It was a pleasant feature of the splendid evening. Mr. Madoc club, whose officers include Kelvin Kincaid, president; Charles Johnston vice-president; Jack Baker vice-president; Joe Miles secretary and George Murray treasurer with a committee of Ken Holmes, chairman and Bob Beasley, John Bristol, George Duffin, Charles Johnston, Greg Murray, Joe Miles and J. Say Kilborn Said Wife Asked Him To Kill Her

Cobourg, Nov. 2—(CP)—Neighbors of Ralph Kilborn, charged with murder in the slaying of his wife, quoted him today as saying she begged him to kill her.

Mrs. Kilborn's body was found Tuesday slumped over a table in their 18-room brick house at Baltimore, 11 miles northwest of here. She had been shot in the abdomen and the head.

Kilborn's neighbors said he gave this account of the shooting:

"I was getting ready to take her to the Ontario (Mental) Hospital at Whitby and her things were nearly all packed. When I stepped out of the house to warm up the car engine I heard a shot. I rushed to the kitchen and found her with my rifle.

"She was in terrible agony and she pleaded with me to end her suffering. I walked around behind her and shot through her head."

Bright Days Ahead For Ontario Says Premier Frost

Kingston, Nov. 2—(CP)—Premier Frost said Tuesday night that "bright days are ahead" for Ontario.

In a speech at the opening of Kingston's annual Trade Fair, he said Ontario has made a great deal of the "spectacular" progress in Canada since the First World War. Private and public capital investment in Ontario was maintaining its record-breaking pace.

"Capital investment in Canada in 1948 is estimated at $3,200,000,000 or seven per cent higher than last year. Of this, Ontario's proportion is about one-half. In the last four years there has been about $1,000 of new capital investment for every man, woman and child in Ontario."

Mr. Frost said mineral production in Ontario is hitting new levels, with more than $250,000,000 of new wealth produced last year.

Progress also had been made in housing. In 1948 more than 26,000 housing units were completed in the province. This year more than 35,000 would be built.

The little lad had accompanied his grandmother in the city on a shopping trip, the accident occurring on the trip home. The young lad in some way opened the rear door of the taxi in which they were riding and he was thrown out onto the roadway.

CANADIAN PLACE NAMES IN U.K.

Britons are a grateful people. They remember the presence of Canadians in their country during the Second World War and men and boys from Canada recall the hospitality of the Old Country in the days when Nazi tyranny sought to quell the stubborn heroic people of Britain. Such associations of Canadians with the British people in those days of trial and tribulation and heroism and glory are written in hearts of the people in Britain and in Canada.

Hence it is interesting to note that Britons are now taking steps to perpetuate Canadian names in the Old Land. This will take the form of naming roads in Bexhill, Sussex, after Canadian names. The roads are Canada Way, St. Lawrence Avenue, Edmonton Road and Calgary Road and are on a housing estate on the town's northern suburb.

In Canada it is a happy fact that there are many names which have their origin in England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales and no one would have it otherwise as the Old Country even in its place names offers an inspiration to the people of the New World.

People who come from the Motherland, naturally wish to have such links in the New World with the homeland from which they come and which has done so much for the world in the impetus it gave the North American Nations to extend the bounds of freedom and advance the flag of democracy.

Names of places and persons have importance in the history of a race.

FOR THE NATION

Safeguarding places of historic interest is commendable. Over one thousand places of natural beauty and historic interest in the British Isles are for all time in the hands of the National Trust. This organization, which is entirely independent at the state, owns more than 126,000 acres. The main object for which the Trust was founded is the preservation of beautiful and interesting property for the nation. Much property owned by the Trust is open to visitors throughout the year.

Britain is a land of great interest. Her history is written large on the world for her influence has been most powerful. Wherever one goes it is ground that has been sanctified by great deeds and by the development of democracy. Byron said of the Isles of Greece, it is true of Britain, "where'er we tread 'tis haunted, holy ground." In Britain the world of liberty sees countless places associated with great men and with events the fame of which will live forever.

Simple places will be shrines at which the free peoples can meet in spirit and in deed.

THE ARCTIC TEST

Pilots of the Royal Air Force will be flying in the Antarctic during this winter for the first time. One RAF unit has joined an international scientific expedition leaving Britain for the Polar regions. It is planned to spend two years there in research work. Scientists from Britain, Norway and Sweden will work in Queen Maud Land. Participation by the RAF in the expedition will provide a unique opportunity to enlarge experience in polar flying. It will also enable many items of equipment to be tested in severe atmospheric conditions. The aircraft will be fitted with skis to enable landings to be made on ice shelves and often specially designed to take off from confined spaces.

THE OBSOLETE REVOLVER

Actually, except for use at very close quarters, the revolver is an inferior weapon. A man armed with revolver or pistol would have no chance against an adversary armed with rifle or shotgun at a greater range than 20 yards unless he happened to be an expert with the hand gun. While accurate statistics are not available, war veterans say that only a negligible percentage of casualties on either side were caused in World War II by pistol or revolver bullets.

As The Journal has pointed out in these columns for many years, the revolver is a criminal's weapon — a gangster's weapon — that has been used chiefly for decades for the murder of innocent persons. The killing the other day of 13 people by a gun-crazy youth in Camden, New Jersey, is a classic example of the mountain of evil built up by these concealable weapons. There is some hope that if armies discard the revolver and the automatic, the output of these lethal killers will grow appreciably, and perhaps to the extent that their possession and use can be much more rigidly controlled by police forces than is the case at present. — Ottawa Journal.

TAKEN FOR GRANTED

He took for granted all her care,
Quite sure that she
With him, and crosser hard to bear,
Would patient be.

He had no doubt that she'd obey
His every whim,
And with devotion, night and day,
Would wait on him.

He took for granted she'd forgive
His follies all,
And be content with bits to live
'Till death should call.

If she resented hurt or slight,
She'd keep it hid
He took for granted — and was right.
That's what she did.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

A MELODY OF MEMORIES

I have never seen a more beautiful Autumn than there is now in full recitation. My home is on a corner with many trees all around them these trees, gently falling, are leaves of every hue of red, brown, green, yellow with invisible wings, fan-like, they float, flutter and sway and fall noiselessly all about, reminding one in this close of the falling year.

Autumn is a little later on.

Each street now is one paved with leaves. Each day and the rustle of the leaves, from those that remain, and those from the wind's lift—it's all the same—a pageant of beauty, and a melody of memory. Autumn and Autumn take one back in memory to other Autumns, and of summers, a budding Springtime. The youth and desire of life and all this memory of ours to reflections in thought to the days and friends of forever years.

There is sadness in this beauty of the falling leaves. And yet there is a whispering of hope from each falling leaf. There have been other Autumns and there will be others for so long as there is an earth. In the meanwhile, and eternally, our little life is but a replica of a solitary leaf, falling to its rest in the soil.

I glance from my library window, and the leaves are falling in a shower, these leaves, and down the street, as far as I can see, it is the same—falling, falling, falling! Soon it will be that that melancholy day is over, the saddest of the year," as the poet Longfellow has said, but from the beauty of this Autumnal glory within our souls is the memory of those, too, whom we have loved in life who have fallen to earth like these leaves. They, will know no more Autumns.

But the same leaves which furnish substance for future Autumns, so do the memories have departed upon "the great adventure" leave behind them the substance of their beauty and everlasting memory. May this thought give to us all a spiritual comfort, without which faith would lose its luster.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE ABUNDANT LIFE

In his words, then as now, wilderness, Jesus made a rejoinder to Satan which has echoed down the centuries: "Man shall not live by bread alone but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God."

The important word here is "alone". Man must have the Word of God! Without that, nothing else in life has value. Man cannot live by bread alone, nor by prosperity alone, nor by family happiness alone, nor by fame and honor alone. These things are all fine and legitimate, but when held in isolation and apart from God, they are nothing and less than nothing.

Modern man is trying to live a secular life; that is, he is attempting to get great temporal delight out of life as he finds it, without any reference whatsoever to God. He is trying to live by comfort alone, by brains alone, by wealth alone, by pleasure alone. The "alone" life is the secular life. The "alone" life is the hopeless life. The "alone" life leads to darkness. Man cannot live on any earthly benefit and live happily on this one thing alone; he lives fully only if his life is sustained by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rose

Poor Jimmy

Interested in fish stories? Well, here's one that showed up in Roosevelt postmarked Marksville, Louisiana, which I never heard of either:

Dear Mr. Rose,

There's a young fellow down here is Marksville (who's been feeling just blamed awful the last couple years because he is the victim of a very bad grave injustice. His name is Jimmy Nevins and what's on his mind is his father thinks he's a terrible liar on account of something that happened two years ago.

How it all started was, Jimmy's father comes home from fishing one day, October 22, 1947. It was, and Jimmy looks at the catch and says, "Twelve hickory shad is sure pretty good fishing all right. How many I go fishing what I like to catch me is fifty, maybe sixty large-mouth black bass." Didn't say he could, mind you, just that he'd like to. Well but sure enough, the old man blows up. "Fifty, sixty large-mouth black bass! He's always trying to get things straight for him. Is it poor Jimmy's fault it has to be raining like no one and only time anybody in Marksville ever goes with seventy-four large-mouth bass in an hour and three-quarters?"

(Signed) An Interested Party.

P. S. — If you think I'm fibbing Senator, ask Jimmy. I respectfully refer you to the April 22, 1949, issue of a scientific digest named "Science." In it is an article signed by A. D. Bajkov of the Oyster Laboratory, Biloxi, Mississippi, and in it it says as follows:

"On the morning of October 23, 1947, I was conducting the investigation done for the Louisiana Department of Wild Life and Fisheries in the vicinity of Marksville, Louisiana. Between 7 and 8 o'clock I was in restaurant with my wife having breakfast when the waitress informed us that fish were falling from the sky. We went outside immediately to observe some of them and on Main Street, in the vicinity of the bank, there was an accumulation of fish about one yard. They were fish native to local waters, including bass, and fit for human consumption."

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

The Packsack feels beholden enough to its own stomach to pass along any flapjack or wonders it encounters in the culinary realm. At the home of a French-Canadian friend of Scottish ancestry who lives in a remote part of Canada, I was having dinner of ruffed grouse, parsley boiled potatoes canned peas and my hostess's home-made bread this week. My plate was heaped high and wide.

Then from the kitchen in marched the housewife bearing a pie. It looked exactly like an apple pie, the crust beautifully browned and obviously hot, the way her ladyship was balancing it on her oven mitt.

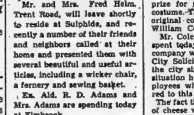
To my alarm and horror, my hostess moved in on me, cut a wide wedge of the pie and before I could utter a cry, had slid the pie onto the one unoccupied segment of my heaped plate.

I am old and travelled enough not to make remarks about the domestic customs of my friends; but was thinking what an extraordinary trick to serve the dessert at the start of the meal, right on the plate with grouse, potatoes, gravy and all. However, delectable odder rose to my nose.

Before me from the pie. The pie was an onion pie. And no particular ever went to its reward with a more perfect concomitant.

Here is the recipe for onion pie, which tastes pretty near as any other pie, such as apple. You slice the onions fairly thin into the pastry-lined plate; and then sprinkle them with flour from the top pastry, as with an apple pie. My French Canadian hostess adds a few flourishes to the usual pinched and scalloped edge. She does a picture of a grouse on the cover with the fork tines . . .

Bake it slow and thoroughly and bring it out of the oven a rich golden brown. With chicken, turkey, game of all kinds, onion pie has an antique charm.



TRUCK'S JOURNEY BECOMES "VOYAGE"

The badly needed rain for which much of England prayed through the unusually dry summer finally came — and in such a deluge as to result in widespread flooding. Here a truck plows through the two feet of water in Silver St., London, kicking up a tidal wave of spray on its voyage. — Central Press Canadian.

ANTIHISTAMINIC DRUGS

Allergy is a much discussed topic these days. Doctors are constantly investigating what causes allergy, what its manifestations are, how to recognize it, and how to treat it. In recent years, the study of treatment of allergic conditions has advanced considerably. This study has stemmed from the discovery of a new group of agents, the antihistaminic drugs.

It has been suspected and substantiated that histamine plays an important role in the production of allergic symptoms. When an allergic individual comes in contact with an allergen (a substance able to produce an allergic reaction) to which he is sensitive, certain cells in the body liberate a chemical known as histamine into the tissues or blood stream. This histamine in turn causes the symptoms which we observe as allergic manifestations. It follows that if a drug could be introduced into the body to counteract the histamine, the allergic reaction would be diminished. Thus a group of antihistaminic drugs was developed, which counteract histamine in an hour and three-quarters.

Two drugs of this sort were the first to be tried and have received the most publicity. They are Benadryl and Pyribenzamine. They have the ability to diminish or prevent the release of histamine by the reacting cells of the body in such a manner that the individual may or may not have a diminished reaction or none at all. This number is also affected by the suffering of allergic conditions.

The anti-histaminic drugs are most helpful in the treatment of seasonal hay fever, allergic rhinitis (inflammation of the tissues of the nose), urticaria or "hives," and certain cases of bronchial or severe itching. They may also have some value in the prevention or treatment of allergic reactions. Physicians have been quite disappointed with the results obtained in the treatment of asthma, but when the anti-histaminic drugs are used along with other medications, even the asthmatic sets some relief from them. In most instances, however, the use of anti-histaminics alone in asthma has been a failure. Since Benadryl and pyribenzamine were first produced, many other anti-histaminics have reached the market under various trade names. Some are excellent, others useless. But why should manufacturers waste their time developing slightly different drugs which have similar effects? First of all, the pharmaceutical manufacturers want to get in on the anti-histaminic boom just like they like to get in on vitamins and hormones. They all want part of your pocketbook and unless you're careful and wise in selecting medicines, they'll get it. But they have another reason in this case: in some individuals there are certain toxic reactions to an anti-histaminic and none to another. For that reason physicians like to have a choice of several of them before they'll find an anti-histaminic which is suitable for the patient under consideration.

The toxic or "side" effects of group of drugs are drowsiness, sedation, nervousness, dizziness, palpitation, nausea, gastrointestinal confusion, and dryness of the mouth. But there is almost always one of the anti-histaminic drugs which will have a minimum of such side effects.

Even with the wonderful effects that are reported, the anti-histaminic drugs are not the "cure-all" they were first thought to be. Those which are available are only supplementary aids in the treatment of allergic disease. To be most effective they must be administered with intelligence.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Ben Said

Is it dangerous to use a sunlamp on the face for a few minutes once in a while as it Ben Said that rays from the sunlamp are like U. V. Ray?

Answer—I'd never hesitate to take rays from the sun or rays from a sun lamp if desired the exposure were not prolonged because of the reddening of the rays (slight reddening of the skin.)

Fibroid Tumor

Woman, 49, never had children, afraid to see doctor although she has had bouts with severe pain and has frequent excessive bleedings. (Mrs. E. A. D.)

Answer—Such bleedings or hemorrhages are a good deal disappointed with conditions the doctor might do or advise. Perhaps painless X-ray treatment would control the trouble. I hope she doesn't confuse simple, though troublesome as some cases, fibroid tumor (myoma) with cancer. Each stamped self addressed envelope sent ask re writing (no clipping, please) for pamphlet on Tumor, Displacement, Cancer.

No Marie Medicine

I read of some drug you can put in coffee to cure alcoholics. ("W.")

Answer—That is pure humbug.

Communists May Try to Spreadism To Other Countries

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press Analyst)

The sweeping success of the communist armies in China has set the western world to pondering whether the victorious forces are likely to halt at China's frontiers or whether they may try to spread the red ism by invasion of neighboring countries.

State Secretary Dean Acheson of the United States has expressed concern that the red onslaught might not stop. However, many diplomats take the view that the communists won't invade other countries although they will not spend on fifth-column offensives, with perhaps later infiltration by guerrillas.

Whatever may be the procedure, of this I think we may be sure: Moscow is bound to take advantage of the communist victories in China to try to spread Bolshevism throughout the Far East.

Naturally thoughts immediately turn to Burma and to the Indian Peninsula, which comprises the countries of India and Pakistan. This vast territory contains more than 400 million people or close to one-fifth of the globe's population.

Communist Influence

It is hard to believe that the Chinese communists would venture any military invasion of Burma and India. It is equally hard to believe that they wouldn't intensify their already vigorous efforts to convert these countries to the red ism. Moscow already has communist parties on the Indian Peninsula and in Burma.

Communism never has made great headway in Pakistan or India. In Burma, on the other hand, the reds have made considerable progress, though just how substantial that progress may be is questionable.

The Burmese are great individualists, and I think he may assume that any communist dictatorship there would be of the Tito variety. That is to say, the Burmese are unlikely to subscribe to an ism which deprives them of their sovereignty and makes them answerable to Moscow.

The same thing is true of both Pakistan and India and many other Southern Asia countries. They are intensely nationalistic and wouldn't surrender one iota of their sovereignty to another power.

WEDDINGS

CHAMBERS—AUSTIN

Before a background of palms, ferns and pastel-tinted chrysanthemums, Mr. Harold Austin, Presbyterian Church, Toronto, on Saturday, Oct. 22, at 7 p.m., a lovely wedding was solemnized by the Rev. J. G. MacDonald, when Zelia Dolloff, daughter of Mrs. Austin, and the late Mr. Austin, of Toronto, was united in marriage to Edgar Matthew Chambers, of Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Chambers, Toronto.

Mr. A. H. Wallace provided the wedding music and Mr. S. H. Cochrane soloist, sang before the ceremony, "I Will Walk Beside You", and during the signing of the register, "Through the Years".

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked charming in her bridal gown of white slipper satin, featuring a lace yoke, fitted bodice with skirt falling into a circular train. Her full length veil was attached to a lace coronet. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses.

Miss Jona Fisher, of Toronto, was maid of honor, wearing a gown of lime green taffeta, while the bridesmaids, Mrs. Ken Austin, sister of the bride, of Quebec; Mrs. S. A. MacDonald, of Markham, and Miss Betty Chambers, sister of the bridegroom, were gowned in pink, blue and turquoise taffeta, having bertha collars and net yokes. They carried matching muffs of roses and wore bell bonnets.

Little Miss Dionne Sidon was flower girl, dressed prettily in orchid taffeta, with matching bonnet. She carried a basket of assorted flowers, in pastel shades.

Mr. S. A. MacDonald of Markham, was groomsman, and Oscar Thuttom, of Tweed, Jack Fuller, and Glenn Kirby, both of Toronto were ushers.

The church hall, where the reception was held, was decorated with carnations and dahlias. The bride's attendants were dressed in of dark green velvet, with black accessories, and corsage of yellow roses. She also assisted the bridegroom's mother, who wore a gown of royal blue crepe, with navy accessories, and corsage of pink carnations.

For the wedding trip to the United States, the bride was becomingly gowned in a blue wool rust flecked suit with light blue topcoat, and navy accessories. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Chambers will reside in Toronto.

MRS. CORNELIUS BECKMAN

Problem: announcing engagement of girl whose parents are divorced

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My parents had the announcement of an engagement.

If the girl's parents are divorced, should the announcement read "daughter of Mrs. Rose Smith," or "of Mrs. Joseph Smith", or is it correct to say "daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Smith"? A friend tells me it should be written "daughter of Mrs. Rose Smith", with no mention of the father's name because of the divorce. Please settle this misunderstanding so that we will know what to do. J. S.

When the parents of the engaged girl are divorced, it is sensible, if all concerned wish, to make the announcement of the engagement as brief as that of marriage, too) in the names of both parents. After all, the bride-to-be is the daughter of both parents and both parents, even though they are divorced and even may have remarried, usually and quite naturally, feel that it is entirely suitable to this important occasion to join their names in the announcement. It is very certainly regrettable when the engagement is announced by one parent with no mention made of the other parent who may very well love the daughter just as much.

The engagement announcement may read: "Mrs. Richard Smith, of 123 Park Street, and Mr. Joseph Smith, of Chicago, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Rosemary Smith, to Mr. Thomas Graham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Graham, of Edmonton, Ont."

Or, if special circumstances suggest, this is a correct form: "Mrs. Robinson Smith, 123 Park Street, announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Rosemary Smith, to Mr. Thomas Graham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Graham, Edmonton, Ont." Miss Smith is the daughter of Mr. Joseph Smith, Chicago."

Important note: The mother of the bride-to-be should use the correct form of name for a divorcee; that is her maiden surname prefixed to her married surname, Mrs. Robinson (maiden surname) Smith. "Mrs. Rose Smith" is not a correct form, at least socially, and certainly not to be used merely because of the social announcement as her daughter's engagement. If she must indicate the "Rose", she may use "Mrs. R. Robinson Smith".

When the Bride can borrow a lovely wedding dress

Dear Mrs. Beeckman: :

My sister is to be married soon at the ceremony to be at 8 o'clock, the only guests the members of the immediate families and the attendants of the bride and groom. Our problem arises from the fact that my sister's lovely wedding gown has been made available to her, she is most eager to wear it then. I know if it fits it would be proper since the groom, best man, etc., are planning to wear dark business suits. We would greatly appreciate your wedding opinion on this matter.

M. H.

You don't give me much information to go on concerning the type of wedding dress . . . but since only the members of the families and the attendants are to be present at the wedding, my suggestion is that, unless the wedding dress is really too elaborate and has a train, the bride give herself the joy of wearing it and take great care to see that every detail of her small wedding as simply as possible.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

Premature Wrinkles

With health, a sunny, cheerful disposition, a brave spirit and a few simple cosmetic attentions, any woman should be wrinkle-free to the end of her days. There are many women, seventy years old, even older, with skins as smooth as satin. They have taken life as they found it without grumbling or complaining. They have maintained mental health, and that is half the battle against beauty griefs.

There are women in their early thirties who have developed premature wrinkles and that is a great pity because these little accordion pleats are not easily erased. Tiny lines around the eyes caused by squinting, two little uprights between the eyes caused by frowning, railroad tracks across the forehead caused by lifting the eyebrows.

If you tense the facial muscles, furrows are bound to appear. The little ditches are not just surface blemishes; the line they burrow deep into tissues and fibres.

Some of these early-wrinklers are up to the standard that the Malnutrition will cause facial tissues to lose tone. It is vitally important, for the sake of well-being and good appearance, to maintain tissue tone. Cosmetic deficiencies can cause all kinds of trouble and often the root of the source of certain skin diseases.

The misguided beauty seeker is likely to believe that the cure for her troubles will be found at the cosmetic counter. Cosmetics fulfill an excellent purpose. Creams especially keep the skin surface supple and smoother than if they didn't use them. The friction necessary in their application has a vitalizing effect upon the flesh. But they can accomplish little if the disregards the rules of health.

The tired young woman cannot expect to retain youthful freshness

The young woman who doesn't get enough sleep cannot expect to retain youthful freshness. She bears around all day, sometimes half the night, and nature must rebuild her forces because of the energy she has used up. Lots of sleep will not only bring out facial creases, but will have a decided healing effect upon the spirits and an even more deplorable effect upon the nervous system.

The finicky eater is doing herself an injustice. She needs a balanced diet, must have a certain amount of protein, carbohydrates and fats to nourish all the cells of her body. She needs food that will supply her with the necessary vitamines and mineral salts. She should drink plenty of water if she doesn't want her skin to go dry.

If she has no appetite she had better get more outdoor exercise, lap up the fresh air and clean out her lungs, as constipation will be rustling, bringing color to her cheeks.

Beautifying begins with health. Paste that motto on your looking glass.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Don't listen to tale-bearers

Dear Miss Fairfax::

My husband is a foreman, and one of the people who works under him is a married woman who always gives him presents on his birthday and at Christmas. On his last birthday, I was in the hospital, and he wouldn't let me buy him a birthday gift because he said we would need all our money for my hospital bill. Later, I found out he had given this woman some money to help pay for the expensive gift she had bought him without her husband knowing about it. I was very hurt about this.

Ever since I have wondered about this, and would like to know if it is silly of me to think my husband and this woman mean anything to each other. Or is it proper for a woman working under a foreman to give him gifts?

I was told this woman was making a play for my husband, so I asked him and he told me she did flirt with him but she did not mean anything to him.

Mrs. A.

Dear Mrs. A.:

It is perfectly possible that employees might wish to remember the foreman under whom they work at Christmas, but I do think it is carrying this spirit a little too far for a married woman to present your husband with a birthday gift, especially when she has given her part of the money to buy it.

However, if you have no other reason to feel that there is anything wrong with the situation, don't make yourself unhappy by brooding over it, and don't let other people gain an ounce to you about your husband. There are always trouble-makers who get a certain excitement, so don't give anyone the satisfaction of doing that to you. Just refuse to listen to any tale-bearers who come to you. Tell your husband know that you don't believe anything that is said against him because you are sure he would never let you down, and try to make your home a more pleasant spot to come to at the end of the day. If you do all this, I think you will find things will come out all right.

Come right out and ask him

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Robert and I were very much in love. We have been going steady for ten months and plan to be married this time.

There is one thing that bothers me, and that is that I haven't met his parents. He often speaks of his mother but never of his father. I am beginning to think there is a reason.

I want to meet his family, but I have never told Robert this. He will have to make the first move. I want to come right out and ask him why he has never suggested it but I will wait for your answer.

O. T. O.

Dear O. T. O.:

I don't see any reason why you should be timid about telling your young man that you would like to meet his family. It is always much better to be perfectly frank about things like this, for if you aren't, it usually paves the way for misunderstandings and future complications.

I suggest that you do come right out and ask if he won't take you to his home so that you can become acquainted with his family. It may be, of course, that his father is not living and that is why he hasn't mentioned him. Don't be too hasty about jumping to the conclusion that something must be wrong.

The church was artistically decorated for the occasion with flowers and adorned the altar, included three baskets of chrysanthemums placed there in memory of the late Mr. and Mrs. C. U. Heath, the late Mr. and Mrs. Milton Green, and the late Roy Wellbourn, all former members of the church. In the centre was the beautifully decorated three tier 75th anniversary cake.

The services at 11 a.m. and 7.30 p.m. were conducted by the guest minister, Rev. Gordon Whitehorn, B.A., B.D., of Seymour church, who delivered two inspiring sermons which were well received by those privileged to hear him. In the morning he spoke on the theme of "75 years of service" to God and tribute to the pioneers who had built the church and carried on its activities.

At the morning service the Rev. James Watson of Wesleyville spoke briefly.

At the evening service Rev. Rev. N. Cole of Hastings, former pastor of Rawdon charge, spoke briefly bringing greetings.

Special music arranged by Mrs. Harold Elliott, A.T.C.M., organist, was rendered by a full choir at both services. In the morning the choir rendered the anthems "Praise Jehovah's Name", with Mrs. Elliott singing a solo part, and "I'm Praying for You", with Mrs. Elliott and Mrs. Clarence Heath talking a duet part. A solo of Walked Today Where Jesus Walked was sung by Morley Jackson, of R.R. 7, Belleville.

At the evening service, the choir rendered the anthems "Rejoice Give Thanks and Sings" and "The Sinners Friend". The Colours were also carried at the church history during their 75 years.

The anniversary cake was cut and shared with all who were in attendance at this very special event in the history of Bethel United Church.

Among the guests were a former pastor and his wife, the Rev. and Mrs. T. F. Townsend and their grandson of Deseronto.

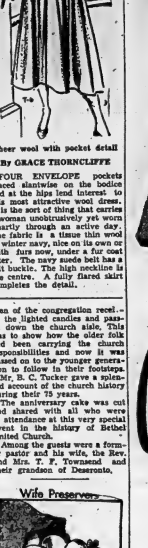
Sheer wool with pocket detail

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

FOUR ENVELOPE pockets placed slantwise on the bodice and at the hips lend interest to this most attractive wool dress. It is the sort of thing that carries a woman unobtrusively yet worn smartly through an active day. The fabric is a tissue thin wool in winter navy, nice on its own or with furs now, under a fur coat later. The navy suede belt has a gilt buckle. The high neckline is the centre. A fully flared skirt completes the detail.



dren of the congregation recei- ed the lighted candles and passed down the church aisle. This was to show how the light of faith had been carrying the church responsibilities and now it was handed on to the younger generation to follow in their footsteps.

Mr. S. C. Hoover read a splendid account of the church history during their 75 years.

Hope-Princeton Road in B.C. Formally Opened

By GEORGE FINLAY

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Vancouver, Nov. 2 — (CP)— Down a trail where fur brigades battled with threats, sandbar and woods a century ago, a $12,000,000 highway standard.

It is the new Hope – Princeton Road, last link in British Columbia's southern trans-provincial highway reaching from the Alberta boundary to the Pacific coast.

Premier Byron Johnson, surrounded by members of his cabinet and thousands of spectators who came by motor caravans, today used a big gold key to open gates across the highway.

Starting at Hope, once a fort for fur traders bringing rich pelts by pack train from the interior, the highway link starts 100 miles east of Vancouver, winding an 83-mile path to Princeton.

It brings the Okanagan valley, with its lush fruit crops, 100 miles closer to the coast. It also opens a vast tourists' playground. A road of scenic splendor, it winds through the 4,000-foot high Allison Pass in the Cascade Mountain range to Alpine meadows and to the 171,500 - acre Ernest C. Manning Park.

Opening ceremonies were held at Allison Pass, half way between Hope and Princeton, amid snow-tipped peaks of the Cascades.

"It is my expectation that the business between the interior and the coast will greatly expand as a result of the opening of this highway," said Premier Johnson.

Fruit - laden trucks from the Okanagan will cut travelling time to seven hours, compared with the present 12- to 13-hour run.

An all-weather route, the Highway has a minimum width of 30 feet exclusive of drainage ditches.

Says Britain, U.S. Will Take Up Jap Peace Treaty

New York, Nov. 2 (AP)—The New York Times says Tass, the United States and Britain have decided to reopen the question of a Japanese Peace Treaty as quickly as possible.

State Secretary Dean Acheson and Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin "are understood to have discussed this step recently and to have ordered a new and urgent study of the question", the Times says.

This now is under way in Washington under the supervision of an Assistant Secretary of State, Walton W. Butterworth, Makerby E. Dening, British assistant undersecretary of State for Foreign Affairs, was reported supervising the review in London.

Meanwhile, the story says, Ambassador Phillip C. Jessup has been detached from most of his other duties to review U.S. policy in the whole area of Japan, China, India and Southeast Asia.

"He is now studying the Chinese Nationalist charges against the Soviet Union in the United Nations," the Times said, "and will represent the United States in the debate at Lake Success on that subject.

"Thereafter, probably some time in December, he will go to the Far East to continue his studies on the spot."

Wounded Hunter Leaves Hospital, Found in Canal

Peterborough, Nov. 2 — (CP)— David Kidd, 38, of Manvers township, was found dead in the Trent Canal early Tues. Kidd, a patient in St. Joseph's hospital here, fled from there Monday night. His body was found standing up in about seven feet of water and clothed in night attire.

Kidd was accidentally wounded while duck hunting in Manvers last Thursday and Friday was taken to the hospital where his left arm was amputated. A nurse and her friend saw him leaving by a side door and they called upon him to stop. Kidd immediately started to run and they followed but lost him in the darkness.

Police and firemen were summoned and two hours later found the body in the canal.

Church Control Law in Force In Czechoslovakia

Prague, Nov. 2—(AP)—Czechoslovakia's churches Tuesday came under the control of the country's Communist government despite a year's bitter fight by the Roman Catholic Hierarchy.

At one minute after midnight the new church control law became effective, giving the government power over all church funds, the naming of pastors and priests and church administrative functions.

All priests and pastors become civil servants on the government payroll. They must swear allegiance to both the Czech Republic and the Communist-dominated "people's democratic regime" to get their pay.

Alexei Cepicka, Communist Minister of Justice, has told parliament anyone opposing the law "will be broken as an enemy of the state."

The Czech Roman Catholic primate, Archbishop Joseph Beran, and other leaders of his church led the fight against the bill, asserting it was aimed at liquidation of the church. The government countered with the arrest of more than 300 priests and nuns, according to reliable Catholic and diplomatic sources.

The Bishops first had opposed the government's demand that all priests be required to swear loyalty to the Communist-led regime. Last week, however, they granted permission to priests to take the oath to keep out of jail but added the reservation that any loyalty oath should not be contrary to their religious convictions.

In Rome, Il Quotidiano, Catholic action's official newspaper, today accuses the Czechoslovak government of "vile perfidy" and of preparing "to discredit Catholic clergymen in the eyes of the faithful."

Base Propaganda Manoeuvre

Commenting on the church control laws Quotidiano says the government announced the Catholic Hierarchy's acceptance of the oath of loyalty to the state, but said nothing of the Hierarchy's direction to clergymen that it be conditioned with the phrase "except for rights of the church and man."

"Thus," says Quotidiano, "the Czechoslovak state, profiting from its information monopoly and the silence imposed upon the church is attempting a base propaganda manoeuvre—to discredit the clergy in the eyes of the faithful and to punish tomorrow as perjurers those (clergymen) who refuse to act against Christian laws and conscience.

"It is a vile perfidy as are all perfidies."

DEATH THROES OF A CHANNEL SHIP

Within a stone's throw of the white cliffs of Dover, Eng., the collier Archglen is shown in her death throes. The ship was one of many craft buffeted by one of the worst storms to sweep the English Channel in years. She went aground on the rocks at East Cliff, Dover. Shortly after this photo was made, the ship rolled over into deep water and sank. The storm disrupted all channel services, smashed gaps in sea walls and flooded waterfront homes. — Central Press Canadian.

50,000 Snow Geese Visit Mud Flats On St. Lawrence

Quebec, Nov. 2—(CP)— The great white birds that astonished the settlers of new France three centuries ago are paying their autumn visit again this year to the mud flats of the St. Lawrence north shore, 25 miles below Quebec.

Identified only a half-century ago as greater snow geese pausing in their migratory travel between Arctic regions and the southern United States where they spend the winter, the big birds are here this year more numerous than ever.

Charles Fremont, Quebec superintendent of Fish and Game, estimates their number are more than 50,000. Forty years ago, says Fremont, scarcely 2,000 dropped down in the sedge grass near the village of St. Joachim and to the shores of the St. Lawrence river islands of Ile Aux Oies and Ile Aux Grues.

Protection for the greater snow geese under the Migratory Birds Act is one of the factors that has helped boost their population which can be affected also when an inclement Arctic summer interferes with their hatching.

Ornithologists say the greater snow geese travel in the spring from the coastal areas of the southern states all the way to northwestern Greenland and Ellesmere Island.

In late September or early October, they settle on the river shores and pause about eight weeks before resuming their southward flight. They pay their spring visit at the end of March and it lasts until mid-May.

Samuel de Champlain, founder of Quebec, wrote about the "strange white birds" seen near St. Joachim in the early days of New France.

By the time they were identified 50 years ago, the greater snow geese were in danger of extinction because of unlimited hunting.

Today, hunters are allowed to shoot five of the snow geese a day and the possession limit is 10.

25 Bottles Beer Over 24 Hours His Average

Long Beach, Calif., Nov. 2 — (AP)—Twenty-five bottles of beer is just "average drinking" to Rex Terbert, 50.

He pleaded guilty Monday to a drunkenness charge before Judge Harry F. Keeler.

"How many drinks did you have," asked the judge.

Twenty-five bottles of beer," replied Terbert, "but some days or, that was over a 12-hour period—just average drinking."

"Then I'll give you an average fine of a dollar a bottle."

Terbert, unable to pay the fine, went to jail for five days —an average stay.

Urges Inquiry of All Phases Of Trans-Canada Highway

Ottawa, Nov. 2 (CP) — Appointment of a federal commission to investigate all phases of the projected Trans-Canada highway was urged on the Royal Commission on transportation Tues., by the Trans-Canada Highway System Association (Yellowhead route).

The association, a western organization which favors the most northerly of three proposed routes over the Rocky Mountains, presented a brief as the commission opened final hearings in its inquiry into national transportation problems.

Public hearings of the commission under Hon. W. F. A. Turgeon have been adjourned since early August. The final sittings are expected to last into the new year.

Northern Route

The Highway Association, composed of members in the four western provinces, urged that the commission government set up either a Royal Commission or a "Federal Highways Commission or authority" to deal with all phases of the construction of the highway or those concerning construction from Winnipeg to Vancouver.

The association said it would attempt to show such a body that the merits of the northern route over the Rockies by way of the Yellowhead Pass are "overwhelming."

(Two other routes that have been discussed are a southern one jumping off from Lethbridge, Alta., and following along close to the United States border by way of Crow's Nest Pass, and a central one by way of Calgary, Banff and Kicking Horse Pass.)

Noting that federal government policy apparently is to have the route selected by agreement among the Provinces, the Highway Association declared it has "strong misgivings," about such a procedure.

"We contend," said the association, "that the route of the Trans-Canada Highway, to the coast of which the Dominion government may contribute 50 per cent and possibly more, is of such great importance to the Dominion of Canada—that the selection of its route must be considered a question of general importance to the people of Canada as a whole."

Decision as to Route

So far as Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia were concerned, the brief added, decision on the route should not be left to the provinces through which the highway would pass. Each province was bound to be guided by provincial, rather than national, considerations.

While it was true that provincial highways were wholly within the jurisdiction of the provinces, the Trans-Canada Highway should be regarded, not as a series of provincial routes, but as a national one.

Girl Slew Mother, Sentenced to Home With Love, Care

Oakland, Calif., Nov. 2 (CP) —A 15-year-old school girl who killed her mother with a butcher knife was formally sentenced Monday—to "a home with love and care."

Placed in the custody of an aunt, the girl will remain a juvenile court ward until she is 21.

Judge Albert T. Shine said "the facts were insufficient" to substantiate a finding of murder against the girl, Celesta Morrow. Testimony at the hearing he conducted indicated the mother, Mrs. Walter Morrow, 41, had been drinking and that Celesta's home life had become "intolerable." A quarrel ended in the slaying two weeks ago.

"She needs a home with love and care," the judge declared.

'Blitz Babies' Better Off Than Those Evacuated

London, Nov. 2 (CP)—Britain's "blitz babies" — city children who stayed home during the war—are better off today than those who were evacuated.

They proved "remarkably resilient" to bombing, while children separated from their mothers often developed a neurosis which still persists in some cases.

The conclusions are presented in a report prepared for the medical research council by Dr. Charlotte Carey-Trefzer, who studied the medical histories of 212 "war-damaged" children.

For young evacuees freedom from fear frequently did not compensate for lack of mother love. In some cases, mental injury resulted.

Those who stayed at home readily recovered from the shock of being buried under tons of debris—provided their mothers were rescued with them.

Figures Gorillas, Chimpanzees Saved His Life

New York, Nov. 2—(AP)—It might bother some people to fly the Atlantic as a surrender to three baby gorillas and three chimpanzees.

But to Edward Lightner it was no trouble at all Tuesday. Nothing was too good for his furry little friends. He figures they saved his life, in a manner of speaking.

Lightner, who works for a New York animal importer, told the story on arrival at La Guardia Field.

He, the gorillas and the chimps were supposed to leave Paris on the airliner that crashed in the Azores last Friday, killing all 48 persons aboard.

"They wanted to put the animals in the belly of the Air France constellation," Lightner said, "but I refused because they would freeze to death.

"I decided to stay behind and take a trans-world cargo flight to New York. Hours later I heard about the crash. I figure it was fate. If it hadn't been for these monkeys. . ."

P.O. Department 'Public Monopoly' In Some Ways

Ottawa, Nov. 2. — (CP) — In some ways, says Watson Sellar, Canada's auditor-general, the Post Office Department is a "public monopoly."

Because it produced and sold stamps exclusively and provided other money-making features, it was commercial in nature, adds Mr. Watson in his annual analysis of the government's public accounts.

He believes that each of the department's services should disclose what it made or lost during the year — or else "the financial transactions of the post office be managed as commercial rather than departmental accounts."

Mr. Sellar's analysis of the government's spending was tabled Monday in the Commons, together with a hefty edition of the government's accounts during the 1948-49 fiscal year, ending March 31 last.

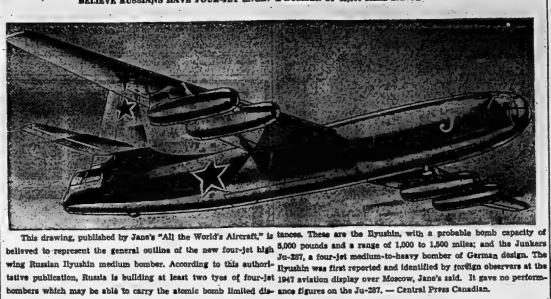
BELIEVE RUSSIANS HAVE FOUR-JET ENGIN E BOMBER OF 18,000-MILE RANGE



This drawing, published by Jane's "All the World's Aircraft," is believed to represent the general outline of the new four-jet high wing Russian Ilyushin medium bomber. According to this authoritative publication, Russia is building at least two tpes of four-jet bombers which may be able to carry the atomic bomb limited distances. Jane's estimates. These are the Ilyushin, with a probable bomb capacity of 8,000 pounds and a range of 1,000 to 1,500 miles; and the Junkers Ju-287, a four-jet medium-to-heavy bomber of German design. The Ilyushin was first reported and identified by foreign observers at the 1947 aviation display over Moscow, Jane's said. It gave no performance figures on the Ju-287. — Central Press Canadian.

U.E. Workers Will Withhold Further Dues to C.I.O.

Cleveland, Nov. 2 — (AP) — The United Electrical Workers, spearhead of the C. I. O.'s rebellious left wing, announced it was withholding any further dues to the C. I. O. — a certain first step toward its ouster.

In a defiant statement accusing C. I. O. leadership of following a "program borrowed from Hitler, union-busting and red-baiting hysteria," U. E. W. President Albert J. Fitzgerald said the next step "is up to the C. I. O."

There was little doubt that President Philip Murray of the C.I.O. would accept the challenge quickly. The groundwork for removing the U. E. W. with approximately 373,000 members, was laid by constitutional changes approved Monday night for action by the C. I. O. convention today or tomorrow.

Eleven other so-called left-wing unions also face ouster by the C. I. O., but Fitzgerald said it would be up to them whether they followed the U. E. W. example of withholding the per capita tax to the C. I. O.

Police Open Fire In Disturbance At Krugersdorf

Capetown, Nov. 3 (Reuters) — A number of African natives were believed killed and others wounded when police opened fire today on striking workers in the Munsieville native location at Krugersdorp.

Police reinforcements were on their way to Krugersdorp from Johannesburg, about 20 miles away.

The trouble started with the transfer Tuesday of the control of African service contracts to the Krugersdorp town council.

Before dawn a party of Africans stoned other Africans going to work. Another party of Africans stoned passing cars, injuring three European men.

Police patrols went into the location and got the situation under control, but later Africans screened by their women and children, surged towards the assembled police who opened fire.

Two buildings were destroyed by fire.

TWO MEN CHARGED

Windsor, Ont., Nov. 2 (CP)—Provincial and Sandwich East police Monday night arrested two men and charged them with theft of $101 worth of goods from a Glencoe hotel. They are William Degraw, 22, and Michael Routh, 21, both of Windsor.

Police said the bedding and electrical fixtures disappeared from the hotel last week. They were recovered when the men were arrested.

Two Pranksters Wounded Trying To Upset Shack

Smithville, Ont., Nov. 2 (CP) —Two youths were shot Monday night as they tried to push over a shack in the yard of an 82-year-old Smithville resident, Ontario Provincial Police said Tuesday.

Constable Keith Collins said the retired farmer sat in the rear seat of his automobile, a 12-gauge shotgun across his knees, waiting for Hallowe'en pranksters.

Removed to hospital in Hamilton was Ivan Carruthers, 18, of Smithville, whose condition was described today as fair. Roy Allison, 16, was discharged from hospital after treatment of a wound behind his right ear. Carruthers suffered four wounds in the head and one in the neck. No charge has been laid against the farmer.

"I've lived here for 12 years", the farmer said today, "and they have bothered me every year. I've sat out in my car every Hallowe'en since I came here. I just had the gun in their direction and let her go. I guess they won't bother me again."

Fire Protection Growth Marked In Ontario

Buffalo, N.Y. Nov. 2 —(CP)— W. J. Scott, Ontario fire marshal said Tuesday that Ontario's new system of handling fire department grants has led to creation of nine new volunteer brigades and steps towards establishment of 16 other municipal fire brigades.

In an address prepared for delivery at the northeastern conference of the United States National Fire Protection Association, he told the association that legislation passed by the provincial government enabled the province to pay every municipality a fixed proportion of the municipality's fire department costs.

Mr. Scott estimated that there now are only about 500,000 persons in the province's less-settled rural areas who are without organized fire protection. There are 467 Ontario municipalities having a total population of 3,268,014, which have fire departments within the terms of the Fire Department's Act.

In addition to regular municipal departments, Mr. Scott mentioned Ontario's vast stretches of forest lands which are protected by the protection division of the Department of Lands and Forests at an annual cost of some $3,357,421.

West Los Angeles, Calif., Nov. 2 —(AP)—"We were robbed," yelled Lou (Lippy) Durocher.

Eliminate Red Tape

In order to encourage U.K. trade, Canada must make it easier for U.K. goods to enter Canada and to be sold at competitive prices. The answer lay in reduced tariffs and elimination of red tape in customs regulations.

Another farmer, Hazen Argue (CCF-Assiniboia), offered the suggestion that Canada take over part of India's sterling balance in the United Kingdom.

At present India had a large amount of sterling tied up in the United Kingdom. Canada should buy part of this sterling balance by paying for it with Canadian dollars. The U.K. and India then could use these Canadian dollars for purchase in Canada.

The Commons devoted most of its Tuesday session to the budget.

At House opening, Revenue Minister Mcadorey—replying to a question by John Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre)—said there is nothing to report that the $2.50 radio licence fee would be abolished next year.

During-er hour devoted to private members' bills, the Commons talked out a bill to incorporate prairie transmission lines limited.

William Benedickson (L-Kenora-Rainy River), sponsor of the bill, said the company is simply asking to be incorporated so that it can build pipelines for transporting natural gas.

Want Route Investigated

The question of a route for the pipelines and where the gas would go would be investigated fully by the Alberta government and the Federal Board of Transport Commissioners.

Discussion on the budget debate ranged from the oil industry to development of the Canadian northland as seven members took part.

At conclusion of the night sitting, Works Minister Fournier—the Government House Leader—said it was hoped the budget debate would finish today.

A. L. Smith (PC-Calgary West) said Canada's economy will benefit if this country and the United States can strike a balance on the exchange of oil products.

He said that if Alberta oil fields could supply Western and Mid-western United States markets while American fields in the east were supplying Eastern Canada "then we will have contributed to the balance of the economy more than any other industry in Canada."

John Decore (L-Vergeville), another Alberta lawyer, objected to what he described as insinuations that the Communist vote elected him in the June 27 election.

Mr. Decore said it cast a reflection on the people of his riding. He objected to the remarks along that line made by Social Credit members.

A former school teacher, Mr. Debore said the Federal government should give more aid to education.

Urge Industry Protected

"Some formula needs to be worked out by means of which more opportunities will be created for education for our young Canadians."

Cadi Stewart (L — Yorkton) disputed what he said are C.C.F. claims to represent the farmer's views. Of the party's 13 representatives in the Commons, only one was a full-fledged farmer, he said. He challenged the C.C.F. to admit that it now is primarily a representative of the views of labor.

Dr. W. G. Blair (PC — Lanark) urged the government to protect the Canadian textile industry against competition from the United Kingdom and other countries.

Dr. Blair, whose Ontario constituency contains 11 woolen textile mills, said some Canadian mills may soon close down because of the excessive competition from Britain and other countries using the advantages they gained by devaluation of their currencies.

Dr. Blair said he doesn't favor return to high tariffs. He would prefer action to clear the way for purchase by Canadian companies of more efficient machinery from the United Kingdom.

New machinery is needed to enable Canadian mills to compete with other countries. In some cases the machinery is obsolete and in others it is worn out as a result of 24-hour-a-day service during the war years.

Some mills wanted to replace machinery, but could not obtain it from the United Kingdom. Reports indicated that British exports of the machinery to European countries was greater than in pre-war years.

Canadian imports of British textiles were in direct competition with Canadian products. He agreed everything should be done to assist Britain in her dollar crisis, but suggested there should be a distinction on imports. For instance, Britain should export to Canada textile machinery.

On Verge of Closing

In recent years, and particularly since devaluation, Canadian textile production declined while British imports increased.

Last year, 180,000 Canadians are employed in textiles, including 18,000 in woollen textile mills. He told how Karl Homuth (PC-Waterloo South) operates at a loss and is subsidized.

Mr. Homuth had told his plant is on the verge of closing because of the competition. Mr. Homuth had predicted there would not only be 18,000 unemployed in the woollen-textile mills, but many other Canadians in allied industries.

In Britain, textiles were produced more cheaply. Labor costs were lower and Canadian mills also had to compete against a certain amount of subsidization.

Dr. Blair suggested the custom tariff on textiles should be sufficient to protect the present high standard of living in Canada. He would not object, but he would do Canada to keep textile workers busy in Yorkshire while Canadian textile workers were walking the streets.

He agreed Canada should take British textiles that the Canadian market could absorb. But in the national interest, the government should not let the imports force the closing of textile mills in Canada.

Wants Riding Broken

J. A. Simmons (L—Yukon-Mackenzie River), representative of the biggest constituency in Canada, suggested the riding be broken into two. Its size made it difficult for a candidate to travel to all par', of the constituency during election campaigns.

Mr. Simmons said the prime needs of the northland are people, improved transportation facilities and cheap power.

He also hoped the time would come soon when the north would have its own elected representatives as do the provinces.

He said the mint should strike a few million silver dollars a year for several years and distribute them throughout the country to make the Canadians silver-conscious.

Mr. Simmons, whose constituency contains large deposits of silver, said the mineral is also mined in Ontario, British Columbia and Quebec.

It was, he thought, in the interests of Canada that people should become more conscious of silver.

Stretched Too Far

The Commission reported "widespread feeling" that the available manpower — about 9,500 — and material have been stretched too far and too thin and it recommended "a breathing space for consolidation, training and the strengthening of its men and ships." This, presumably, would mean a temporary halt in operational training for an anti-submarine role and the easier consolidation of the force.

It said, too, that criticisms should not be made the final "a great deal also is overwhelmingly good" about the navy.

The Commission was named last spring to investigate a series of "incidents" involving strikers — aboard three warships, the aircraft carrier Magnificent and the destroyers Athabaskn and Crescent. Its members were Rear Admiral F. R. Mainguy, Naval Chief on the east coast; L. W. Brockington, Ottawa lawyer; and L. C. Audette of the Canadian Maritime Commission, a wartime naval officer.

Of its primary mission, the Commission found no justification for "mutinous incidents" and said the guilty should have been punished. But it did find "justification for one of the complaints on which part of the dissatisfaction was founded."

"They gave us a head because of the gradual and continuous murmurs of discontent against a series of small annoyances and a few basic injustices . . . there were many conditions which contributed or which could and should have been mitigated, modified or eliminated (but) there was no cause sufficiently strong to justify in any degree the insubordination that took place."

No Subversive Elements

versive elements behind the incidents but said one had a chain reaction on the other and that all three were related a 1947 strike aboard the cruiser Ontario. The executive officer — adjutant — was removed from the Ontario and his counterparts were large figures in the other three ships.

All were ended, the commission said, after the captains talked to the men — a total of 205 — and there were no punishments. In the future such insubordination should be "severely" punished.

Among the men the commission found "an almost universal complaint concerning changes in routine." A great deal of trouble arose from "unpopularity" of the executive officers. "Two were inexperienced. The third was "too dominating."

Insufficient care was exercised in their choice. There were far too many changes in officers. There appeared to be "an absence of close confidence not only between officers and men but in large degree between officers and petty officers."

Absence of welfare committees was "often cited. Grievance-mongering was a "serious lack." There was no method at all for communicating mass grievances to the captain.

Artificial Difference

There was an "inevitable lack of confidence" among the men when they met "frequent changes in routine and sometimes a lack of knowledge of the elementary rules of seamship" in their leaders.

There was "a prevalent feeling that there is an artificial distance' between officers and men, not wholly connected with the necessity of maintaining the essential differences in rank." In Canada where many officers and men came from the same sort of background, discipline should be based on realities.

There was "a wide opinion that there still is no great an attempt to make the Canadian navy a pallid imitation and reflection of the British navy — This is in no sense a criticism of the Royal Navy. . . Among navy men was a widespread feeling that "the Canadian navy should be more Canadian."

Training Lengthened

The present system of training officers partly at a Canadian cadet college, partly with the Royal Navy, should be lengthened and broadened. The cadet should go to a Canadian training ship and study should be given to exchanges with the U.S. navy.

The Canadian officers' training did not equal that given his British and American counterparts, it should be widened to include courses of the humanities and "the qualities or leadership," of the duties, the responsibilities, the principles and the practices of disciplinary leadership."

The men should have better recreational facilities at sea and ashore.

The commission said many officers among 238 witnesses were critical of the use of professional advertising material to lure recruits and requested that many new men complain that conditions are not what they expected them to be as the result of recruiting come-ons. The defence department's fall ratio program is slated to start shortly.

Drowning Hunter's Last Words Spur Wife to Survive

Woman Rescued After Four Cold Nights on Island

BOY STABBED BY PLAYMATE

Sidney Norman, 15, of Leaside, Ont., is in hospital after being stabbed in the stomach during a class soccer game at his Rolph Rd. school grounds on Monday. According to playmates, Sidney was stabbed with a "spring knife" in the hands of the referee of the game, a 14-year-old recently released from reform school and assigned to the game by a teacher. The stabbing resulted in a two-inch wound said to be "not serious." The lad responsible will face charges in juvenile court.—Central Press Canadian.

Fort Frances, Nov. 2. (CP)—Near death from shock, exhaustion and cold, Mrs. Emelia Frankiewicz, 37, was rescued by police Tuesday from uninhabited Burnt Island after having watched her husband disappear into the icy waters of Footprint Lake last Friday.

Mrs. Frankiewicz and her husband, John, were on a weekend hunting trip when a storm upset their canvas canoe off Despair Rock, near, the barren island 30 miles north of this Rainy River district town.

The woman wavered only once in her determination to survive after being told by her husband to "hang on for your life—even if I have to go you must try to live".

Wife Story of 'Sheer Terror'

Terrified of the dark of night, and shivering in wet clothes as the temperature dropped at times to 15 degrees, Mrs. Frankiewicz was about to give up the struggle when she heard the axe scraping a boat on the shore.

Guided safely to the occupants of the boat—Provincial Constables Jack Hanson and Owen Sullivan, of Clearwater, Ontario.

When rescued, the woman had spent three days and four bitterly cold nights on the lonely island. A loose parka she was wearing is believed to have ballooned with air, assisting in keeping her afloat as the tiny craft drifted to shore.

Mrs. Frankiewicz was brought to hospital here. Attendants said she is responding to treatment for shock and exposure. She felt well enough to speak of her ordeal to a sister, Mrs. Edward Griffiths of Fort Frances.

Describing the story as one of "sheer terror", Mrs. Griffiths said the couple held on for an hour to the canoe before Frankiewicz told his wife he could not survive but that she should look after herself and not to try to help him.

"She told me that when John went down she felt she should try and try to help him," said Mrs Griffiths. "But then she thought of his plea for her to save herself and she kept her grasp on the canoe."

Sometime later, Mrs. Frankiewicz blanked out. When she regained consciousness she was lying across the canoe, which had drifted to the shore of Bunny Island, Mrs. Griffiths said.

Search for the couple got under way when they failed to keep an appointment with friends here on Sunday night.

C.I.O. RUTHLESSLY CONTINUES ITS 'RED' PURGE

Electrical and Farm Equipment Workers Out

Cleveland, Nov. 3 (AP)—The C.I.O. today ruthlessly continued the "Red" purge, amending its constitution to bar Communists from union control and arranging to bounce the largest so-called left-wing union in the United States.

Walter P. Reuther's powerful resolutions committee reported to the convention that it had approved by overwhelming vote" the expulsion of the United Electrical Workers and the Farm Equipment Workers.

The two unions had pulled off a quick merger last week, but it wasn't recognized by the C.I.O.

The Electrical Workers, with up to 450,000 members, and the Farm Equipment group, with another 20,000, will be the first to feel the right-wing ax.

U. E.'s delegates, giving up the fight to remain in the C.I.O., walked out of the convention Tuesday, issued a terrific blast at C.I.O. President Philip Murray and Secretary-Treasurer James B. Carey, and announced they would pay no more dues to the C.I.O.

With only Harry Bridges of the longshoremen, Abram Flaxer of the Textile Workers Union and James Durkin of the Office and Professional Workers dissenting, the resolution to revoke the U.E. charter was adopted in committee.

The resolution said the U.E.'s "political activity has led it into the control of a group dominated primarily by the principles of the Communist party and opposed to the constitution and democratic objectives of the C.I.O."

Jurisdiction of the Electrical and Allied Industries would be handed over to a new group, reported to be backed by Carey, the U.E.'s first president ousted by the present left-wing leadership.

Might Pick up Members

Murray said there were "incorrections" among locals against the left-wing administration, and therefore a new right-wing union could be formed with all of the present U.E. membership regarded by many as an optimistic appraisal of the situation for the right-wing.

Murray told the C.I.O. acted, at least one right-wing U.E. local—was ahead and withdrew from the parent organization.

In Pittsburgh, officers of the 12,000-member local at the Westinghouse Electric Corporation's big east Pittsburgh plant decided unanimously to get out.

The local's regarding Secretary Slater Jones said the plant was still in the C.I.O.

The Pittsburgh four U.E. locals in Schenectady and Syracuse said they are standing by the C.I.O. and will not be pushed out of the left-wing international U.E.W. A total of more than 16,000 members are involved.

The Farm Equipment Workers had been expelled a year ago to merge with Reuter's Automobile Workers Union, which already claims more than 60,000 members in the farm machinery plants. But the F.E.'s left-wing leadership preferred to tie in with C.I.O.

First Step in Merger

The resolution said the F.E.-U.E. merger was the first step in a projected new labor federation of left-wing unions.

Reuter's committee tonight or tomorrow will act on a resolution dealing with the 10 other unions under fire for what it regards as following Soviet policy more closely than C.I.O. policy.

The third union marked for certain expulsion in the precon-vention speculation was the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers.

Murray Tuesday left little doubt that mine-mill will be booted out.

Sarcastically, he referred to mine-mill's efforts to get into the convention even though it was behind in dues nearly 10 months Murray took a promissory note, but told the convention: "Of course it will never be paid."

Other unions which may feel the wrath of the right-wing majority are Bridges' Longshoremen, Fur and Leather Workers, the Furniture Workers, American Communications Association, United Federal Office and Professional Workers, Food, Tobacco and Agricultural Workers, Marine Cooks and Stewards, and Allied Fishermen.

P.C.'S TO ORGANIZE YOUNG PEOPLE'S GROUPS

Other Steps Will be Taken to Strengthen Party for Next Election

Ottawa, Nov. 2. (CP) — The Progressive Conservative Party, in a two day meeting of the executive of the Party's National Association, it was decided to organize young people's groups as rapidly as possible, to recommend an increase in the representation of Young Progressive Conservatives on the executive and to make a concerted drive for an increase in the membership of women's organizations. A statement issued at the conclusion of the closed meetings said "assurance were given . . . that the important posts of national director and director of publicity would be filled in the near future."

R. A. (Dick) Bell, former national director, has returned to private law practice since the election. C. V. Charters, former director of publicity, has returned to private business in Brampton.

It is believed that George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, has several men in mind for the posts. There has been speculation that Russell Bouchard, who resigned his Commons seat to make way for Mr. Drew's election after the party's leadership convention a year ago would be appointed national director. Another mentioned is Roland Michener, former personal adviser to Mr. Drew.

Vote Confidence in Drew

The executive voted confidence in Mr. Drew's leadership, describe he was given a similar vote by supporters in the Commons in the general election and was first fought by Mr. Drew —the party's membership in the Commons dropped from 69 to 41.

The executive's statement said the "problems of the party were frankly and freely discussed" during its sessions.

"No effort was made to minimize the fact that the party had suffered a severe defeat," it said.

Date for the annual meeting of the National Association was fixed for April 17, 18 and 19, 1950.

The executive accepted several invitations to meet elsewhere. Stanley Hesson of Winnipeg, national director of women's organization.

Among other things she recommended the appointment of women organizers in each of the provinces, the publication of a News Letter to members of the women's organizations, and emphasis on a concerted drive to increase membership throughout the country.

HINT LEWIS MAY BE ANGLING FOR PEACE IN STRIKE

First Break Comes With Bethlehem Steel Accepting Pension Plan

Washington, Nov. 2. (AP) — Hopes for labor peace in the United States rose today on an indication that John L. Lewis, who has been the first leader in the steel strike, may be angling for a coal strike settlement. It was Lewis's hint-casting conclusive.

Less than a day after C.I.O President Philip Murray signed a precedent-setting welfare plans with Bethlehem Steel Corporation Lewis made a move. He suddenly called a miners' union policy meeting for next Monday in Chicago.

But why Chicago? The site suggested a possible coal peace pact with Illinois producers. Some of them have been reported impatient for a settlement. An agreement with Illinois producers would give Lewis a possible victory pattern such as Murray hopes he has for steel with the Bethlehem pension — insurance contract.

However, a denial that Illinois operators were wavering from the stand taken with coal producers from other sections came from Fred S. Wilkey, secretary of the Illinois Coal Operators Association.

Meanwhile, government officials here expected other steel companies soon to sign with Murray on the same employer-paid $100 monthly pensions and employer-worker-financed insurance plan as Bethlehem did.

Murray Holds Conferences

Murray held a conference Tuesday night with a representative of Jones and Laughlin Steel Company, seeking a strike-ending agreement. And union negotiators were sent out from Cleveland to dicker with other steel firms.

But Murray said no union contracts have been made yet with U.S. Steel Corporation, the largest U.S. producer, which was struck by 500,000 workers.

Officials here, trying to figure out what Lewis is up to, had a number of possible explanations for his Chicago meeting:

1. Lewis already has a real coal settlement offer he wants his union lieutenants to consider (Lewis seldom acts from temper for anything less during a strike.)

2. He's trying to bring Illinois producers into a quick agreement by meeting in their own backyard, and

3. He's trying to delay government intervention that will call coal negotiations to Washington in the next few days.

Cipolla was arrested by R.C.M.P. detectives police in his home here Sept. 16. The large sum in counterfeit bills was found in a locked chest in his bedroom.

300-YEAR RULE OF INDONESIA ENDED BY DUTCH

Country of 70,000,000 Asians is Created

The Hague, Nov. 2. (AP)—The Dutch and Indonesian governments today signed agreements to end The Netherlands' 300-year rule of her rich East Indies colonies.

The long-discussed agreements create a new, independent country of 70,000,000 Asians, the republic of the United States of Indonesia. The republic will be linked to the Dutch crown as an equal partner in a new Dutch-Indonesian Union, somewhat similar to the British Commonwealth.

Dutch, Indonesians and United Nations constitutors hope the pact will end the four years of warfare that have denied the world much of rich Indonesia's rubber, oil, sugar, spices and other raw materials.

In a final plenary session concluding a 10-week round-table conference, the Dutch and leaders of two Indonesian groups set out the terms to transfer sovereignty to the Indonesians.

Must Be Ratified

The resolution must be ratified by the Dutch and Indonesian parliaments.

The Netherlands - Indonesian union contains for the United States and Indonesian co-operation in foreign relations, defence, economic and cultural matters. It also provides for co-operation, as far as necessary, in financial matters.

The documents also include a military agreement providing for withdrawal of all Dutch troops from Indonesia within the first six months of 1950 if shipping can be provided.

The new United States of Indonesia will be a federal republic, with a president, a senate and a House of Representatives, similar to the United States.

Dutch New Guinea, over which both Dutch and Indonesians demanded control, is excluded. The Dutch hands during a year of further negotiations on its status.

Greek Seamen Sit on Yardarm, Defy Rain, Govt.

Baltimore, Nov. 2 — (AP)— Three Greek seamen, defying rain, chilly temperatures and the United States government, remained perched today on a yardarm 50 feet above the deck of a freighter in the harbor.

Shipmates said the United States Immigration Service wants to deport the three seamen, and a fourth who has disappeared, because they are members of the Greek Maritime Union, outlawed by the Greek government in 1947 as Communist-dominated.

The trio clambered aloft at 2 o'clock Tuesday morning and stayed despite wet weather, 50 degree temperatures and the wishes of the immigration service.

The immigration service said it was up to secrets of the freighter Aristocratis to get the men down.

Meanwhile, sympathetic crew members provided them with food, clothing and a bottle of whisky. They said the lads on the yardarm fear they'll be sent to prison if they go back to Greece.

John P. Ryan, district enforcement officer of the Immigration Service, said the men were to be deported because an inspector had decided they were not bona fide seamen and their real purpose was to jump ship and enter the United States illegally.

Visibility was down to five yards on some places.

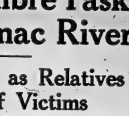
U. S. DIPLOMAT HELD BY REDS



Angus Ward, U. S. consul-general in Mukden, China, is held by the Communist government on charges of assaulting a former Chinese employee. The Chinese story is that Ward and four of his staff, in "savage and brutal act by American imperialists," beat the Chinese into unconsciousness when he returned to the consulate to demand severance pay after being fired by Ward. The case is scheduled to be heard before the Mukden's Peoples' Courts — Central Press Canadian.

Eerie Scene

It was an eerie scene. Slicking out from a clump of small trees at the river's edge were the tail and fuselage of the big airliner. Its left wing, and both the 4 engines gone. Apparently they were in the river bottom, along with the P-38 fighter flown by the only survivor of the crash — 29-year-old Erick Rica Bridoux, Director of the Bolivian Air Force.

Big floodlights played on the inky river from atop fire department trucks. Another searchlight had been set up on the bank.

Off to one side a corps of Red Cross women served coffee and sandwiches to the tired battalions hunting for the dead.

Occasionally one of the boats would break away from the other little craft about 100 feet off shore. Quietly the word went around. A man carrying a stretcher would go down to the water.

Once in a while a water-soaked sheaf of personal papers was discovered floating on the water. And a man's white shirt, a woman's coat, a split-open brief case.

Gets Dread Word

At the National Airport offices, three-quarters of a mile down the river, the Eastern Airlines desk over a big room where relatives and friends of the victims could go for the word they dreaded to hear.

Once a girl about 20 stepped up, her eyes already welling with tears. Was her grandmother's name on the list of passengers? Her chin trembled.

Down the list went the finger of the airline official. Then his finger halted and he looked up at the girl. Yes, the name was there.

The girl, too stunned to say more just stood and stared and tears started down her cheeks. Then she turned and walked slowly away. And the hearts of all in the room ached, too.

Monetary System Discussed By Guild

The Young Women's Guild met Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Grant Coulter, Evans Street. Mrs. Wishart conducted the devotional period on the "Fellowship of Man" dealing with their interdependence on one another. The building of the palaces in The Hague by the combined efforts and gifts of all the countries is an example of the increased results that can be obtained by men and countries cooperating.

The Monetary System was the subject for discussion led by Miss Hazel Thompson, assisted by Mrs. H. R. Gibson and Mrs. Mills.

Coined money was invented about 2,000 years ago by the Greeks as a means of facilitating barter—which had been carried on more or less clumsily by the exchange of actual goods. Almost immediately their new invention got them into trouble, men began to accept the coins as valuable in themselves, and to manipulate. Too many Greeks mortgaged themselves and their possessions, agriculture declined, money-lenders prospered and Greece became riddled with debt. On the verge of bankruptcy iron-handed reforms saved the nation, but never since has any lawmaker dared use such drastic methods of devaluation, and the ruthless cancellation of all debts and mortgages as were employed in 594 B.C.

Revived in Middle Ages

After the fall of the Roman Empire faith in money as a reliable medium of exchange all but died out, and not until the Middle Ages was coinage revived in dozens of petty states and kingdoms throughout Europe. Following the rise of public debt largely due to Europe's many wars came the founding of the Bank of England in 1694 and a new concept in the economy of money which was to become dominant in modern times—the economy of credit. The commercial banks began their rise to power and the destinies of nations lay in the hands of men like Mathew Rothschild — Europe's foremost financier of the 19th century.

Sir Robert Peel made paper money initially a standard currency in 1844. By the 20th century the situation was complete, with half the world following Great Britain in her abondment of the gold standard in 1931 money could no longer even be exchanged for precious metals but was entirely dependent on the lending investment and spending transactions of governments and banks.

Trade is a two-way street. For a country to export it is also necessary to import. The only way that France, Russia or Belgium or any other country can pay for foods metals, lumber and manufactured products we ship to them, is by selling their goods to us.

Run Out of Money

At one time or another most people run out of money. For some the condition is chronic. Running short of money is not exclusively a personal affair, the corner store, the big corporation, the town council, provincial governments and nations periodically run into the fact which to pay their bills. Usually this condition can be remedied by obtaining credit. Governments sell bonds or print currency in anticipation of future taxes. Today there is a shortage of United States dollars.

Two great wars have destroyed the capacity of Britain and of large areas of the world to produce, purchase and trade, as well as the delicate pre-war international banking machinery in which Britain plays so important a role has been virtually shattered.

Sir Stafford Cripps, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, in explaining the reasons for Britain devaluing the pound sterling said "we made great progress in production since the end of the war, exports rose as much again as before the war. Industry and commerce is on a sound basis of production, but the whole export goods and services were in the first half of the year, sufficient to pay for our imports. But the United World War disclocated world trade. We have had to help other countries with dollars and credits of sterling and we and they have had to depend on loans and credits and gifts of dollars from the United States and Canada.

Difficult to Step

During the second half of 1948 British dollar receipts including those of other parts of the Commonwealth like those of the rest of the world—started to fall off. Our gold reserves began to run away at much too fast a rate. When reserves were falling people started to lose confidence in sterling. When there was talk of devaluation -people started turning pounds into gold and dollars by all sorts of devices. This was difficult to stop, we could not stand the added drain on our reserves. Another reason that convinced us that we had to lower the rate of exchange was that we had to increase our power to earn dollars, which is the only permanent solution for the difficulty. We must earn more and spend less to get balance. The time element is very important—to sell more goods and services before Marshall Aid stops in 1952. And then we must stand on our own feet or have a lower standard of living and widespread unemployment.

Without a stable industrial foundation we shall never have a safe defence of our democracy, any security for a peaceful future.

At the close of the program refreshments were served by the hostess committee.

G.T. Lanning Special Speaker At Kiwanis Club

G. T. Lanning of Lanning Ltd., whose firm manufactures Beach and Garden hats and personal leather items and which has recently acquired the old American Optical factory on Coleman Street was the principal speaker at the Kiwanis Club luncheon meeting at Kiwanis Centre, Mr. Lanning stated that he appreciated the sincere welcome that had been extended to him and his two sons, since his arrival in the city and also for the many kindnesses that have been given during the course of settlement. He spoke on the operations of his business and the difficulty in securing needed materials before and after hostilities.

The members of the club bid goodbye to Bernie Lapcott and Bordens, who is leaving at the end of the week to assume his new position as manager at Peterborough. Bernie stated he had made many friends since coming to Belleville and was not going so far away that visits would be impossible. Mark Vannini, genial secretary of the club, was welcomed back after a severe siege of the flu. Warren Jones, chairman of Belleville-Ameliasburg is remember the Stag at Cobourg Club next Tuesday night, at which time Frank Hawkins will be the speaker. William Stovin announced that National Hall would be observed on November 19th. Jack Walton asked for volunteers for next Tuesday night to assist in finishing the basement so that Ladies' Night can be conducted. He stated there would be two classes on Monday and Thursday nights of each week and that five more members would be delegated per night to attend the next order. It is expected that 120 children will be taking the Safety Course. The attendance prize, donated by Jack Bonn was won by Ralph Clapp.

Outlines Factory Output

Mr. Lanning, who was introduced by Bill Brown, stated that at the present time there were 74 employees at the plant and more will be added after they have been trained and it is the hope to attain a payroll of $1,000 per week. Payroll of $123,000 a year is being paid and this will be increased to $150,000 when the complement is working.

The speaker stated at times such as these it is very difficult to plan ahead for any length of time as fact it is almost futile for a long range plan. In speaking of manufacturing in general in Belleville Canada, the speaker claimed that Canada manufactures the best in the world. Mr. Lanning outlines his business from a small beginning right up until the present time. "At first", he said, "we started to manufacture canvas belts for trucks but as limitations came in they were made by machinery and finally abandoned and then was started the hat section, which is now the principal line along with novelty lines of all kinds. Materials, before the war, were secured from Java, China and Italy and also from Mexico.

"After the war" said the speaker "it was hard to get them as no broken threads of trade and the only country that came back into trade was the export field was Italy. Mr. Lanning stated that leather line was being done, this being personal leather items and samples were displayed of the handiwork, now being done in a Belleville factory. He stated there was a good market in Canada because, although the British had always made a prominent article at the present time they were selling themselves out of market and their products were not as good as formerly. In conclusion he stated that we could look into the future with respect to trade but he was hoping for a continued stay in this fine city. The thanks of the club were expressed by Bill Wonnacott.

Into the traffic pattern, calling for landing instructions, came a P-38 fighter piloted by Bolivia's top airman, Erick Rios Bridoux. An airport tower operator, a bare half-mile away, saw the two-engined P-38 bear down on the transport. He cried a radio warning to the 32-year-old Bolivian. The P-38 kept coming.

Then the tower frantically signalled the transport. The pilot swerved the big ship from its path, but too late.

The fighter ripped into it from above and from the side. The airliner split in halves. Bodies and wreckage fell into the water and along the bank of the Potomac.

Pilot Sole Survivor

The sole survivor was the Bolivian. He was dragged from the water with a possible broken back and other injuries. He admitted to questioners that his "power"—presumably his radio power—had failed in the critical moments.

Among the dead were:

Representative George J. Bates (Rpe. Mass.), 58, father of seven children, former mayor of Salem, Mass., and a member of the House of Representatives Armed Services Committee.

Miss Helen Dickinson, a native of Mendota, Ill., who poked fun at plump proportions in Midwestern in conferences for the New Yorker Magazine.

Gardner W. Taylor, 60, president of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of New York.

Theodore Martin Richle, 58, whose firm is the New York General agent for the Equitable Life Assurance Society.

Michael Kennedy, 52, former leader in the New York Tammany Hall Democratic political organization.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred McCusky and their 18-month-old daughter Maureen, who were leaving Boston to make a new home in Washington.

Ambulances Roar to Scene

Within minutes after the crash hundreds of persons had gathered and ambulances were roaring to the scene. Would-be rescuers dragged bodies from the battered hulk of the plane at the waterfront. Ambulances were ferried from the water. A baby was floating on the surface.

Miss D. Dunbar, 21-year-old airport traffic controller, told reporters: "There just didn't seem to be any danger of an accident until the very last minute.

He gave Bridoux, who speaks excellent English, landing instructions, he said, and for a moment thought no more about it. "Then he came in at a steep apd fast," related Tigner. He said he told Rios to order Bridoux out of the way of the bigger plane, but without success. Soon, he called the DC-4.

Airliner Breaks in Two

"The airliner was swinging to the left when it happened. The fighter tore into the airliner's fuselage near the tail section on the right side. The DC-4 broke in two and caught fire."

Witnesses who saw the crash were horrified. P. M. Clifford said:

"I ran to the river bank. I saw them bring a woman out of the wreckage, and then some men. They were terribly battered. I couldn't watch any more."

J. Donald Maynor said:

"I jumped out of my car and ran to a 30- or 40-foot section of the fuselage that crashed to the mud only a foot or two from the water. I saw six legs with trousers on, probably the pilot's cabin. There was no noise, no groans or shouts."

The worst commercial airline disaster in previous years was the crash of an Eastern Airlines plane May 40, 1947, near Fort Deposit, Md. A total of 53 died in that crash.

History's only air disaster greater than Tuesday's occurred in 1933, when the U. S. Navy dirigible Akron fell into the sea during a storm off the New Jersey Coast, carrying 73 men to their death.

Six American, Four National League Players Selected for 1949 Major Loop All-Stars

(By The Canadian Press)

Six players from the American League and four from the National make up the 1949 major league all-star team selected for The Associated Press by 118 members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

Only six of the 16 big league clubs, three in each circuit, are represented in the fourth annual All-star squad. Boston Red Sox topped all clubs with three representatives—Ted Williams in the outfield and southpaw Mel Parnell and righthander Ellis Kinder in the pitching department.

Only two of the 10 men selected are holdovers from the 1948 all-star team. They are Stan Musial, slugging Cardinal outfielder, and Williams. The latter let the only difference to be selected to all four teams since the poll was inaugurated in 1946.

George Kell of Detroit, who nosed out Williams for the unofficial American League batting title, was named on all but three ballots to win the third base post hands down.

Johnny Kell in the infield are the Yankees' Tommy Henrich at first base and Phil Rizzuto at shortstop, and Brooklyn's Jackie Robinson at second base.

The smallest number of votes by a winner was garnered by Pittsburgh's Ralph Kiner. The Majors' home run king received 62 votes to best out the Cards' Enos Slaughter, the Yankees' Joe Dimaggio and six other competitors for the third outfield position. Musial had an even 100 votes to join Kell, Williams and Robinson as the only athletes to poll 100 or more votes.

Roy Campanella of the Dodgers who won the catching berth easily was only one shy of the century figure.

Junior Marlies Score Fifth Straight Victory

(By The Canadian Press)

Toronto's senior Marlboros have Hugh Bolton to thank for a 4-3 victory over Hamilton Tigers in Ontario Hockey Association senior A competition.

The lanky Bolton turned the trick at Hamilton Tuesday night with only five seconds to go and the score 3-3. From well out on the ice, he backhanded a shot past tiger goalie Bruce Dale.

In Tuesday night's other senior game, a three-goal lead built up during the first two periods enabled Owen Sound Mercurys to edge Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen 3-2. It was the fifth straight victory for the Mercurys.

Meanwhile, in the junior circuit Syl Apps' unbeaten Toronto Marlboros swept to their fifth consecutive triumph by beating the Guelph Generals 2 at Victoria. Windsor Spitfires on their home ice, clopped Barrie Flyers 3-1 and St. Catharines Teepees remained in second place by defeating Guelph Biltmores 5-2. Toronto St. Michael's downed Galt Black Hawks 5-3 in Toronto.

Outstanding besides Hugh Bolton in the Hamilton senior thriller were Flash Hollett, who scored two goals for the winners and Tom Smellie, who tallied twice for the losers. Don Pope got the other Toronto goal and Murray Comfort was the other Tiger scorer.

Tigers came from behind twice in the first two periods to overtake the Marlboros. At one time they lagged home two goals in quick succession.

Made Gallant Attack

The Flying Dutchmen made a gallant last-period attack after trailing 3-0 at the start of the stanza in their game at Owen Sound. They scored twice and only magnificent goal tending by Owen Sound Bobby Glinen kept them from tying the score by taking a lead. With the Dutchmen pressing continually, Glinen blocked 13 shots in the final period, after stopping another 15 earlier in the game. In the Kitchener-Waterloo nets, Bev Bentley turned aside 19 drives altogether.

Forslund scored twice for Owen Sound and Gilleard and Regan the third tally. Jack Shewchuk and D. Bauer came through for the Dutchmen, Shewchuk scoring on a 30 foot backhand shot.

Toronto Junior Marlboros piled up a three-goal lead in the first period to defeat Oshawa on tallies by George Armstrong, Tommy Fyles and Red Mitchell and in the second by Regan and Ed Windsky made it 5-0. Near the end of the second frame George Clements scored Oshawa's first goal of the night and Doug Towers clicked for Oshawa in the only goal scored during the third period.

Toronto St. Michael's came from behind in the second period to down Galt Black Hawks. The Hawks, spearheaded by a goal apiece from Joe Eddy and Pete Conacher, took the lead in the first period and held St. Michael's scoreless. St. Michael's came back in the second with two goals by George Lafaba, one by Bill Dineen and one by Bob Sabourin. George Ford scored Galt's last goal in the third period and Paul Alain of St. Michael's notched the clincher minutes later.

Barrie Flyers Beaten

Windsor Spitfires rebounded from a three-game losing streak to beat Barrie. After a scoreless first period, Spitfires bagged two goals in the second on drives by Eddie Stankiewicz and Erwin Grosse and Earl Reibel got through in the third. Rick Hegg spoiled a shutout for Windsor goalie Glen Hall when he rifled in a 40-foot drive in the third period.

In a rugged game at St. Catharines, Guelph's Don Bellinger opened the scoring, Jack McIntyre of St. Catharines evened it up and Cec. Hunter put St. Catharines ahead. A lighting fallure cut short the scoreless second period and the two were added onto the last period. St. Catharines went two up in the first half of the final period on a goal by Switzer but Dickenson cut their lead to one. In the closing five minutes, Obie O'Brien and Norm Corcoran each added one for St. Catharines.

One senior game is scheduled for tonight, with Owen Sound meeting Kitchener. The next junior games will be played Friday when Marlboros play Barrie, St. Michael's take on Stratford and Galt goes to Guelph and Windsor is matched with St. Catharines.

Winnipeg, Nov. 2 — (CP) — Winnipeg's Blue Bombers—and everybody except five United States imports, have stayed strictly to home talent — next year they'll likely go hunting for top players from other parts of Canada.

Blue Bombers this year concluded a disappointing season by finishing last in the Western Interprovincial Football Union for the second consecutive year.

Maurice (Free Press) Smith says that Unexpectedly, the 1949 Blue Bombers were a joat. When the season started no one expected they would win the league. But it was hoped they would win at least four or five games.

"But they were completely outclassed, and, over the season, had no place on the same field with Ley Lear's Stampeders and Fred Gram's Saskatchewan Roughriders."

On the import angle, Smith says it was the management's belief they would eventually be able to build themselves as strong as Calgary and Saskatchewan without having to go into the market for Canadian players from coast to coast.

"Basically, the club still feels it was the right idea. But we have reason to believe it has come to realize such a policy would take too long. With similar seasons as last, you would be counting the spectators at the games on the fingers of your two hands."

Hockey Goalies Tryout

Krug (Brandon Sun) Crawford says the workmanlike goalie, who used to smother close-inshots by falling on the puck, or used a good pair of eyes and quick hands to catch the puck, are not what is needed for today's slap-or-shoot type of hockey.

"The goalie who guards the nets now must be quicker than quick, stay on his feet, stop the third rebound as smartly as he did the first, have eyes in the back of his head and be strong enough to push enemy snipers off his doorstep," he says.

Three are Tied In Scoring Race

Minneapolis, Nov. 2 — (AP)— A pair of Tulsa players and one from Minneapolis found themselves in a tie for the scoring leadership of the United States Hockey League at the end of the second week of play.

Dick Buller, wing and Frank Ashworth, centre, for Tulsa and Gordie Agar, Minneapolis centre, each had 11 points through Sunday's games. Buller had seven goals and four assists, Ashworth six goals and five assists and Agar four goals and seven assists.

Three Kansas City Mohawks and Bob Schmurr of Tulsa were tied at nine points. The Hawks were Hank Ehrman, Steve Kraftcheck and Ray Powell. Blade counted seven goals and two assists. Gove and Powell have two goals and seven assists each. Schmurr counted three goals and helped in six others.

Minneapolis and St. Paul, with identical records in the six games they have played, were knotted for the league lead. Each has won four games, lost one and tied one for nine points.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, Nov. 2 — (AP)— Major league farm bosses insist there is no "ceiling" on practical operations of baseball chains, but you notice that a lot of clubs are cutting down a limit of somewhere between 10 and 15 affiliates . . . Beyond that the operation apparently becomes too expensive for the number of good players developed, though one operator points out that a couple of moneymaking farms can carry a lot of the load . . . On the other side, minor leaguers grumble that most working agreements are unsatisfactory and that the major saddle the little clubs with too big a share of the expenses . . . But the little guys can't go it alone because they can't compete for talent one prospect expensive scouting staffs . . .

Right now there are some 400 minor league clubs. If each big league club should limit itself to 25 farms, that would take care of 240 of them . . . Maybe the answer is that a lot of towns want baseball but can't support organized teams at present-day prices.

All In the Act

Penn State's dramatic organization, the Thespians, had voted an honorary membership to Jim Dragoila, Syracuse end, for "the greatest piece of dramatic acting seen on Beaver Field in years." Seems that in last Saturday's Penn State - Syracuse game, with the ball on the one-yard line and only a few seconds left to play, Dragoila fell flat on his face and gave a notable performance of appearing injured. That stopped the clock and gave Syracuse one more play for its final score . . . Penn State won anyway, 35-21 . . . The Thespians should realize such things are necessary in football; it's only in amateur dramatic groups where you find feminine leads whose faces would stop a clock.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. B. CARVER, Sports Editor

ANANIAS ET AL.

Great disappointment reigned in the village last night when the vagaries of an artificial ice plant not only rendered newspaper, radio and arena management to the roles of arch perverticians, but prevented hot-blooded junior and senior "B" hockey players from participating in their first practice.

All was well during the daytime. Manager Walt. Gerow and his first lieutenant Speedy St. Louis, had stripped down to underwear fighting weight and with hose and hoods, pomps and blasts had covered the arena surface with a coat of glistening ice. Manager Bill Cook and Coach Ken McNaught of the Junior Rockets, "Red" Carson and his cohorts of the CNR Diesels rubbed their hands with glee. "This is it," they chortled. "Tonight's the night when all secrets will be aired. We'll see who's got what and what has whom."

Players dug out their warbags. There was general rejoicing in hockeydom in the town. Potential National Leaguers arrived from outlying points all ready to show the darn city slickers how hockey should be played. The stage was all set. The actors were ready. And then Old Mother Nature heaved the well-known monkey-wrench into the machinery and the principal stars prop flopped.

Interested spectators dropped in during the afternoon to watch the proceedings. "Practice tonight for the Juniors and Diesels" was announced. This has been moved to the 24th dashed off, a piece to that effect and beat the deadline by the width of a snail's spit whisker. The arbiters were surprised as the Dawlish tonsils poured out the news to his radio audience. Everywhere in the area chattered and Clifton Gerow informed the waiting populace of the great event.

Then as the ice slowly formed, somebody had a brilliant idea. "Put on your skates" Speedy St. Louis was told, "and see if the old underpinning is at least 15 per cent of what it used to be, or whether the rust with the scythe and whiskers has, in long last, caught up with you."

Speedy assented. "He took two or three turns around the ice, then suddenly stopped. He beckoned to Manager Gerow —and there was the evidence. The ice was not hard enough. This was plainly apparent when the point of a St. Louis skate sank through the mastic plastic floor. The die was cast, and three unwitting Munchausens were left holding the well-known pendulum. The news filtered partly through the village, but a lot of people and players missed it, and consequently were disappointed.

THE NECKS GO OUT AGAIN

But last night after the conference and inspection, it was agreed and announced that the ice would be ready for practice Monday. The schedule regime unchanged with the Diesels trotting out there at seven o'clock for an hour's jaunt, and the Rockets taking over from eight to nine o'clock.

SURPRISE PACKAGE?

From rumor row and the grapevine comes the word that the Rockets have gathered a husky collection of pucksbusters for the Intermediate and Senior Dawn Jr. Junior "B" hockey loop. There is a lot of strange names as well as unfamiliar faces around town and we'll be surprised to see a lofty and puckish squad, in their black, white and red uniforms trot out on Friday night before the Bellefield Boilermakers in the classy Toronto Marlborough Junior "B's" in the first tilt of the season. We'll have more detailed information about them in the morning Ballad.

The Marlies lineup arrived today and will be published with numbers, in full, on Friday. Better clip and save for the big game, as the Toronto Marlies organization will not be ready for that evening. In any event there are names reminding of the hockey feats of former days such as Bob Primeau, and Marvin Wentworth, scions of well-known Toronto Hockey League players. Pere, Topping is the manager of the team with Alan Eagleson doing the coaching and Pete Conacher looking after the training of the youngsters. The team is going great guns in Toronto and the game here Friday should be well worth the price of admission.

YEA, TEAM!

"Red" Townsend and his scarlet-shirted BCI seniors, full of vim, vigor and optimism trek to Peterborough Saturday where they take on the three-champion Peterborough CI team in the COSSA semi-finals. For the first time since the first game the "Reds" will be at full strength. Coach Townsend and Skipper Ken Dewsnip, starry blueliner suffered a fractured hand early in the season, Burley, and other injured players reported for practice last night and will line up with the squad on Saturday. The team will line up as follows: Snap, Mazer; insides Greene and Browne, (a dash of color there, wot?); middles, Burley, Varley; outsides, Vankleek, Ketcheson; quarter, Locke; halves, Walmsley, McBride, Massey (Irving wing, McMillan; subs; Buchanan, Conley, Irwin, Culbertson, Moore, Rose, Coughlin, Doran, Ewald, Dawsett, Allen, Galbraith, McPherson, Smith and Lazenby.

On Friday Albert College and Trenton High School will clash in the first game of the senior "B" COSSA semi-finals with the winner playing Stirling, Tweed conquerors, in the finals. The ultimate senior "B" champions of this district will have time on their hands probably, since there is no "B" grouping in the Lakeshore League.

IN MEMORIAM

The Ken Colling Memorial will be competed for every year and a miniature presented to the winner.

Three 'Duck Eggs' Feature Scores In Major 'B'

Major points and "duck-eggs" featured the session last night in the Recreation Alleys of the Major "B" Tuesday League.

The fast travelling Ontario Intelligencer "Inkspots" chalked up their third consecutive victory by administering a 7-0 defeat to the Hillsdale Blackbirds team. Scoss, current leaders of the league maintained their top slot position by turning back the "Just Us" quintet, by a similar score while "Our Gang" tacked on a 7-0 setback to the Pigeons.

Interest next week will be centred on the match between the Sacos and "Inkspots" at present in first and second place respectively, as the Pigeons and newspapermen will place them in the top slot.

Veteran Joe Legault copped high scoring honors in both three string and singles. His "three" was a 711 while he singled for 283. Other high three strings were I. Moreau, 681 and Max Peoples, 709. Singles scorers were besides Legault, Moreau 282; J. Semark, 272 and Bert Hardwick 261.

The scores:—

Our Gang 7	3009
Pigeons 0	2986
Saco 7	2998
Just Us 0	2717
Ont. Intell. 7	2942
Hibbards 0	2335

All Six Clubs Of Hockey Loop To See Action

Big Bill Durnan of Montreal Canadiens, hockey's leading goaltender, will be up against the Chicago Black Hawks in the second game of the season Oct. 13.

But it shouldn't be a pushover. The Canadiens haven't been faring so well lately while the Black Hawks —paced by individual scoring leaders Doug Bentley and Metro Prystai—have been improving with two straight victories in their last two games.

In two other National Hockey League games tonight, New York Rangers travel to Toronto for a game with the Maple Leafs and Boston Bruins meet the Red Wings at Detroit.

With all six clubs in action, the standings may get shuffled again. Right now, the leading Maple Leafs are only a point ahead of Montreal and Detroit and the other three clubs are but a triple-tie another three points back.

The Bruins will also have rookie netminder Jack Gelineau in the nets at Detroit. Gelineau has been scored on 32 times in his last three games. Says Bruin General-Manager Art Ross:

"Are we contemplating any moves involving Gelineau? Of course not . . . he stays."

FOOTBALL FAN

Arthur Leroy Smith is one of the most rabid football fans in Parliament where he sits as Progressive Conservative member for Calgary West. He was first elected to the Commons in the 1945 general election and has been injecting western wit and humor into parliamentary debates ever since. Warden Happy To Play With Regina Riders

Regina, Nov. 2 (CP)—The chunky, 180-pound Del Wardien, star half with Saskatchewan Roughriders, his release by Calgary Stampeders before the season was "the best thing that ever happened to me."

"I don't think I got a fair deal," said Wardien of his dismissal by the Stampeders, leaders of the Western Interprovincial Football Union whom the Riders will meet here Nov. 5 in the first of a two-game, total-point series for the western championship.

Two-years ago, Wardien led the Stamps into the western final against Winnipeg Blue Bombers. He came to the Riders last season, but as the club's sixth American import played only against the Bombers.

Wardien has little to say about his release by Coach Les Lear of the Calgary team except that it concerned his participation in baseball as well as football and missing a couple of practices "on account of poor weather."

However, he's happy now.

"I'm with a good bunch from water boy to executives. I am grateful to this club all around and glad to have the chance to play."

He and plunging fullback Sammy Pierce—both of whom gained places on the western All-Star team—are optimistic over the Riders' chances in the playoffs.

Pierce, Baylor University star last season, and Wardien say that the Riders "found themselves" towards the end of the season.

PLENTY OF CONFUSION

Lindsay, Nov. 2 (CP)—Youngsters at Lindsay public schools toddle off to classes at 9 a.m. but their big brothers and sisters at Lindsay Collegiate don't have to be at school until 10 a.m. because of some confusion caused by certain bus lines remaining on fast time and the town itself returning to standard time. The local school board has put the collegiate on daylight time and the public schools on standard time.

LOTS OF GAME

Grand Falls, Nfld. — (CP) — There is still plenty of wild life in central Newfoundland. In a two-day survey covering 24 miles, two wardens saw eight caribou, 40 geese, three bears, two moose, 18 partridges and numerous foxes.

ATOMIC ENERGY

The awe-inspiring power of the atom was graphically illustrated to the House of Commons this week by Trade Minister Howe, shown holding a small cylinder of metallic uranium which contains an energy potential equivalent to that of 500,000 tons of coal. He showed the cylinder to the Commons while moving for the establishment of a 14-man House committee to examine the activities of the Atomic Energy Control Board. Uranium now is the main atomic radiation ingredient. — (CP Photo.)

Seven Calgary Players Chosen On First Team

Winnipeg, Nov. 2 — (CP) — Football fans talk of "dream teams," but Coach Les Lear of the Western Interprovincial Football Union's Calgary Stampeders appears to have the best part of one under his own wing.

Seven Calgary players were chosen for the league's All-star team, picked for The Canadian Press by veteran sports writers in the league's four cities, Calgary, 1948 Dominion champions, also placed four men on an alternate lineup.

Saskatchewan Roughriders placed four men on the first team, while the last-place Winnipeg Blue Bombers managed to garner one spot. Edmonton missed the first team, and plated two on the alternate.

Nine imports placed on the first team. Lea Lear was named to coach the mythical squad while Edmonton's Annis Stukus was next in line.

The teams:

First: Keith Spaith, Calgary, quarterback; Del Wardien, Regina, Ken Charlton, Regina, and Vern Graham, Calgary, halves; Sammy Pierce, Regina, fullback; Mel Wilson, Calgary, snap; Riley Matheson, Calgary, and Mike Kinsell, Winnipeg, insides; Johnny Aggerson, Calgary and Mike Cassidy, Regina, middles; Sugarfoot Aggerson and Woody Strode, Calgary, outsides. Lea Lear, coach.

Second: Doug Belcen, Regina, quarterback; Normie Kwong, Calgary, Chuck Fenenbock, Edmonton and Harry Hood, Calgary, halves; Paul Rowe, Calgary, fullback; Doug Brightwell, Regina, snap; Bert Iannone, Calgary and Bud Irving, Winnipeg, insides; Tom Springeth, Regina and Pat Santucci, Regina, middles; Matt Anthony, Regina and Johnny Bell, Regina, outsides. Annis Stukus, Edmonton, coach.

Only three players and all linemen — Matheson, Aguirre and Cassidy — were unanimous choice.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Nov. 2. (AP) —Today the last pussyfooting of the late Atwater Kent are being pounded away by an auctioneer's gavel.

So ends a chapter of Hollywood history. The Kent parties were perhaps the last remnant of a lavish era which seems to be vanishing.

Kent's home, Capo Di Monte, was preylewed to the public before the auction, and I decided to take a last look at the mountain-top palace.

The front room looked much the same, although it was filled with gawkers instead of glamor girls and boys. Missing were the festive gas-filled balloons that the retired radio manufacturer always had at his parties.

Silver and china plates were spread out on the dining room table, but they were filled with the bon-bons, fruitcake or other goodies that the party-giver used to provide.

A dumpy middle-aged woman regarded a large, sterling silver tureen. "Might be nice for washing the dog," she commented.

Tourists lumped about the terrace, where movie stars once danced under the stars.

Inside, a woman gazed at a painting with the canvas cracked in the middle. "Not in very good condition," she remarked as she walked past the Gainsborough.

As the bus wheezed down the mountain, I thought of the wispy little man whose greatest joy was entertaining the famous names of Hollywood. His parties became almost an industry. There were even reports that the events were classified A, B and C.

The A parties, so the story goes, were formal, sit-down dinners attended by the top stars and executives. The B parties called for a buffet dance with fairly good names. The C affairs featured spaghetti chicken a la king to hopefuls and has-beens. Through it all, "Attie" was a kind and charming host who tried to greet and say farewell to every guest.

Kingston Hospital, is gaining slowly.

Reverend Rawdonians attended a celebration to commemorate presentation of Independence Day of Democratic Czechoslovakia (1918-1928) in Bateau Recreation Hall. The proceeds were used for Trenton Memorial Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Foster of Moria, attended a miscellaneous shower at Wellman's in honor of their son and his bride.

Mrs. John A. McMullen is spending some time with her daughter, Mrs. Vernon Thompson, at Shannonville. Mr. Thompson is at Kingston Hospital.

Mrs. Thomas Andrews spent a couple of weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Everett Sine, 8th Concession.

A number of Rawdon children are entertaining the chicken pox.

Mrs. Burton Bateman is spending this week with Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Bateman.

Misses Gladys Dracup, Barbara Dracup, Joan Dracup, Eva Terrill, and Evelyn McFadden and Messrs. Gordon, Glenn, and Arden Dracup, Will Mitchell and Ray Bennington, all of Peterborough, attended a shower for Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Foster (nee Mina Dracup) at the home of the former's grandmother, Mrs. Walter Dracup, at Wellman's.

Mr. and Mrs. George Stewart and Tommie, West Huntingdon, visited Mr. and Mrs. John Mulcaster and Margaret at Mount Pleasant on Sunday. Mrs. Stewart and Tommy have just returned from a trip to Holland.

Over thirty people from Mount Pleasant attended Bethel Church supper.

Mrs. Delbert Mitchell and Irwin of Dartford, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Hay.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Scott of Mrs. Thomas Andrews and Mrs. Everett Sine attended the funeral of Mr. James Andrews, at Springbrook.

Mrs. Harry Shulters has returned to her home at Rochester, New York, after spending some time with Mrs. Albert Dunkley.

It opened with a spade. North responded with two diamonds. South then bid three clubs and north came back with three hearts.

The correct bid by north is now three no-trump. His two bids earlier used up the six tricks he has; five with his opening and the sixth with his raise to show clubs.

Bids follow 1 S.—A-N; takeout, assist, no-trump. South has unshown support for an assist in diamonds. But to do so would be a raise for which he lacks a seventh trick. Being forced, no-trump is his bid.

Why was south forced to bid again? Because a takeout to a new suit is forcing for another trick on the chain of new suit takeouts has not been broken. And the bids were an unbroken chain of takeouts.

Came then the discussion of a slight variation. What should the south hand do if north had bid three diamonds instead of three hearts on the second round? Would it still be three no-trump? The wild diamonds by north would not be a takeout to a new suit. Therefore, no jump having been made in the deal, south would not be forced to bid again. South could pass.

True south has excellent support for a rebiddable diamond suit. True, it seems a shame that he does not show his support with an assist to three diamonds but he has not a seventh trick for it.

Most players would not pass in scout, at such a time, insisted some of my listeners. They would either raise diamonds or chance a three no-trump contract. Or even prefer a penalo redid to pass.

Maybe so, All I can do is tell you the rule. Knowing which let your conscience be your guide.

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

Little Benny's Note Book

Sid Hunt's birthday party is next Saturday, and us fellows were sitting on his front steps talking to him respectful, Puds Sinkins says, "I'm going to be ice cream and cake, or just lemonade and cake?

There's going to be ice cream and cake, and lemonade too, Sid said. When I have a party, I believe in there's nothing missing, he said, and Pudz said, Oh boy, that's a way to talk.

Well boy, Sid, you bet your we play all kinds of swell exciting games, so everybody will say it was the best darn swellest party they ever went to! I said, and Sid said, G, maybe we will. What out of the house is the kind of games we play, I said. You hide all kinds of prizes all over the house every place you can think of, in all the closits and under the beds and even under the mattresses and every other place, and you blow a whistle and everybody starts hunting, and in about a hour you blow it again we have to stop and start playing something else, I said, and Glasses Magee said, Oh boy that'll be great and after that why not have a giant size tug-of-war? You get a rope long enough to go all a ways from the front door to the back door, through the front hall and the living room and the dining room and the kitchin, and the side door pulled the other side all a ways through the front hall and the living room and the kitchin, and the side door and then you have a swell tug-of-war, Glasses said. Well, I'll think about it, but I ain't sure. Maybe we'll just play tug-of-wars, he said.

Sure, oh boy, wowie, talk about a swell party, all the fellows said, and Sid said, Well, I'll think about it, but I ain't sure. Maybe we'll just play Going to Jerooalem with chairs, and pinning the tale on the donkey and things like that, he said.

Probably meaning he wouldn't be allowed, and being the sad end of the subject.

MARMORA

St. Andrew's United Church Holds 75th Anniversary

St. Andrew's United Church, Marmora, was filled to capacity on Sunday morning for the opening service in connection with its 75th anniversary.

The interior of the church was prettily decorated for the occasion with white pom-poms. A men's choir of fifteen voices led in the singing of the hymns and rendered the anthem "Lord, I Believe," by Arthur L. Ashworth.

The pastor, the Reverend George D. Young, B.A., B.D., conducted the service, and introduced the Reverend E. M. Cadigan of Kingsway United Church, Ottawa, as the guest preacher. The latter, who was the predecessor of the Rev. G. Young, preached an impressive sermon on St. Paul's words to the Corinthians "I keep under my body, and bring it into subjection, lest that by any means, when I have preached to others, I myself should be a castaway."

The preacher also referred to some of the history of the church while he was in pastor and extended wishes for its progress and prosperity. The attractive order of service given out to worshippers gives the following list of ministers of St. Andrew's United Church (formerly Marmora Methodist Church) since 1874:

1916-1922, Rev. W. P. Woodger, B.A.; 1922-1925, Rev. R. B. Clare; 1925-1928, Rev. F. J. Rowwood, B.A.; 1928-1930, Rev. C. J. Beckett; 1930-1932, Rev. F. H. Howard; 1932-1939, Rev. Charles W. Hollingsworth; 1939-1944, Rev. W. P. Fletcher, B.A., D.D.; and 1944-1948, Rev. E. M. Cadigan.

Recording stewards for the past 45 years or more, J. W. Pearce, H. Hubbard, H. E. Sabine, Arthur Sweet, and D. B. Sanderson.

The services continue next Sunday with the Rev. W. P. Woodger, B.A., of Coboconk as special preacher, morning and evening.

Marmora — Mrs. H. J. Neath was admitted to Belleville General Hospital on Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Clemenger have moved into the residence recently vicated by Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Fluke.

Flowers on the altar, and in the chancel of St. Pauls on Sunday, were in memory of the late James L. Hickey, and James Jones.

Weekend guests with relatives here were: Mr. and Mrs. Wilfrid Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Young and Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Baker and sons of Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Jones of Stirling; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Jones of Norwood and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Brown of Harold.

MARMORA

Cordova Nonagenarian Still Holds Own In Conversation

Marmora — A visitor to Marmora on Saturday evening was David Ellis of Cordova, who is 92 years old, but would pass for a man of 70 years. He was born on August 31, 1857 on what came to be known as Bully's Green on Belmont Lake.

He said that the name was bestowed on this part of Belmont township after one named Bully Tompkins, principal in a fistic encounter many years ago, with a rival named Bush, who came from the Tweed district.

Dan was the oldest of nine children born to the late Brooks Ellis, and his wife, formerly Margaret Bowers. He and his sister, Mrs. Peter Vesterfelt, (Sarah) of Marmora, are the two survivors. Dan retired from farming nineteen years ago to reside in a home he had purchased in Cordova village.

Practically all his life has been spent around Cordova. He worked in the shanty at different times putting in eighteen years with the Rathbun Company. He spent three months in the United States, some years ago visiting three states there, but was not inclined to take up residence there.

With the exception of a slight deafness he has the use of all his faculties and holds his own in conversation with men many years his junior.

DAFFY-nition:

PEDESTRIAN — one who, for no good reason at all, walks. It might be noted here that there is only one more primitive method of locomotion than walking, and that is crawling. If therefore you are beginning to be worried about being called a walker or crawler, you have an easy out. As you have probably seen by the papers they've been building a go-kart contraption called an "automobile" for the past 50 years and many people have parted with their hard-earned dough to become motorists instead of pedestrians.

Now there's a bunch of fellas up the 4-lane highway who have made more motorists out of pedestrians than anybody we know. And when you stop to think that people have been walking (or crawling) for the past 50,000 years and all of a sudden West End Motor Sales is rapidly changing this primitive pastime—it just makes you stop and think!

MORAL:

If you're tired of walking the boys to see are West End Motor Sales at Dundonald Avenue and Kingston Road. And in case you haven't heard, Rawson Bus Lines have started a new service to Parkwood Heights, which will take you right up to our lot. Or phone 3766 and we'll pick you up. No obligation.

Martin's Summer

By Vicki Baum

Finally when it was quite dark, when there was not a trace of the shore and not a glimmer to give him his direction, he gave up. Perhaps he was merely being swirled in circles over this thrice damned Fraunese. So now he gave up. He lay on his back like a drowned man at the end of the life-saving practice at the club. He closed his eyes in a complete surrender to his weakness. It even seemed to him that he fell asleep, as he rose and fell breathlessly between one wave and the next. But probably he had lost consciousness.

Once he was surprised to see a large star motionless in a patch of cloudless evening sky. Then the water washed again over his eyes. He struggled to the surface, tugging on his will as if on a rope. The effort brought him to his senses. His heart was strangely empty, but he still kept on swimming without a notion whither it might lead. The waves were still high, but more regular and not madly piled up one against another. The storm raged on, but there was now more force in it than hysteria. Yes, and there was in truth a large star in a rift of quiet evening sky between the clouds.

Then, though it seemed incredible, a light came dancing over the water toward him, and just as he was on the verge of losing consciousness he forced himself forward to meet it. He tried to give the short yodel that the inhabitants of Fraunese use among themselves. But his throat and lips seemed to be gripped by a cramp that gave way only to his panting breath, and so he scarcely made a sound. He swore and his arms fell limp. His legs alone kept up their stroke. He had cramp of the wind-pipe. He was suffocating.

Then close at hand there was a lantern, dancing over the lake, and a huge stern-oar with a blade as broad as a table shovel, quite near—one of those oars the Fraunese peasants use. It dipped and rose again and rose close to Martin's head. He stretched his hand out. Near by rose a head and above it a mass of wood, boat, oar, and gunwale. There was a voice there as well.

"Climb in boy," came the voice through the tumult. "Hold tight, and I'll pull you through. Not into the boat or you'll sink us. Now then, my boy, can you hold on?"

Before Martin's eyes there was a circle of light in the darkness. For a moment he had a clear sight of white foam sweeping by in the gleam of the lantern. He came on a hand that was so close to his face that it seemed of a giant size, and then he saw a pair of eyes beneath the hood of a dripping-wet oilskin cloak. There was nothing besides but darkness and beating waves. Suddenly he was filled with a wonderful confidence and strength. He took a deep breath and drew in the air with ease. His had been giving in when he had touched the edge of the boat. The disciplined instinct of an athlete asserted itself.

"How far to go?" he asked. It sounded like the mutter of a drunken man owing to the cramp in his throat, but apparently he was understood.

"Thirty meters, yet," someone said from the light of the lantern.

"I can do it", Martin panted up from the water, and struck out. The oar dug into the water, steadying beside him, and he rode over the waves, whose thrust became weaker and weaker.

"There's nothing to be afraid of now," someone above him was saying.

He heard it distinctly. It seemed to him funny and at the same time it reassured him. I'm not afraid he thought, and he blew a trumpeting note through the water, induced by excitement, weakness, and a sudden overweening self-confidence. Then he found that he was no longer in the water. He was lying prostrate and there was water weed around his legs.

"Here we are," somebody said.

He was pulled on to something firm and hard and wooden that at first seemed to rock and alternately ascend and descend, a landing stage. There was the smell of a boat-house and, in the feeble light of the lantern, posts and moored boats. Overhead the rain pattered a shingle roof. The painter was made fast with a rattle of chains, and after that Martin lay quite still and heard himself breathing.

I'm properly pumped out, he thought with satisfaction. It was as if he had just won a race. I pulled it off all the same, he thought. I wasn't done. I got through with it in spite of all. It seemed to him in his dazed condition, to be at the same time a pledge involving other things of supreme importance that had nothing to do with the wide and angry lake.

After lying flat for some minutes on the planks of the landing stage his teeth began to chatter and now for the first time he realized that he was frozen to the very marrow of his bones. Water still ran from his hair, which was matted over his forehead, and the blue silk shirt from the edge of the landing stage, from which a shadow fell on him just over his midriff, which kept on dilating and contracting like bellows.

"Do you feel better now?" the old asked him from the boat. He nodded. He had taken her for a boy, but now he saw it was a girl kneeling beside him.

"Well, and aren't you a fat-head!" she asked laughing.

Martin nodded again and looked at the girl. She appeared to be a pleasant child. She wore heavy boots, a cotton dress with a tight bodice, full skirt and blouse of coarse linen. All these garments were soaked through and clinging to her. Her rough cloak was thrown in a heap on the landing stage and looked like a dog just out of the water. A welcome warmth beat from her body to his. Taking one of the pigtails in her teeth she plaited the wet loosened hair into a neat rope again. Then she laid one hand over his heart.

"Now just keep still," she said. "You can't talk while your teeth chatter like that. What were your parents thinking of you silly baby? You don't know the lake yet, I suppose? As soon as ever I saw you out there this afternoon I thought to myself there'd be trouble. Then I had a sight of you with the telescope and at last I went out with the boat to find you. That wasn't too easy either in the storm. Would you really have drowned if I hadn't picked you up?"

"I don't think so, I should have got through, I don't let myself be beaten so easily.

"I see," she said. Then she sat for a while with her hands clasped round her knees and looked at him reflectively as if there were a serious problem to solve. Her eyes were of a dull impenetrable black, and the light of the lantern gleamed in them. She was small, quite a child, and yet very womanly in expression and form, like a round, downy half-ripe fruit.

"What are you called?" asked Martin. He had a strong desire to lay his head in the lap of her cotton dress and fall asleep.

"Puck," said she, as she took his hair and squeezed the last drops of water out of it.

"How do you mean? How do you mean — Puck?" he asked, shifting his numbed wet body farther from the warmth of hers. At once she moved confidently up to him again.

"How do I mean? Why, I mean Puck, that's all. Mother's no actress you see. Mother's splendid. Do you mean Puck, Oberon? There do you must know her too. She plays at the Burgtheatre. They won't let me go, but it must be very beautiful. Her stage name is Camilla Bojani."

"The Bojani! Heavens!" said he. "And I thought you were a peasant girl."

"Yes, I'm that as well. I'm a little odd as a matter of fact, you know. I like best living in the country. Here for the summer and in the winter at Hornbach. The snow—I can't tell you what it means to me. Sometimes I want to burrow right into the earth. And then again I want to run away and away from it. Father calls me 'Little Weasel.' Father is very good. A little mad too. So is mother, but in another way. And what are you like?" she asked abruptly, and with a quick instinctive movement she gave him a little tap on the forehead. The light blow was not too much for his exhausted nerves and a pain ran through him.

"What am I going to do with you now, boy?" asked Puck. "I shall have my ill if you fix there with nothing on. And I can't take you into the house. Dreams are people there today, and papa is reading his new book aloud. Philosophy that! No more do I. If I took you in as you are it only your bathing drawers, they'd laugh at you perhaps. And I can't row you ashore either. I'm too tired. And you aren't good for much in the water. We must get you warm first. It'll be perfect weather in two hours, and that's I'll lend you my clothes. Can you work a stern-oar?"

"Where are we then?" asked Martin. He shivered violently and still lay with slack outstretched arms. "Are we really on the other shore?"

"Yes, we're on the other shore. Sounds jolly, doesn't it? 'On the other shore.' One could make a song of that."

Puck hummed a few birdlike notes, as she slipped the oar and locked the padlock of the chain and then carefully wiped her wet hands on her wet dress. There was something unreal about her as she busied herself here and there, now advancing and now retreating amid darkness, water, and lantern-light. Martin shut his eyes.

"How do you know the weather will clear? You are an odd little woman," he said half asleep.

She took hold of him at once by the shoulders. "Get up," she called out loudly. "You can't sleep here and get inflammation of the lungs. Get up quick. As for the weather, I've got a nose for it. There isn't much about this lake I don't know. When the sweet—rush has this strong smell it means fine weather. Come along. We'll wait in the bathing hut till the rain stops."

They went along beneath trees whose branches roared in the wind, across some grass and onto a path, up hill and then down till they came to some wooden steps. How strange it all seemed —here on this other shore, in the familiar darkness of these grounds with his hand tightly clasped in—the wet warm hand of a light-hearted little girl. An old-fashioned lamp was lighted, and the lantern blown out. The rain went on and on, pattering on the roof. The hut was built of logs apparently low and square with rush mats on the floor and folded deck chairs stowed away in a corner. There was an old-fashioned sofa of light wood and striped silk against one wall, a low table, and wicker chairs. Japanese slippers lay about at random on the floor. Brightly colored and flimsy articles of clothing hung from the wall. There was a mysterious aroma of scent and good cigarettes.

U.S. Must Become Import-Minded Says Acheson

Outlines Program Based On New Tariff Cuts

DEVALUATION MAY SHOW IMPACT ON LIVING COSTS

Cost of Living Index for September Will be Released Friday

Ottawa, Nov. 3 — (CP)—Canadians may learn tomorrow what devaluation is doing to living costs.

Devaluation, which swept almost all parts of the world last month, is expected to show some of its impact in September's cost-of-living index, issued by the Bureau of Statistics.

Basis that 1935-39 equals 100, now stands at 162.3, after a half-point drop in August, first decline in a continuous half-year upward climb.

Since devaluation came about only in the second last week of September, however, the index is only a partial view of what it did to the index.

October's index, due early in December, will be the first full month in which devaluation has been at work.

The 10-per-cent cut in Canada's dollar may have a varied effect on the food sub-index — most important part of the price barometer.

Lower food costs showed down the index last month. But with devaluation, Canadians found themselves paying more for such items as fresh fruits and vegetables imported from the United States.

That may send living costs up a bit, but there may be countering forces at work in house markets where lamb, beef and hogs are slightly lower.

What also appears significant along with devaluation's influence are living costs in the United States.

The cost-of-living rose one-half of one per cent in September in the U. S., the largest monthly increase in consumer prices for a year.

Cardinal Marmaggi Top Administrator At Vatican, Dies

Rome, Nov. 3. (AP)—Francesco Cardinal Marmaggi, one of the top administrators in the Vatican, died today following a heart attack. He was 73.

Cardinal Marmaggi, created by the Sacred College, in 1933, was prefect of the congregation of the Council, director of the Congregation and enforcement of decrees of the Council of Trent and other church laws.

His death reduces the membership of the College of Cardinals to 54. The full membership is 70.

The body of the cardinal will lie in state in a room of his apartment until Saturday afternoon, when the coffin will be sealed by Msgr. Alberto Canali, in charge of Vatican ceremony. A lead tube containing Cardinal Marmaggi's life's record will be placed in the coffin.

Funeral services will be held Monday at St. Cecilia's church in Rome, of which Cardinal Marmaggi was titular head. Burial will be at Rome's Verano cemetery.

Pope Pius, Vatican sources said, sent a telegram of condolence by Giovanni Battista Montini, of the Vatican secretariat of state, after learning of his death.

The congregation of the council is the body to which bishops each headed by a cardinal, that administer affairs of the Roman Catholic church.

Cardinal Marmaggi was born August 31, 1878, in Rome. He was ordained a priest April 14, 1900, and most of his religious life was spent in the Roman City except for terms as Papal Nuncio to Bucharest, Prague and Warsaw and Papal Legate to Constantinople.

Washington, Nov. 3 (AP)—A major fight appeared to be shaping up today for the next session of congress over Truman administration plans to increase imports by several billion dollars worth a year.

In one of the bluntest declarations yet made on the subject by a top United States government official, Dean Acheson asserted in New York Wednesday night that "we must be really import-minded".

Acheson told the National Foreign Trade Council that he sees nothing "invariable" in a trade balance by which the United States last year sold $12,000,000,000 worth of goods to the rest of the world and brought only $7,000,000,000 in return.

He declared that the $6,000,000,000 gap creates a serious problem for the U.S. In its efforts to establish economic stability among the countries of the western hemisphere and western Europe.

Acheson spoke at the convention of the National Foreign Trade Council. President Truman sent the meeting a message saying that the United States as a creditor nation is trying to correct the unbalance in trade.

Acheson, in effect, demanded that the United States reverse its high tariff and trade policies under which it has consistently sold more abroad than it has bought. He said he wants the U.S. in future to allow other countries to pay for what they buy here instead of having the American taxpayer foot the bill in the form of huge loans and gifts.

To achieve this objective he outlined a program that in addition to negotiating new tariff cuts with other countries. At the same time he conceded that his proposal will run up against stiff opposition as a result of prospective unemployment with U.S. products.

The broad outline of his proposal will require action by congress—and he called for action at the next session in January. It appeared that the major issue will be fought out there.

'Air of Mysticism' About Wonder Drug

Guelph, Nov. 3 (CP) — Dr. Ernest Sherman, Professor of Experimental Medicine at Northwestern University, Chicago, said Wednesday that "the Guelph medicine ash has proved less effective against cancer than against other diseases.

He told a district meeting of the Ontario Medical Association that the drug produced no marked regression in cases of advanced cancer.

On the other hand, it had produced marked improvement when used on patients suffering from arthritis, rheumatism, hay fever and other diseases.

Ash, discovered about a year ago, still had "an air of mysticism" about it.

TWO BROTHERS ARRESTED

Toronto, Nov. 3 (CP)—Ernest Kelly, 19, and his brother, Jack, 24, were arrested today after a chase through east-end streets in which police fired twice. They were charged with attempted breaking and entering a cigar store.

A home-made burglar alarm on the shop's front door caused the owner when the pair allegedly tried to break it down. He called police.

No Potter's Field But Flowers, Music For Man Who Died Hobo but No Bum

New York, Nov. 3. (AP) — Flowers will not and a violin will play at the funeral today of his of Dan O'Brien, who died a hobo but not a bum.

The 91-year-old O'Brien was a man of simple tastes. He had little use for work and called himself King of the Hoboes.

When he died last Saturday, it looked as if he would end up in a pauper's grave in a potter's field.

But his friends got a call Wednesday from Morris Morgenstern. He did not identify himself, but pledged expenses for a decent burial for O'Brien.

"O'Brien was a saintly man," Morgenstern said. "He had a philosophy is very real. People should ease up a bit more."

The funeral for O'Brien rang again. It was Sammy Fuchs, owner of a Bowery cabaret.

"We cannot let Dan go to a potter's field," Fuchs said. "I will contribute the expenses, the floral pieces and hire a violin for the funeral."

So old Dan, dead but not forgotten, will go in style today from the Bellevue hospital chapel to a decent grave.

TRUST-BUSTING LAWS WILL BE PLUGGED BY GOVT.

Top Trust-Buster Reported Quitting

Ottawa, Nov. 3 (CP)—Amid reports that Canada's No. 1 trust-buster is resigning, the Commons Wednesday learned that legislation will be introduced shortly to plug the loop holes in the country's trust-busting laws.

Justice Minister Garson gave notice of amendments to the Combines Investigation Act shortly after it was learned on reliable authority that J. A. McGregor, Combines Investigation Commissioner, had quit.

Mr. Garson replied into the debate on the 1949-50 budget to which charges by R. B. Knight (CCF — Saskatoon City) that price-fixing combines are being allowed to operate in Canada, carrying on their "nefarious trade in the very shadow and eye of this government."

Reviewing the government's unsuccessful case against an alleged dental combine, Mr. Garson said that "the real question is the Combines Investigation Act which needs to be given the big push hole uncovered by the judgment.

The weakness in the law was that it was left to the Crown to prove that any incriminating letters found in the offices of companies and entered as evidence in a combines trial were sent with the knowledge of the board of directors of those companies.

No Nobel Award This Year, Academy Is Deadlocked

Stockholm, Nov. 3— (AP)— The Swedish Nobel Academy decided today to shelve this year's Nobel prize for literature because it was hopelessly deadlocked over four top candidates, including Winston Churchill and Italian philosopher Benedetto Croce.

The top-drawer prize in prize decision was reported to have been greater than any time during the 48-year history of the award. The 18-member Academy has been unable to agree.

(Available records do not indicate that a single candidate had been able to obtain the majority necessary, and the award will be withheld until next year.

The Nobel prizes, made in various fields of human affairs, are set up under the will of dynamite Alfred B. Nobel, the inventor of dynamite. They officially for the presentation of the awards to the person making the greatest contribution in each of the fields.

Some 50 of the 200 Negroes living in these small apartments were carried down ladders from the flaming building.

Orderly, International Food Distribution Plan Next Great Step Forward in Human Welfare

Toronto, Nov. 3 (CP)—H. H. Hannam, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, said today he was convinced the "next great step forward in human history" would be that of the world feeding itself by means of an orderly, organized, international plan.

"I believe that's the real basis for both peace and security," said Mr. Hannam in an address prepared for delivery before the Empire Club of Canada.

Mr. Hannam outlined the steps leading to formation of the federation and its growth to an organization that now includes 32 branches of agriculture and all provinces. It has an affiliated membership of some 400,000 — more than 80 per cent of the Dominion's farmer population.

"Our Canadian farmers want to put agriculture on a business basis," said Mr. Hannam.

Mr. Hannam said that although the federation has surpassed expectations, "we have not begun to tap the full possibilities of the job now uncovered by this judgment.

5,000,000 West Germans In Union Pledged to Fight Militarism, Guard Democracy

By BRACK CURRY

Frankfurt, Germany, Nov. 3— (CP)—Five million members of a union federation pledged to fight militarism and nationalism and safeguard democratic rights has just been formed in Western Germany.

The mammoth organization is anti-Communist. It is firmly committed to support social justice in Germany and to foster friendly understanding among countries.

The German Trade Union Federation, with two-thirds of the membership, represents 40 per cent of the working population of Western Germany.

Hugh W. Brown, director of the office of labor affairs of the United States High Commission for Germany said:

"The chance for a free existence of the whole German people may well be in the hands of the federation. The whole success of the democratic way of life in Germany depends upon how well the federation does its job of fighting for social justice ... and in building the democratic processes ..."

The federation's publication, U.S. high commission, calls the founding of the federation "the most important action in the German labor field since the

"In 1946 labor leaders understood that rebuilding German trade unions after 12 years in which a generation had grown up without the benefit of free trade unionism.

"Within four years they have recruited more members than were enrolled in Western Germany during 1933.

Delegates from 60 trade unions met in Munich to form the federation. Only one big German union did not take part — the clerics' workers. The 60 member union claims a paid up membership of 5,000,000, including 685,000 women and 442,000 youths.

American officials say that not less than 70 of the 627 delegates were communists.

ROOKIE CONSTABLE HELD ON CHARGE OF NEGLIGENCE

Revolver Accidentally Goes off, Man Injured

Toronto, Nov. 3 — (CP)—Suburban York township police arrested Constable Gedrge Mitchell, 22, resident of the suburban Leaside police force, on a charge of criminal negligence, following the accidental shooting of Lorne Sturgeon, 21-year-old taxi driver.

Sturgeon is in a Toronto hospital with a bullet wound near his heart. Hospital authorities say his condition is serious.

Deputy Chief Walter Segee of York township police says the charge against Mitchell will remain in the nature of manslaughter if Sturgeon dies.

Police said Mitchell, a constable for three months, was on his way home from night duty when he dropped in at a taxi office owned by Sturgeon's father to visit Vera, who had been a close friend of the young constable for four years.

Mitchell was holding his revolver in his hand showing it to Sturgeon when it went off, police said.

New Drug Flown In Effort to Save Life of Veteran

London, Ont., Nov. 3 — (CP)— Westminster hospital officials said today a vial of the new drug Aureomycin is being flown from Chicago to London in an effort to save the life of a young veteran suffering from a chronic gastric and intestinal condition.

Dr. C. MacLeod, superintendent at Westminster, declined to give details because the attempt was unsuccessful and the boy still is in the laboratory stage of treatment.

"Arrangements for the drug were made mainly by the veteran's relatives as a last chance in saving his life, and the hospital does not feel it should release any information," Dr. MacLeod said. "Should the attempt be successful and the man recovered the circumstances would have been different."

A Toronto newspaper gave the veteran's name as George Gordon of Stroud, Ont., and obtained details of the incident from relatives.

NEVER HAD A CHANCE

Toronto, Nov. 3—(CP)—J. Thomas Richardson, 16, Toronto police said "never had a chance" when sentenced today to one year in Guelph reformatory for theft and breaking and entering.

On Oct. 14 the boy was given suspended sentence and placed on probation for 18 months on another theft charge.

A police constable who arrested the boy told court "this is the end of a chance ... he loved the farm but was sent to the city."

Richardson is a former ward of the Children's Aid Society.

Minto Skating Club Destroyed by Fire, Loss is $250,000

Many Valuable Trophies Lost in Ottawa Blaze

Ottawa, Nov. 3. (CP)— The famed Minto Skating Club, training ground of many of Canada's most famous skaters was destroyed by fire early today.

The club's 19-old arvson was to have been offic-ially opened today.

Damage was estimated at more than $250,000.

The cause of the fire was not known, Fire Chief Cray Burnett said it might have been caused by a defect in the heating unit.

The fire broke out around 3:30 a.m. EST.

William Ayres the club caretaker, who lives on the top floor of the building with his wife and four children, said there was no sign of the fire when he went to bed around 2:45 a.m.

Aroused by Smell

Mrs. Ayres was aroused by the smell of smoke.

"If we hadn't awakened right then we would never have gotten out alive," Mr. Ayres said. "We were lucky not to have suffered another minute or so would probably have meant death for the six of us."

The rink, which has housed the Minto Club since 1920, was the scene of the North American figure-skating championships in 1947 when Ottawa's Barbara Ann Scott defended the North American title she first won in 1945.

Officials said all the records of the Canadian figure skating association were lost in the fire.

Also destroyed were 30 valuable trophies, won by club skaters.

Charles E. Cumming, secretary-treasurer of the Figure Skating Association, said neither the records nor the trophies could be replaced.

In addition most of the club's 500 members had their equipment stored in the building. Mr. Cummings estimated the equipment of each member was worth nearly $100.

50 Championships Won

Ottawa — More than 50 Dominion, North American skating championships and at least a dozen international championships have been won by skaters from Ottawa's Minto Skating Club whose rink was destroyed by a sudden fire today.

They ranged from Ormie Haycock — who won the Canadian men's singles championship from 1910 to 1914 — to Barbara Ann Scott, who won the olympic title, two European and world championships as well as two North American titles and the Canadian titles.

The club was formed in 1903 by the Earl and Countess of Minto, both enthusiastic skaters. The Earl, then Canada's governor-general, donated the Minto Cup for, the Canadian men's singles championship, and the Minto Challenge Cup for pairs.

The present building was built in 1907, after a fire that destroyed the club's first rink.

MOTHER AND 3 CHILDREN JUMP TO ESCAPE FIRE

Toronto Woman Suffers Possible Fractured Back in Two-Storey Leap

Toronto, Nov. 3 (CP)—A mother and her three children jumped or were thrown to safety early today when fire broke out in their downtown home.

Mrs. Violet Penny suffered a possible fractured back in the second-storey leap. Her three children, Sharfee, 11, Leslie, seven and Maurice, nine, suffered only minor burns.

The building had recently been converted into a number of small apartments. Twelve of the 14 persons who live there were at home when the fire broke out.

Bud Anderson, 21, who lives in the rear of the building, was first to notice the blaze. When Sharron was too frightened to leap from a second-storey window Anderson climbed a half inch pipe to the roof and got them one standing terrified. He carried her on his shoulders through the flames which were shooting out the windows.

Mrs. Penny said she and Sharron were trapped in their bedroom on the second floor. They ran to the window, turned around and all I could see was flames—the rest of them was awful," she said.

Mrs. Penny said she lauded Anderson and told Sharron to follow her.

Final Law Appeals May be Heard In Two Courts

Ottawa, Nov. 3 — (CP)—Possibly for two or three years, Canada will witness the strange spectacle of final legal appeals proceeding in two courts instead of one.

Parliament Wednesday gave final approval to a bill to make the Supreme Court of Canada the final court of appeal, thus abolishing appeals to the Privy Council.

The bill provides that the change becomes effective upon proclamation by the governor-general. In the meantime, an official said, any appeals to the Privy Council already launched will go forward.

It is possible, he said, Canadian cases may be before the Privy Council for two or three years.

New appeals may be launched until the bill receives royal proclamation is expected shortly.

Churchill Has Advice for Reader Teacher, Writer, Speaker and Press

London, Nov. 3 (CP) — Winston Churchill has come up with some advice today for readers of the reader, school teacher, writer, speaker and newspapers.

Churchill spoke Wednesday before a crowd of 3,000 at a national book exhibit where he received the Sunday Times £1,000 ($3,-1002) prize and gold medal for the outstanding contribution to English literature in the past year.

The Wartime Prime Minister won the award for the first two volumes of his war memoirs — "The Gathering Storm" and "Their Finest Hour."

"Writing a book is an adventure," he said in a brief acceptance speech.

"To begin with, it is a toy and an amusement. Then it becomes a mistress, then a master, then a tyrant, and in the last phase, when you are reconciled to your fate, you kill the monster, and fling him to the public."

He added jokingly that the income tax people should let authors claim "a substantial sum for the depreciation of mental machinery."

Then he gave out these words for the reader:

The reader—"It is a great pity to read works of great practical importance with the aim of an immediate period in your development."

The school teacher—"Be careful not to set famous books as holiday tasks to young people."

The writer and the speaker — "We must preserve our language and it is only possible because of modern slang and adoption."

Newspapers—Newspapers now often offer readers a selection of incidents and tragedies the world over. "Many unthinkable minds are focused on such matters at the moment; but as time goes on they will be crowded out by other and stresses to which we are at present exposed. The newspapers will grow to a graver tone and present events in their true proportion to the world."

In addition to having sentence suspended the court imposed costs of $4.50 each against the two youths.

POLICE BLOTTER

An increased number of provincial police cases from residential sections of the city at night are being reported to the local police. Almost every night there is a complaint to this effect but Wednesday night was an exception with four different reports of prowlers being seen.

The police stated was to the effect that prowlers had attempted to make an entry into the St. Andrew's Church basement window, while there were three other complaints from Bridge Street.

The city hall janitor discovered a transient hiding in the council chambers when he went in to clean shortly after eight o'clock. The man was taken to the police station, where he gave his name as Harold McMaster of St. John, New Brunswick. He was charged with vagrancy and with breaking and entry with intent.

$68 Taken From Room

A Pinnacle Street resident complained that while he was away from his apartment last evening the sum of $68 was stolen from beneath the mattress on his bed. It was stated that entry into the apartment had been gained by use of a skeleton key.

But criminal matters were not all that came to the attention of officers of the law. Wednesday afternoon police were informed by a Victoria Ave. resident that her little girl had locked herself in the bathroom.

Constable Charles Lockwood went out onto the roof and crawled in the bathroom window and opened the door freeing the little girl from her temporary captivity.

Apple Picking Virtually Ended

Apple picking is virtually completed in the Bay of Quinte district, according to the weekly crop report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. However, there has been little movement in the apple market to date and all storage space is practically filled.

Due to the excellent pastures and absence of freezing nights the milk production is holding up well and farmers expect livestock to go into the barn for winter in good condition. Farmers are now less concerned about feed conditions than they were in the summer.

Crops with the exception of turnips are now harvested and general satisfaction has been expressed with the fine working condition of the fall season.

Due to the excessive growth of fall wheat farmers have feared smothering of the crop and a number of the farmers have pastured their wheat.

Plan Dragging In Attempt To Find Bodies

Thessalon, Nov. 3. —(CP) — Dragging operations were planned today if rough waters subside, in an attempt to find the bodies of five Michipicoten persons missing and believed drowned.

Finding of the beached boat and oars of five life preservers, four floating on the water, led police to believe there was no hope of finding the missing five persons alive.

The missing persons are Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hostelier of Sturgis, Mich., Paul's two brothers, Vernon, 44, and Perry, 30, of LaGrange, Mich., and his father Charles Hostelier.

They set out from this community on the north shore of Lake Huron Monday morning in a boat powered by a heavy outboard motor.

The boat was found beached on Cockburn Island in the North Channel, which separates Manitoulin Island from the Northern Ontario mainland. Also found were the motor and life preservers, gasoline and oil supplies, and a number of shoes. The boat contained some bottles of beer and gasoline and oil supplies.

Dragging operations are planned off a reef opposite the government dock here, where the water is about 12 feet deep.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 3 — (CP) — Easier tone appeared as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Prices edged upwards in early dealings but mid-session selling pushed scattered issues into the minus column.

Base metals marked up small gains following Wednesday's profit-taking while golds and western oils backed down from previous trading advanced. Gains outnumbered losses in industrials but many market leaders were among the losers.

Industrials climbed into new high ground early in the day but slipped later. Papers were mixed and lighter, refining oils and textiles dipped. Steels were higher with Canadian Vickers adding more than $4. Bell Telephone dipped 1 1-4 at 40 3-8 in heavy selling following news that the company request for increased rates has been postponed until March for hearing by the Board of Transport Commissioners.

A few selected base metals turned upwards in a mild continuation of Tuesday's advance. Gains were pared slightly in mid session. Senior golds were strong with Bralorne selling at a new high at $11. Juniors eased quietly on losses ranging up to 10 cents.

Conny Seems To be Winning In Ticket Battle

Toronto, Nov. 3 — (CP)—The tempest about the free tickets in Maple Leaf Gardens for hockey games at Maple Leaf Gardens was described by Controller David Balfour today as "a fuss over $2."

The matter arose when the controllers' tickets, for many years on the rail seats "reds" were changed to "blues", farther from the ice surface.

"There is a 50-cent difference in price for each of the four tickets between red and blue sections," the controller said. "I would gladly have paid the difference for the whole board if Conny Smythe had written and told us he was going to change our seats."

Conny Smythe, managing director of the Gardens, denied Controller Lamport's suggestion that an increased assessment for the arena may have been the cause of the action. The assessment was increased $300,000 this year.

MADOC

Large Congregation Attend Trinity Anniversary Services

Madoc—The anniversary services of Trinity United Church, Madoc were held on Sunday Oct. 30th, with large congregations attending both services. The Rev. H. M. Servage, B.D., Minister of Queen Street United Church, Kingston, was the guest speaker, and preached eloquent sermons on "Our Responsibility in the Christian Church." The evening was a continuation of the sermons preached in the morning and very attentive congregations were greatly inspired by the message.

The church was tastefully decorated with autumn leaves and evergreen with several large baskets of 'mums beautifying the front of the church. Assisting the regular choir in the morning, Mrs. W. D. Jones of West Huntingdon contributed two solos.

At the evening service the junior choir of Tweed United Church, under the leadership of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Connor, sang three numbers. There were a great many visitors for neighboring churches to the services and at the evening service the minister of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, the Rev. N. W. Heslip and his congregation were in attendance.

The service was conducted by the minister of the church the Rev. Alfred Poulter, assisted by the Rev. M. W. Heslip, who read the scripture lesson and offered prayer. On Wednesday evening the ladies of the congregation served a very fine supper with one of the largest crowds in attendance for the season.

Queensboro Pair Convicted of False Pretences

It may have seemed like a good Hallowe'en joke at the time but two Queensboro men learned today in county magistrate's court that it does not pay to hire a taxi when they have no means to pay for same.

Monday, James Gifford, 29, and Earl Coole, 21, both of Queensboro, went to Kingston by bus and that night hired a taxi to drive them back to Belleville. The fare was to be $15.

Nearing Belleville, Coole asked the taxi driver to stop his car and Coole got out and promptly disappeared. The driver came on to Belleville and lodged a complaint with provincial police with result that Coole was picked up at a residence on Bull Street. Both were charged with false pretences.

In court today Gifford pleaded not guilty stating that he did not hire the taxi. Coole pleaded guilty to the charge. Both were convicted, and were remanded one week for sentence.

Danny Lewicki Joins Marlboro Junior 'A' Club

Stratford, Nov. 3 (CP)—Danny Lewicki, central figure in a year-long dispute with Toronto Maple Leafs over the controversial National Hockey League O Form, has been released to Toronto Marlboros, a Leaf amateur farm club, it was announced here today.

Lewicki, suspended last month by the N.H.L. and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association from organized hockey because he refused to sign a professional contract with the Leafs, will line up with the Junior Marlboros club.

Announcement of the transfer from the Stratford club to Marlboros was made by J. H. Wyatt, president of the Stratford team. He said arrangements were completed Wednesday in a conference in Toronto with Jimmy Thompson, managing director of the Leafs, coach Hap Day of the Leafs and Percy Lewis, Stratford coach.

Wyatt said Smythe would make a "substantial" cash payment to Stratford for Lewicki's services and that Marlboros would send four players to Stratford—none of them regular members of the Marlboros.

Tried to Dry Clothes

"Friday night I sat and shivered in my wet clothes and then Saturday morning I tried to dry my clothes in the strong wind a I made a sort of shelter by the roof of a big tree but it blew down. Getting some branches, I covered part of it over and piled some on the wet ground to sit on.

"Saturday night it rained and I got soaking wet again and couldn't sleep because I was having visions of hot steak dinners and steaming coffee."

The young housewife, whose husband was drowned in the upsetting of a motor-driven canoe on Lake Despair, 35 miles northwest of here, spent three days and four nights on the island. The ordeal weakened her to such an extent that once when searchers passed only 25 feet away in a boat "I was unable to mumble a word or wave a hand to them."

Mrs. Frankiewicz, whose husband was a Hopg Kong veteran, said that a starvy-garlic she was wearing seemed to fill with air and helped her keep afloat after the canoe tipped in rough water. She said she is "unable to swim a stroke."

Mr. and Mrs. Frankiewicz were on the first leg of a hunting trip when the accident occurred last Friday. The woman was found on Burnt Island Tuesday morning.

Visions of Hot Steak Dinners Helped Woman Survive Ordeal in North

Fort Frances, Ont., Nov. 3 (CP) — Cast away on a rain and snow-swept island, for 90 hungry, sleepless hours, Mrs. John Frankiewicz said today from a hospital bed that she managed to keep going by "visions of hot steak dinners and steaming coffee."

The young housewife, whose husband was drowned in the upsetting of a motor-driven canoe on Lake Despair, 35 miles northwest of here, spent three days and four nights on the island. The ordeal weakened her to such an extent that once when searchers passed only 25 feet away in a boat "I was unable to mumble a word or wave a hand to them."

Mrs. Frankiewicz, whose husband was a Hopg Kong veteran, said that a gharvy-garlic she was wearing seemed to fill with air and helped her keep afloat after the canoe tipped in rough water. She said she is "unable to swim a stroke."

Mr. and Mrs. Frankiewicz were on the first leg of a hunting trip when the accident occurred last Friday. The woman was found on Burnt Island Tuesday morning.

"Friday night I sat and shivered in my wet clothes and then Saturday morning I tried to dry my clothes in the strong wind a I made a sort of shelter by the roof of a big tree but it blew down. Getting some branches, I covered part of it over and piled some on the wet ground to sit on.

"Saturday night it rained and I got soaking wet again and couldn't sleep because I was having visions of hot steak dinners and steaming coffee."

"On Sunday morning I saw a plane fly over and I waved a red handkerchief but they didn't see me. In the afternoon I became very thirsty but not the least bit hungry.

"I crawled down to the shore and took a big drink of cold water and then I was very sick and could hardly pull myself back to the tent. That night it turned very cold and my clothes froze stiff and my feet and legs palsied."

Saw Searchers

Mrs. Frankiewicz said that on Monday morning she heard the sound of airplanes striking rocks near the shore and she saw a boatload of searchers directed by constable Ken Rayner of the Ontario Provincial Police. It was the first boat she had seen all day, from her.

"Then then on I didn't care what happened and I think that sometimes I wished that I had died with my husband."

Mrs. Frankiewicz said that she must have been in the water at least 3½ hours after the canoe tipped about 200 feet from the spot that she passed only 25 feet),

POPPY FOR REMEMBRANCE

Once again this year The Canadian Legion is asking the people of Belleville to wear a poppy for remembrance. This is an excellent appeal, and one that should not be overlooked. During the years since Col. John McCrae wrote the challenging poem "In Flanders Fields" the poppy has taken on a peculiar significance. It has come to typify in many countries of the world the debt which we who live owe to those who died in battle.

One day in the year the people of Canada are asked to wear a poppy to show that they remember. One day in the year they are asked to pause briefly to honor the dead. That is little enough. While remembrance of the dead of the two wars is the spiritual aspect of the poppy, there is the other practical purpose of assisting the living, for the money raised through poppy fund is used for emergency assistance to veterans and to families of veterans.

While it is true that veterans under certain circumstances have the advantage of specific legislation, such as war veterans' allowance, it should be remembered that when an emergency crops up in any family, speed is the essential requirement in providing assistance.

There are many cases on record with the Poppy Fund where the necessary assistance has been forthcoming in a matter of hours. It should be remembered also that there are many worthy veterans who hesitate to apply to any of the organized charities. Many of them have twice gone into uniform, and have given ten years from their productive life to the service of their country. Through the comradeship of the Canadian Legion they prefer to learn here and the assistance is forthcoming. It should be remembered too, that while the Poppy Fund is a national appeal the money raised locally is used locally to assist veterans and their families.

The Legion slogan "Wear a Poppy for Remembrance" is a good slogan. It is one that deserves the support of every citizen.

THE SAFE DRIVER

Sault Ste. Marie Star quotes from a letter to the editor of an American newspaper written by a travelling salesman who estimated that to 40,000 to 50,000 miles each year, who on the basis of having driven a million miles in 25 years without an accident offered his experience.

He said: "It is not how fast you go, but how steady you drive and how well you adapt your speed to road conditions and the flow of traffic that puts the miles safely behind you. Some roads aren't safe for even 45 or 50 m.p.h." His experience runs like this, "Other cars frequently pass me, but later on I often see these same cars parked in the roadside stand getting coffee to ease the driver's jangled nerves. That never fails to remind me of the old fable of the Tortoise and the Hare.

"While I keep up a good steady pace, I do not overdo it. If I get tired I stop."

Another tip he offered was given in this question, "Have you noticed how truck drivers pull off the road for meals at twilight? That's because it's the hardest time to see and when headlights are least effective.

"Without taking chances by passing other cars on curves or hills, I'm always on the alert for the other driver who does. I watch around a curve or up a hill without scanning the side of a road for a place to go if that other car should suddenly loom up in front of me. And this habit has saved my neck more than once."

He referred to the danger of cars starting out of the sidecreads without stopping. "So I've learned never to take my right of way on the open highway for granted."

Another comment was, "I don't like to drive too close to the car ahead of me."

He had a good word for the modern safety tire which prevents a lot of accidents but "an old fashioned blowout need not be too bad if you will keep your head. Grab the steering wheel firmly and do not apply your brakes too suddenly. A sudden application of the brakes will pull the car from one side of the wheel and make the car much harder to blown tire off the wheel and make the car much harder to control. I could mention a good many more tips but if I were to sum them up, most of them would come under the heading of just plain driving courtesy. Drivers who won't dim their lights or who try to squeeze into a line of traffic in the face of oncoming cars show little respect for life and limb, even their own." He winds up with stressing that little courtesy which will usually strike a responsive chord. "If you don't like it try it out some time."

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST
(Copyright, 1949, Edgar A. Guest)

PLAY SPOT

Now if it's fun you're seeking,
I'll tell where to play.
The yard is wide and open and there is ball you may.
Just whistle for your comrades and make them welcome
here,
For when I hear you shouting
I'll know that you are near.

If you should break a window,
I'll buy another pane.
I'd rather you'd be careless, but still I'll not complain.
And, if your friend get hungry
I'll see that he is fed,
For this is my ambition,
To help you children.

To me it's peace and comfort to know that you're here.

Should you be fond of music
—a trumpet want to blow
Then somewhere else to toot
it I would not have you go.
So practice in the distance with members of your band.
It may be noisy music, but I shall think it
grand.

I want you to remember your home is meant for play.
'Tis kept for love and laughter.
So wear the grass away.
And scuff the rugs and carpets and never have a fear.
'Tis not for noise I'll scold you if you are happy

NOT PROOF, BUT CONVICTION

Can we prove the existence of God? No and we waste our time trying to do so. It seems reasonable to believe that a created world proves the existence of a Creator, and that behind this beautiful world of ours stands a beneficent Being to whom we owe the deepest esteem and such thoughts is not to prove anything. The existence of God cannot be proved.

Religion deals with the unseen and it does not deal with the unreal. For some things, such as electricity, love, friendship, responsibility of character are unseen but still are very real. We cannot prove the existence of God but we can accept what the wisdom of the ages has revealed to us concerning God, and when we do this there grows up in our lives a conviction concerning Him, a confidence which is far stronger than anything which could be demonstrated in the laboratory or set forth in a text tube.

Does God exist? To that question, millions give a resounding Yes. But they answer that not because his existence has been proved by logic but because deep down in their hearts they have become convinced of the existence of God through their own experience and through the testimony of others. In the field of religion we begin to understand its mysteries only when we have manifested a willingness to believe.

Letter to the Editor

Remembrance Day And its Observance

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

May I make use of your newspaper to remind the citizens of Belleville and district that again we have a duty to perform in proper observance of "Remembrance Day".

In two world wars, from which we have emerged victorious, 100,000 Canadians have given their lives that we may remain free. One day in the year, the people of Canada are asked to wear a poppy to show they remember this sacrifice. One day in the year, we are asked to pause but for a brief moment to honor our Dead.

In our purchasing and wearing a poppy we not only pay our respects to those heroes spiritually in sacrifice. The funds raised locally are used locally to assist veterans' widows, and their children. The profit from the sale of wreaths and sprays go into the local Poppy Fund, which is administered by a joint committee of the Canadian Legion, Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans and the Canadian Legion War Services.

Therefore, I make this appeal to every citizen, in Belleville and district. On Saturday November 5th, purchase a poppy and wear it in commemoration. On November 11th every citizen can be identified with all those citizens not participating in the parade to be present at the cenotaph at 10.55 A.M.

Let us therefore, each and every one gather on Remembrance Day to be present at the Service to help keep alive the memory of the sacrifice made by our Glorious Dead in their terrible struggle to provide us with a life of freedom.

Max. Matthews, President,
Canadian Legion, Branch 95,
Belleville.

Nations Reverse Statement Made By Chamberlain

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

"The day of small nations has passed away; the day of empires has come."

The famous British statesman Joseph Chamberlain made that statement in 1904 during a speech at Birmingham, England. That was only 45 years ago.

Wednesday the Dutch signed away their sovereignty to the rich Dutch East Indies over which the Netherlands had ruled brightest jewels in the Imperial Crown now comprise the United States of Indonesia — a republic. The 70,000,000 natives of these tropical islands of spices and sugar and rubber and oil have been guaranteed control of their own birthright.

Thus The Netherlands had followed the footsteps of Britain her which rapidly has turned her Empire into the British Commonwealth of independent nations. The Dutch move is the latest and indisputable proof that we must reverse Chamberlain's statement and note that "the day of empires has passed away; the day of small nations has come."

The historic agreement between the Dutch and the Indonesians was signed at The Hague. Under that pact, which is subject approval of the Dutch and Indonesian Parliaments, new republic becomes a sovereign part of the Dutch Commonwealth which is linked together by the Crown in much the same manner as the British Commonwealth.

Dutch Oppose Transfer

On one important point the Indonesians were disappointed. They had wanted to include the Dutch portion of New Guinea in the republic. The Dutch opposed the transfer and finally the latter was compromised on the basis that The Netherlands should retain control of the New Guinea territory for another year, pending further negotiations as to its ultimate disposition. The eastern part of New Guinea is Australian occupied by Australia.

New Guinea is the world's largest island, so huge that it is almost big enough to be entitled to the designation of a continent. However, it is such an inhospitable land that at first glance one wonders why anybody should claim it.

Nature Played Trick

But, it seems that Nature played a trick on mankind. She concealed great wealth in the earth of New Guinea in the shape of oil — and then set some of her most evil beasts to guard the treasure. New Guinea always is known to hold great riches in its bowels, and still remain to be explored. Moreover the big island is strategically important as well.

In the argument between the Dutch and the Indonesians, the former have maintained that the new republic won't have the facilities for speedy development of New Guinea, whereas the Netherlands is prepared to get ahead with the job.

So the question of this island is put over for a year. Meanwhile the establishment of the United States of Indonesia will ease immensely the international tension in that part of the world.

RIGHT AFTER MEALS

Montreal —(CP)— If you don't brush your teeth within 10 minutes after a meal you might as well not brush them at all, Dr. R. D. Wyman of Boston told the Montreal Dental Club. As a matter of fact, said the doctor, a raw apple or carrot is as good as a toothbrush to remove food particles.

HOW WILL YOU HAVE YOUR EGG?

A reader takes one raw egg every morning and has a hard time getting it down, but she is determined to take the egg in that state because, I have convinced her that we should eat more raw food.

More raw vegetables, fruits and cereals—such as wheat germ oats—yes. But I never advised any one to eat raw meat, raw fish or raw egg, although there is no health objection to eating raw meat or raw fish if you like it raw, provided you are certain the meat or fish contains no parasitic larvae such as trichinae (in pork or ham), beef tapeworm. Can improve.

There is no foundation for the notion that raw egg has any nutritive, digestive, therapeutic or medial value that one does not get from egg cooked as one prefers.

Indeed, a healthy person digests more nourishment from an egg cooked to his or her taste than from a raw egg, because a portion or the raw egg white is not absorbed by the human digestive tract, but is excreted completely utilized as it is cooked to one's taste.

To be sure, an invalid too weak to eat or devoid of appetite may drink raw eggs as a nourishing recine, even when he or she cannot eat anything. Or as when the invalid tite has been already satisfied with a meal may still down one or more raw eggs in the form of one another, and perhaps thus put on necessary body weight. Raw eggs were commonly administered in the treatment of patients with pulmonary tuberculosis in the past. The practice is no longer followed, probably because in this day have more knowledge of nutrition and of the nature of tuberculosis. Patients must lose weight following improvement, but improvement does not necessarily follow forced gain in weight. Obesity is never an evidence of good health.

Coddled or soft boiled egg, as already implied, is the best way to have it if that's the way you like it. On the other hand, one who still has enough strength to do all his or her own eating, can fend well with fried, shirred, scrambled, fried or flabbergasted egg as well as with coddled or soft boiled, if he also prefers egg so cooked.

One egg of average size yields 75 calories, of which the white yields 20, the yolk 55.

Eggs supplies every nutritive essential that meat or milk (cheese) supplies, plus elements in which these other foods are deficient. For instance, eggs are rich in calcium and vitamins that meat does not supply in sufficient amounting; egg is rich in iron, whereas milk (and cheese) is notoriously poor in iron. "Meat" in this analysis means the flesh of animal or fowl. The proteins (nitrogenous material) in egg white and egg yolk are as complete biologically as meat or milk proteins. That is, they contain all of the aminoacids required for growth, life, energy, development, health and repair of wear and tear.

Egg, raw or cooked, is sq-excellent food source of vitamin A, thiamine (B1), riboflavin (B2) and vitamin D.

Contrary to an assumption of some half-informed persons, the formed elements, the presence of albumen in the urine has no relation to the eating of eggs. Egg white is only one of many food sources of albumen, and anyway the albumen constituent of food is not excreted through the kidneys, in health or in Bright's disease (nephritis). Food albumen must be split into its component aminoacids before it becomes fit to be converted into the kinds of protein, albumen or nitrogenous materials the body requires. There is no such thing as an escape of egg albumen as albumen through the kidneys. However, in the presence of Bright's disease (nephritis) today physicians who apply in practice the newer knowledge of egg theory do not restrict the albumen of egg white, raw, cooked or albuminous foods in the diet.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THOSE LITTLE EXTRAS

Life's greatest enjoyment is gained by the many little extras that are forever being added to it. We find that we grow in, unobserved, at the time. It's the little extras that make the difference between reading that make the well-informed man, companionship and enrich it. The worker who is forever doing little extra things for which he is not paid widely in his pay envelope, is the one who advances, and who by the way, keeps increasing his happiness.

Those little extras, in the shape of increased efforts were the difference between the artist or writer outstanding. There are too many people who are content to "get by" and then let it go at that.

The spiritual and interesting personality is alive and radiating with little extras, and which one has been quick to see that one has cultivated intelligently. These extras are not confined to the habitual smile or a cultivated philosophy of life, or a showing of patience and consideration for others or sorrow, but there they are to glorify and emphasize life's values.

The little extras that we don't have to do, but give, but which we do anyway are what contribute so much to the happiness of life. They season life itself and are like whispered music, or the fragrance of flowers. We are told the salesman that he has "that extra touch," but are puzzled to define what "that something" is. Perhaps it can honestly be defined as the little extras over what differentiate the successful from the unsuccessful.

When travelling it's the little extra attention that the steward on a ship, or the waiter in a restaurant gives that makes the whole journey an experience. The "please" and the "thank you" are little extras in politeness and appreciation—but they rate high. They help to feed the soul.

Throughout all nature are scattered little extras—gifts of the Creator, for which no payment beyond appreciation is expected. Flowers, the snow birds, the animals, trees, and the precious things of nature are little extras. The farmer who wields his sickle in the meadow gets more than his pay in the song that the sharpened blade creates —, a whispered poem!

PADRES WORK HARD

Vancouver — (CP) — An army chaplaincy is no job for a man who likes to take things easy, Lt.-Col. C. G. F. The soldiers have really learned now where to find help.

Designer Returns To Stage's Glamor

By MURIEL NARRAWAY

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London—(CP)—Norman Hartnell, one of London society's leading dressmakers, has returned to his first love—the stage.

Since the late '20s and early '30s he had little to do with the stage but at that time, as a young designer, he made clothes for almost all the big West End productions.

He started with Lily Elsie in "The Truth Game" in 1923. Sir Charles Cochran sent the stars of his revues to Hartnell and actresses like Merlene Dietrich, Gertrude Lawrence and Toronto-born Beatrice Lillie flocked to his salon.

But gradually he deserted the stage, with the exception of a couple of George Black revues during the war.

Now he's back with his long-famed feeling for line and color, his delight in medieval magnificence, rich jewelry, drapery and costly materials. The stage is a natural outlet for his flamboyance and love of color.

In present-day dress-making his only outlet for this magnificence lies in the beautiful crinolines he creates for the Queen and other members of the royal family. Into these and all his ballgowns he puts a wealth of detail and inspiration that touches the magnificent.

It is hard luck that two of the three shows he has dressed recently have been flops—hard luck for the artists, but not the business man. It makes no difference to Hartnell's prices whether the show is a success or not.

The two that flopped were "Champagne for Delilah" with Google Withers and Irene Worth, which closed after 17 days and "Two Dozen Red Roses" with Evelyn Laye which lasted 32 days.

The third show, an established success is "Traveller's Joy" with Yvonne Arnaud. In this Miss Arnaud wears a satin crinoline with huge cuffed collar embroidered with sequins.

When Hartnell quit the stage all his friends said he'd never stay away. It was only necessary to see the original drawings done in his early stage days to realize what inspiration the glamor of the theatre can be to him.

Sandwiches That Satisfy

Sandwiches may vary from the dainty bite-size ones served for afternoon tea to the substantial main-course sandwich for the carried lunch that goes to office, factory or to school. There is also the sandwich that is served for lunch at home or for the bedtime snack. Whatever sandwiches are served they meet with full approval if they are neatly made and have a flavorful filling.

The home economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture, have several pointers on making good sandwiches.

Attractive sandwiches need only simple ingredients used with imagination rather than intricate detail and expensive constituents. Use of different kinds of bread makes a nice variation. Cutting the sandwiches with fancy shaped cookie cutters makes them look quite elegant. Triangles of buttered bread rolled over strips of cheese, meat loaf, or green pepper appear on the table as frilles.

It is the filling however, that gives the sandwich its real character, whatever the shape or size.

Here are several excellent recipes for sandwich fillings.

Cheese Meat Spread

1 cup grated Cheddar cheese
1 cup ground cooked meat
1-4 cup finely chopped pickle
1-4 teaspoon dry mustard
2 tablespoons salad dressing
salt and pepper to taste

Combine cheese, meat, pickle and mustard. Mix well. Add salad dressing, to moisten. Season with salt and pepper. Yield: 1 1-2 cups is sufficient for 10 sandwiches.

1-2 cup peanut butter
2 tablespoons salad dressing
2-4 cup chopped raw apple

Mix peanut butter with salad dressing to a smooth consistency. Add chopped apple. Spread on whole wheat bread. Yield: 1 cup. Sufficient for 8 sandwiches.

Savory Liver Spread

1-3 pound liver (pork or beef)
1 teaspoon salt
3 cups boiling water
8 slices cooked bacon
1-4 cup sour cream
2 tablespoons prepared mustard
2 tablespoons minced onion
3-4 teaspoon salt
1-8 teaspoon pepper
Simmer liver with the one teaspoon salt, in boiling water, for 30 minutes or until tender. Drain and cool. Put liver through meat chopper with cooked bacon. Add remaining ingredients. Store in covered jar in refrigerator. Yield about 1 1-4 cups.

WEDDINGS

LATTA—FISHER

Christ Church, Belleville, was the setting for the pretty wedding on Saturday, October 22, at 11 a.m., when Rev. Canon Slaght, brother of Mrs. Robert Fisher, Belleville, and the late Mr. Fisher, became the bride of Robert William Latta, Foxboro, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Latta, Foxboro.

The Rev. J. Grant Sparling, officiated. The bride was lovely in satin fashioned with white and yellow chrysanthemums.

The traditional wedding music was rendered by the church organist, Mr. Ernest Connor, and the soloist, Miss Barbara Kyle, sang before the ceremony "The Lord's Prayer," and "Because" during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her eldest brother, Robert Fisher, was charmingly attired in ivory satin featuring an off the shoulder neckline bodice with pearl buttons, the yoke and yoke and bodice buttoned down the back. The skirt was full with a bow effect, and ended in a train. Her scalloped fingertip veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a coronet headdress, and she carried an arm bouquet of Briarcliff Sentimental roses with white satin ribbon streamers.

Miss Margaret Jean Clarke, of Deuphin, Man., was bridesmaid, gowned in cinnamon-rose bengaline with a fitted bodice featuring a sweetheart neckline, puff sleeves, and hoop skirt. She wore a matching halo dress and mitts, and carried a nosegay of carnations, 'mums and pink Briarcliff roses.

Little Miss Mary Lou Hobbs, niece of the bride, was flower girl, and looked sweet in her frock of pale-blue bengaline with satin, fashioned with hoop skirt, sweetheart neckline and puff sleeves. She carried a white basket and bonnet and carried a basket of mixed flowers.

Mr. Edward Thrasher, of Belleville, was groomsman, and ushers were Mr. Desmond Fisher, brother of the bride, and Mr. Bruce Latta.

Following the wedding reception, where the bride's mother, gowned in black with white lace overskirt, grey accessories, and corsage of red-tipped carnations, was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a gown of teal blue, grey accessories and corsage of red Bettertime roses, in receiving the guests, the happy couple left for Toronto, Niagara Falls and Buffalo. The bride wore a grey suit with matching accessories, grey hat and gloves. Upon their return they will reside in Wallbridge.

Out-of-town guests were from Camp Borden, Trenton, Wallbridge and Shannonville.

Mrs. K. Faul Elected Area Chairman At Concluding Sesssion of W.I. Conference

On Wednesday morning, the Woman's Institute of the Belleville area opened the second day of their conference with the singing of the Institute Ode and the Mary Stewart Collect, with Mrs. Carl Chaney presiding. The Dominion President, Mrs. E. Morton, the Provincial President Mrs. J. R. Butcher, and Director Miss Anna P. Lewis were also seated on the platform with the background of pennants and banners from all the districts represented at the convention.

Mrs. K. Rutherford, Cobourg, read her report—on Agriculture and Canadian industries, summarizing the activities in the districts. Some of the activities included growing and canning vegetables; and exchanging bulbs, plants and shrubs. Some districts had had made for them the Junior Farmer groups. Subjects studied were: all our immigration policy satisfactory? and the study of the various organizations on food and agriculture. Club work seemed popular and demonstrations growing and there were shown. Concerts were held.

Branch is Strong Link

Commenting on the report Miss Lewis said the platform of the branch is the strong link connecting the Institute with the world. The district conveners were advised to keep in touch with the various committees of the branch and projects all year.

Mrs. Fisher pointed out that millions of bushels of grain are going into the manufacture of alcohol every year. One-third of the world's population is undernourished, and with the increase of 25,000 more mouths to be fed each year, there is need. She advised the study of food conservation. Many farm homes lack conveniences. Corbett, with a little boy who said, "Yes, we have running water in the house. It is carried on my mother's running feet."

The report on Home Economics was given by Mrs. Earnest Moore of Bath. Many of the items used included my job as a homemaker, homemaking and the picnic basket; my pet salad; hints for saving time; something new in sandwiches and memories of school days. Demonstrations were given; remodelling a boy's jacket; making and using a pattern; and the art of ironing. Discussions included care of floors; school lunches; and child development. First aid bandaging was demonstrated by a trained nurse.

A delightful piano solo was given by Miss Joan Ellis, and the presentation of a gavel for attendance was won by Intermediate Institute, Cobourg. Institute and was given by Mrs. Futcher. Two resolutions were brought forward and adopted. One dealt with the question of rent control which was adopted as a matter of urgency, and the second advised the payment of pensions to all old pensioners of 70 years without a means test. These resolutions will be forwarded to the proper authorities.

The question box brought forward the question of a memorial service at the conference for deceased members. It was decided this was a matter for the executive officers to decide. Initiation ceremony for the new officers was conducted by Mrs. Butcher. A question regarding help for the president in progress of her duties was referred that members might answer the roll call at the annual meeting with ideas for programs for the year.

The afternoon session was presided over by Mrs. G. McCubbin of Wellington, and opened with the assembly singing the report on Publicity and Press, given by Mrs. G. Finkle of Holloway. She remarked that to her publicity meant "All your life to one end" and between that they may see your goals. She quoted the motto of the Institutes for home and country what wonderful publicity we could give out. Aims for members look to the seniors and encouragement to the juniors. They should all practise the good neighbor spirit. When dividing talks there is a personal border, for instance, they might give items of interest to neighbors and there will be a neighborhood of attractive borders and that is good publicity. Encouragement to them to send thank you letters to the papers and give publicity and to thank the editors of their local papers for space given.

Methods of Publicity

Many institutes used their local papers and radio. Some had entered to banquets and had had displays. Others had had contests for speaking contests; used clothing and gifts were sent overseas; distribution had been made by the Red Cross and other worthy causes. One district catered to the Belleville Fair. Three branches were interested in health units, one held a baby clinic; and one a TB clinic. This department will now be known as the Health Relations instead of publicity.

The Farm Service Force is contacting women of the institute who may be interested in going to help with the pick-up of roots or other personnel to take charge. For such applications only those women were advised to write to the National Council of WWS, Canada, 871 Jarvis Street, Toronto.

Mrs. Ada McDonald, contralto, sang two vocal numbers, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Parrish.

Tells of Czechoslovakia

Rev. H. C. Vaclavik of Stirling was introduced by Mrs. C. Chaney. Mr. Vaclavik is a native of Czechoslovakia. He has become a Canadian and his address contrasted conditions in the land of his birth and that of his adoption. "The privileges we have here are not enjoyed any where else," he said, "although it was once a happy land. Sometimes cars with food specially for the poor are sent and pick out several houses ordering those whose households too destitute at the station for the duty of unloading coal or some task. Sometimes a man is asked to join the communist party and be replied that he never knew of any political party. A few days later he will be called to his office and told although he may have had twenty years' experience he is laid off to give his job as a ticket of a particular color and told to look elsewhere.

When he presents his colored ticket every employer is aware of from what he came and will not hire him. He is allowed only ten days' unemployment and then must register for work. The employment agency then sends him to a job which he has to take to leave his wife and children in a state of starvation.

In agriculture every village and farm is co-operative. Seldom is there machinery owned by the individual, but tractors will come to his aid when needed without any regard for boundaries and then the owner becomes a partner and shares in the crops."

No Trust in Friends

Mr. Vaclavik came to Canada as a business man, but found science was my hobby. Nowhere dares to say anything in Czechoslovakia. There is no trust in friends or in anyone. Even more everyone is suspicious. When he spoke in Canada he found he could spoke no English, but because he found friendship when he came to Canada he learned English and he became a preacher of the gospel of Christ. Canada has a treasure in some of the people who are coming here. The immigrant is an industrious person. He is soon naturalized and they do not fit in. They have a knowledge of culture they seek is not to be found. Although Canada has tremendous natural resources it is still a pioneer country. Canadian citizens are accepting changes, change, momentous problems are occupying them. During the depression years they could not build up that must not be lost in this present crisis.

The Chamber of Commerce in their meeting in Montreal recently says "Canada is too much asleep," said the speaker. "As long as Canada is asleep we are going to discuss problems in groups we will not get anywhere. It is time all a pioneer country. Canadian citizens are accepting changes, change, momentous problems are occupying them. During the depression years they could not build up that must not be lost in this present crisis.

The Chamber of Commerce in their meeting in Montreal recently says "Canada is too much asleep," said the speaker. "As long as Canada is asleep we are going to discuss problems in groups we will not get anywhere. It is time all by the law of God to maintain our spiritual integrity, but we must also be awake to our obligation to do our thinking and let our responsibilities go to a dictatorship."

"Our great responsibility is to be thinking citizens and to be independent but not sell our individual rights to any organization," he went on. "You may say it can't happen in Canada. That is what I said in Czechoslovakia but it came at it now. Science gives us the power and life but God gives us the values of life."

Mrs. E. Sandercock entertained with a reading.

Mrs. E. Gorsline read the report of the Courtesy Committee, thanking all who had participated in the work of the convention.

Mrs. Butcher, Mrs. Judd, Badgley, spoke briefly and introduced the new president, Mrs. K. Faul.

The Mary Stewart Collect was then repeated in unison, the meeting expressed in fitting words the spirit of the Institute.

Keep us O Lord from pettiness; let us be large in thought, in word and deed.

Let us be done with fault finding and leave off self seeking;

May we put away all pretence and meet each other face to face, without self pity and without prejudice;

May we never be hasty in judgment and always generous;

Teach us to praise our neighbor and love our neighbor in silence and alone;

Let us take time for all things;

make us grow calm, serene, gentle;

Grant that we may realize that it is the little things that create happiness; that in the big things of life we are one

And may we strive to touch and know the great human heart common to us all, and

O Lord God let us not forget to be kind.

—Mary Stewart.

BEAUTY

Conquering the awkward age

There are girls in their early teens who are victims of self-consciousness. It makes them shy, social and unhappy. It is because of this mental state that they move awkwardly, don't know what to do with their hands or their feet. Very fancy that's every where it is upon them. They compare themselves unfavorably with their schoolmates, believing that other girls have prettier hair, nicer complexions, smarter clothes.

If someone could only convince these children that things are not as bad as they seem, that it is the way of youth to take the bitter view. The elements of loveliness of appearance may be theirs; they just haven't found how to take advantage of them. Not every little girl has a knack for arranging her hair prettily and neatly; therefore mama should come to the rescue. Let her take her small daughter to a first class hair dresser, let her have an end permanent, if necessary. This will give the child more confidence in herself.

Shampooing the hair at home may be responsible for lustreless, unruly hair and, if that is the case, it is mama's fault. She should experiment with shampoo mix, have a bath spray for rinsing, see that the hair is shining clean.

Every effort should be made to improve the child's appearance, because how she feels about many matters will depend upon how she looks. Her main desire is not to appear different from other girls, and that is why a mother should not impose her own dress ideas upon the child. It isn't fair to make the little girl wear clothes that she dislikes. Every wrong routine does her own attitude has to do with her moods and feelings. An ugly frock of ancient vintage can throw her out of form, kill her spirits, make her hate the woman in the looking glass.

Monday Is Wash Day

Laundry lessons are a wonderful help to little girls.

All children are extremely sensitive; it is cruel to criticize them and hurt their feelings. If they are clumsy and awkward it is because they have not learned how to be otherwise. They don't want to be that way.

Dancing lessons are a wonderful help to little girls. They are taught to be graceful of movement and to develop a pleasing social manner.

Posture is important, as old family doctor will tell you. The round-shouldered child should have medical attention, be taught to hold herself erect.

There is the matter of shoes! No mother should be casual about selecting them. The wrong ones will interfere with play and exercise, will tend to create awkward movements.

IVANHOE

Community Honors Departing Neighbors With Fine Gifts

Ivanhoe—Last Friday evening friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Reid gathered in Ivanhoe town hall for a farewell community party honoring them before their departure to take up residence in Foxboro.

Thomas Fleming was chairman for the following short program—

Community singing, led by Mrs. Milton Shaw; solo, "Now is the Hour", Joyce Reid; reading, "Peppermint Cat" Jackie Wood; solo "Whispering Hope", Phyllis Wickens; reading, "The Elephant" Mrs. Chas. Keeble and piano solo, Phyllis Wickens.

Mr. and Mrs. Reid were asked to come to the platform and Mr. Elymore Rollins read a presentation address, to which tribute was paid them for the willing services which they had rendered to the church and community.

Mrs. Reid has always been active in all church organizations, and has taken a keen interest in all community activities.

Mr. Reid, a life long resident of Ivanhoe, has served on the public school board, as director of the Cheese Company and as a valued and efficient employee of the township. Both have proven to be loyal friends, and generous neighbors, and will be greatly missed from our community life.

The presentation was of a floor lamp, iron and toaster was made by Earl McMaster, Harry Lovelbond and George Wood.

After Mr. and Mrs. Reid had expressed thanks and appreciation all joined in singing, "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows."

The chairman also spoke words or tribute mentioning Mrs. Reid's kindness and hospitality and of the affectionate regard in which Mr. Reid was held by all the children in the neighborhood.

Reeve Arthur Hagerman, and Mr. Arthur Wood, also spoke briefly, expressing regret and mentioning the loss to the community caused by Mr. and Mrs. Reid's departure and wishing them all good things in the future.

After the singing of God Save The King' refreshments were served, and a short time was spent in dancing.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

..The other side of the story ..

I never read any letter that comes to my desk without being very much aware of the fact that I am only getting one side of the situation the letter describes.

Once in a great while, some one of my correspondents has the honesty and the fairness to admit that there are two sides to his or her problem, and even goes so far as to try and present the other side. Most of the time, however, letters simply leave me wondering what the other side of the stated problem may be. Under the circumstances, I answer to the best of my ability, but fully realize that there is undoubtedly a reverse side of the picture in which the whole thing might appear in a different light.

All this has been very vividly demonstrated by a letter I have just printed some weeks ago in this column.

In the letter I printed, the daughter complained that her mother, with whom she and her four small children were living, wanted to keep her tied to the maternal apron strings and never allow her any freedom. The woman explained her feeling with her mother by saying that since her father had died, she felt it her duty to stay with her mother since she was an only daughter. She said, further, that this had caused a separation between herself and her second husband—she was divorced from her first—because he did not want to live in the part of the country where her mother's home was located.

She represented herself as a hard-working girl with a night job, whose only pleasure was to go out for something to eat with her girl friends after her work was over, a recreation her mother objected to very bitterly. According to her story, her mother's attitude was that she shouldn't go out at all, but should just go to work and then stay home the rest of the time. She said she did not go out with any men, and she gave her another name from her earnings—altogether a picture of a misunderstood and much-abused daughter.

Naturally, she sent the letter to me without her mother's knowledge. Her mother, however, saw the letter and my answer in the paper. She immediately confronted the girl with it, and while the girl at first denied she had written the letter, she eventually admitted it was her story but insisted that one of her friends must have written the letter to me.

Now, telling from the way I answered the daughter that I was given a wrong picture of the situation, the mother has written to tell her side of the story. I had said to the daughter that if she was under her mother's thumb, she had deliberately put herself there by leaving her husband and coming home and that my advice to her was ,o return with her children to her own home and her husband, with whom he said she "got along wonderfully" until she left him to go and stay with her mother.

Her wonderful version of the trouble between them is quite different. She says that her daughter has always gone with the wrong kind of friends, and that it was because she was constantly in bad company that she objected to the kind of recreation in which she was indulging. She says also that the second husband, with whom the daughter said she got along so well, had never properly supported his family. Moreover, she doubts whether or not her daughter is legally married to this man, and says that if she did get married, she did it before her divorce from her first husband. At one period, moreover, the daughter brought her children to stay with her mother, who supported them for several years.

It is no wonder this mother is indignant to the daughter for writing a letter which blames her mother while making herself out such a praiseworthy character. All the mother wants, apparently, is for the girl to stay out of bad company and take an interest in her children.

I am glad that I told this girl in my original answer to her letter that I had no sympathy for her, I certainly have still less after hearing what her mother has to say, and I hope her mother will take the advice I am going going to give her in a personal letter and consult a welfare agency about the daughter's behavior.

Martin's Summer

By Vicki Baum

It all seemed more and more mysterious to Martin, who had had little experience of life. Puck vanished behind a partition where the bathing cabins apparently were. A bathing cloak came flying over the top. "Put it on quick and throw me your bathing slip. It must be dried," Puck called from behind the partition.

A moment later she came out with bare feet and scarf around her head and wearing an enormous copper-colored dress of bath silk which gave her the appearance of a Javanese servant.

"I was wet to the skin," said Puck, in reply to his look of surprise, and instantly fell to rubbing his sides and chest and ankles with the rough bathing cloak in which he had hurriedly wrapped himself. "Is that better? Is that better?" she asked eagerly all the while, panting with the exertion.

After a few minutes he did in fact get the better of his shivering and chattering. He breathed deeply and regularly twice or thrice, stretched out his arms and said, "Splendid, Puck, you're splendid."

She sat down cross-legged on the rush matting and began to chafe his feet while he lay back at ease and relaxed in a long chair and felt warm. One by one she took his toes, numbed with cold and over-exertion, and massaged them in her hands in a comical and forcible way of her own. At last she lingered over her task, and propping his right foot on her knee, she contemplated it long and earnestly.

"You are a gentleman," she said finally.

"More or less," said Martin. "Have you noticed it?"

"Yes, Papa says that gentle people have lovely feet. Everything hideous, papa says, that people keep all their lives long comes to light in their feet. When we have people to stay in the summer I always look hard at their feet when they're bathing. No, thanks, I think not for me. They're none of them gentlemen." She lifted his foot to her face and breathed on it as if it were an object to be polished. "Are you warm now? Why do you look at me so funnily?"

Martin smiled foolishly in his confusion. He was not much used to feminine society. In his experience, you got into sudden and odd situations with them and usually made a fool of yourself. A widow, a member of a cycling club of an excursion, had kissed him when he was sixteen, by the side of the road. He had made friends at the university with a girl not with an unprepossessing girl student. They had gone to cafes in the evening and talked shop. It ended in tears and hysterics and claims on his feeling that could not be met. Then came Anika, a little dancing girl at the Secession Bar, who cost him a springtime of spendthrift love and suddenly vanished again. After that there was Princess Terck-Wriedt, who embraced him after a game of water polo at Worther See. Most unmercifully she had embraced him, dripping wet as he was, in full view of all the spectators. A woman whom he did not even know wrote him unintelligible letters, and a pale-faced carpet manufacturer armed with a stick appeared at his mother's house and wished to give him a sound thrashing to see fit of perfectly baseless jealousy.

To have his feet caressed by a Javanese slave-girl called Puck was something new. Fleetingly Martin thought of her mother, the Bojar, whom he had once seen as Lola in "The Blue Spirit." He felt a strange clutching at the throat as he recalled this woman's face, and wondered if he looked down at Puck with embarrassment. He tried to think of something to say to the girl, something expressing his gratitude for her having come to his assistance, perhaps. He was very much surprised, when something quite different came from his mouth, hoarse words that caused him shame and almost stuck in his throat.

"I say, I'm most horribly hungry," he heard himself saying; in fact, as he said it he clenched not only his hands but his feet too with their long toes.

Puck only laughed. "So am I" she said, and the next moment she had jumped to her feet and gone. She turned to wave her hand through the door.

In the silence Martin heard his own breathing and the beat of his heart. Again and again he felt the same contraction of his throat and a bitter sweet taste slowly filled his mouth. He was aware of a thin cool sweat on his forehead and a faint nausea such as people feel before an examination. His nostrils distended, and through his head there passed a visionary procession of eatables.

That is the strange thing about hunger. Many people never get to know this simplest and most obvious sensation of man and beast. Some require tonics, cures and watering places, and even then cannot conjure up this very ordinary sensation. As for the rest, good citizen and persons of regular habits, they are hungry by the clock and satisfied by the clock. Their hunger is as insignificant as all the rest of their lives. But the outsiders, the solitaires the Don Quixotes, the waifs and strays and malefactors, the self-willed artists and inventors and beggars, all know hunger in its true proportions, that monumental hunger out of which come murders and mighty works.

As for Martin he had no wish to be an outsider. He had had designs for his profession. Here he did not wish to be an outcast. He had acquired certain experiences of hunger, it must be owned. Suppose one is a swimming instructor, then no need to let it be seen that hunger drove one to it.

A man with money to pay for a meal can talk about hunger without embarrassment. Frau Birndl can thump the table impatiently in Scholschacke's eating house. Young fellows in striped pullovers can make play with their appetite as with a valuable weakness of athletic youth. But for a man with no money hunger is a disgrace.

Martin was ashamed, in a self-willed, stiff necked, and quite childish manner, of admitting his hunger. To have spoken of it to Puck gave him more effort than a declaration of love. But as soon as she returned, with her warmth her quick ways, her soft little attentions and her earnest acquiring of his likes, the distance between them vanished in a mutual understanding.

Two satellites followed on her heels—one an extraordinarily fat tom cat with an unprepossessing girl student. They had gone to cafes in the evening and talked shop. It ended in tears and hysterics and claims on his feeling that could not be met. Then came Anika, a little dancing girl at the Secession Bar, who cost him a springtime of spendthrift love and suddenly vanished again. After that there was Princess Terck-Wriedt, who embraced him after a game of water polo at Worther See. TRIPLE EVENT FOR ONTARIO PARENTS

Triplet pride and joy of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Stenlund of Red Rock, about 50 miles east of Port Arthur, Ont., are Carolyn, Sheryl and Murray, born by Caesarian operation about three weeks premature. The infants are coming along "marvelously well."—Central Press Canadian.

Martin ate. He ate first a plate of smoking soup in which swam cube-shaped objects. They tasted good and that was all he knew about them. He ate then some kind of ragout scarcely solid enough for his voracious appetite and rather too highly seasoned for the overstimulated nerves of his tongue. He ate next venison with all kinds of accompaniments in crammed-alice after alice into his mouth until he was full from top to toe with the warmth of satiety — since for once Heaven had given him the chance. He ate the whole dish clean, and then with a glance at Puck he raised a roll of white bread and copped up the creamy sauce in which delicious little fragments of game were immersed. Puck looked the other way.

She was crouching again on the rush matting in her Javanese attitude and whispering all kinds of things into the ear of her dog, and he was replying with sympathetic wags of his tail. "Fruit or cheese?" she asked without looking up, just as Martin put down his knife and fork.

"Both. Everything," said Martin. Suddenly he began to laugh. He was satisfied and ashamed of himself no longer. Puck laughed too. The fat servant appeared noiselessly from the darkness of the garden with the dessert. Apparently she had been keeping watch outside in front of the hut. She rolled her eyes and wrung her hands behind Pucks back and vanished again after clearing the table.

Puck peeled a peach for him and sitting beside him on the sofa pressed the juicy fruit to his lips. This was strangely exciting to him.

"Are you contented now?" asked Puck, very softly, very humbly very close beside him.

"Not quite," he replied candidly.

"What do you want now?" Wine, Cognac? Cigars?"

"No, nothing of that kind. I give all that up while I'm in training."

"Then you must have imagination. Papa says that only people with much imagination want stimulants. Would you like to lie down and rest?"

"Yes, in your lap," said Martin at once. He was surprised at himself. Puck, however, was not surprised in the least. She crossed one leg over the other and allowed his head in the little warm hollow between. Silence fell. A little lazy Tiger up, stretched, and sniffed at the door.

"The storm has passed over. You could row yourself across soon. Shall you come back again"

"Indeed I shall."

"I like you very much. Do you like me?"

"Yes."

"Won't you tell Tiger and me all about yourself? We should like to know just a little about you."

"I don't know much myself Puck."

"Wait a bit. Then I'll ask you some questions. Have you a mother and what does she look like?"

PENAL REFORM AS OFFSET TO CRIME'S INCREASE

Montreal, Nov. 2—(CP)—The need for penal reform to offset Canada's increasing crime rate was stressed by Norman Somer, President of the John Howard Society, in an address to the Canadian Progress Club Tuesday. The present Canadian penal system, he said, was neither effecting reformation nor affording protection to society against further offences by prisoners when liberated.

SMOKE DAMAGE

Montreal, Nov. — (CP) — A flash fire late Tuesday night caused considerable smoke and water damage to several offices in the Craig Street Railway Exchange building in downtown Montreal. No blaze was believed to have originated on the second floor of the 11-storey cement structure. No one was injured.

Princess Margaret Lights Cigarette In Public

London, Nov. 2. —(AP) — Princess Margaret smoked a cigaret in public early today.

It was the first time any commoner ever saw one of the Royal Family's distaff side smoking.

Pretty, 19-year-old Margaret did it at a Hallowe'en charity ball at the fashionable Dorchester Hotel.

Only last week a Buckingham Palace press officer admitted to newspaper men that Margaret lighted a cigaret once in a while. But he said it was only in private and "just for a lark."

The question came up when the palace released to the newspapers a photograph of Princess Elizabeth's sitting room. On the desk were a packet of matches and an ash tray.

The palace press officer said positively that the Queen never smokes. The King, he added, does so only rarely.

MONEY HIDDEN IN UNDERWEAR

Port Colborne, Nov. 2 — (CP) —John DiCarlo, 58, was convicted today of trying to take $1,210 into the United States illegally. Police said he hid it in his underwear. DiCarlo was fined $437 or one year.

Priest and Lawyer Criticized by Cadi

Cookyville, Nov. 2 — (CP) — Magistrate T. H. Moorehead criticized a Roman Catholic priest and his lawyer Tuesday for not appearing, for the third time, to answer a charge of careless driving. The priest was remanded again.

Rev. E. A. Sheridan of Port Credit and his lawyer, E. J. Murphy of Toronto, were blamed for holding up court by not appearing and not giving notice they would be absent.

The priest was charged with failing to halt before pulling out of a driveway on Queen Elizabeth Highway.

He Thought It Was a Bear

(By Rev. H. C. Mullen in the Halifax Chronicle Herald)

The following anecdote is told exactly as it happened. The persons involved were near relatives of mine and I knew the spot and all the details. The name only will be fictitious.

One afternoon late in the Fall when the rain was pelting down so no work was being done on the farm, a young man whom we will call "John", decided he would take an opportunity to go set some mink traps. He travelled about four miles by an old road and noted carefully that no one else had gone in before him. He also was thinking that no one else would be foolish enough to be in the woods in such a rainstorm, so took for granted that he had the woods to himself.

His way finally took him up along the side of a lake, and near the lake he saw where a bear had lately torn up an old log for ants, which all hunters will know is a common occurrence. Well, John went on past, and around the lake a ways, set a trap or two, and was on his return trip around the lake. Only this time he was keeping farther from the lake along the side of the hill.

As he approached the place where he had seen the fresh bear signs he was naturally looking in that direction with his mind on bears. When, sure enough exactly where he had seen the old log torn up there was the bear, big and black. John lay flat on the ground and rested "Old Susan" on his nose for the old 45-70, a gun that I have shot many a time and can true as your hair. He had high powered shells, and as he related it, did not intend to do any missing if around any bear. Being alone four miles in the woods he did not want any mix up with a wounded bear.

Given a good rest, as he had at this time, and lots of time John was one of the best shots I ever saw, and his chances of missing were almost nil. But he waited and did not press the trigger because he wanted to make a fatal shot, as he could apparently see only the bear's back. He was waiting till the bear should present a broadside so he could get him through the heart.

Lying there with the trigger almost pressed, suddenly to his astonishment up stands a man one of his near neighbors. The man picked up a bag that he had along and threw it on his shoulders and passed on by and went on out the road.

John was so weak and overcome by the shock that he was unable to walk for a time, but soon went on and overtook his neighbor and told him what had happened, and then it was his turn to turn pale and get weak.

Now, to return to the circumstances. As I said, John thought he was alone in the woods in a downpour of rain. He saw the fresh works of the bear. He saw what surely looked like a bear. The neighbor wore a heavy black mackinaw, and was back to, and down on his knees by the edge of the lake setting a trap.

As one can easily see, back to, and head down and his back, with the black coat rounded up, like the back of a bear, the picture was complete.

John did not withhold fire to be more sure that it was a bear, but as stated to be sure where he would place a high velocity 45-70 which would have about cut the man in two. Now John was not an excitable young man. Had used a gun from boyhood and had been constantly trained and drilled by a father that hated a gun, and by older brothers who knew the danger of guns.

I think the moral, is clear, so I will leave the reader to draw his own conclusions; and may every gunner in the land who may read this take good warning.

Senior Member Of Guggenheim Family Dies

Port Washington, N.Y., Nov. 2 (AP)—Simon R. Guggenheim, senior member of North America's great mining family, died here early today at his Long Island estate. He was 81.

The multi-millionaire copper king was active in the family business until three weeks ago, when his health suddenly began to fail.

His wife, Irene, was with him when he died. His eldest daughter, Countess Castle Stewart, was reported flying home from Britain.

Guggenheim was the senior member of the firm Guggenheim Brothers, and was the last survivor of the seven sons of Meyer Guggenheim, who started the family in the mining business in North and South America.

In 1937 he formed the Solomon R. Guggenheim Foundation to encourage and popularize art—especially in its modern form of nonobjective painting.

As head of the family firm, Guggenheim was a director of a number of metals corporations, including Kennecott Copper, Braden Copper, Pacific Tin, and the Nevada Northern Railway Company. He also was one of the major stockholders in the huge Anaconda Copper Mining Company.

Guggenheim was born Feb. 2, 1861, in Philadelphia. He was educated in the United States and Switzerland.

Two grandsons, children of the Earl and Countess Castle Stewart, were killed in the British Army in the Second World War. Their third son, Viscount Patrick Stuart, is heir to the title and now is with the British Army in Malaya.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The voices of experience in bridge are seldom in harmony. Even those that sing the praises of the same system. And at least one does not even agree with himself from year to year.

Settle on one point with a partner and see what happens. Some famous name comes along to tell you there is another angle to it. The air is full of such raucus exceptions to jar your enjoyment.

South opened with two spades when none held this hand:

♠A 7
♥8 5 0 4 2
♦K 7 4
♣6 4 3 2

The immediate response by north was three no-trump. South then bid four no-trump and north passed. Was this pure terror, they asked.

You can bet your bottom shekel that north is wrong in passing the four no-trump bid. South wants to know what kind of a slam they have, if any. He is asking north how many aces and kings he has.

Comes back the argument that some expert says that there are times when four no-trump may be passed. It is when the pair desires to play it there instead of at some other contract.

This is bad advice to players. Very bad advice. To play at a no-trump contract, a bid of four was seldom used. It was what you might call a lazy bid; a bid seldom employed.

To put it to better use it was turned into a convention signal for showing ace and kings. As such it has become one of the best vehicles for slam information so far devised.

To say that it may be used for either is not good for players. It makes them unsure of their ground at the most crucial spot. It is at a time when the pair should not be in doubt.

The convention use of this bid is practically an admission of slam. A player usually employs it when he knows what will be trump. It is no time for guessing games.

Bill Arnold, popular local dance band leader, currently playing at Tobe's County Gardens, says that Cop Music is a passing craze and will soon be a thing of the past.

Movie Column

Hollywood, Nov. 3 (AP) — Haw! Haw!

Clippety-clop, Clippety-clop.

You may expect to have ears assulted by these noises for the next few weeks. They are part of "Mule Train," a weird new song pouring forth incessantly from juke boxes and radios.

"Mule Train," which sounds more like a chant to a pack of mules t'an a song, hit the music trade like a cyclone. It has the record industry pressing night and day to meet the demand and beat the opposition.

Among the bigtime artists, Frankie Laine seems to have hit the market first. Vaughn Monroe, who thought he had the song tied up because it's in his picture, hurried it onto wax, followed by Gordon MacRae. Bing Crosby quickly recorded it and his disc was being played on the air two hours late. Burl Ives and Gene Autry are the latest to get off the bandwagon.

All this from over a song that was written 4 1-2 years ago.

It came about when three Hollywood songwriters went on a spree to Las Vegas. They were turning home after a weekend over a hot crap table.

As they drove through the boom country of Death Valley, they got to thinking about the 20-ulous mule teams that worked the desert mines.

By the time they reached town the three

Berlin's Culture Is Free And Gay Amid Bomb Rubble

By GARTER L. DAVIDSON

Berlin, — (AP) — This war-shattered capital is having its gayest and fullest season of concert, opera and drama since Hitler harnessed the arts to politics.

The traditional German love for music and the stage is transcending even the east-west political chasm that has partitioned the city.

The State Opera in the Russian sector presented Richard Strauss' "Der Rosenkavalier." A few blocks away, also in the Soviet sector, the Komische Opera presented Bizet's "Carmen." The City Opera in the British sector played Puccini's "La-Boheme."

A German troupe enacted "Hamlet" in a British sector theatre, and two theatres in the United States sector had performances of plays by the famous German playwright Carl Zuckmayer.

There was a concert by the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra and two major recitals in other theatres, one of them by Metropolitan Opera baritone, Mack Harrell.

Showgoers and opera lovers are turning out in throngs to restore their city to its cultural eminence in Europe.

To do so, many have to pick their way to a theatre, in formal evening clothes, past heaps of rubble from Allied bombs.

The repertoire is international in complexion, although there is a strong flavoring of such German nationals favorites as Goethe, Schiller and Wagner.

Berlin officialdom, both east and west, has taken an interest in the theatre and is providing money to back it.

The West Berlin Magistrat, for instance, supported the new "Freie Volksbuehne" (Free People Theatre) in its opening performance of Hamlet.

The city has six major symphony orchestras.

Residents of both east and west Berlin travel back and forth to their favorite performances. Their only restriction is the lack of proper currency.

In the programs, political differences also are forgotten. West Berlin opera houses have a number of the Russian Tschaikovsky works planned for the season. The new opera season is as full and complete as if it were in New York or London.

Berliners have not had a season of music and drama like this in 15 years. When Hitler's Nazis came to power, the stage was made a propaganda weapon and the Jewish and Communist had to fit the aims of the new order.

Now, for four years after the new order's war ended in defeat, the old order in music and drama has come back to Berlin. And Berliners by the thousand are turning out to welcome it.

ROYAL CANADIAN NAVY IS "ATTACKED" BY THREE-MAN COMMISSION

Almost everything under the heading "Royal Canadian Navy" came in for criticism in the report at Ottawa of the royal commission inquiring into its affairs after "munitions" aboard the aircraft carrier Magnificent in the Clyde-Shannahan and the Crescent. The three-man commissioners, Rear Admiral E. R. Mainguy, R.C.N.; Leonard W. Brockington, and L. C. Audette, Ottawa, were appointed last spring following "incidents" — sit-down strikes — aboard three boats. Findings ranged from lack of adequate channels for airing men's grievances to a "notable lack of understanding" among officers and men. Above, Magnificent is seen arriving at Halifax after cruise. — Central Press Canadian.

British Call Bobby Pins Curbigrips

English - grammar London newspaper style, is sometimes baffling to Canadians and in particular the habit of using a plural verb with a singular subject if the subject is a collective, private Inglis writes from London to The Vancouver Province.

After a few months here you get used to headlines saying "Cabinet decide today on meat ration" or "Weight champion-ship" or even "Yard (Scotland Yard) seek missing man."

England Lose

It takes a bit longer to accept British sports editors' use of proper names as collective nouns—as in "England lose test match" or "Middlesbrough defeat Wigan."

These, however, are mild compared with a couple that turned up recently.

"Only single party reach summit" and "Coventry Garden (London's produce market) face shortage in strike."

Apart from troubles with quirks of grammar and a few over - seeing (such as "key" for cure and "goal" for jail), the prospective tourist to these islands would be helped if some body such as the Carnegie Foundation were to undertake the compiling of a complete English-North America dictionary.

The North American tourist is all set to buy gasoline called petrol a small box called a pillar box and a drug store called a chemist's. But there are other words which can sneak up from behind and rabbit-punch him or her into utter incomprehension.

Curbigrips, for instances are bobby pins.

Bonnet is Hood

The bonnet of an English car is the hood of an American car; the hood is the top; the wings are the fenders and the fenders are the bumpers.

A biscuit sailing for biscuits will be served either crackers or cookies. If he really wants biscuits he won't find them, but the nearest approximation is a scone.

A joint is a roast.

The throttle of an English locomotive is called the regulator.

To spend a penny means to go to the little girls' room.

A Martini is not a Martini-it's straight vermouth.

A cul-de-sac is a dead-end street.

In an English restaurant you ask for the bill, not the check.

A rake of "waggons" means a cut of railroad cars.

Trousers and Pants

English pants are called trousers; panties are called panis.

Hairdresser means barber as well as hairdresser.

What's an inning in baseball becomes an innings in cricket.

Look for the covered "waggons" in good trains (freight trains) and not on the Oregon Trail: they're boxcars.

Drugs are narcotics only and bugs are bedbugs only.

A hamburger is yesterday's leftovers, ground up.

Corn means wheat; maize means corn.

If you ask the telephone operator for long distance she will be baffled; it's called trunks.

Council Asks Resignation Of Magistrate

Georgetown, Nov. 3 (CP)—A special session of council Wednesday night decided to ask the Attorney-General of Ontario to replace Kenneth E. Langton as police magistrate of this town, 25 miles west of Toronto.

The meeting was called to discuss an apology tendered by Magistrate Langton to Benjamin Rachlin, Acton merchant, after Rachlin had been jailed overnight on charges laid by the provincial police of speeding and obstructing a constable. The magistrate dismissed the charges and apologized to Rachlin for any humiliation or ridicule he might have experienced.

At the meeting councillor Arthur Herbert said: "We might as well have boy scouts on duty in this town if the police department fails to have the backing of the magistrate."

Another councillor, Cecil Davidson, said the Ontario provincial police department at Georgetown refuses to chalk up more cars for parking violation evidence. The O.P.P. here confirmed this statement, saying the decision to suspend marking temporarily came about after the accused was acquitted by Magistrate Langton Wednesday.

Acting Mayor J. P. Armstrong said the council is behind the O.P.P. detachment 100 per cent.

SENATE APPROVES BILL ABOLISHING COUNCIL APPEALS

Boom Days Loom for Members of Supreme Court of Canada

Ottawa, Nov. 3 (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada will be a busier place after it assumes status as final court of appeal.

This apparently will be in the near future. The Senate Wednesday passed a bill to abolish appeals to the judicial committee of the Privy Council in London. Technically, it now needs only Royal assent and publication in the Canada Gazette to become effective.

The legislation makes the Supreme Court, housed in the capital's newest and finest office building, the last word in justice as well as accommodation. The peak in Canadian justice no longer will be in London, but in Ottawa, and Canadian litigation no longer will have to cross the Atlantic.

Nobody knows how much more work the Supreme Court will be asked to handle. However, the government has announced its own estimate by providing—as the bill just passed—for appointment of two new judges, bringing the total to nine.

Under the legislation, three of the judges must come from Quebec.

The bill does not alter the quorum of five judges needed to hear a case. Under the new setup, some of the Justices may work on their judgments while others are hearing cases. The court thus will have more flexibility.

The court will need it, because with appeals to the Privy Council all eliminated, it will hear a number of cases which it had no previous jurisdiction. And because it will be cheaper to appeal to the Supreme Court in London, there will be more appeals.

Additional Duties

Least-known of the changed scheduled in the new act are the Supreme Court's additional duties which revolve around powers to grant leave to appeal. These powers are greatly extended and, necessarily, cover cases which previously could be appealed only to the Privy Council.

Basically, the purge of additional cases will stem from these new powers.

Topsy-Turvy Temperatures Show Western Weather Has Little Respect for Statistics

(By The Canadian Press)

The winter woolies are back in mothballs today on the western prairies, but oft-duped residents are wary of the weather's whimsy.

Wednesday old man winter did an about-face that lifted his icy hand from Alberta and Saskatchewan points, and beating a hasty retreat in the face of warm air.

The reason is a high - pressure area in British Columbia, holding back cool air from the north and allowing warm Pacific air to flow over Central Alberta and Saskatchewan.

The weatherman says the west will enjoy Indian Summer for the next few days.

So far at least seven record high temperatures for Nov. 3 have been established, some of them in areas where weather statistics reach back to 1903.

Highs were established at Edmonton (68), Calgary (68), Saskatoon (68), Saskatoon (63), Vancouver (62), Victoria (60), Prince Rupert (58), and Abbotsford, B. C. (60).

Previous highs, with dates bracketed, were: Edmonton 63.3 (1950), Calgary 62 (1950), Saskatoon 55 (1920), Vancouver 60 (1941), Victoria 63 (1901), Prince Rupert 66 (1917), and Abbotsford 63 (1941).

Mild weather and sunshine Wednesday brought voters out in droves to civic elections at Regina and Edmonton.

B.B.C. is Probed Over Claim of 'Red Propaganda'

BY ASTLEY HAWKINS

London, Nov. 3 — (Reuters) — The British Broadcasting Corporation, recently accused of being Communist infested," is under investigation by a government committee which next week will hear evidence claiming to show that "Red propaganda" is beamed from London.

The committee is headed by Lord Beveridge, Liberal Economist and father of the "cradle-to-the-grave" social security plan. It will hear anti-Communist testimony from Lord Craigavon, head of the Unofficial Listeners Association, as part of its examination of the BBC's request for renewal of the BBC charter for another 10 years.

Expected to Repeat Charges

Lord Craigavon, 43-year-old former naval volunteer reserve officer, is expected to repeat before the committee charges he first made recently at a meeting of the British Radio and Television Retailers Association.

The Listeners Association claims to represent the listening public of Britain.

Referring to a correspondence of the matter with the BBC, Lord Craigavon said that Lord Simon of Wythenshawe, BBC chairman, had admitted Communists were employed by the Corporation.

Evidence submitted to the Beveridge Committee is expected to include copies of various broadcasts made in the last year. It will be claimed these prove Communist influence.

One of these, it is understood, will be a broadcast arranged last year on the occasion of the centenary of the Communist manifesto and another the text of a talk by a woman who is alleged to have given "a most unfavorable description of London life compared with that of Moscow."

In other ways, the newly formed Listeners Association, whose membership figures are secret, plans to continue to act as a public "watchdog" with the object of "eliminating disloyal features and policies" from radio.

Rules 11 Reds May be Bailed Pending Appeal

New York, Nov. 3 (AP)—The United States Court of Appeals today ruled that 11 top American communists convicted of conspiracy may be released in bail pending appeal of their case.

The court ruled that seven could be released in $20,000 bail each and four in $30,000 bail apiece.

The government originally asked that their total bail be set at $1,000,000.

Substantial Question' Raised

An opinion handed down said bail was being set because the government "conceded that the appeal herein raises a 'substantial' question."

Bail of $20,000 was set for Eugene Dennis, John B. Williamson, Jacob Stachel, and Irving Potash.

A $20,000 bail was fixed for Robert G. Thompson, Benjamin J. Davis, Jr., Henry Winston, John Gates, Gilbert Green, Carl Winter and Gus Hall.

Previously the government asked $100,000 bail for each for Dennis, Potash, Stachel, Williamson, Hall, Green and Thompson: It recommended $75,000 bail each for Davis, Winston, Gates and Winter.

A lawyer for the communists, O. John Rogge, asked earlier that bail be set at no more than $10,000 for any defendant.

The 11 were convicted of conspiracy to advocate violent overthrow of the United States government.

Ten of the 11 defendants are under five-year prison sentences. Thompson, the 11th, drew a three-year term. Each was also fined $10,000.

Federal Judge Harold R. Medina, who presided at the nine-months trial, rejected all attempts by the communists to have bail set.

Calgary, Nov. 3 — (CP) — A Trans-Canada Airlines plane bound out of Calgary for Vancouver Wednesday caught fire in one of its engines and was forced to return to the municipal airport. Although the engine was damaged, the landing was safely made and no one was injured.

STRONGER VOICE IN POLITICS AIM OF C.I.O. MEMBERS

Bitter Over Congress Not Repealing Law

Cleveland, Nov. 3 (AP)— The C.I.O. turned to its mounting domestic and world-wide political chores today wrapped in the newly acquired robes of a right wing federation.

The end of the political action committee in the 1950 United States elections was due for plenty of attention before convention adjourned because of the C.I.O.'s expressed chagrin at the failure of Congress this session to repeal the Taft-Hartley Labor Law.

President Truman pledged repeal, but Congress balked.

In international politics, the C.I.O. is joining with the A.F.L. and Labor Federation abroad in creating a new world labor congress, rivalling the Soviet-backed World Federation of Trade Unions.

Two major left-wing led unions—the United Electrical Workers and farm equipment workers—were bounced out by convention action Wednesday.

The last of these to face the equally severe inspection of the 51-man executive board, scheduled to meet Saturday.

Bitter Statement Released

Expulsion of the U.E. drew a bitterly-worded statement from Albert Fitzgerald, the union's president. In New York, he called the move a "Walter Reuther's Revolution."

Reuther heads the United Automobile Workers Union and was chairman of the resolutions committee here that recommended the U.E. be expelled.

"They (right-wing leaders)," said Fitzgerald, "want to hide the fact that their policy of chasing after handouts from politicians has dragged the C.I.O. down from 6,000,000, to about 3,-000,000 members.

"Unless their own members catch up with them, Mr. Murray (C.I.O. President Philip Murray) and Mr. Reuther, in their red-baiting zeal, have control of the C.I.O., will manage to tear the C.I.O. to pieces."

Murray indicated all the left wing unions would not be booted out right away. Most likely to follow the U.E. and F. E. out of the 11-year-old federation were these "weaker" unions:

Union Behind in Dues

Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, about $43,000 behind in its per capita payments to the C.I.O.

Food Tobacco and Agricultural Workers; and Office and Professional Workers.

Plans already are under way to move in fast, grab off the membership of left, wing led unions which have their charters revoked.

U.E., with up to 450,000 members, was a good example.

The loud cheers which greeted the U.E. expulsion vote had hardly died out before James B. Carey, secretary-treasurer of the C.I.O. and chairman of raiding the U.E., announced formation of a new right wing union in the electric, radio and machinery field.

A convention to set up the union, under Carey's guidance if not personal leadership, will be held in Philadelphia Nov. 28.

Kidnapped Child Found at House Near Swamp

Mullins, S. C., Nov. 3 — (AP) — Police announced today that seven - year - old kidnaped child had been found at an old dwelling. They said the child, Mary Malloy, was found in a hospital at Florence, S. C.

Sheriff Sam Holden said the girl was found at a home near a swamp. Holden added he learned by radio that there had been one arrest.

Earlier, the deputy said "Two heavy drinking fellows" had been caught in the girl's disappearance.

"We know who they are, but can't say what happened to the little girl until we find them," the deputy added.

Mary was reported kidnapped by two motorists after she got off a school bus Wednesday.

Camps Arming For Bitter Fight Over Expulsion

Peterborough, Nov. 3.—(CP)—Members of U.E.-C.I.O., Local 524, totalling 2,300 and who have been regarded as rightist in their views will be the first Canadian union called to meet to decide its action following the expulsion in Cleveland of the U.E.W. Wednesday. Called to meet tonight both camps are arming for a bitter fight.

Indications are that important tactical moves to meet this development are being tackled by the Local 524 leadership, and when union members attend the special membership meeting they must be prepared to make drastic decisions.

Although the meeting has been called, ostensibly at least to consider implementing the strike vote, that item will likely be dropped well down on the agenda as the large issue becomes the future of the union is fought out.

The battle of left and right wing will come to a climax with the issue of "domination" being laid by the right-wing Peterborough Executive of John G. Morton, and counter charges of kowtowing to the Carey-A.F.L. group (unsuccessful in its recent bid to capture Local 524 at the U.E. convention) being hurled by the leftists.

BONUS TO LOW-PAID FRENCH WORKERS

Paris, Nov. 3 — (AP) — The French Cabinet decided today to award monthly living-cost bonuses up to 3,000 Francs ($8.50) to low paid workers.

The bonus is aimed at bringing all workers up to a minimum 13,000-Franc monthly salary.

OPERATORS REFUSE SEPARATE PEACE TALKS WITH LEWIS

U. S. Govt. May Soon Step Into Coal Strike for Settlement

Washington, Nov. 3. (AP)—Reports that the United States government may soon step into the coal strike were revived today with word that Indiana operators have refused separate peace talks with John L. Lewis.

One highly-placed U.S. official, closely watching the steel-coal strike crisis, said: "We can't let Lewis go much beyond this week-end."

He indicated that unless there is some progress toward settling the 45-day coal strike the government will invite Lewis and operators to Washington negotiations, probably some time next week.

Failure of such federal talks would put the coal problem up to President Truman.

The Indiana operators Wednesday rejected a counter proposal of Governor Henry Schricker of Indiana for a separate coal pact covering that state. Lewis had accepted the idea, saying he could submit any tentative offer to his union's policy committee at its meeting in Chicago Monday.

Appeals to President

Minnesota's Governor Luther W. Youngdahl also called for an end to the strike that he said "has dressed his appeal to President Truman.

There are almost 1,000,000 men on strike in the coal and steel struggles. The steel strike has been going on since Oct. 1.

C.I.O. President Philip Murray, directing the steel drive, has won a pension-insurance settlement with the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, second largest steel producer in the United States.

Murray's men have been giving out optimistic statements that other makers were on the point of following Bethlehem, but up to today no others had come to terms.

Wildcat Which Dropped On Pecan Hunter Killed With Stick

Cairo, Ill., Nov. 3—(AP) — A Cairo man told Wednesday of fighting off a wildcat's attack and of beating it to death with only a stick. John D. Franklin said he and Jess Goins, were hunting pecans north of here Wednesday when Goins shouted a warning. Franklin said the animal dropped on him from a tree but his heavy coat protected him from being clawed. Then he grabbed a stick and killed the animal.

SENTENCE AND LASHES

Vancouver, Nov. 3—CP—John Kenneth Clark, 24, of Port Coquitlam, B.C., was sentenced Wednesday to 13 years and 10 lashes for rape. He was convicted of assaulting a 25-year-old woman who testified she was dragged from her escorts' car in Stanley Park in April 7 and raped by Clark and two companions. Clark was captured in August by Ray Munro and Don McLean of the Vancouver Daily Province who masqueraded as a "spooning" couple in the park and subdued Clark when he molested them.

TORONTO WOMAN IS SMOTHERED IN BEDROOM FIRE

Firemen Find Mother Unconscious on Floor

Toronto, Nov. 3 — (CP) — One woman was killed, another is in hospital and a fireman was overcome when fire swept through a bedroom in an east-end duplex today.

Violet Caulfield, 33, died from suffocation in her bedroom. Her mother, Mrs. Catherine Caulfield, 70, was found unconscious on the hall floor when firemen arrived.

Firemen were forced to don masks because of the dense smoke which filled the duplex. Fireman Russell Beasley was revived with an inhalator when he was overcome.

Firemen worked 40 minutes with an inhalator on the unconscious body of Mrs. Caulfield before she was taken to the hospital. She was immediately placed under an oxygen tent.

The fire department said that while there was much smoke from the burning mattress and the varnished hardwood floor, the damage was comparatively light.

Fire Chief Ashley said that smoking in bed was the cause of the fire, 'I'd say."

Miss Caulfield was asphyxiated in her bed, firemen said. They told of finding her "literally wrapped up in blankets."

Tear Safe Away From Wall and Carry it Away

St. Catharines, Nov. 3 —(CP)—Two offices were broken into Wednesday night within a mile of each other. Safecrackers tore a safe out of the wall at the Southward Fruit Company at Jordan Station and took it away with them. At Vineland Station, safe crackers attempted to open a walk-in vault at the Vineland Growers Co-operate, but failed.

Nothing was taken at the Vineland office and less than $100 in cash is believed to be in the Southward safe. About $15,000 in cheques had been left in the stolen safe, but payment has been stopped on these at the bank.

Ring Dealing In Gold Bullion Believed Broken

London, Nov. 3 — (CP) — A black-market ring dealing in gold bullion, jewelry and nylons was believed broken today following several swift overnight raids by Scotland Yard in which seven men were arrested.

Scotland Yard officers said investigations are still continuing in the case involving the disappearance of gold bullion worth thousands of pounds from London airport over a long period and thefts of jewelry and other valuables from the baggage of airline passengers. Other arrests are expected soon.

The seven were arrested in raids on London airport and neighboring public houses Wednesday night. They appeared in Uxbridge police court this morning. Six, described as loaders employed by British Overseas Airways Corporation, were charged with stealing a box of gold worth £2,500 ($7,750). The seventh, described as a club steward, was charged with unlawfully receiving gold which was the property of B.O.A.C.

Several of the men also were charged with complicity in the thefts involving nylon stockings, jewelry, perfume, cigarets and other valuables. All were remanded on bail until Nov. 21.

The amount of bullion and other valuables missing is not yet known.

Police were tight-mouthed about investigations. But a Scotland Yard spokesman, asked if he believed the arrests had broken a large black-market ring replied: "It is a start."

Cannot Win Asia By Financial Means Says Pandit Nehru

Vancouver, Nov. 3 (CP) — India's prime minister, Pandit Nehru admonished white nations Wednesday night that "no part of Asia is going to be won over by military or financial means."

"We would not sell our souls for financial help," he added in a speech to a cheering audience of 2,500 at a civic auditorium reception. At least half the crowd consisted of members of British Columbia's Indian colony.

He reiterated that India will not tie to any power bloc in world politics but will work in its own way for world peace.

Nehru said India stayed in the British Commonwealth because it was a cooperative union and the "world needs cooperation". But he emphasized that "he would not remain in a commonwealth if it came in the way of our functioning in the way in which we wish to function".

Lost Child Found Under R.R. Fill Calling "Mommy"

Lanham, Md., Nov. 3—(AP)—It was dark and cold down under the railway fill where seven-year-old Marie Hanratty sat under a birch calling to her "Mommy".

Three-and-a-half score 1,500 men who joined in a search after the blonde girl failed to return from school Wednesday, scrambled down the 50-foot embankment and found her there at 1 A.M. today.

"I got lost," she told her rescuers, "but I wasn't worried."

Members of 16 fire companies, more than 50 soldiers, 20 policemen and hundreds of neighbors were used in the 9-hour search.

The child was found about two miles from her home at Seabrook, Md., just outside Washington, D.C. She was lost after taking the wrong bus to school.

Ministers Map New Step Aimed At Strong Union

Paris, Nov. 3. (AP)—Twelve European Foreign Ministers met today to map new steps aimed at pulling their countries together into a union.

The ministers, forming a guiding ministerial committee of the Council of Europe, met with the resolutions approved by the Council's Consultative Assembly at its meeting in September at Strasbourg.

The Assembly's economic resolutions—calling for a European economic trade union with preferential trade links to members overseas areas—have taken on new significance since Marshall-Plan Administrator Paul Hoffman this week called for economic integration of Western Europe.

After Hoffman's warning that only such formation of a single European market would achieve lasting prosperity, the General Council of the European Economic Co-operation organization Wednesday agreed to eliminate national quota restrictions on half the private commerce among the Marshall plan countries.

IVANHOE

Women's Institute Holds Hallowe'en Party and Frolic

Ivanhoe—Ivanhoe Women's Institute held their Hallowe'en frolic in Ivanhoe town hall on Monday evening last. A large number, both young and old, were in colorful and novel costumes, causing much amusement and speculation as to their identity before the judging took place.

Mr. Elmer Wood of Crookston was chairman for the evening's entertainment.

SENATE APPROVES

Previously, the court could grant leave to appeal only if the case in question already given to the highest court in the province. This ruled out a number of cases which because of their nature are never allowed to reach the highest provincial court. Now the Supreme Court can hear appeals from any court provided the appeal went as far as it could go in the province.

Under the system previously in force, the Supreme Court could hear appeals only from a "final judgment" — one which cleans up the case rather than just deciding a side issue. Now it will be able to hear "side-issue" appeals, such as counter-suits on jurisdictional matters.

Previously, the above two classes of cases could be appealed only to the Privy Council. But a third class of cases, now appealable to the Supreme Court, previously could be appealed to neither the Supreme Court nor the Privy Council.

This class involves a group, obscure to the layman, including appeals from prosecutions under provincial statutes. Also falling under this class are appeals from summary conviction cases under federal statutes where the question is on a point of law or jurisdiction.

Approved in Principle

In the senate the bill moved through second reading—approved in principle—after Senator Salter Hayden (L—Ontario) concluded the debate. He urged its passage as a mark of Canada's nationhood.

Senator Hayden said that if Canada had sufficient confidence in the idea of abolishing appeals it should have confidence that the supreme court of the future will exercise prudence, understanding and wisdom.

Canada was claiming nationhood and asserting herself internationally as a nation. She must either abandon this idea or present herself as capable of managing her own affairs.

He had no argument with senators who held a reverence with the service of the Privy Council. However the duty of the present generation was to present, not to the past.

The upper chamber also considered a bill which would establish a new bankruptcy act. The senate has had the bill before it for three years. Complex and involved, it has been under continuous review by the Senate Banking and Commerce Committee. Senator J. W. de B. Farris (L—British Columbia) and Senator John T. Haig, opposition leader, urged its passage through third reading as it would come before the Commons in time for consideration there.

However, Senator Vincent Dupuis (L—Quebec) delayed it on the ground that copies of the bill should be distributed, and time given for study.

Senator Robertson paid tribute to the extensive work of the Banking and Commerce Committee, in its study of the bankruptcy act, it had heard views from every interested party or organization in Canada.

He announced that Defence Minister Claxton would appear in the senate Nov. 8 to present a bill aimed at unification of the three armed services.

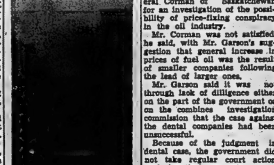
HELPLESS MOTHER SEES HOUSE BURN, BABE FOUND DEAD



Watching helplessly while her home burned, Mrs. Max Pringle of Owen Sound is supported by a neighbor. TRUST-BUSTING referred to in documents seized in that way have been authorized by the Court. If persons agree in a formal manner, we think it will be almost impossible to administer the combined act," Mr. Garson said.

It understood one of the amendments will put the onus on the investigator when he had no knowledge of any such letters.

Resignation of Mr. McGregor four years before the normal 65-year retirement age will become effective Jan. 1.

Mr. McGregor has been the key figure in anti-monopoly investigations of dental supply, optical, bread and flour-milling firms.

There was speculation that he resigned to underline his protest against the way the government acted on his reports.

Formal announcement of Mr. McGregor's resignation was expected in the Commons today.

Mr. McGregor himself has declined to deny or confirm the report. He said Justice Minister Garson would have to make any statement.

Criticisms Tossed

In the Commons, CCF members tossed queries and criticisms at Mr. Garson. A. J. Caldwell, party leader, asked if the McGregor report on the flour milling industry will be tabled. Frank Howard (CCF-Vancouver East) asked if Mr. McGregor had resigned.

Mr. Garson said he would make a statement today.

Mr. McGregor's staff started a probe into flour firm operations two years ago. Their findings have been before the government for some time. Leading millers and baking firms were reportedly involved.

Latest probe undertaken by his department was into alleged price fixing by bakeries in British Columbia, Alberta and Saskatchewan. Legal action is pending on this case.

The report on mutinous incidents in the Canadian Navy was discussed at House opening.

Defence Minister Claxton, replying to Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes V.C., (PC-Nanaimo), said he is in complete agreement with the recommendation that the navy be "Canadianized." Action along this line, he said, had been taken before the report was delivered by the Royal Commission investigation.

Deliver Full Statement

Mr. Claxton said he would deliver a full statement on the navy when estimates comes up for consideration, probably next week.

In the Senate, approval was given to a government bill to abolish appeals to the Privy Council, thus making the Supreme Court of Canada the final court of appeal for Canadians.

In the combines discussion, Mr. Knight, a former Saskatoon school teacher, urged the government to take immediate action against combines and monopolies.

Immunity was enjoyed by some combines and this was a "national disgrace," he said. The government had known for years that its legislation was inadequate. He did not know of any action against the optical trade or the bread-making industry.

Party Not Accidental

Mr. Knight said there are some people who believe that the party in prices for gasoline and oil are not accidental. He referred to the request by Attorney-General Corman of Saskatchewan for an investigation of the possibility of price-fixing conspiracy in the oil industry.

Mr. Corman was not satisfied, he said, with Mr. Garson's suggestion that the general increase in prices of fuel oil was the result of smaller companies following the lead of larger ones.

Mr. Garson said it was not through lack of diligence that on the part of the government or on the combines investigation commission that the case against the dental companies had been unsuccessful.

Because of the judgment in dental case, the government did not take regular court action against optical companies.

It was discovered, however, that patents held by the optical companies were the basis enabling them to fix prices on optical goods. The government took action to have the patents declared invalid.

Two of the patents have since been declared invalid, and three others have "dedicated to the public, the companies having abandoned their defence." A fifth has expired and judgment on two others is pending.

Mr. Garson said it is his impression that an "illegal activities" in the optical goods field have "completely ceased."

The issue of the farmers was taken up by several members by the budget debate.

Hon. Milton Gregg, (L-Quebec-Montmorency) urged the government to cut the income tax burden on farmers.

Makes Suggestion

He suggested that the government collect no income tax when a farmer passes his property to his son or another member of the family; that farmers be allowed to make an income tax deduction for what they would have to pay in wages if they did not have their own children working for them; and that persons unexperienced in agriculture be appointed to collect income tax from farmers.

Robert Fair (SC — Battle River) urged that farmers lost $364,935,490 on wheat sold to the United Kingdom during the first three years of the wheat contract.

Tariffs on textiles were defended by G. S. White (PC — Peterborough — Hastings). He said he agrees with statements made by Dr. W. G. Blair (PC — Lanark) that "it is not in the national interest for us textile industry to be closed to close its doors, and so force the thousands of workers in this country out on the street to look for work wherever they can find it."

Mr. White also urged a new post office building for his home town of Peterborough. The present building was there before he was born, almost 52 years ago.

Claimed Too Small

The building was too small; it had only one washroom there were not enough post office boxes. The amount of business warranted a new building.

Madoc, about 50 miles northeast of Peterborough, has a population of about 1,500.

In the naval report discussion, Mr. Claxton promised a full effort to "Canadianize" the Royal Canadian Navy.

There were no indications that any heads would roll over the Communist domination rumors, one criticism, its rap at "pallid" imitation of the Royal Navy and "the navy we demand 'must' be the navy be more Canadian".

MAY CALL STRIKE OF CANADIAN U.M.W.

Shortly after placing a wreath on the monument of John Mitchell, the union leader who died in 1919, in Scanton, Pa., John L. Lewis (right), head of the United Mine Workers, threatened to again call out the 100,000 anthracite coal miners now working. With him (left) is Thomas Kennedy, U.M.W. vice-president. It was at this ceremony that Lewis mentioned the Canadian U.M.W. members may be called to strike. —Central Press Canadian.

Mr. Claxton said there will be no shuffles and informed sources said any such developments probably wouldn't come for some time until it is seen whether the "Canadianization" policy is being bucked in high places.

Meanwhile, bravely weathering one of the main criticisms, the Defence Department prepared to launch another winner of its CBC Dominion network radio recruiting shows called "Comrades in Arms", featuring a torch singer, a bands, massed singing and skits on service life. The Commission criticized "soft soap opera" advertising and "the bed-of-roses approach".

No Settlement In Sight for Playoff Dates

Montreal, Nov. 3 (CP) —Rough Riders and Alouettes today continued their long-distance feuding as no settlement was in sight for playoff dates for the Big Four football league championship.

Wednesday night, executive heads of both Ottawa and Montreal teams continued their verbal barrage over a Montreal proposal that one game of the two-game, total point series be played at Montreal under floodlights, Nov. 9.

Although the verbal battle remains to be settled, it has caused a controversy that has fans from both cities anxiously awaiting the final outcome—something that shouldn't do any harm at the box-office if the teams can settle their diffe.ences.

Alouettes, who finished second in the regular Big Four schedule, rested their case Wednesday on what they claim has been a ready been made to Rough Riders.

President Leo Dandurand of the Als said if there are any defaulters of the playoff series, Rough Riders have already convicted themselves.

No Other Dates Acceptable

But a. Ottawa, President Eddie Emerson of the Riders snapped back with the flat statement that Ottawa will play Nov. 12 and no both daylight games—and no other dates.

League President Dr. J. J. O'Connor warned from Toronto that if the dispute isn't settled by Friday night, "it is probable the executive will step in."

He said "we have heard nothing official about the dispute from either club and we probably won't until they can't settle the difference themselves."

The big question of whether the series will go on, hinges on Montreal's demand for the first game or the series to be played at Montreal, Sunday, Nov. 13 and the second game at Ottawa, Wednesday, Nov. 16. Rough Riders requested a Wednesday, Nov. 9 afternoon game at Montreal and a Saturday, Nov. 12 game at Ottawa.

Oil Millionaire Pays $20,000 For Tax Evasion

Denver, Nov. 3 (AP)—Henry M. Blackmer, beni-shouldered oil millionaire, Wednesday paid $20,000 in fines to close his income-tax-evasion accounts with the United States government. He was spared a jail sentence because of failing health. He is 80 years old.

Justice Orie L. Phillips pronounced the sentence in federal district court to close the belated postscript to the Teapot Dome scandal of the.1920s.

Blackmer had pleaded guilty Sept. 26 to four counts of evasion of his payments. This was shortly after he came back to the United States from his home in Paris. He fled in 1924 rather than testify in the Teapot Dome inquiry.

Just 20 years ago Tuesday the late Albert B. Fall, Secretary of the Interior in the Harding cabinet, was sent to prison for taking a $50,000 bribe in the case, which involved oil leases in the Wyoming fields.

Last, Unwanted Drop of Algerian Wine Now on Way to Germany

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 3—(CP) — The last unwanted drop of Algerian wine is on its way to Germany, and nobody in Whitehall will shed a tear at its going.

There will merely be smiles. At long last, the food ministry has unloaded what government opponents consider the biggest "white elephant" bulk-buying ever brought to Britain.

For nearly a year, the ministry's decision to import wine from Algeria has been a topic of political ridicule. Whenever Food Minister Strachey spoke glowingly of the benefits of bulk-buying, a back-bench heckler would be sure to cry: "what about that Algerian wine?"

The story started early in 1945. Into the gloomy vaults of London's dockland came case upon case of Algerian wine—more than 600,000 gallons, trade sources said. About the same time French and Italian wines came on the market, and the public started turning up its nose at Algerian.

In May this year, it was estimated the government still had about £2,000,000 ($8,200,000) worth on its hands, and no buyers in sight. The selling price dropped sharply. Conservatives hinted that the stored wine was turning into vinegar.

The Food Ministry sent salesmen aboard to try to negotiate quick sales, but they returned with empty order books. The price kept dropping from 8s 6d (about $1.50) a bottle to 7s 6d, then to a low of 5s. for some varieties. Still no sale.

In the House of Commons, angry questioners kept asking how much wine was in store, how much it cost and what would be done with it. Strachey refused to answer. Not in the public interest, he said.

Finally it was revealed that German wine experts were in town, and it was suggested they might be willing to buy for 1s 3d. a bottle.

The deal was closed at an unannounced figure. Strachey said the price was "satisfactory." government transactions in wine were expected to show "a small profit."

The Evening Standard, which consistently opposed the government, challenged the statement. It said the sale to Germany would have been at a sacrifice, or the government would have given the figures.

A cynical note was contributed by Bob Boothby, Conservative MP. It summed up the sale in two sentences, the first headed "Retribution."

"At last the Germans have been punished," said the paper. "They are going to drink Mr. Strachey's Algerian wine."

Mines Still Danger In British Waters

Plymouth, England (CP)— A mine washed ashore anywhere between Plymouth and the Solway Firth means work for two ships of the Royal Navy's Plymouth Command.

Four years after hostilities ceased enough mines are found to justify the navy in detailing the men solely to mine-disposal duties. They are Command-Gunner A. H. Eley and PO. C. V. Daly, the navy's "Flying Squad" who this year alone have defused 16 mines.

Most of the mines are British, strewn defensively about the coast during the war. Only three found this year have been German. During the last four years 87 have been rendered harmless by the marvelous pair.

In 1945 the navy gave top priority to mine clearance off Britain's sea approaches. Though the sweep was thorough some were bound to escape, especially any set at depth as anti-submarine barrages were nestled at the time among coastal rocks.

"That they are still a danger was emphasized this year when two vessels struck mines in the English Channel.

Eley and Daly travel in a car stocked with the equipment and ammunition likely to be needed. Since 1946 Royal Navy mine-disposal officers have travelled 80,000 miles from point to point of the British coast to do their work.

Fishing Fleet Jams West Coast Airlane

Vancouver — (CP) — A floating "Tower of Babel" on British Columbia's rich fishing grounds is causing a big headache here.

Use of radio-telephone channels by boat-to-boat conversations has resulted in a weird babel of voices across the open circuit.

Courtesy of the air has gone down the drain as fishermen with radio sets on various air wave, often shouldering out important messages. Marine authorities are busy considering a radio-telephone control plan. A system is monitoring may be introduced.

Meanwhile, the accents of the Indians, Norwegians, Swedes, Yugoslavs, and Scots continues to pour out over the fishing waves.

Sees Broad Front of Battle Action in War of the Future

By WILLIAM ROSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London — (CP) —The usual kind words were spoken in Germany when in mid-October the British Army concluded its war games for 1949.

But enough candor filtered through to show that the War Office and the High Command of Western Union are not thinking along the same lines as they did in the heaths north and south of Paderborn, Germany, where Hitler trained his Panzer divisions for the abortive 1944 Ardennes offensive, the 2nd Infantry and 7th armored divisions, with United States, French, Belgian and Norwegian battalions under command, had a fortnight long workout which culminated eight previous weeks of campaign training. Altogether 40,000 men were involved.

A month earlier the Americans using 112,000 men in broad, hundred-mile-long sweep through Bavaria had completed their exercises — which apparently were more in line with Western Union thought.

The British formations fought on fronts which at no time exceeded 1-2-3 miles. They had air superiority. Their headquarters were linked to fixed localities. Their weapons, except the new Centurion tanks, were those of the last war — and so was their fighting. Experts said it would have been first-rate for 1945 conditions.

Gen. de Lattre de Tassigny, Commander-in-Chief Land Forces of the Western Union, speedily brought the exercise into perspective once it was over.

He emphasized to officers that they would be leaders of a force at most 10 divisions strong. They would be expected to hold western Europe against a Russian invasion force which no obstacles to cross to teach them.

Officers at the same time, in Washington, Gen. Omar Bradley told Congress that Russia had even now an army of 2,500,000 men, an force of 600,000 and at least 15,000 aircraft.

"You are fighting as wealthy people on narrow fronts. You should fight as poor people on broad fronts," said de Tassigny.

In the last war Gen. Eisenhower had numerical superiority against an enemy committed at the "main line of resistance" front. He also had air superiority. No such situation would confront the troops holding Europe against a threat from the east.

Initially the western Union divisions would have to fight along 30-mile fronts, the commander said, without air superiority, and headquarters officers would have to "get used to living in a state of insecurity."

The Americans' manoeuvres indicated their training to be based on this type of fighting. But British forces are likely to be the winning stage, which western Union chiefs feel is wrong training for the type of warfare that would have to lead up to it.

One British officer asked during the exercises about the use of the army in atomic warfare, replied:

"Nobody can say; but rest assured that the army will be needed for the first tenth and the last tenth of the time; the rest is anyone's guess."

ARAB STATES PONDER UNIFICATION

Seven Arab League states — Egypt, Lebanon, Syria, Iraq, Transjordan, Saudi Arabia, Yemen—are considering a mutual defence treaty with a unified supreme command. An economic treaty is a possible adjunct to such a pact among the strongly anti-Communist states. Possible merger of Syria and Iraq is a separate problem faced by these states, many of whom fear such a possibility. Egypt fears it on the grounds it would present a rival sphere of influence. Iraq is rich in oil, and is thus an interest of the western world—Central Press Canadian.

Brighteners

Los Angeles—There is a silver lining to this sad little story about the Sepulveda women arrested on a charge of begging.

The woman is Miss Louisa Schmidt, police officers said, was begging small change from men along the sidewalk Wednesday.

Policewoman found the lining pinned to her undergarments in the form of $2,122 in United States currency.

Honolulu—Judge John A. Matthewman Wednesday ruled that brides five nights a week is grounds for divorce.

Laura McConnel testified that when her husband Walter G. McConnel of New York, wasn't playing he "talked nothing but bridge." The judge granted the divorce on grounds of cruel treatment.

Berkeley, Calif.—A ban on student drinking in fraternity, sororities and hotel rooms was reaffirmed Wednesday by authorities at the University of California. A storm of protest resulted.

Sunday, a petition demanding bankruptcy for Berkeley's liquor dealers.

Porches of fraternity houses turned into informal beer gardens. Disillusioned members said, drank or otherwise disposed of their stocks of beer. The same suds even flowed on the ground.

Many wore black arm bands in mourning for the "good old days" . . . and protested loudly the evils of prohibition.

The storm subsided rapidly. Within a few hours the placards vanished. A scheduled protest meeting was cancelled.

The students explained: Telephone calls from Hurford E. Stone Dean of students.

Aussies Worried About Rising Cost of Living

Sydney, Australia, Nov. 3 (AP) —Australians are worried about rising cost of living.

It started to rise in 1939 and has been going up ever since—more rapidly in the last two years.

Wages are going up, too, but the people say they are not keeping pace with rising living costs.

Most Australians work under awards fixed by the arbitration courts. Their pay is based on a basic wage which varies slightly from city to city; a man gets so much a week over the basic wage, depending on what job he does.

The basic wage is adjusted every three months to conform with an index of living costs. When the cost of living is shown to have increased, then the basic wage goes up.

But in recent years every increase in the basic wage has been followed by a further rise in the cost of living. The people say their income never seems to catch up with the rise.

The basic wage in Sydney was raised by 10 shillings a week in 1948, and already has been increased by that amount this year.

The finance editor of the Sydney Morning Herald estimates that 7s 6d has been cut from the value of the Australian pound in the last 10 years. That is just on 4? per cent.

That figure does not take into account the rise that will come in living costs as a result of devaluation of the pound against the United States dollar.

BARBARA ANN INJURED

Calgary, Nov. 3 — (CP)—Barbara Ann Scott, displayed "the show-must-go-on" determination Wednesday night when the 21-year-old skater performed to a near-capacity arena in spite of a cracked rib and torn muscles.

Dr. E. F. Scarlett, her physician, said if she were a Calgary girl she'd have been put to bed. Rest, plenty of heat applications and adhesive tape are expected to keep the 21-year-old former world champion figure skater going in the touring ice show in which she stars.

Still Seek Button With Staying Power

Winnipeg — (CP) — The age of science may have uncovered cures for many of man's ills but the problem of the button that won't stay on his shirt is still unsolved.

But E. W. Finlayson, general manager of the Canadian Research Institute of Laundering and Cleaners, says national trade association experts are making notable progress on the problem.

Mr. Finlayson said the Institute has already developed buttons that can withstand dissolving powers of dry-cleaning solvents but the one that will last forever is still a little beyond reach.

Women Will Defend Town's Reputation

Scarborough, England — (CP) —Seven women are conducting a survey of Scarborough's sauciest postcards to find out if seaside fun has descended from the slightly vulgar to the indecent.

They fear that this kind of greeting, postmarked Scarborough may give the resort a bad name.

At a conference of women's organizations recently, it was decided to investigate reports that the cards were "offensive."

"If we find unsavory postcards we shall put them before responsible townsmen, such as members of the council and clergymen," said Mrs. Hilda Davis, chairman of the committee.

FEW HOMES, FEW BABIES

Sittingbourne, Kent, England—(CP) — The birth rate in this town of 30,000 has dropped from 532 to 397 during the last year.

"I believe the housing shortage is responsible," said medical health officer Dr. W. H. Crichton. "Most people are reluctant to increase their liabilities when it is so difficult to find a home."

Traffic Signs are Made Uniform in New System

(From the Sault Ste. Marie Star.)

A unique program of accident prevention that Michigan has pioneered is reported to be spreading rapidly in the neighboring state and drawing the attention of traffic and law-enforcing officials throughout the United States.

The "Michigan Uniform Enforcement Policy" makes it possible for police departments, courts, and safety educational organizations to operate so that the motorist will feel he is being treated consistently and uniformly throughout the state.

The result, police officials say, is a greater respect of traffic laws on the part of the motorist. He is inclined to observe the laws voluntarily. A sharp reduction in traffic accidents is the final and most important result.

From a meeting of Michigan law enforcement, traffic, and safety officials in 1944, there was grown the first unified code of enforcement in the United States. Today, Jan has been adopted in 42 Michigan cities, with more falling in line every month, and has been put in operation in New Jersey.

Capt. C.J. Scarvarda, commanding officer of the Safety and Traffic Bureau of the Michigan State Police, is one of the pioneers of the program. He says that "for the first time in the field of traffic law enforcement we have given the police officer a measuring stick which gives positive direction and enables him to gain the true objective of traffic law enforcement."

Specifically, the system has two main divisions: A uniform traffic ticket, which means uniform enforcement wherever the system is in operation, and a uniform court policy, under which the violator is treated substantially the same treatment before a judge no matter what city happens to hale him before.

This standardized traffic ticket lists the most common illegal manoeuvres causing accidents and the six most common conditions under which the violations occur.

A point value, known as the "Hazard Rating Scale," is assigned to each violation. The fine or other form of punishment is then levied on the point total rather than on a general charge, such as reckless driving.

Captain Scarvarda explains that the "Hazard Rating Scale" takes into consideration the fact that the driver who goes five miles over the speed limit on wet pavement and in heavy traffic can be as much a menace as the driver who speeds 25 miles over the limit on a clear highway in dry weather.

When the violator appeals in court, the detailed ticket enables the presiding judge to get a clear picture of the violation and thus be better able to determine an equitable fine if the individual is found guilty.

By totalling the points listed on the ticket under the "Hazard Rating Scale," the judge is able to make a more accurate decision on the degree of the offence. For each increase in points on the ticket there is a corresponding increase in the amount of the fine.

The use of the same uniform fines in violation bureaus in many cities helps to prevent any one judge of being accused of being a "tough judge" or a "soft touch."

The violator himself has indicated in Michigan that he is behind the new system. He feels he is being treated in a fair and consistent manner, Captain Scarvarda said.

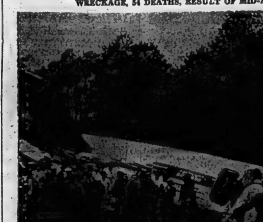
The written warnings on a first offence for a minor violation appeals to the violator as being much fairer than a fine.

Since the traffic fines are thoroughly explained and look reasonable, the violator has a higher respect for police and court officials, Captain Scarvarda said.

Arresting officers have expressed their liking for the new system because the ticket physically and mechanically is easier to fill out. It is done by checking remarks rather than writing out a report. Only in the more serious offences is he required to write in detail on the ticket.

Because the ticket is almost complete in itself, the judge is less likely to require the officer's appearance in court.

WRECKAGE, 54 DEATHS, RESULT OF MID-AIR COLLISION



The body of one of the victims of the Eastern Airlines plane which crashed after a mid-air collision with a P-38 fighter over National Airport at Washington, D.C., is seen being carried from the Potomac River by a rescue squad. On shore in background is part of the severed fuselage and tail assembly of the airliner, which, apparently was sheared in two by the P-38, that collided with it as the craft was coming in for a landing. Other portions of the plane fell into the river and on the marshy ground near the river. All aboard the airliner, 55 passengers and a crew of four, perished. Pilot of the P-38 was Lt. Rico Bridoux, director of the Bolivian C.A.A., survived but is seriously injured. —Central Press Canadian.

Say Ring on Hubby Would Stop Bigamy

Newcastle — on - Tyne, England —(CP)—Bigamy would be less frequent if men would wear wedding rings, says Canon D. H. S. Mould, Vicar of Benwell.

"Because we cannot tattoo the words 'I am married' on men's foreheads, men should show by wearing a ring that they are not single," said the vicar.

See Trek to Canada For Winter Sports

Washington — (CP) — A record-breaking flow of United States tourists into Canada's winter playgrounds is in the making.

That's the good word from the American Automobile Association, which states that Canada remains the "major foreign travel objective" of U. S. tourists, and adds:

"This season's northward trek is expected to be a record-breaker for those who wish to enjoy winter sports north of the border."

Walter W. Hubbard, former Torontonian who now edits the association's magazine, American Motorist, said that motor traffic into Canada this last summer also was in the record class, with the numbers of cars rolling across the border during July breaking all previous totals for that month.

Nearly 1,500,000 cars, a figure never exceeded before or after the war, crossed the international border into the Canadian provinces in July. The total was 1,495,200, including 325,200 Canadian cars returning from trips into the United States.

At a single port of entry — Fort Erie, Ont. — the number of cars entering the Dominion was between six and seven a minute, night and day throughout the month.

Hubbard reported that Canada's national parks are getting bigger play than ever.

"Exactly 1,502,650 visitors went to the Dominion's national parks during the first five months of the fiscal year of 1949-50, a figure which smashed the previous record of the corresponding period last year.

"Riding Mountain National Park, in the province of Alberta, got the largest increase — 72,052 above last year's attendance of 181,851."

Devaluation May Hit Christmas Stockings

London — (CP) — British mothers are being tipped to buy Junior's Christmas toys now.

Because devaluation has forced up the cost of imported metals, steep price increases are expected in November. Even non-metal toys will be priced higher, because the price of other materials has also increased.

"We hope to hold off the increases as long as possible," said S. Gee, managing director of one London toy firm. "But provisionally we are making up our lists by 2s. 6d. in the pound (13½ per cent) in November."

Gee said higher costs will largely nullify the export market advantage that devaluation has been expected to bring.

PAPERS SHOW GAIN

New York, Nov. 3 (AP) — Newspapers showed a nine-per-cent gain in national advertising in September over the same month last year, Printers' Ink magazine reported Wednesday.

The trade publication said the only other medium to show a gain was outdoor posters, up one per cent. National advertising on radio was down 10 per cent, in business papers was down six per cent, and in magazines was down 12 per cent.

The magazine said no comparison with a year ago was available for television, but that it showed a gain of 66 per cent over August.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

We were vindicated. The newspaper, the radio and the Memorial Arena now smile. Mistakes, for at least three days we finally came through. Yup, last night we saw the first intimations of hockey through the medium of the Canadian National Railway Diesels and the Belleville Junior Rockets.

* * *

In the dim darkened always of Memorial Arena, we witnessed Bill Cook and coach Ken McDonagh put their heads together, their eyes on the new "Red" Carson and his 1948-50 Diesels strut their stuff. It all looked good for not only the Belleville District League but the Ontario Hockey Association future of the city as well.

We saw at least fifty huskies wearing the different uniforms of the juniors undergo a terrific "acing-over" by coach McDonagh of the Belleville Rockets. Sideline was Manager Bill Cook. The lads poured over the rails at contracted intervals as the master-minds tried out line after line in an effort to produce a squad that will give at least a battle to the Toronto Marlboro team comes Friday.

And from where we sat the kids looked good. They, all right, seemed over the boards in varicolored garments, as the management called them.

And all of them 50 huskies, were just that, in the literal sense of the word. Never before, at least in our regime of sportswriting, has Messrs. Cook, et al, produced such a bed brawl of hockey players. But remember, last night was the first night for practically all to don skates. It is not, by any means a fair criticism of the players or both teams as we, And the rafflers, saw them.

Coach McDonagh tried out his various lines, who they are we were not informed, and the Arena hummed as the coach, who wore a hockey shirt for training purposes, sent the junior squad through the motions.

Coach McDonagh and Manager Bill Cook have a tough job on their hands tonight. They have the duty of selecting from the hockey ethral and rank and file sticks, those who will represent the Belleville roster of this city in the Junior "B" set-up against Toronto Marlborough here Friday night.

So that 50 it may. From this corner's point of view and albeit it was a fundamental rehearsal for all concerned, the Rockets looked to be a powerful squad. We may be wrong (as usual) but from what we observed last night the Junior squad will, or should, sparkle before they, collectively, take a beating.

* * *

And then there was "Red" Carson and his Canadian National Railways crew. Ont there trotted the old familiar faces of Lou and Vern Gyorr, Timmy Williams and the rest of the gang from last years "Maurreco" by far the best back in the old familiar spot between the pipes, and that fact dispells all rumors about the real-keeping future of the husky, likespoken young French Canadian. In our opinion, there are but few better.

"Red" had the old gang out, that was for his Diesels, the Belleville District League title last year. True, he has augmented the squad, and the Trainmen, at last year, will be a powerful contender for the title. Doug Pres, former professional star hails from Campbellford, skated miles, was there, but his future is not yet assured. "Red" as is natural, kept pretty "mum" regarding his team's chances this year, but his more or less freckled mug lit up when we suggested that he and the Diesels might repeat the championship performance (City League, that is) this year.

"There is," the sorrel-top said, "a possibility that you, the radio and the Arena management might be surprised. I am not divulging any secrets at the moment, but I will say that the Diesels will be in there fighting, not only in the District League but in the O.H.A. We have strength that compares favorably with that of a year ago", he said.

Yup, "Red" skated out a powerful squad last night. And in all fairness to both Diesels and Juniors, the minds of some of them were gone to votes perhaps a bit of hitter criticism, should remember that last night was the first opportunity the greater part of the boys had to exercise their limbs on skates. A lot of them exercised other parts of the anatomy, but that was to be expected.

However, the Belleville District League starts next Tuesday and Manager Walt Gerow is doing his best to give the participating squads the chance to get in some practice. It looks like a good loop as far as strength is concerned, and it is hoped the fans will support the efforts of a few individuals and their teams in their attempt to bring pre-season hockey to this village.

* * *

However, as has been mentioned, the hockey season opens here tomorrow night. The Belleville District League gets under way with a double-header on Tuesday of next week. Seven months of shinny or whatever you may call it, looms ahead. It is a grand sport, a fine pastime, and one that is worthy of all the financial and moral support the local citizens can give.

* * *

But before we close off, we would like to remind hockey fandom, that the Toronto Marlboroughs are here tomorrow night at 8.30 to pry the lid off the hockey season. Not only that, it will give you fans the first glimpse of the Belleville Junior Rockets in action.

'Amateur' Sport Big Business Says Sullivan

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Someone should write the music for the lyrics now being 'sung' by the Ottawa and Montreal football clubs prior to their two game total-point interprovincial union playoffs. The completed job probably could be entitled "we'll do it my way or we won't play."

It's an old refrain—the patient Canadian sports public which follows the "amateur" beard it over and over last Spring in the Allan Cup playdowns and final—and the lyrics are well known. The music could be breezy and light, sort of a comic opera style, because that's the way the 'song' has been rendered.

Details of the Rough Rider-Alouettes hassle have been hitting the sports pages the last few days with syllable descriptions of their public bout. Any one, hardened by similar wailings in the past, doesn't take it seriously—but it is annoying.

If these clubs want to do a little haggling, why can't their club executives get together and do it in private? And why doesn't the big four executive step in and stop all this public washing of dirty linen?

"Amateur" sport—senior football and junior and senior hockey—now is big business. In many cases, their salary lists rival those of the out-and-out professionals, and there aren't many fans who will cry in their beards because one date—or even the hour—in this football squabble isn't conducive to furious turnstiles clicking.

Allan Cup Woes

There were at least two "we'll do it my way or we won't play" rhubarbs in the Allan Cup playdowns and finals last spring. But the series was played through and nobody was hurt—just a lot of face-losing by people who rule the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

First, it was the Ottawa Seniors and the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association over an intermediate club called St. Joseph D'Alma, Senior Cup winners in Quebec. The Q.A.H.A. said the Senators must play the intermediate team in a sudden-death game or forfeit their right to meet Toronto Marlboros in the eastern final.

It was a "my way will" and an "I won't" wacky piece of business for 24 hours—until a deadling set by the C.A.H.A.—and, you guessed it: Ottawa played St. Joseph and won.

Regina Screamed

Ottawa got past Marlboros okay and the C.A.H.A. ruled the four-of-seven final series, between Senators and Regina Capitals, would be played in Ottawa. Everybody knows Regina screamed about the egg-shaped Ottawa forum and demanded at least one game be played in Toronto or Montreal "or else".

Practically every member of the C.A.H.A. got in the act along with officials of both clubs and one game was played in Toronto and Senators won the cup. The C.A.H.A. backed down because a club official threatened to pull out if he didn't get his way.

We would like to see the reaction of the National Hockey League or baseball's big time if any responsible club official tried to high-pressure a change in dates or rules—in public—to benefit his club. He wouldn't have a chance, which prompts the observation it is about time the Big Four—and even the Canadian Rugby Union—and the C.A.H.A. made their dog executives wear long pants, too.

Manager of Year Is Casey Stengel Of N.Y. Yankees

New York, Nov. 3 — (AP) — Casey Stengel, who hit the jackpot in his first year with New York Yankees after nine unsuccessful seasons as a National League pilot, is the major league's manager of the year.

The grizzled veteran, who overcame many obstacles to lead the Yankees to an American League pennant and a world championship last season, was the overwhelming choice of the baseball writing fraternity which voted in the Associated Press poll.

Stengel nearly spread-eagled the field, grabbing 101 of the 118 votes cast. Only four other pilots received recognition with Detroit's Red Rolfe and Philadelphia Phillies' Ed Sawyer tied for a poor second at six votes apiece.

Joe McCarthy, Boston Red Sox skipper, who was zoned out for the pennant two straight years in the final day, received a scant two votes. Jack Onslow, freshman pilot of Chicago White Sox, got the remaining vote.

Stengel came to the Yankees after five years in the minors. It was his boast that he didn't levy a fine on any of his players, and there wasn't a single squabble between players and manager all year.

It is not too far-fetched to credit Casey with inducing some of the fight, hustle and spirit that enabled the Yankees to hurdle all barriers and defeat a favored Red Sox team in the closing days of one of the most thrill seasons in American League history.

LAST NIGHT'S STARS

Sid Abel of Detroit who scored his first hat trick of the current National Hockey League season as the Red Wings defeated Boston Bruins 5-3.

Pentti Lund of New York whose tying goal at 11:55 of the third period enabled the Rangers to hold Toronto Maple Leafs to a 3-3 draw.

Roy Conacher of Chicago whose tally midway through the first period proved to be the winning goal as the Black Hawks upset Montreal Canadiens 4-1.

MILLERS IN FRONT PLACE

(By The Associated Press)

The high-scoring Minneapolis Millers, firing an average of five goals a game into United States Hockey League nets, are alone in first place today.

The Millers flattened Omaha 6-1 Wednesday night. Minneapolis has won five games, tied one and lost one so far this season.

A point behind the Millers are St. Paul Saints, who were held to a 4-4 tie by Tulsa. The Saints have won four, tied two and lost one.

Minneapolis had little trouble with the Knights, scoring three times in the first four minutes.

ASK WINTER FOOD

St. John's, Nfld. — (CP) — A petition from 18 families at isolated Cape Charles on the Labrador coast, asking that provisions to store enough food to tide them over the winter, was read in the provincial legislature here. The petition said 94 residents in the settlement may face famine because of poor fishing this year.

Flying Dutchmen Defeat Mercurys By 3 to 1 Count

Waterloo, Ont., Nov. 3 — (CP) — Kitchener - Waterloo Flying Dutchmen defeated Owen Sound Mercurys 3-1 in an Ontario Senior Hockey Association game Wednesday night and broke the Mercs' five-game winning streak.

Mercs are second with 10 points now behind Toronto Marlboros and the Dutchmen, with seven, are in third spot in the four-team loop. Hamilton Tigers trail the league with two points.

The two teams battled on even terms in the first period, but the Dutchmen outshot Owen Sound 10-9.

The Dutchmen dominated play in the second period when Butch Martin, Dutchmen defenceman, rammed home a screened shot on a passout from Bobby Bauer and Ted Grasser. The Mercurys scored back quickly to knot the score with big Bill Allum pulverizing Martin's set by slamming Ted McIteavy's pass behind Bev Bentley.

Ted Grasser combined with Art Ehrett on first play of the final period to put the Dutchmen ahead again 2-1. Hurst repaid the compliment by converting Grasser's pass at the seven - minute mark to sink the clincher.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, Nov. 2 — (AP) — When Ham Richardson finishes the current pro tennis tour, he plans to return to his old job as prop man at a movie studio. And unless he does better against Pancho Segura, there may be room at a prop man to prop up Frankie . . . Dewey Hugzzis, who has coached their National Basketball Association season on Oct. 29, would play their first game in Denver until nearly a month later . . . if they haven't won at least seven games by that time, they might as well stay on the road . . . The reason is that the N. B. A. (not to be confused with Abe Greene's Basketball Association) plays by bush league system of shifting games all over the map, giving them as parts of double-headers in league cities or in smaller nonleague towns . . . However, for instance, meets Syracuse in Auburn N. Y. — a perfectly good place but not a big league city.

Secret Play

The Washington and Yates high school football teams were near the end of their game in Houston, Tex., last weekend when the P. A. announcer advised: "Standby for a special announcement immediately after the game." . . . The 2,000 fans were left wondering until the final gun sounded, then the announcer's voice boomed out again: "This is the special announcement. Washington has played 12 men on the field for the last two minutes of the game."

Letters to the Sports Editor

The Truth About the Napanee - Cobourg Baseball Controversy

Ontario Intelligencer,
Belleville, Ont.

In reference to your remarks regarding the Napanee-Cobourg series in Monday's paper, I would like to say your indictment is to give a complete explanation.

As you know, the O.B.A. divided the series into four zones of which I was chairman of zone D and Mr. Whaley, chairman of zone C. The chairman had complete jurisdiction of the playoffs, but did not appoint umpires nor set dates for games unless two clubs could not come to an agreement.

In the above series Napanee and Cobourg could not agree on a second umpire so work with Thomas on whom both clubs agreed. So I called Mr. Whatley at Peterborough and we decided to appoint Bill Cowan to umpire game in Cobourg. We decided on Thomas behind the plate because both clubs agreed on Thomas, and an umpire from Peterborough on the bases. I notified both clubs of our decision. Neither of the two clubs at Grombie was appointing an umpire because, as I said above, none clubs agreed on appointed umpires when clubs did not agree.

As for the date of the game in Cobourg, I believe both clubs agreed on that.

I do hope, sir, that this explanation may be received with the same sportsmanlike attitude with which it is written.

Yours very truly,
Robt. Smith,
Chairman Zone D,
O.B.A. Executive
Napanee, Ont.

Football Fans Have to Yield To Mathematicians in Study Of Intercollegiate Football

(By The Canadian Press)

The class now will come to order for a brief examination of the intercollegiate football picture. Things could get tangled up so badly that the football fans will have to stand aside and let the mathematics professors probe for a solution.

The immediate facts are these: (1) Western Mustangs, Union leaders, are at home Saturday to the fourth - place Queen's Golden Gaels; (2) McGill Redmen and Varsity Blues, locked in a second-place tie, play in Toronto. On the face of it, that all looks simple. But it isn't, especially in the light of the Intercollegiate rule which says a playoff between first and second place teams at the end of the season when the two clubs have broken the first-players.

Calls for Second Look

That calls for a second look. The Mustangs, with a 3-1 record, wind up their season the following Saturday against a Montreal aggregation. McGill; the Blues go to Kingston to finish off against the Gaels. The Toronto boys and fellows each have won two and lost two, — Queen's has a game showing.

The way the teams are going there is a strong possibility of Varsity and McGill winding up in a second-place Tie. It is also possible that McGill won't come up with the victory it needs over Western to qualify for a playoff. In such a case, the league rules say, McGill and Varsity would play a qualifying game. If Varsity wins, it would play Western for the title. But if McGill should win, there'd be no championship playoff.

May be Four-way Tie

The man who run Intercollegiate football teams shudder at the ultimate possibility — a four-man tie. That could happen if Queen's wins its remaining two games, if Western beats McGill and McGill beats Western. It would put all four clubs back where they started when the schedule opened Oct. 8.

Warren Stevens, director of athletics at the University of Toronto, offers a guess that in such an event four teams would play off Nov. 19 and the two winners would meet Nov. 26 for the championship, the same day as the east-west game in Toronto.

Of course, the immediate problem is the two games this Saturday.

From London Wednesday night came word that six of the Mustangs' regulars may have to sit out the game with Queen's. The injured are snapback George Wearring, middle wing Reg. Orth, halfback Bob McFarlane and outside wings Ross Beck, Harry Wells and Bob Turnbull. Coach Johnny Metras moaning mightily over the dismal state of affairs, will call on a number of the intermediate colts if necessary.

There has been little such talk from Coach Frank Tindall of Queen's, whose Gaels found their scoring punch last Saturday for a 18-0 triumph over McGill. He won't have two ace backfielders, Al Lenard and Ross McKelvey. But they were out of action last week too.

Coach Bob Masterson of the Blues is sharing the crying towel with Metras. He has 13 players on the injured list with two definitely listed as out for the season — Johnny Evans and Al Stevenson.

Vic Obeck's Redmen scrimmaged for two hours last night against the Lakeshore Club of the Quebec Rugby Football Union.

Four of Nine Starters in Race Are 'Sponged'

(By The Canadian Press)

Disclosure Wednesday that at least four of nine starters in a horse race at New York's Rockingham Park had been "sponged" prompted members of the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association to plan a reward for the capture and conviction of the tamperers.

The angry members of the Association were only one of six groups which declared themselves in on the hunt for those who inserted sponges in the horses' noses in the seventh race a week ago Monday.

The deed was discovered Oct. 20 by trainer Lyle Phillips, who discovered a blood stained sponge in a feed box.

Dr. Harold M. Lewis, track veterinarian, examined other horses and discovered sponges had been inserted in the noses of at least four horses.

President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League was instructed at Montreal Wednesday by the Springfield Club of the American Hockey League to lift the suspension he slapped on the professional club.

At Halifax, hockey fans looked at it this way: Eddie Shore manages Indians. Marty Barry coaches St. Louis. The two played together for Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League for six seasons. They had friendly chat by telephone Wednesday.

The Michigan Boxing Commission Wednesday asked Kid Gavilan to come to Detroit Saturday and answer questions about the Oct. 21 fight he lost by a split decision to Detroit's Lester Felton.

Commission chairman Floyd Stevens said in a telegram to Gavilan's New York headquarters: "Inasmuch as the ... decision ... has been criticized and charges of gambling and fixing have been blamed for this decision it is imperative that you ... appear."

Gold Lode, veteran campaigner from the Vernon C. Camp stable of Val David, Que., scored a double triumph Wednesday at the United States National Horse show at New York.

The Canby gelding clearer pranced in a sprightly manner around the Madison Square Garden ring to win blue ribbons in both the open Hunter and thoroughbred Hunter lightweight events.

At Ayr, Scotland, Hull Volants Wednesday night dropped the second straight game on the European leading list to the Ayr Raiders of the Scottish Hockey. The Quebec club was blanked 3-0 in the opener of their tour Monday night.

Cyril (Cy) Nash, manager of the pari-mutuel departments at Hamilton Jockey Club and Stamford Park, died at Toronto Wednesday. He was in command at Hamilton for more than 10 years and supervised wagering at Stamford for the last five years.

Vancouver, Nov. 3 — (CP) — When Napoleon whipped out the phrase about an army marching on its stomach, he could just as well have been referring to sport crowd.

The gastronomical side of sportdom intrigues Eric (Vancouver Province) Whitehead as much he took the trouble to find out what the hot-dog-and-coffee picture is like.

Concession boss Eddie Lamoureux, a former Montrealer, has these figures on record from his $175,000 annual grocs business here.

Weiners must stick out one half-inch at each end of the bun.

"Sure," Eddie told Whitehead, "when times get tough we just shorten the bun."

A special hot mustard is slapped on all hot dogs when softdrink sales jump. Eddie says it boosts sales 20 per cent.

Baseball fans, race goers and boxing crowds eat the most, spend the most.

Trenton Boxers Lose at Hamilton

Hamilton, Nov. 3 — (CP) — James J. Parker, Hamilton boxer, took less than two minutes to prove he had the mettle for Joe McCabe, of Trenton, Ont., in the main bout of a fight card Wednesday night. Parker knocked out the Trenton fighter at 1.55 of the first round after sending him down for a nine count earlier in the round.

In the semi-final event, Jerry Ellis, of Trenton, lost a five-round decision to Ron Black, of Hamilton and in a preliminary bout, Billy Corbett, of Toronto, pounded out a five-round decision over Glenn Dafoe, of Oshawa, Ont.

Cleveland Barons Continue Winning Ways in League

(By The Canadian Press)

The league-leading Cleveland Barons continued their winning ways by beating Cincinnati Mohawks 2-1. The Flyers were idle last night.

Meanwhile Buffalo Bisons strengthened their lead atop the league's eastern section by outscoring Providence Reds 6-3. The Reds are in second position, three points behind Buffalo.

Hershey Bears and Springfield Indians battled to a 4-4 tie in the only other contest Wednesday night.

Les Douglas, Ray Ceresino, Ken Schultz and Bill Williams each picked up one goal for Cleveland. Peanuts O'Flaherty tallied twice for the losers and Billy Benson once.

Mackay Paces Bisons

Murdo Mackay paced the Bisons to their victory with a two-goal effort. Mackay tallied Reid scored once each for the wingers.

Sally Burnett led the Springfield goal-getters with a pair of opening period markers. Bill Gooden and Ken Hayden also scored for Indians in the frame. Johnny Mahaffy tallied the lone Hershey goal in the first period. Roly McLenahan made it 4-3 at the end of the second period and third period markers by Silvio Pettito and Herbie Cain tied the score.

Cornwall, Ottawa Battle to Draw

Ottawa, Nov. 3 (CP)—Cornwall Cahmets and Ottawa R.C.A.F. Flyers battled through three penalty-laden periods last night to a 3-3 deadlock in a tough eastern Canada Senior Hockey league contest.

In the opening game of a double-header, Ottawa Army erupted for three goals in the final period to eke out a 4-3 victory over North Bay Black Hawks.

A total of 17 penalties, including three majors and a misconduct, were handed out in the bruising Cornwall-Flyers contest. In addition coach John Dennesen of Cornwall was ordered to leave the rink by referee Stan Pratt with 10 minutes left in the game. He was sent from the players' bench after prolonged wrangling with officials.

Kenny Kilrea was the hero of the Army victory, scoring three goals and assisting on the fourth by Art Foster. North Bay marksmen were Hugh Christie, Frank Ringler and Cecconi.

Marksmen for Cornwall were Bert Lilly with two and Eddie Emerton, while Tom Moore, Orv Gravelle and Tony Licari scored one apiece for Flyers.

DAFFY-nition:

PEDESTRIAN — one who, for no good reason at all, walks. It might be noted here that there is only one more primitive method of locomotion than walking, and that is crawling. If therefore you are beginning to be a bit worried about being called a walker or crawler, you have an easy out. As you have probably seen by the papers they've been building a gol-darn contraption called an "automewhile" for the past 50 years and many people have parted with their hard-earned dough to become motorists instead of pedestrians.

Now there's a bunch of fellas up the 4-lane highway who've made money motorists out of pedestrians than anybody we know. And when you stop to think that people have been walking (or crawling) for the past 50,000 years and all of a sudden West End Motor Sales starts changing the time-honored primitive pastime—it just makes you stop and think!

MORAL:

If you're tired of walking the boys in see are West End Motor Sales at Herchimer Avenue and Kingston Road. And in case you haven't heard, Rawson Bus Lines have started a new service to Parkwood Heights, which as you may think is the name of the primitive pastime—it just makes you stop and think!

Surging Chicago Black Hawks Defeat Canadiens in Wild Game, Two Players Arrested

By HARRY ECCLES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The Montreal Canadiens not only lost 4-1 to Chicago Black Hawks last night, but they saw two of their players carted away to the police station.

A Chicago fan whose scalp was nicked for ten stitches by a swinging hockey stick laid assault charges, and Ken Reardon and Leo Gravelle were escorted to the hoosegow. They were charged with assault with a deadly weapon (a hockey stick!).

But the fan, George Grbich said when the excitement was over that he wasn't mad at anybody and would not press charges. The two players had already been released on bail and caught the Montreal train with the rest of the team.

The Chicago uproar was one of three games which revised the National Hockey League standing. Toronto Maple Leafs were held to a 3-3 tie by New York Rangers, and Detroit Red Wings beat Boston Bruins 5-3.

That puts Toronto and Detroit in a first place tie, two points ahead of Montreal. Chicago is fourth, New York fifth, and Boston—for the first time in many moons—is at the bottom. Only five points separate top from bottom.

At Chicago the Hawks were leading Canadiens 2-1 in the second period and the stadium fans were riding the Montreal defence hard. Grbich claimed that Reardon whacked him with his stick. Reardon said somebody grabbed me by the nape of my sweater as I skated by and instinctively I swung my stick. I thought it had busted against the screen and I was the most surprised person in the world when I turned around and saw I'd bloodied somebody.

Want Better Protection

"There should be better protection along the rinkside for players from fans," said Canadiens Coach Dick Irvin.

In the rumpus Reay was given a misconduct penalty. Referee Bill Chadwick wasn't available for comment, but Irvin said "I guess he penalized Reay because he saw what he did and didn't see anything that went before."

At Montreal, President Clarence Campbell of the N.H.L., said he had "no comment" until he received a report from Referee Bill Chadwick on the incident.

The two players will appear in police court for hearing Nov. 14.

Gus Bodnar, Roy Conacher, Bert Olmstead and Metro Prystai scored the Chicago goals, Grant Warwick getting the only Montreal score.

Plenty of High Sticking

There was plenty of high-sticking and bumping at Toronto, and 11 penalties were called by Referee George Gravel.

Leafs led 1-0 in the first period and 3-2 at the end of the second. Pentti Lund tied the game for Rangers midway in the final period. Other New York goal-getters were Edgar Laprade and Don Raleigh. Ray Timgren, Ted Kennedy and Max Bentley scored the Toronto goals, Bentley's a picture effort with a clean corner shot after he had sparked a three-man rush on the New York net.

At Detroit the Red Wings' captain, veteran Sid Abel, scored three goals himself in the victory over Boston. George Gee and Marty Pavelich got the others. Boston's goal-scorers were Paul Ronty, Dave Creighton and John Peirson.

Rookie Goalie Jack Gelineau of Boston had better support from his team-mates than he's been getting lately. He had 28 saves while Harry Lumley in the Detroit goal stopped 32.

Player Scores Three Goals In 33 Seconds

Vernon, B. C., Nov. 3 — (CP)— A world's hockey record may have been set by Len Wallington of Vernon Canadians, who scored three goals in 33 seconds against Kelowna Packers in the Okanagan Mainline Senior amateur loop here Tuesday.

A former Houston, Tex., pro, he exploded for his three markers mid-way through the third period.

Records of 1946 show that Carl Liscombe of Detroit Red Wings in the National Hockey League scored a hat-trick in one minute, 32 seconds against Chicago Black Hawks in Detroit, March 13, 1938.

A claim for official recognition of his fastest - scoring hat-trick likely will be forwarded to Clarence Campbell, president of the N. H. L.

Sport Shorts From Britain

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 3 (CP)— What sport produces the most sets of notable brothers?

Offhand you might say hockey with its Conachers, Cooks, Kellys, Kilreas, Jacksons, Thompsons and many more, including Patrick's Dennenys, Cleghorns and Metz's.

Then there's baseball with its Waners, Deans, DiMaggios, Coopers and the like.

British sports fans thinks rugger produces the most brothers.

This season, for instance, the rosters of a few leading clubs show no fewer than four Twogoods playing for Old Millhillians; the le Cius boys, Dave and Frank of Guy's Hospital; J. and M. Corfield of Charing Cross Hospital; Eric and Doug Ogilvy of London Scottish; L. G. Gloag of Cambridge and I. S. Gloag of the Army.

Three clubs—Sutton, Saracens, and the Royal Navy—can call on twins, respectively in Carpenter, McWhirter and Baker.

Old Steeple-chasers often like to go on jumping after their days on the track are over. One of them, apparently having a whale of a time schooling for this winter's show-jumping season, is Dorothy Paget's 13-year-old Housewarmer.

That gallant gelded son of the great Irish Sire, Cottage, had only one plodding pace, but so sure-footed was he that even over the terrifying jumps at Aintree his followers used to call "safe as a housewarmer."

He won several small races in his time, but his best effort in the Grand National was to take fourth place behind his speedier half brother Lovely Cottage in 1946.

Now he's still taking fences—smaller ones—at Aughton, Lancashire, where many of England's best show jumpers are trained.

Experts expect a highly successful show season this winter. Thanks, perhaps to the fillip from the equestrian events at last year's Olympic Games here, the sport now draws thousands where before the war only the really horse-loving set attended.

Cyril Washbrook, opening batsman for England and Lancashire has signed a professional contract to play cricket for his county next summer.

This puts an end to rumors that he would turn amateur in 1950 in order to be eligible to captain England against the touring West Indies eleven.

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle:

Little Benny's Note Book

I had a kind of a spreading pane in my stummick, and it was getting worse instead of better, being the worst part of 50, and I thawt maybe I better take some medecine but I didn't feel like actually asking for it, and I was watching ma sewing on her sewing machine, and after a while I said, Hay ma, can medecine cure everything?

Well, I wouldn't say that, ma said. In fact the cure is sometimes worse than the disease, at least according to an old proverp, she said, and I said, Well anyways, why does medecine always have to taist so bad?

Because what's good for you dont always happen to be the most pleasant thing at the time, unfortunately, ma said. That's Nature, and Nature knows best, she said, and I said, Well Jimmiy rozalem, ma, Nature gives you fresh air and sunshine, and they're suppose to be the best things there is, when it comes to being good for you.

That's rite, ma said, it's full of beneficial rays, and fresh air is full of whole mile oxygin, ma said, and I said, Well anyways, the body feel grate on you, so why can't the doctors do the same thing and put so much chocolit and vanilla and peppermint and stuff in their medecine you could not tell the differenco?

Benny, dont you feel well? ma said, and I said, Well, I got a kind of a stummick ake, but it's not the werst one I ever had, I dont think.

The result being ma made ma take some medecine, seeming less panefol than acidsly having to ask her for it.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barlow, Shannonville, Celebrate 50th Anniversary of Wedding

Shannonville—One of the outstanding events in the history of Shannonville community was the celebration last Monday of the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barlow, R.R.6, Bellerville, a well known family of this district.

This climaxed what is a rarity, as it was the third occasion on which a golden wedding had been celebrated in the immediate family.

In 1906 Mrs. Barlow's parents celebrated their golden anniversary, and a goodly number who were present on that occasion helped join in the festivities on Monday.

In 1940, a sister of the bride, Mrs. Fred Trelford, of Niagara Falls, and husband celebrated their golden wedding day.

Shortly after noon on Monday, the many guests began to literally "pour in" with their congratulations, and best wishes to the happy couple.

Mrs. Barlow was most charmingly gowned in a blue crepe ensemble, with blue and white polka dot trimming, wearing a corsage of yellow roses. She was received with her husband who wore a tea rose on his lapel, and a proud smile on his countenance.

Wedding Luncheon Served

A delightful buffet luncheon was served during the afternoon. The tea table presented an attractive appearance with its lace and embroidered linen cloth, a centrepiece of yellow roses, brass candlesticks, yellow tapers, and the setting of crystal. The table was centred with the bride's wedding cake appropriately decorated with miniature bride and groom.

During the afternoon, those who poured tea were two old neighbors, Mrs. Frank Doxtator and Mrs. Huff and two cousins, Mrs. Edgar Rosevear, of Port Hope, and Mrs. H. W. Jones, of Toronto. Many beautiful gifts of china and crystal were received by the honored couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Barlow were married at the home of Mrs. Barlow's brother, Mr. Wm. Bell, on No. 2 Highway. Mrs. Barlow was Ettie Bell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Bell while Mr. Barlow was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Barlow. The Rev. G. E. Ross officiated at the ceremony. The bridesmaid, Mrs. Wilson and the groomsman, a brother of the bride, Mr. Clem Bell, now residing in Florida, were unable to be present.

Mr. and Mrs. Barlow have resided on the same farm since their marriage 50 years ago, the old Barlow homestead. Mr. and Mrs. Barlow told the gathering of their honeymoon which consisted of a journey to Warkworth with horse and buggy.

During the day messages were received from a son-in-law, Stanley Wilbur, and an old friend, Mrs. A. MacDonald, both of Toronto, who were unable to be present.

Immediate Family Present

The immediate family present were the sons with their wives, Mr. William Barlow, and Mrs. Barlow, of Aylmer; Mr. Clarence Barlow and Mrs. Barlow, of Corbyville, and Mr. Frederic Barlow, of Belleville, and daughters, Iva, Mrs. I. McCarty, of Prince Albert; Ethel, Mrs. Fred Dennis and Mr. Deacon, of Belleville; Alice, Mrs. Stanley Wilbur, of Toronto; Betty, Mrs. Jim Wilberley and Mr. Wilberley, of Barrie; a brother, Mr. Julius Bell and Mrs. Bell, of Kingston; a brother-in-law, Mr. Fred Trelford, of Niagara Falls; a nephew, Mr. Lewis Bell and Mrs. Bell, of Port Colborne; grandsons, Messers. Don and Glen Wilson.

Many Relatives and Friends

Relatives and friends present from distant places were; Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Bell, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Bell, Mr. Reg Bell, Misses Mary and Phyllis Bell, all of Kingston; Mr. and Mrs. H. Jones, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. R. Rosevear, Port Hope; Mrs. S. Atkinson, Roseneath; Mrs. C. Honey, Dartford; Mr. Wm. Wilson, Dartford.

146 Sign Register

In the evening a still larger number joined the festivities until the walls bulged with the tide of well wishers. A total of 146 signed the register, and many others were unable to even get near to register.

The event had a double significance as it was the birthday of the groom and also his brother-in-law, Mr. Fred Trelford. A birthday cake, complete with candles, made by a niece, Miss Mary Bell, of Kingston, was presented to the two Freds and after the singing of Happy Birthday, Mr. Trelford replied to the toast on behalf of the groom and himself.

During the evening Mrs. Harry Silne presided at the piano for community singing and delightful piano selections. Mrs. Bruce Forth sang a lovely solo, "The Rosewood Spinet" followed by an amusing reading on Matrimony by Mrs. W. Clare.

Presentation Made

Mrs. John Craig, on behalf of the neighbors and friends of the community, read an address extending the high esteem in which Mr. and Mrs. Barlow are held and presented this grand old couple with a handsome studio couch in a rich red upholstery. Mrs. Barlow thanked the donors for their kind wishes and splendid gift.

Refreshments were served and along in the wee small hours with renewed congratulations and the singing of "They Are Jolly Good Fellows" the company departed.

Among the beautiful presents received was a gold watch for the bride, and one for the groom from the sons and daughters. From the groom to the bride, as a continued token of affection, a ring, and for the groom from the bride, a gold chain and knife.

It would be unfair not to mention those who so ably fulfilled the duties serving on the day of catering so magnificently to "the inner man", who were as follows: Misses Madonna Iva McCarty, Stanley Wilbur, Fred Deacon, Jim Wilberley; daughters-in-law, Mrs. Clarence Barlow and Mrs. W. J. Barlow, also Misses Helen Milligan, Lillian Craig, Anna Everegreen, Messdames John Craig, Bruce Forth, J. Emerson and Frank Doxtator.

BONARLAW

Fair Society Makes Donations To Worthy Causes

Bonarlaw—At a well attended meeting of the directors of the Marmora Agricultural Society, on Tuesday evening of this week, it was decided to hold a drawing for turkeys, geese and ducks in the near future, the draw to take place at a dance to be held in the town hall before the end of November. The matter is in the hands of a strong committee and a good orchestra will be secured.

A cheque was handed the treasurer of the Marmora District Memorial Community Centre for $500 and a donation voted to the Rawdon Community Centre to assist in building a skating rink at Springbrook. These donations naturally cause the treasurer of the Agricultural Society to literally scrape the bottom of the treasure chest and it is hoped the generous spirit of the local residents of Marmora and surrounding district will again be displayed in assisting in this worthy cause.

Of the loot, postmaster Charles Corcoran said only $100 was in cash. The stamps were negotiable.

Finds Stony Path To Artist Career

Vancouver, (CP) — Suzanne Pugh, comely English girl, has worked at numerous jobs since coming to Canada—at everything from logging camp "flunky" to mountain-maker. And she's still trying for an artist's career.

Since she left the J. Arthur Rank cartoon studios in England two years ago, she has been a bus conductress, photographer, waitress, cook, berry picker, apple thinner and gardener.

She hitch-hiked as far afield as Queen Charlotte Islands where she worked in a logging camp. "How they can eat!" she remarked. "I peeled the potatoes. . ."

The mousetrap making was a sideline to fruit-picking in the Okanagan Valley. Mice plagued orchards this year so pickers started making traps.

"They were big mice, like rats. They sat under trees in families saying 'eek'."

Suzanne kept up with her cartoon work by drawing for children in homes where she worked. "They love imaginative things. . . They really want some sleepy old bees under daisies around their beds and some fat ducklings in the bathroom."

She said she would like to see hospitals, schools and homes make more use of whimsy. "Give me a nursery wall and I'll go to work."

She decided at once to Canada after seven years in the Women's Auxiliary Air Force. As she chatted with a reporter here her hands were busy doodling whimsical beetles and bad-tempered owls.

"They're pretty good company," she smiled, "but so far in Canada they keep me pretty hungry."

END OF BUDGET DEBATE LOOMS; C.C.F. MOTION LOST

Conservatives Vote With Government

Ottawa, Nov. 4 — (CP) — A C. C. F. want-of-confidence motion in the government calling for immediate tariff reduction was defeated 169 to 19 Thursday night as the Commons neared the end of the budget debate.

The C. C. F. received Social Credit support while the Progressive Conservatives lined up with the Liberals to reject the motion. It asked the government to give immediate consideration to a reduction of tariffs sufficient to encourage an increase in imports from the United Kingdom and other sterling areas."

The motion had been presented Oct. 21 by Ross Thatcher (CCF — Moose Jaw), first Speaker for his party in the budget debate.

Rejection of the motion now clears the way for discussion and Conservative want-of-confidence Conservative want-of-confidence motion.

This motion, introduced by Hon. Earl Rowe (PC — Dufferin - Simcoe), asks the government to invite Commonwealth countries to a conference to work out arrangements for preserving "those traditional markets on which jobs and opportunities for Canadians very largely depend."

Women Urge Appointment Of One of Their Sex to L.C.B.

Toronto, Nov. 4 — (CP) — Appointment of a woman do the Ontario Liquor Control Board was urged Thursday night in a declaration of policy adopted by a rally of several thousand Ontario women representing scores of women's groups.

The gathering, held in downtown Massey Hall under sponsorship of the Ontario Provincial Council of Women, was called for a conference with the Ontario government to discuss the sale and use of liquor! It suggested that the province set up a body to study the operation of laws governing liquor handling.

Speakers were Dr. Charlotte Whitton, Ottawa social worker; Mrs. Edgar Bates, Dean of Women at McMaster University, Hamilton; and Mrs. J. R. Fuisher of St. Thomas, president of the Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario.

Dr. Whitton told the rally, which filled the auditorium and overflowed into nearby Metropolitan United Church, that Ontario citizens, particularly mothers, are "a bit illogical and irresponsible" in calling on the government to enforce in licenced premises legal provisions ignored in private homes.

Can be Avoided

"It is this sort of careless and casual growth in the social use of alcoholic beverages, often by well-ordered, disciplined and moderate persons that calls for effective education in the regular school system as to the nature and use of alcohol," she added. "Only so can these social costs be avoided or reduced."

K'rs. Bates said a survey showed that 65 per cent of adults in Canada use alcohol and that five per cent develop an illness from its use.

Mrs. Fuicher advocated closing down all premises that serve intoxicating beverage to men and women. She said:

"There are just extremists or cranks when we take up arms against any abuse if it is because somebody's habit is going to get our citizens, both young and old . . . Is it not stupidity to open the gates and not protect our youth and, at the same time, to license liquor premises to corrupt them?"

ENTRANCE EXAMS ABOLISHED IN ONTARIO SCHOOLS

Radical Changes Made In Educational System

St. Thomas, Nov. 4 — (CP)— Ontario plans a radical change in its education system that will wipe out the division elementary and high schools and reorganize the traditional setup of grades and courses.

Education Minister Porter announced the new system in an address Thursday night that also disclosed changes in be made in curricula and teaching methods. He said some of the changes will come into effect all the beginning of the 1950 school term next September; others will take several years.

Speaking to a meeting of 250 St. Thomas and Elgin teachers, he outlined this five-point program:

1. No more high - school - entrance examinations.

2. Reorganization of the present 13-grades into four divisions — primary, junior, intermediate and senior — to eliminate the dividing line between primary and junior schools.

3. Redistribution of the teaching load in the higher divisions by transferring certain subjects.

4. Shifting the responsibility for outlining the courses in elementary schools to the local municipal level.

5. Special changes in various school subjects to meet changing needs and conditions, "more abreast of a changing world.

Govt. to Test Validity Before Supreme Court

Allows Landlords to Charge More for Specific Types

Ottawa, Nov. 4 — (CP) — The government has eased rental controls, allowing landlords to charge between 20 and 25 per cent extra on specific types of accommodation on which leases are coming up for renewal.

The boost was announced last night in the Commons by Finance Minister Abbott. He said the government will test the validity of rent-control legislation before the Supreme Court of Canada. If the controls are ruled valid, the government will seek an extension beyond the termination date of March 31 next.

The rentals increase also permits a jump of a flat 20 per cent on rooms, flats and similar accommodation in which toilet facilities are shared.

Landlords are given more leeway in obtaining premises for their own use.

Mr. Abbott said he will write the provinces to advise them that question of the validity of the wartime control legislation will be placed before the Supreme Court for a ruling. This will give them time to "stand by" with provincial legislation to take over controls if the court finds the controls invalid.

Meanwhile, any provision that wants to assume control of rental regulations will be assisted by the federal government, said Mr. Abbott.

This was a reiteration of government willingness to permit the provinces to undertake rent control, announced by Mr. Abbott a year ago.

Making Careful Study

Most provincial governments apparently are making a careful study of the rent control changes, before announcing their reaction to them. Premier Johnson of British Columbia declined to comment, while Premier Frost of Ontario and several other premers were not immediately available for their reaction.

Welfare Minister J. H. Sturdy was the first provincial cabinet minister to comment. He said Saskatchewan hopes "the federal government will retain rent controls. If they vacate the field through a Supreme Court ruling, then we will be prepared to enter the field."

The rental-ceiling changes, effective Dec. 15 next:

Coal Operators Expect Call To Govt. Sponsored Talks

Washington, Nov. 4 (AP) — Some United States soft-coal operators said today they expect to be called soon to government-sponsored talks on how to end the coal strike, now in its 6th week.

A highly-placed government official also said such a move is likely today or tomorrow.

Cyrus S. Ching, federal mediation service director, was reported considering several possible moves aimed at getting the deadlocked coal controversy back started again.

An official close to President Truman said Thursday night that the Truman administration's policy in dealing with both the coal and steel strikes is to assist the disputing parties in all possible way to reach agreements without

Rent Highlights

Ottawa, Nov. ——(CP)—Highlights of Finance Minister Abbott's announcements on rental regulations:

The government wants to abolish rent-control eventually but prefers to do it on its own time and in its own way.

The government has decided to refer the question of validity of rental regulations to the Supreme Court.

If the regulations are declared valid, the government plans to extend rent-control beyond March 31, 1950.

If the regulations are declared invalid, the government will ask the provinces to prepare "stand-by" provincial rent regulations.

The government remains willing to vacate the rent-control field in any province that asks in formal request.

Rentals for rooms in which a tenant must share toilet facilities or other similar equipment may be increased 20 per cent.

Landlords of accommodation to which tenants share toilet facilities may terminate any lease on six months' notice.

A 20-per-cent increase on rents on unheated, self-contained dwellings is permitted in exchange for a one-year lease.

Two-year leases agreed upon by tenants and landlords may be signed without specific approval of the rentals administrator.

Landlords who owned accommodation before Nov. 1, 1949, can gain possession on six months' notice if they want the accommodation for their own use.

The new regulations become effective Dec. 15, 1949.

Czech President Warns Church

Prague, Nov. 4. (AP) —Czechoslovakia's communist president Klement Gottwald today warned Roman Catholic leaders to stop what he called "anti-state politica activities" if they wanted to see peace between church and state.

The Roman Catholic hierarchy last week bowed to government pressure and ordered nuns and monks to accede—with reservations—to the new Church Control Act, making them state civil servants responsible to the government for their salaries.

Gottwald told a correspondent from the French Communist newspaper L'Humanite that accord between his government and the hierarchy of Roma "is possible only when the church hierarchy stops their anti-state political activities and devote themselves to their religious mission."

The interview was distributed by the official Czechoslovak news agency

Railway Official Denies Safety Regulations Ignored

Ottawa, Nov. 4 (CP)—Railway officials were scheduled today to continue arguments before the board of transport commissioners that adequate maintenance crews already are provided to look after the country's rail roadbeds.

Officials of the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways are expected to be applicants before the board that would force them to employ more men for railway-section gangs.

The appeal was first made by the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employees (T.L.C.) whose members in the first three days of the five-day-old hearing contended that short-staffed section gangs were unable to carry out safety regulations and laid themselves open to physical injury as a result.

E. M. Curley, general manager of the C.P.R.'s eastern division, testified Thursday that this year would adversely affect the company's obligation to provide economic and efficient transportation. The board, he contended, increase safety.

His testimony was based by R. A. Emerson (of Montreal), the ginger of track for the C. P. R. Emerson, who observes the fast tradicting that of section gang foremen appearing before the board earlier in the week on behalf of the Brotherhood, Mr. Emerson and trains could safely pass over track on which "shimmy" operations had not been done track — were being carried out.

Neither was it an unsafe practice, he said, to observe "flagging" rules, nor was it a breach of them if one section foreman and his set up "manual flagging" protection. Sections "flag" trains to foreman had instructed to do so.

The foreman had testified that he had not "been given enough men on their gangs to assign men to flagging duties and could adversely affect the com-still get work done.

Soviet Troops' Foray Into Iran Is Reported

Firing lasted several hours, but no casualties were reported. The Russians withdrew when Iranian reinforcements arrived.

Iranians have accused the Russians of violating the frontier in recent months of violating the frontier.

TEN AIRMEN KILLED IN CRASH NEAR BERMUDA

Superfortress, Crippled by Engine Trouble, Catches Fire

Hamilton, Bermuda, Nov. 4—(CP)—A B-29 superfortress, crippled by engine trouble, crashed into the sea a mile from shore Thursday night. The big plane caught fire after hitting the water and all 10 United States airmen aboard were killed.

Four crew members managed to jump out after the stricken bomber plowed into the water but one died of burns a few minutes later. The three survivors were rescued by an oil company executive in a rowboat.

Bermudian eye - witching from shore could hear the screams of the others trapped in the blazing ship.

Col. Jack Merrill, commander at Kindley Field, said the pilot of the plane had turned back from a weather observation flight when one of its four engines failed. Losing altitude, the disabled plane crashed before Kindley Field but was unable to land because another plane was on the runway, Merrill said.

Unable to regain altitude on three engines, the ship crashed into the sea.

London, Ont., Nov. 4. (CP) — A man and a woman were arrested by police early today shortly after Edward Riley, 43, of Munroey was found fatally wounded in a laneway on the Chippawa Creek Road, and died about 30 minutes after police arrived.

Riley's wife, Jessie, whose house Riley was found, and Frances Smith, both Muncey Indians, are scheduled to appear in County Magistrate's Court today.

Both Riley's face was bloody covered with blood from cuts on his forehead. An ax was found nearby, and Riley's face was smear marks on it.

Ontario School Boards Voice Approval of New Education Plan

Toronto, Nov. 4—(CP)—Officials of Ontario school boards expressed general approval of the new education plan for the province announced Thursday night by Education Minister Dana Porter.

William Gilmour, chairman of York township board of education, and vice chairman of the Association of Public School Boards of Ontario, said the most surprising announcement in the government's speech was the lack of any reference to the Royal Commission on Education. He said the speech might have been an effort to "test Pierton Public School Board, said: "if they set down a basic formula, grade by grade, for elementary courses and permit the board to fill in regional ideas, then I say certainly." He said he would not like to see too much latitude given the board in preparing new courses."

Mrs. M. B. Seldon, chairman of the Newmarket Public School Board, said the plan would "throw things into chaos for a while." However, she added, when the dust of reorganization settles, advanced students would have the opportunity to complete their education at a faster pace, instead of being held back by slower pupils.

FILM TO BE SHOWN AT BRIDGE STREET UNITED CHURCH

The epic victory of a brave man's faith is told in the film, "I Am with You", which will be shown at Bridge Street United Church at the evening worship service, Rev. D. C. Amos stated Sunday.

The picture is indeed an extraordinary film, technically superb, exquisite photography, skillful direction and sincerity mark every scene and the Swedish film industry. When a courageous man and his faith struggling to follow God's will finds that his path leads to personal tragedy, what can he believe? Is answered with startling clarity in the film to be shown. The production was supervised by the Church of Sweden and the religious customs shown are in the tradition of the Swedish Lutheran Church.

The film was photographed in Southern Rhodesia in Africa by one of Sweden's outstanding producers, combining adventure and suffering with glimpses of primitive rituals and it is a profoundly inspiring religious drama.

Sulphide Grocer Given One Month For Receiving

Convicted on a charge of receiving stolen goods in connection with the York Trading Company grocery thefts, Arthur Kleinsteuber, Sulphide grocer, was sentenced one month in jail when he appeared in city magistrate's court today before Magistrate T. V. Wills.

Kleinsteuber pleaded not guilty to the charge several weeks ago and had the case enlarged until today. He was defended by Robert Collins of Tweed. Nine others including seven employees of York Trading were previously given jail terms ranging from one to three months, when they pleaded guilty.

Four witnesses were called by Crown Attorney K. G. Duncan. These included K. W. Huntley, manager of York Trading; Mrs. Dafoe and Wilbur Sherry, former employees of the firm, and Police Constable Cliff Hubbs.

Mr. Dafoe and Mr. Sherry identified the bill of sale Mr. Kleinsteuber sugar which had been sold to them. Mr. Dafoe said he had sold Kleinsteuber 100 lbs of sugar for $5, while Sherry said he had sold Kleinsteuber five ten-pound bags of sugar for 43 cents. Neither had not turned over to the company.

Inspector Hayes said he had visited Kleinsteuber's premises and had recovered 90 pounds of sugar. He said Kleinsteuber had admitted this was the sugar which had been purchased from "Kitner".

In pronouncing sentence Magistrate Wills said he was unaware the sugar had been stolen as it had been purchased at considerably below market value.

Harold McMaster, of St. John, New Brunswick, pleaded guilty to a charge of breaking and entering and was remanded one week for sentence. McMaster was found in the city hall council chambers by the janitor and was turned over to the police.

Grand Master Of I.O.O.F. Pays Official Visit

"The best is not too good for Oddfellows," stated Reg. Thrush of Chapleau, Ont., Grand Master of the Independent Order of Oddfellows for Ontario, speaking to a banquet tendered to him by lodges in District 47, which includes Picton, Trenton, Brighton and Belleville, held in the I.O.O.F. rooms Thursday night. Mr Thrush was making the Grand Master's official visit to the district and it is the first time in four years that the grand master was received in Belleville.

Before the meeting, a banquet was held in honor of the Grand Master with the local Rebekahs serving. Following the meal a toast was proposed to the Grand Lodge and the Rebekah Assembly by the Deputy Grand Master for district 45, W. J. Woods, of Tweed.

Cobalming with his address, Mr. Thrush pointed out that the phrase, "The best is not too good for Oddfellows," was the simplest description of the motto he had chosen for the order. He further explained that if something was needed for the Oddfellow function that the best could be obtained was what was wanted.

Outlines Program

The Grand Master went on to briefly outline a 23-point program for Oddfellow. He pointed out that the first point on that program was the simplest description of the motto. "Let everything be done decently and in order." If you do not have such a program," he said, "it should be given serious consideration."

Try to Make News

He stated that the power of the press should be kept in mind. "Make news," he declared, "and the newspapers will be only too glad to publish it." The speaker lamented the fact that business was not always the first page news the four walls of the lodge room and therefore the public did not know of the good work being done by the order.

Mr. Thrush seemed to give worthy citizens an opportunity to join your lodge," he declared. The Grand Master pointed out that if his listeners loved Oddfellowship as they do, they would want the friends they loved to obtain the fellowship of the Order. He stated that nothing should be overlooked with respect to increasing the membership.

He pointed out that a very important point on the program of a lodge near the U.S. border should be planned visits between Canadian lodges and United States lodges. Mr. Thrush said that such inter-lodge visits would do much to foster international goodwill which we sorely need today."

In closing Mr. Thrush said "remember you cannot be a true Oddfellow or Rebekah unless you are grateful to your Maker, faithful to your country and fraternal to your fellow man."

Deputy Grand Master for district 47, Brother George E. Kerr was chairman of the meeting.

Highway Signs In City Moved

Employees of the Ontario Department of Highways are in the city today effecting replacement of the highway directional signs.

Two-Hour Parking Meters Installed On Pinnacle St.

Giving shoppers an additional hour of shopping without the necessity of returning to their parked autos in fact the city's new two-hour parking meters are now in the course of being installed on Pinnacle Street. The recommendation for the change to two-hour meters on Pinnacle Street was passed in council some weeks ago.

The new mechanism will take one cent pieces up to and including the first hour for the convenience of motorists stopping only a brief time. If the additional hour is required a five cent piece must be inserted as one cent pieces will not work after the first 60 minutes. Two nickles can be used to provide for the two-hour parking time.

'One of Vilest' Offences Brings Ten-Year Term

Toronto, Nov. 4. (CP)—Ronald Renshaw, 33, found guilty on Thursday of committing a serious offence involving a 20-year-old girl, in his car last March 29, today was sentenced to ten years in penitentiary by Mr. Justice Schroeder.

"Your case is one of the vilest I have ever had to try," said Mr. Justice W. F. Schroeder. You made a vicious attack on a girl of good character, almost young enough to be your daughter. I would not be doing my duty to society if I did not impose a severe sentence. Men of your type are a menace to society and to the decent womenhood of this country."

Gordon's Address Stirs Questioning In Commons

Ottawa, Nov. 4—(CP)—Question of whether Donald Gordon's address in New York last Monday constituted Canadian government policy was bandied in the Commons Thursday.

Prime Minister St. Laurent, replying to a question by T. L. Church (PC-Toronto Broadview), said the speech delivered by the deputy governor of the Bank of Canada "does not purport to be a statement of policy".

Later, during the budget debate, George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said the address may not officially be a statement of government position but it amounted to the same thing.

Mr. Gordon, addressing a Foreign Trade Association, said there can be no permanent solution to the dollar shortage in Europe until the United States, while Mr. Drew was advocating that Canada call a conference of Commonwealth nations to look for a solution of commonwealth trade problems.

Mr. Drew's contention was that solution of the Commonwealth problem would set a pattern for solution on a world scale.

Mr. Drew suggested at one point that the government at last realized that Canada's trade problems constitute a "crisis".

Finance Minister Abbott interjected that no minister had used the word "crisis."

"If they didn't", replied Mr. Drew, they failed to use a word that adequately described the situation in their several admissions on the subject of trade.

Mr. Abbott said that Mr. Gordon's speech does not necessarily constitute government policy despite the fact that he has agreed with the settlements made by Mr. Gordon. Copies of the speech had been sent to him simply as a matter of courtesy, not to be approved by the government.

Mr. Drew said that under Canada's Parliamentary system, the expressions of any minister are taken to represent the views of the government. Since Mr. Abbott agreed with Mr. Gordon's views, he would assume that Mr. Gordon's speech tallied with government feelings.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 4 — (CP)—Base metals returned to the spotlight on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Brisk buying following news of an increase in the price of copper lifted leading industrials into new high ground for the year.

Otherwise the market was practically at a standstill. Industrials were also balanced. Western oils and golds tended higher on small gains.

Volume for the first four hours was 600,000 shares, about 125,000 shares more than Thursday's similar period.

Increased copper prices following on the heels of recent increases in lead and zinc brought in the increased buying in base metals. The current advance began Tuesday, bogged down Wednesday and Thursday on pressure from profit takers and resumed today by climbing to the highest price level of the year.

Noranda, East Sullivan, Sherritt Gordon, International Nickel and Quemont were among the leading gainers.

Papers eased fractions from Thursday's advances and utilities, liquors and textiles were down. Steels continued climbing and foods and refining oils brighened.

Senior golds were slightly higher and Sullivan Consolidated, with an interest in East Sullivan moved strongly reflecting the advancing base metals.

PRODUCE MARKET

Toronto, Nov. 4 (CP)—Produce prices quoted on the spot market this morning: Churning cream was two cents higher at 62 cents POS, 66 delivered.

Attlee Says Russia Using U.N. Vets For Own Politics

London, Nov. 4 — (AP) — Prime Minister Attlee says Russia is using its United Nations veterans as an "instrument of power politics and for furthering the imperialistic aims" of the Soviet Union.

Speaking Thursday night at a United Nations rally in suburban Walthamstow, the prime minister charged that Russia and her satellites sabotaged peace and frustrated the work of the U.N.

"Despite all their professions," Attlee said, "that group of powers in Eastern Europe who obey the orders of the Kremlin are anti-democratic."

In a brief review of Eastern Europe, Attlee said Czechoslovakia was "a shining example of democratic practice between the wars" — now was "reduced to the status of one of the countries of Bulgaria, Poland and Romania, which have never had much more than a facade of democracy."

"On the other hand," the prime minister continued, "Yugoslavia, although still very far from parallel in the freedom which is the heritage of the west, has made substantial progress on the complete domination of the masters of the Kremlin."

BATTLE TO DEATH

Chinese Nationalists Will Bomb All Merchantmen Found In Communist-Held Ports

Hong Kong, Nov. 4. (Reuters) — The Chinese Nationalist government today formally advised British authorities in Hong Kong that its planes would bomb merchantmen found in Communist-held Chinese ports.

The authorities here immediately radioed warnings to British ships on the China coast.

Both the Hong Kong government and the Royal Navy received advice of the Nationalists' intentions through separate official channels. It is believed similar advice has been sent to other governments.

Small Part Canada's A-Effort In Secret Class - - Mackenzie

Ottawa, Nov. 4 — (CP)—Only a small fraction of Canada's A-effort is classified as a secret category, Dr. C. J. Mackenzie told the Commons' first atomic committee today. He is chairman of the Atomic Energy Control Board.

At its first meeting, the committee:

1. Named George McIlraith, parliamentary assistant to Trade Minister Howe, as chairman.

2. Agreed to meet twice next week and then spend two days at the Chalk River atomic project 125 miles west of Ottawa the week after.

3. Heard Dr. Mackenzie promise to tell them everything, with secret information strictly off the record and earmarked to go no further.

Asked Dr. Mackenzie explain that' because of an international agreement he was prevented from telling the press along this time "but we hope that in a very short time that will be possible."

The agreement is with the United States and the United Kingdom.

Dr. Mackenzie said Chalk River's scientists are "very happy" at the appointment of a committee because they are anxious to get a body of informed opinion built up among public men.

There were "a lot of problems up there" that should be appreciated. But it was a project that "eventually, not in my time, is going to be a very, very important place."

MARMORA

Historic Papers Viewed At 75th Anniversary Supper

Marmora—The seventy-fifth anniversary supper of St. Andrew's United Church was held in St. Andrew's hall on Wednesday evening receiving a large patronage in spite of rain in the district. The Women's Association served a supper in keeping with their traditions.

Between the various sittings, the display of documents and other old effects of the church, which were placed there for inspection by the congregation of last Sunday, proved of interest to many seeing them for the first time. Included in these was a list of subscribers towards the erection of the church which was commenced in 1868 and the Indenture bared in 1869. Another document dealt with the loan of $1,500 for eight years from Canada Permanent Loan and Savings Company, this bearing the date of February 17th, 1873. Other interesting papers were grouped for the years 1875, 1875-1876, and 1890-1892.

Historic Occasion

Following the supper a gathering was held in the town hall, Mayor A. Wilson presiding over a programme given under chairmanship of Rev. G. D. Young, he said the anniversary was a historic occasion for the United Church of Canada to pay tribute and stating that the history of local Methodism was born in 1833 and there was other history dating back to 1862.

Reeve Vincent M. Lynch brought greetings from the citizens as well as his own. He said it was remarkable that St. Andrew's and St. Paul's should be both established in the same year during his residency in Marmora he had known the last ten ministers to serve St. Andrew's and as he had said of St. Paul's on his recent anniversary, so he would say of St. Andrew's, that he wished it all success and prosperity and if spared by God, it would be a pleasure to meet again for the centennial.

Rev. Dean J. M. Brownlie, who was present, tendered congratulations from himself and his parish.

Anniversary Cake Cut

The cutting of the 75th anniversary cake was the next feature. Mrs. Harry Hutchison of the oldest lady members, was entrusted with this duty and as the Zilpherta Lazier pioneer cake section was given to each person at the door also.

Rev. H. C. Vaclavik of the Rawdon charge of the United Church, as guest speaker, gave an entertaining talk on his native Czechoslovakia and the mastering of various handicaps before becoming ordained as a United Church minister. He told of the hardships inflicted on his fellow countrymen after Communism and lauded Canadians he had met in Western Canada, who were outstanding in their devotion to Christian duties in the face of adversities. He also in tendering congratulations, mentioned that two of the churches in his charge were formerly mission stations under the Marmora charge.

Mrs. Vaughan Glover in making her first appearance in the local hall as a violinist, played two selections, with a charm which met with a good ovation.

Cultural Plans Are Suggested To Commission

By DOUGLAS GREEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Regina, Nov. 4 — (CP)—Should Royal Commission on Arts, Letters and Sciences today had before it a suggestion the government should subsidize national organizations and provide scholarships as a means of developing Canadian cultures.

However, the submission from the Saskatchewan Arts Board said, cultural experience must be created in each community by those living there.

"We make a disastrous mistake if we imagine that turning a radio button is a substitute for putting on a play," the brief said.

The submission Thursday by Dr. Steward Basterfield, Dean of Regina College, suggested numerous support through government grants for the CBC and the National Film Board.

It recommended also the formation of a National Arts Board, to be related in its work to the central authority for radio and television.

The Arts Board brief was one of six presented to the Commission during its afternoon sittings.

G. Eamer, general secretary, presented a brief for the Saskatchewan Teachers Federation which urged federal aid for education. It said Canada's central authority must assume responsibility for proper education, "which is the first line of defence for our democratic way of life."

The Regina Arts Centre Association urged the establishment of a Federal Board of Arts, Letters and Sciences to promote Canadian culture through national agencies.

The Saskatchewan Drama League asked for financial help in carrying on its work, and said Regina urgently needed a civic auditorium.

LEGION TO PROTEST

Ottawa, Nov. 4 (CP)—The Canadian Legion next week is expected to protest to the federal government against the changes in rent controls announced Thursday night by Finance Minister Abbott.

In a brief presented to the cabinet in September, the Legion asked that controls be continued for at least another two years.

The Dominion executive of the Legion has an appointment with cabinet officials Nov. 11 and is expected to make a protest then.

'Deadly Weapons' Will be Rested Until Weekend

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Since Chicago police seem to be reading the National Hockey League reports so literally, maybe the sports writers should start a movement to soft-peddle on the synonyms.

Words like "fired" "shot" and "drilled" fit easily into the hockey fans' vocabulary to explain the action of propelling a rubber disk with a hockey stick. But think of their effect in a city that still remembers the meaning Al Capone's crew gave them.

So what do you think, fellows? Is it worth foregoing a synonym to stop those Chicago cops calling hockey sticks "deadly weapons."

That's what Chicago fan George Grbich accused Kenny Reardon and Leo Gravelle of assaulting him with in their Wednesday night Chicago Black Hawks-Canadiens match.

As the Canadiens clipper mechanically explained the start of the rumpus:

"Somebody grabbed me by the nape of my neck so I slashed at him by and instinctively I swung my stick. I thought it had busted against the boards and I was the most surprised person in the world when I turned around and saw Irl bloodied somebody."

The bloodied somebody was Grbich, the 33-pound Chicago steel worker whose rinkside friends laid the charges against the two Canadien players. It took $200 bonds signed by Black Hawks President Bill Tobin to bail them out in time to catch the train back to Montreal.

Merged With Reardon

Grbich was later photographed in Canadiens dressing room, a big bandage covering his 10-stitch scalp wound. He said: It's over amiably with Reardon, All was forgiven, he said "I'm not mad anybody."

But those assault-with-deadly-weapon charges are still on the Chicago police blotter for Reardon and Gravelle to answer Nov. 14 when Canadiens go back to Chicago.

At that, maybe those charges would be more appropriate if laid by Big Bill Durnan against the Black Hawks. The Chicago players used their deadly weapons to give less than Turk Broda has in eight contests.

Jack Gelineau, rookie goalie of last place Boston Bruins is the most-assaulted-with-a-deadly weapon netminder. He has given up 37 in Boston's nine games.

Campbell Warns Fans

As an aftermath of the Chicago rumpus, N.H.L. president Clarence Campbell Thursday warned fans to stay off the ice unless they wish to get hurt. During the playoffs, at least one fan was reported to have rushed onto the slippery surface to chase some Canadiens.

"If people go looking for trouble, they'll always get it," commented Campbell. "They've got protective screens around the Chicago rink and several others.

"And anyway, a man without skates is a pretty inadequate citizen on the ice."

Rents Easing Definite Shock To Veterans

Montreal, Nov. 4 — (CP) — Norman Gillespie, chairman of the Provincial command of the Canadian Legion, said here Thursday night the announcement of termination of rental control regulations by the government Thursday came as a definite shock to the Legion.

"The overwhelming majority of this nature are inclined to take away our belief in our form of democratic government," he said.

"There is a growing feeling among veterans that the government has broken faith with those who laid down their lives for their country to protect democratic rights," Mr. Gillespie added.

R. J. Lamoureaux, sub-district treasurer of the United Steelworkers of America (C. C. L.) said:

Southerby Given Ten-Year Term For Manslaughter

Toronto, Nov. 4 (CP)—Harvey Louis Southerby, 20, of Windsor, convicted of manslaughter in the slaying of Leslie William Hern, last summer, today was sentenced to 10 years in Kingston penitentiary.

Southerby originally was charged with murder of Hern, whose body was found under the boardwalk of an east-end beach. The charge was reduced to that of manslaughter last week when he was convicted by an assize court jury.

Southerby's father made a personal plea for mercy for the youth when he appeared on his son's behalf before Mr. Justice Schroeder.

He said "our home will always be open to Harvey when he is waiting for him."

Mr. Justice Schroeder termed Southerby's act "a violent and brutal one".

"WRITING IS AN ADVENTURE"

"Writing a book is an adventure" said one of the great masters of English yesterday in London, Winston Churchill when he was speaking to a crowd of three thousand persons at a national book exhibit where he was presented with the Sunday Times prize of three thousand pounds and gold medal for outstanding contribution to English literature in the year ended last June. The award was made for the first two volumes of his war memoirs "The Gathering Storm" and "Their Finest Hour." Reports give brief selections from his address, enough to entice readers to want to read the entire address, and especially of appeal to that section of the public which is interested in writing. One of his comments was that writers must preserve our language and see it not unduly damaged by modern slang."

His remarks on the writing of a book are especially of interest for its truth and its humor. To begin with, it is a toy and an amusement, "Then it becomes a mystery. And then it becomes a torment. Then it becomes a tyrant and in the last phase when you are reconciled to your servitude, you kill the monster.

Mr. Churchill is a master of his mother tongue, an English of great importance that he has played not orator of such great importance that he has played not only by his own words by his gift of oratory one of the great roles of modern times and become a maker of history. He has helped to make the world on the democratic pattern. He is doubly great as a master of English and as orator and maker of history by participating in the great events of this age as a leader of the greatest influence.

IN NOVEMBER

Fine weather which marked October is extending into November and the first few days of the eleventh month have been with just a touch of frost to be expected at any time after the autumn is well advanced.

November is a month which is regarded as one of the gloomy months of the year. One poet says of it, "the melancholy days are come, the saddest of the year." To most people this would seem unduly critical for November has in spite of its dulness charm and often mild weather instead of the severer types of conditions prevails.

The poets speak of "dry leaves upon the wall, which flap like rustling wings" and of the "melancholy of the year" and of "sere and dead or sadly drooping to earth" or sing of the "rattling showers of November rain."s Another refers to the "wild November," "a vell of rain" and "her face full of pain."

But other poets see something besides dulness and rain and chill. Helen Jackson Hunt notes that

"November woods are bare and still;
November days are clear and bright
Each noon burns up the morning's chill,
The morning's snow is gone by night;
Each day my steps grow slow, grow light,
As through the woods I reverent creep
Watching all things lie "down to sleep."

But November brings the year to that month which enshrines Christmas. It is a preliminary step to that event which means so much to all.

In the succeeding scenes of the year the months play their part, no two scenes being the same, no two months imitating one another. November like the others has its own characteristics.

THE BRASS POLE

In New York a little girl of 8 years, who found magic and wonder in the neighborhood fire station, saw her chance to defeat the major frustration of her young life. When an alarm came in, and the truck had departed from an empty station, she tiptoed upstairs and slid down the pole. But the results were lamentable. Not only were her hands burned by friction, but she landed violently on the rubber mat at the bottom, where she was discovered unconscious from concussion. Later reports advised that she was recovering and would be made an honorary member of the station's company, with one condition—no more pole sliding. — Hamilton Spectator.

MOTHER COUNSEL

Dear daughter, bark to what I say,
"To catch a man you can
He must believe who comes to woo
That he is running after you.
A man to marriage must be led,
But do not get too far ahead.
By neither look nor sigh betray
That you're the trapper; he the prey.
Man is the creature maidens hunt
And catch by keeping well in front.
For love will cool and ardor die
If they start running after him.
Of course, you must look back to see
How far away, how close is he.
Stay just in sight; depend upon
Your lovely charms to lure him on.
Remember, when the chase begins,
Man likes to think "tis he who wins."

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

If there is one thing a burglar does not like to encounter on his visits it is unseemly noise. A woman's scream is more terrifying to a burglar than a policeman's whistle told by well informed criminals. Some years ago, there was the outbreak of gunsafe robberies in eastern Canada, and a bright detective sergeant in the boundary of police whittles to the fair sex. They were told to keep every lighted store and stationery shop. And the outbreak of molestation died instantly. He was found in a back street, likes to hear his advances met by the fierce blast of a whistle.

In the suburbs of the city in which I dwell, a fine new hospital is being erected, and much material is lying about. Only a few or five shacks set up for the architects and engineers are minded by a solitary night watchman. On several weeks, the premises have been visited by small groups and couples of young marauders bent on theft of materials; and on one occasion, when the night watchman caught them breaking into one of the shacks, he suffered considerable hurt at their fight before the headlights of the police car, called by citizen neighbors scarred the robbery away.

The night watchman has no telephone. The nearest house is some distance off too far for anything but a loud and shrill whistle. The police sergeant solved the problem, in conversation with the night watchman, the sergeant said:

"You're an ex-service man, aren't you? Ever blow a bugle?"

"By gum, I did!" replied the night watchman, enthusiastically.

"Then buy one," the sergeant recommended the sergeant, "and any time you see lurkers around, let go a blast."

It has worked wonders. A few toots on the bugle devastating the stillly night, and there has not been a single case of theft since for weeks. If there is one thing the criminal elegment hates and fears, it is unseemly noise.

Illiteracy High On List of India's Difficulties

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

India's worst problem is poverty, as Prime Minister Nehru told a North American audience the other day, and I imagine that if he were questioned further he also would put illiteracy high on the list of his vast country's difficulties.

India has many centres of culture, but the great majority of her 300,000,000 souls are ignorant, and indeed many are primitive. Hence the average percentage of literacy is low.

We therefore are about to witness a development of far-reaching importance in the launching of a new program of mass education which Education Minister Maulana Abul Kalam Azad has accepted giving to draft all educated citizens for six months in a drive to reduce illiteracy.

This of course isn't a new idea, but rather is the amplification of one which has been employed on a much smaller scale by private agencies, including India itself.

Gandhi herself for years past has had community centres in the villages, and I have visited the underprivileged have been afforded educational facilities.

Loosely Run

Heretofore, apart from private institutions, many of the primary schools of this country have been loosely run by local authorities which have received state funds. As a result primary education, where it has existed at all, has been provided for only half or nine variety.

This statement should be qualified by recording that there have been efficient schools in the important centres of culture. However, most of the population lives in tiny villages and is indeed poverty.

Apart from formal schooling, a considerable part of the population has acquired a certain amount of "learning" in an unusual manner. Much of India's rich fairy tales, fables, love stories, marital exploits — has been preserved by word of mouth for untold generations these stories have been relayed to the people by professional reciters.

One important innovation in recent years has been the installation of radio sets in many villages, with the government — one set to a community. After the work is done the villagers gather about this set and listen to a program which is both entertaining and instructive.

It would be difficult to overemphasize the educational value of this radio project for the people. It's significance of course lies in the fact that only by education can you import information to the unfortunate who can't read the written language.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rose

Messrs. Levin and Smith
1 East 57th Street
New York, N.Y.
Dear Herman and Oliver,

The other day, as you know, my wife bought a one-per-cent interest in "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," the new musical they are producing, and since we've known each other a long time I don't feel it only fair to let you know that you're in for a batful of headaches.

Perhaps I can best explain by telling you what happened to the last time my missus invested a few dollars in a Broadway show.

In 1943, when I was getting ready to produce "Carmen Jones," I let Eleanor buy a rooting interest in the show, first pointing out to her that it was a sure-fire production and she didn't figure to get any profits on her investment for at least six months.

"Why don't you double the price of the ticket and cut it down to three months?" said my wife.

I chuckled, but the chuckle got lost in my throat when I saw the glint in Eleanor's eyes — a glaborous, glacial, gladiatorial glint that means, "This time the show is going to make money or my name isn't Oscar Hammerstein."

The day "Carmen Jones" went into rehearsal, Eleanor made an important fact about married life: A wife is always on particular interest in the fripperies of finance, but give her so much as a nickel's common stock and she'll start telling the president of the company where to head in the way if the president also happens to be her husband, he's lucky if he gets off with a cold cut on the ledge, washing the office windows.

When the estimates for the "Carmen Jones" scenery and costumes came in, Eleanor moved right in. "Why scenery?" she wanted to know. "Why not just put them on a bare stage and it can be over in half the time?" I was equally helpful when it came to costumes, props, lighting equipment and advertising. However, on one occasion she did save me plenty of money. When Lee Shubert offered to rent me a theatre for a per cent less than I thought I was entitled to, I quickly brought him around by threatening to send Eleanor up to see him.

The week before we opened in New York, she telephoned George Abbott, director of the musical with us in the country. "Let's not have any nonsense about this show," she said. "I'll give 'Carmen Jones' a mid review, no dessert; poor review, no blankets; an out-and-out pan, wet sheets."

Of course, I don't want you to think that I'm a henpecked husband. Eleanor, Mrs. R., as you know, is one of the nicest gals in your town, and as generous as bank night in a movie theatre with a free turkey. But like all women, the minute she has a folding-money interest in a business deal, she wants to know in double-entry detail what her cut is going to be, and if it's going to be so long, and when she can get more. Now I'm not against a few to this transformation, and I can assure you it's one of the most wonderful in the world. The changes in the whole gamut of feminine psychology are terrific.

So, unless I miss my guess, you will shortly be hearing from Eleanor, Mrs. Enterprenski, not purely in the interests of economy, but also in the hope of some interesting suggestions. For instance, she may notice that you've produced a show in open, haven't much to do, and wonder if you'd like some help with it. And if she does, you fellows might save yourselves a lot of last-minute grief by going down to the Brooks Costume Company right away and getting a couple of usher's uniforms that really fit.

Last night, she asked me if the opening night take in New York was likely to be.

"I hope so," I told her. "It depends on how big the press list is."

"I hope those bums don't think they're going to get free passes to my show," said Eleanor.

Fraternally,
Billy Rose.

THE FIRST BIG MISTAKE MOTHER MAKES

Usually when the baby is days old somebody interferes.

Mother herself, the Saleysgamp in attendance, the kindly but meddlesome neighbors or sometimes, I regret to acknowledge, the doctor may be the meddler. Anyway, it seems to be the fate of a good many babies to get that first dose of castor oil before they have had time to adjust themselves to the strange new environment. And that first dose of physic is the cause of the "constipation" that will harass the luckless victim from then on.

The physician with a reasonable knowledge of pharmacology and therapeutics uses castor oil, if at all, as a remedy in certain cases of acute diarrhea, and then only for the specific purpose of sweeping out the irritating or perhaps-spoiled or contaminated food which has caused the trouble and then locking the bowel to give it a rest for a while.

This kind of use affect is the characteristic action of castor oil which makes it entirely unsuitable in cases and unsuitable in cases of simple constipation.

There is a common notion, too, that because it is an oily substance castor oil is at least harmless in any circumstance. This is an illusion the nations are full of. Contributing to the hapless infant. Croton oil is an oily substance too, but dangerously irritating.

Again, notwithstanding numerous warnings given the public by medical and health authorities about the danger of strong purgative cathartic in the early stage of appendicitis—that is, pain in the neighbor or friend diagnose the distress as "indigestion," "cramps" or vague "bellyache" and give a dose of castor oil in the straw that turns the camel's back and starts many cases. Like other cathartics castor oil stirs things up and sets up irritation and pain and inflammation from the area of the appendix to the rectum and causes onset of general peritonitis.

You see, the persistent morbid obsession that physic (laxative) does good by "cleaning out the system" is not "common sense" at all. It is just childish fancy.

Now I have ignobly lost enough bedside debates with the well-whiskered Saleysgamp or Grandma herself upon what to do or not to do for baby's stomach-ache, to say the problem is simple to me. And I doubt if more than one out of a score of expectant or potential parents could not by the moral courage to protect the baby from that first dose of castor oil at the hands of the family or Dille Co.)

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

A PAT ON THE NOSE

Even a race horse goes better after a pat on the nose. I have noted that a baseball or football player puts on an extra effort after a pat on the back by his associates or associates. It's encouragement that keeps us all from failing. Again I say, and once said: "I can live for two months on a good compliment."

I have not yet met anyone who did not appreciate a good word of praise. How long do you think a good play would last if there were no applause given? Or one who got no praise for the good work that they do? Without giving inferior work or else go where they do get praise.

The late Frank Bacon once told me that he took his play "Lightnin'" to a producer to whom he started to read it, but before he got very far the producer interrupted moaning. So he got up and took it to a producer who listened and—I'll say it was a sensational success. Smilingly he remarked: "He paid me a million dollars!"

Employers should learn that in praising good work by their employees they are merely advancing dividends to them, for it not only encourages good work, but in service that, good, service, advancement, etc. Some of these talks, encouragement is orgone to the soul. Let me close with the late Alexander Woollcott gave in a radio broadcast about Hilbert's book "Good Bye, Mr. Chips," that put the book over big and made Hilbert on a good competitor with other books.

"Good Bye, Mr. Chips," that put the book over big and made Hilbert on a good competitor with other books, that but few formerly bought, including myself, had read it—"Lost Horizon." Here was an instance of good work in a long way.

You can lose a great deal in a number of ways, but not in getting praise for good work. Many famous Sir. W. Robertson Nicoll, who was the editor of the British Weekly, and an outstanding lover of good books, once said that he took particular pains in praising the work that a new writer, if it was worthy. And he was careful about criticizing the work of an old writer whose work was below that of former years.

Give credit where credit is due, and honest praise where it is merited, and you will be thrice blessed—especially by your own inward counsel, and by the God who put you in this world.

Sunday School Lesson of the Week

What is God Like?

By ROY L. SMITH

The number of those who say there is no God is relatively small. The average man believes that God exists; vast numbers however do not live as though they were true.

The big problem in the mind of the plain man is not whether or not God is real, but what is God like? It is in answering this question that religious confusion begins.

Dates Make No Difference

There are those scholars who, with some good reason, believe that the last chapters of the book of Isaiah (which include this lesson) were written by some unnamed prophet during the period of the Jews' exile in Babylonia. Many of the historical allusions seem to fit better into that period than into the earlier century of which Isaiah was known to have been a part. And many a violent argument has developed over this question.

The important thing to remember, however, is that the great spiritual principles we find concentrated and explained in these chapters do not depend upon any date for their authenticity. It does not matter, in this sentence, whether these chapters were written by Isaiah during the reign of Hezekiah, the king, or by another prophet who labored among the Jews "by the waters of Babylon." The fact that God can be trusted is true in either case and under either circumstance.

The God of the Terrified

During Isaiah's day a terrible threat hung over the nation during the exile a terrible doom had descended upon them. In each instance the people were faced with a set of circumstances for which, they strongly felt, no match. Unless they could believe in a God who was bigger than their trouble they were utterly hopeless. It is to the prophet's task to teach them that their God was such a God.

In the face of the terrors which fill our skies, and as an antidote for the depression which fills our souls, the teachings of Isaiah are like balm to a sacred body. The quiet confidence of the prophet, his calm faith, and his exalted hope, all have the effect of quieting and stabilizing us. Good religion can perform no higher service for mankind in such an hour than this.

There's My God

Alexander Irvine, an eccentric preacher of a decade or more ago, was called forward in the midst of a meeting of desperate men one evening, and asked to speak. He knew the bitterness of their hearts, and the wickedness against which they revolted. But he stepped forward quietly to the edge of the platform he said "I will speak to you tonight about God."

Instantly there was a cry from the rear of the hall, "Don't talk to us about God. Talk to us about food." Almost immediately the crowd was in an uproar.

Standing very quietly for a little bit, surveying the scene, the ready-witted old Irish parson finally raised his hand for silence and when every tongue was hushed and every eye was riveted upon him, the preacher said, "I wonder which one you would like to have me talk about—the one who comes with a loaf of bread under each arm, or the one who hangs outstretched upon a cross praying for the forgiveness of men."

Instantly he had won them. And for the next thirty minutes he talked to them about the loving mercy and the ever-ready comfort of God.

The Sunday School lesson for November 6: "God Comforts His People," Isaiah 40-41; 43; 5-8; 84; 41; 43:7-9; Luke 4:14-21.

There's my God! He hangs upon a cross dying, rather than to let loose His wrath upon a world made up of confused, misguided, befouled and baffled men.

If any man really wants to know what God is like, there He is! Suffering and praying, loving and laboring, believing in us in spite of us!

And the prophet believed in this kind of a God before Jesus ever gave us the portrait.

Unrecorded Millions Spent On The Business of 'Lobbying'

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Nov. 4 — (CP) — This capital is the centre of a multi – million – dollar business which thrives by telling other people what it thinks they should do.

This sprawling enterprise is the business of "lobbying", through which persons affected by governmental action seek to influence legislation and legislation. It is a business toward which registered organizations already have contributed $40,000,000.

And that recorded amount, congressional experts say, is only a hint of the unrecorded millions spent to influence Congress.

The lobby is largely a United States invention, peculiar to the American parliamentary system.

The dictionary defines it as "persons not members of a legislative body who strive to influence its proceedings by personal agency." One individual "lobbyist" is a member of such a group. The lobbies represent hundreds of groups and industries. The two major lobbies are labor and management. Labor has some 129 registered lobbyists while management—business in all its various phases—has more than 2,000.

But Congress is convinced that the lobby is skin to the iceberg—with most of its ramifications submerged and only a small portion on the surface. To get a clearer picture, the House of Representatives shortly will open an industry lobby operations.

Place For Lobby

As an example, there are at least 3,000 trade associations in the United States, all of which have been formed to enable their members to press their point of view before Congress. Yet, only 125 trade associations are registered as lobbyists.

At the same time, congressional and governmental experts feel that there is a place for the lobby. They contend that there are innumerable fields in agriculture, business, education, labor, and health about which the average Congressman can have little more than knowledge. It is the task of the lobbyist, they say, to keep him informed.

Egansville, Ont., Nov. 4 (CP)— Thomas Irving, 69, of Egansville, Ont., was killed in a freak accident here Thursday.

Mr. Howard grabbed his companion as Mr. Irving started to reach out of the car, but in doing so lost control of the vehicle which hit a tree. The impact caused Mr. Irving to fall from the open door. He suffered a skull fracture.

Coroner Dr. R. L. Reeves said an inquest will be held.

RAWDON

Bill's Garage Formally Opened For Business

Rawdon — (Special) — Completely renovated and with an annex 50 by 22 feet added, "Bill's Garage", Stirling, formerly occupied by Guy Bradshaw, was officially opened last Wednesday evening when approximately 100 residents of Stirling and district attended. The garage is operated by Mr. William Montgomery, Stirling agent for Studebaker.

No expense has been spared by Mr. Montgomery and his new garage is fully equipped to carry a full line of parts and accessories with adequate service facilities to service all makes of vehicles. Above the garage is a modern apartment.

Prior to "open house" at the garage, Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery entertained a number of guests to dinner. These included A. V. Greenley, Bank of Montreal, Bruce Bell, Stirling; George G. Montgomery, Frankford; Messrs. E. A. Simpson, H. W. Gale and Stan Hills of Hamilton; Messrs. Mac Young, A. Flindall and Stan Rogers of Toronto; Frank Bennett, Cobourg and Bruce Smith and Al Blair of Belleville. The hostess was assisted by Mrs. Geo. Montgomery, Mrs. Don Greenley and Mrs. Bruce Bell.

Master of Ceremonies

Bruce Smith as master of ceremonies at "open house" recalled "auld" past life in Stirling and his long association in the garage business. He then introduced "guilty" staff, including Michael Mallory, Willard Fillmore, Kenneth Cole, Gerald Morrison and Bruce Bell, the latter being bookkeeper of the figm. Mr. Smith welcomed the large crowd in attendance and acknowledged donations of prizes which had previously been drawn for. He also introduced the various suppliers' representatives, who were in attendance.

Ernest Simpson, service manager, congratulated Mr. Montgomery on his fine establishment and introduced H. N. Galer, district sales manager for Studebaker. Mr. Stan Hills, district supervisor for F. Goodrich, was introduced by Don McPherson.

The Goodrich film "Rubber Lends a Hand" was then shown showing farmers in many uses to which rubber can be put on the farm and the processing of farm crops. Mr. Galer also showed many ingenious ways in which old rubber could be used for farm work such as children's swings, watering troughs for chickens and Bobby.

Soong Family Divided

(From Windsor Star)

No family in recent history—perhaps in all history—has exercised authority over more people for a longer period than the Soongs. This quartet, one brother and three sisters, have been the power behind the throne in Nationalist China and China is a country of more than 450,000,000 people.

Most notable of the three sisters is Soong Mei-Ling, better known to the western world as Madame Chiang Kai-shek. A second sister is Madame H. H. Kung, whose husband was vice-premier and minister of economic affairs. The third is Madame Sun Yat-Sen-widow of the founder of the Chinese republic.

The brother is T. V. Soong, at various times premier, foreign minister and chairman of the Bank of China. All the Soongs received education in the United States, T. V. at Harvard and Columbia Universities and Mei-Ling at swank Wellesley College.

The Soongs are of the Christian faith, being the daughters of Charles Jones Soong, the basis of whose fortune was made as a publisher of Bibles.

All the Soongs are prodigies of ability. Madame Chiang Kai-shek and her brother speak English in a manner that puts to shame the great majority of those to the language.

Also, they have been opportunists in their numerous financial adventures. Obviously, the Soong sisters "married well", let their feminine charms—and possibly the family fortunes—help them capture the most important men among 50,000,000 Chinese.

Had Sun Yat-Sen lived the died in 1925) his wife would have been the influence behind the throne, as it was, Mei-Ling got the break, and it often has been suggested she wore the trousers in the Chiang Kai-shek home. If she needed any help, she could call on her sisters and T.V.

Now the Soong family is divided against itself. The rump Nationalist government, re-ordered the arrest of Madame Sun Yat-Sen as a Communist or fellow-traveller.

There is nothing particularly new in her attitude, except maybe she has swung even farther to the left. She always has been a leftist, and perhaps was influenced by her late husband. Sun Yat-Sen was unable to control the Kuomintang, the party he founded, socialistically inclined, he had admiration of the masses.

Perhaps if he had lived, China would not be in her present predicament. For the republic he founded would have become a republic and a democracy in fact. He had a feeling for the common people, lacking in the coterie which surrounded Chiang Kai-shek.

But perhaps Madame Sun Yat-Sen is also displaying a bit of the Soong opportunism. If she plays her cards right, a Soong may continue to be an influence in China—in a Communist China.

WEDDINGS

COOPER—STEVENSON

Queen Street United Church, Kingston, was the scene on Saturday of a pretty wedding of wide interest when Mary Minerva daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Millard Stevenson, of Eldorado, became the bride of Norman Morris Cooper of Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Carson Cooper. Baskets of yari-colored gladioli and ferns made a fitting background for the ceremony which was performed by the Rev. H. M. Scrivener, of Kingston.

The wedding music was played by Miss Pearl Meakins, A.T.C.M., of Kingston, and the soloist, the Rev. H. E. Dargan sang before the ceremony, "The Voice That Breathed O'er Eden" and "Always", during the signing of the register.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a charming floor length bridal gown of white slipper satin with scalloped lace, featuring a high crushed yoke, lace at the pointed sleeves and a full skirt with lace hemline. The gathered skirt fell into a long train. The lace veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a heart-shaped headdress of orange blossoms. She wore her mother's hunting case watch, and carried a white Bible covered by a corsage of red rosebuds, with knotted streamers of white satin ribbon and lily of the valley buds.

Mrs. Bruce Gazley, of Midland, Ont., sister of the bride, was matron of honor, gowned in powder blue rayon taffeta, with matching shoulder length veil and mitts. Her gown was fitted by a half band of matching flowers. She carried a large crescent of yellow roses, mixed flowers, and fern, tied with rainbow ribbon.

Miss Ethel Draper, Toronto, and cousin of the bride-groom was bridesmaid, gowned in soft rose rayon taffeta, with matching mitts and rose shoulder length veil held in place by a half band of matching flowers. She carried a crescent bouquet of colorful roses and fern tied with rainbow ribbon.

Little Shirley Dirgan and little Sandra Kerr were flower girls gowned in floor length frocks of soft green and mauve taffeta, respectively, with matching ruffled head and wrist bands of the same. Both carried nosegays of baby mums, with many streamers, and were gold lockets, the gifts of the bride.

Mrs. Mary Gazley, of Midland, was groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. Roy Stevenson, of Eldorado, and Mr. Robert Cooper, of Toronto.

At the reception, which was at Vinny Morrison's Party House, Kingston, the bride's mother wore a gown of sirtoree blue with navy accessories, while the groom chose a corsage of deep pink rosebuds and white gardenia, and during his last recent illness, Mrs. Andrew Kerr, of Kingston, sister of the bride, assumed the receiving duties, wearing a becoming two-piece gown of grey with black accessories and corsage of deep pink roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was gowned in grey with black accessories, and wore a corsage of gardenia and deep pink rosebuds.

The toast to the bride was proposed by the Rev. H. M. Scrivener and responded to by the bridegroom. Miss Ethel Draper, sister of honor and bridesmaids were the recipients of lovely gifts as a token to the little flower girls, and the bridegroom.

For the wedding trip to Montreal, the bride chose an ensemble of brown Bedford cord with navy accessories, while glowing corsage of white gardenias. She wore a blue-bird pin, which is lace of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Cooper will reside in Toronto.

The bride's gift to the matron of honor was a pearl bracelet; to the bridesmaids, Scottish Thistle flower girls, lockets; to the bridegroom, a gold Scottish mantel clock in ship's wheel design.

The groom's gift to his groomsman, an English leather wallet; and to the ushers, matched collar and tie pins.

WOOD—DINGWALL

Tall candelabra candelabra and standards of pure white gladioli and themums were used effectively in the decoration of Deer Park United Church, Toronto, Friday, October 26th, for the marriage at 8 o'clock p.m., of Norah Estella Dingwall, daughter of Mrs. J. Dingwall, Toronto, and Stanley Alexander Wood, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wood, Sr., of Hillier, Ont. The Rev. Arthur Ellis, assisted, minister of Deer Park Church, was the officiating clergyman. The wedding music was played by Miss Shirley Saxe, of Toronto, with Miss Ruby Craig as soloist, singing "The Lord's Prayer" and "I Will Walk Beside You".

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Wilson Dingwall, was most becomingly gowned in a floor length model of white velvet; the bodice styled with a sweetheart neckline, and long tight sleeves, while the skirt featured a short train. A feathered headdress held her fingertip veil, and a cascade bouquet was of crimson roses and fern.

The maid of honor was Miss Greta Dingwall, in a floor length model of apricot velvet with peach colored taffeta. The bridesmaid was Miss Dingwall, groomsman, and in yellow chiffon over peach colored taffeta. Both attendants were sisters of the bride, and they carried vari-colored Colonial bouquets.

The flower girl was Miss Sharon Wood, a sister of the groom, wearing a floor length frock of pink taffeta with matching poke bonnet, and carrying a basket of button 'mums.

Mr. Arnold Rutledge, of Toronto, was the groomsman and the ushers were Messrs. Bill Johnson, of Bloomfield, a cousin of the groom, and Douglas Dingwall of Toronto, a brother of the bride.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at Ogilvie Ward at Bay and St. Joseph Streets, where Mrs. Dingwall and Mrs. Wood Sr., received with the bridal party, for the former wearing an ensemble of English lace crepe with green accessories; the latter a dress in a deep wine shade with black accessories.

Pink and white 'mums with tall tapers in corresponding colors, were used for decoration on the bride's table.

For motoring through Ontario and points of the United States, Mrs. Wood Jr., chose a becoming suit of emerald green and beige, with brown accessories.

After their return, Mr. and Mrs. Wood will reside in Toronto.

Out-of-town guests were from Detroit, Mich.; Syracuse, N.Y.; Belleville, Hillier and Bloomfield, Ont.

Colorful Autumn leaves, Japanese lanterns, bright bittersweet, and attractively with cedar boughs, mingled together to form a pretty background in Christ Church parish hall, yesterday afternoon for the attractive bazaar and tea which was held under the auspices of St. George's Guild.

Around the room were placed the different booths in the form of the quadrangle, the tea table at the head, and in the centre square, divided by the garlanded pillars, and underneath the great open well above with its festoons of red, yellow, brown and green, were the little quartet tables. These were each covered with a white linen cloth, centered with a crystal holder containing tiny yellow and bronze baby 'mums. The hostesses, the members and guests into this scene of joyful camaraderie, were the ladies. Mrs. P. Welch, president of St. George's Guild, and Mrs. W. Perry.

The first booth, or table was that of the home cooking centered with Mrs. Gordon Sykes, where Mrs. L. Gasley; Mrs. J. Collins; Mrs. R. Hicks; Mrs. Wm. Symons, and Mrs. H. Among the delicacies offered were apple pie, lemon pie, or mince, chocolate loaf cakes; spice cakes; cookies raisin-eyed; hermits loaded with nuts; little drop cakes; or card cups, filled to their brims with chocolate creams, taffy, maple cream, or fudge.

Colorful Aprons

Directly across from this booth, on the far side of the room, was the sewing and fancy work booth, well stocked with colorful aprons, both large and small, and tiny dresses for little tots. Here, too, were crocheted chair sets in delph blue; a cuddle dog, a cuddle cat, and a cuddley doll; diamond socks with red, white, and green diamonds on a brown background; two dressed dolls, one with a bat-lerin skirt of knitted pink wool, the other more sedate with bonnet of pink edged in green, and dress the same; little knit mitts, some brazen, some red, some grey. There were fancy pot holders crocheted in white and in green, and a doll's knit carriage robe, just the thing to please some wee girlie. Over this presided Mrs. W. Collier, Mrs. G. Beare and Mrs. W. Garland.

Next in order came the Touch and Take table, where wonderful your hand touched, your purse paid for. This was presided by Mrs. G. Wesly; Mrs. H. Dewey and Mrs. B. Shaddock.

Over top the entrance sat the treasurer, Mrs. G. Rowbotham.

Appropriately Appointed Table

The tea table at the head of the quadrangle, was daisy with its appointments of lovely white crocheted medallion lace cloth centred with a silver basket of baby 'mums in colors of deep gold and bronze, flanked on either side with two candle holders containing tall red candles, and at either end the silver services. Over this from three to four presided Mrs. Frank Spalding, and Mrs. Wm. Symons. From four to five, Mrs. E. Hicker, and Mrs. W. Pepper, and from five to six Mrs. G. Wright and Mrs. W. Mayo.

Bowerman, Mrs. J. Bulton and Mrs. W. McCloud.

Those who purchased the lovely patchwork quilt which would be later drawn by the lucky ticket, the brimming grocery basket, and the dressed doll, were in order of purchasing, Mrs. G. Pepper, Mrs. F. Markel, and Mrs. G. Beare, with Mrs. Wesly guarding the pretty crocheted lace doily. The lucky ticket for the quilt, which were: of the patchwork quilt, Mrs. K. Woodley; of the grocery basket, Mrs. R. Hicks; of the doll, Mrs. Rowbotham and, of the dainty doily, Mrs. H. Wright.

A nice bazaar, and dainty tea, judging from the number who attended. Quite worthy of commendation, and congratulations to those who assisted in any way.

Volkoff Ballet Group Presents Graceful, Pleasing Performance

By EUGENE LANG

Something entirely new in musical entertainment was given the near capacity audience that was present in the Collegiate auditorium last evening when Belleville had its first glimpse into the realm of the ballet, a type of art that, although fairly strange and unfamiliar to most, witnessed this spectacle for the first time, was received with expression of aesthetic satisfaction to all those in attendance.

For the debut of ballet in this city the Rotary Club presented the Volkoff Canadian Ballet, a group of distinguished young amateur dancers who gave a peerless performance that featured ballet dancing of many different types and styles.

This finely trained troupe is the result of many years study and instruction under the direction of Mr. Boris Volkoff who operates the nationally known Volkoff School of the Dance in Toronto. Each year this has become notable in artistic circles, when he took this group of fifteen dancers, the cream of the Volkoff Ballet Dancers, to compete for Canada in the Olympics in Berlin in 1936. Though the only amateur ballet group participating in the games they ranked sixth in place among the 20 nations. Since then they have competed, a distinction for Canada for 13 years, and have never had the following and interest shown in it like has been in the past few months.

In 1939 Mr. Volkoff formed the present ballet group, and from then since that time has been seen in many Canadian cities and has won, each time, favor from all. It has been invited to perform in New York this coming December.

Give Freely of Time

Practically all of the members of the Volkoff Canadian Ballet are employed in various positions in Toronto, giving freely of their time and talent to the art. Many of their aspirations for professional careers may some day be realized.

The first number that was presented was an interpretation of Bach's immense "Toccata and Fugue in D Minor." Although a distinct music of the 8th degree in its original form, the dancers and their director have successfully combined with an ecclesiastical atmosphere making the whole effect portrayed via the emotional intensity or the massiveness of the music. A feeling of the grandeur fulness that culminated in a spirit of triumph, through perfect execution, the effect being of a subjective treatment of a definite objective theme.

In complete contrast to this was the second number on the program, a delightful and ingratiating number entitled "Deer Park." Set to the music of Johann Strauss in all its gaiety, typical of Vienna, the dancers leaped and touched off with a dash of spirity humor that the composition was vivaciously portrayed by the dancers in their colorful costumes that literally dazzled the spectators as the pulsating gyrations became ever more rhythmic and catching as the number progressed.

Satirical Skit

For the third offering the Volkoff Canadian Ballet presented two skits featured with Natalie Butko and William Diver assisted by six members of the troupe in a humorous skit depicting the problems that a dancing instructor had to contend with from his prima ballerina. Set to the music of Aubert's Overture to "The Brown Horse," this was a cleverly carried out scene, and one that was well received by hundreds present.

The next part of the program consisted of two dances rendered under the general title of "Diversions" and gave some of the individual dancers a chance to give forth in their respective talents. Janet Smith (Mrs. Volkoff in private life) and John Marshe presented first as ballroom dancers in their smooth and flexible rendition of the Waltz from the Serenade for Strings by Tschaikowsky. Jone Kvietys, a young Toronto girl who studied at the famous Marie Wigman School of the Dance in Germany before coming to Canada, was extremely good in two bare-foot dances that were most effective in their simplicity. In addition to the ballet, as she danced Tschaikowsky, and showing the emotions of a young girl at present-day Russia, and a humorous, ecstatic depiction of a young Russian peasant performing a solemn incantation to her gods.

Novelty Numbers

Nancy Hazell and Sydney Gordon dressed up as a farmer and his wife in overalls and milkmaid were most interesting in waltz to the music of Gounod, her which was titled "Holiday." Natalie Butko and Doreen Russell were so humorous and side splitting in their comedy characterizations shown in their comedy skit "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes" commanded an encore, this being the "Boogie-Woogie" of Clarence Smith, which brought forth rounds of laughter.

The grand final number the entire cast presented a set of Polovtsian Dances from Borodin's "Prince Igor". The weird wanderings of the music combined with the wild and barbaric costumes of the warriors, and the barbaric tribal effect of the wild dances was a striking finale to a well produced evening's entertainment.

Special mention must be given to the musical accompaniment as given by Miss Margaret Clemens, violinist, and Miss Lucy Lee Barkin, one of Toronto's best known accompanists and concert artists. Miss Barkin added immeasurably to the entire overall effect and was a great help to the bone of the ballet. This writer wishes the entire ballet all possible success in their future engagements and hopes that Toronto will see the experienced, ballet conscious through the efforts of a group of talented dancers as were seen here last evening.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have just received an invitation to attend the inauguration of a college president. It is impossible for me to attend, but I would like to write a note of congratulations to him. . . I thought a note would be more appropriate than a printed "congratulation" card. Will you please suggest a sample note?

Faithful Reader.

Please don't even consider sending this college president a printed card of congratulations . . . these are never in good taste under any circumstance, and I am sure such an important gentleman would be more than a little perplexed at receiving this. He would, however, greatly appreciate a note of one or two sentences of your sincere congratulations: "I was happy and honored to receive the invitation which you so kindly sent me to your inauguration as president of college. I am sorry that I cannot be present to greet you proudly on the opening day—of your important new position. But I do want to send you my heartiest congratulations and every good wish for a most successful administration and for your happiness always."

Pleasant Plan: Wedding Reception in Church Parlors

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My mother and I would so much appreciate your advice about my wedding reception. Since mother is a widow, we have to watch expenses carefully, but we want to do the best thing under the circumstances. We have thought of limiting the number of guests attending the reception to the members of the two families, the wedding party and a few close friends and having it at some very nice place. However, we do feel that if we do this we may hurt someone's feelings. Then we have thought of trying to stretch the budget and also include our aunt and uncles and some other relatives. Our third idea is to have the ceremony take place at about 3 o'clock and then an afternoon tea follow for the guests. This could be held in the church rooms and dainty sandwiches, cookies, the wedding cake and a beverage would be served. Then the tea could be over early, and I'm sure several of our relatives and intimate friends would come home with my mother to spend the evening with her . . . and I would like this arrangement. Would we have to enclose a reception invitation with every wedding invitation? On those reception cards would afternoon tea or reception be the term used?

P.S.

I'm most enthusiastic about your having wedding reception in the church parlors, inviting all your relatives and friends to this to be remembered happily occasion. It's so much more important and delightful to have your guests in the church rooms, rather than to have just a few guests at some impersonal place.

It is not necessary to have separate reception invitation cards. Instead send this form of invitation:

Mrs. John Paul Smith

requests the honor of your presence at the marriage of her daughter Dorothy

Mrs. Thomas Foster Drake on Tuesday, the third of December at three o'clock

The Faith Church

Haven, New Jersey

and afterward at the reception in the Church Parlor

DON'T SUPPORT ORGANIZATION

Ottawa, Nov. 4 — (CP)—Gordon Greer, president of the Ottawa Valley Milk Producers' Association, said Thursday that dairy producers are their own worst enemies because not all of them support their organization.

"Our worst enemies are our most serious obstacle to progress," said Mr. Greer in an address at the annual Association banquet.

"We have to be thoroughly organized against the well-organized opposition, otherwise we have no chance of making progress. Indeed, farmers outside the organization are a millstone about our necks."

Double Duty Velveteen Bonnet

By PRUNELLA WOOD

A little black velveteen bonnet flatters your short haircut, the low crown melting into the draped brim which rest square across your brow or bangs. The feather fancy trim is made of blended peach blow coq, tinting upward and forward.

It was designed to wear with everyday clothes; and if you add tulle veiling you can make it glamorous for after dark.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

Ladies of magnificent leisure who never have to rattle pots and pans, shampoo the bathroom floor or raid dusty closets sheves have no hand-and-fingernail problems. Once a week they trail to the pitchfriddle parlor where the manicurist puts the pink sheaths in apple pie order, with a hand and arm massage now and then for good measure.

Ladies of leisure have no hand-and-fingernail problems.

With the boss of the domestic world it is a different matter. Her hands are in and out of hot water many times a day, and frequent contact with soap and cubs the flesh of the natural oils that nature provides for their well-being. Unless a substitute is used the hands will look old long before their time and the fingernails will loss delicacy and luster. While woman's place may be in the home—anyhow, that's what they used to say—she is likely to beat it out now and then for a bridge game with "The Girls" and it is embarrassing to shuffle cards with mits that look as if they endure a tough life.

While the hand lotion is a must especially in the winter season—and it should be applied at least once a day — there should be an occasional massage with a heavy cream to keep the texture of the skin fine and the color normal.

Use a heavy emollient that offers resistance. Treat each finger separately, thumbing from base to tip and work the cream into the knuckles. Give special attention to the nails; friction stimulates the underlying blood streams that give these pink shells their coloring and provide them with the necessary nourishment.

All the time tiny cells are pushing forth from the nail base or matrix. They overlap, forming a smooth surface. If the nails are neglected, subjected to dust and grime, this process does not go on normally and the surface of the nails may not be satin smooth. Injuries to the matrix may produce a deformed nail so, when treating the flesh with the orangewood stick, do not use pressure. Lift the cuticle, do not press it back. Do not cut the cuticle at the point.

Never be tempted to clean the nail eaves with a metal instrument. By doing that little thing you will make the inner surface rough and dust will cling there. Use the orangewood stick instead.

Here is the correct manicuring routine: remove nail polish, shape the nails with an emery thin, flexible file of high grade steel, working from sides to centre, forming a neat oval. Pass the stick under the eaves, give a final shaping with an emery board.

Scrub the hands with warm soap suds, rinse and dry. Apply cuticle cream, detach the cuticles from the nail, snip off hangnails, scrub again, dry, and apply polish.

Fashion Flashes

DRAMATIC evening hats to top beautiful after-dark clothes are having their innings this season. A beauty is a toque of black velour with a red feather aigrette, brim dipping low on one side, with an enormous black aigrette feather fancy held by a rhinestone buckle, to point up the square crown.

HOT ONLY DAYTIME separates, but mix-mates for after-dark wear are attracting budget buyers, as well as college girls. Black wool jersey, used for a sleeveless deep plunging top, is paired with a daytime length skirt of black ruffled point d'esprit over taffeta.

A GOOD COMPANION with ball gowns, as well as with restaurant and theatre clothes, is a cropper in the sapphire blue or black Lyons velvet. Made with a very rippled, flared back, it has huge cuffs of black or silver fox.

CHARM IN THE KITCHEN is helped along by a half apron in red and navy polka-dotted crepe with white banding for the ornamental pot holder and suits that are attached to the apron with snap fasteners.

SOFT fabrics are running a good race with cuffy weaves. A charming little dress is of sapphire blue velveteen, made with an all - around unpressed pleated skirt, and a simple bodice fastened left side with brilliant buttons, with club collar and elbow-length sleeves.

DOWN THE AISLE at thrastrow. DOWN THE AISLE at theatrical premieres is the place to see fine fur wraps. A majority of women seem to favor the brief wrap in light furs, rather than a long jacket or coat. A 25-inch jacket with dipping hemline in back, wrapped in cocoon shape, is of white mink. The collar tilts up and the bracelet length sleeves turn back into a single skin.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Disobedience Leads Only to Trouble

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a girl 14 and attend high school. My life is terrible because my parents won't let me go out with girls or boys. Whenever I mention it to them, they jump at me and tell me I am too young. This week, a boy I like very much has asked me to go out with him. What should I do? Should I give up the thought of going out, or disobey my parents?

R.G.

Dear R. G.:

Whether your parents are right or wrong in their view point about your going out, to disobey them can lead to nothing but trouble. If you were to go out against their instructions they would either find out about it, or else you would go around with a guilty conscience, afraid all the time of having your disobedience discovered. Either way, matters would only be worse instead of better.

It is too bad that your parents feel as they do, but, on the other hand, fourteen is very young and perhaps when you are a year older they may feel differently about it.

Why don't you talk this over with some teacher in your high school whom you like and trust? Think of This in the Light of the Future

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Last year I met a nice young man at a U. S. club dance and have been seeing him every week since at the dances. He is 29 and I am 22. He asked to take me out, but I never went out with him for many reasons. For one we are of different religious faiths and for another he is under the doctor's care for a nervous condition as a result of the war, so that he cannot keep a job and there would be no security in case we marry.

My parents think that if I keep up my interest in this young man it will be wasting my time and will be out of circulation and we have been having many arguments about it. I know they want what is best for me and I know he is not the right one for me. But I cannot bear the thought of breaking up with him and staying away from the dances when I know he will be there. Please tell me what to do as I am miserable and constantly think about him.

Miss C.

Dear Miss C.:

In a problem like this, a girl has to be sensible enough to look at things from a long range point of view. That is, it is sometimes necessary to give up a present pleasure for the good of the future.

You say you realize this young man is not the right person for you, so don't you think there is something in what your parents say about it being foolish for you to have a serious friendship with him?

I can't see why you would have to give up the dances merely because you had decided you were not going to let him be the center of your interest. Why can't you keep on going to them and enjoy the company of other boys too? This fellow can't think you are serious about him, since you have never accepted any of his invitations to go out, so it should not be too difficult to quietly shift your relationship to a little different basis.

My advice is for you to take all the opportunities for good times that present themselves and try to be friends with a lot of boys. If you do this, I think you will find the situation will take care of itself as time goes on.

GOVT. TO TEST

1. Landlords renewing leases may complete contracts of at least one year, increasing rentals by 20 per cent for unheated self-contained dwellings—apartments, houses and duplexes—and 35 per cent for heated dwellings. These leases must contain a clause allowing the tenant to terminate it on one month's notice. The tenant can be evicted if he declines the offer and the accommodation thus will become free of rent control.

2. Rooms, parts of houses and the like, in which toilet facilities are shard, may have rentals increased by 20 per cent. This is the first boost for such accommodation since controls first were imposed in 1940. Landlords also will have the right to terminate leases on six months' notice. The increase does not apply to furnished rooms in which linen and services are provided and for which the landlord charges rentals based on the number of people who occupy the room.

No Approval Required

3. Leases of two years or more, based on the period on which the landlord and tenant agree, no longer will require approval of the rentals administrator. Previously the administrator had the right to review such leases. However, he has approved 2,500 within two years.

4. Landlords who owned accommodation before Nov. 1, 1949, will be able to regain possession after six months' notice. Previously, they were allowed to do so on accommodation owned prior to Nov. 1, 1947. The new ruling does not apply into effect until Dec. 13 and therefore landlords will not be able to regain possession before next June 15. The ruling is not retroactive but it is applicable to all parts of the year, including the winter season.

A number of other small changes will be made through the Prices Board. These are expected to be announced by Dec. 15.

A spokesman indicated that the new ceilings are based on the maximum rentals which can be charged. In other words, landlords who previously did not avail themselves of increases allowed a year ago, are permitted to charge both increases.

The increases a year ago included an over-all 10-per-cent increase for unheated houses and 15-per-cent for heated homes.

Only Taking Precaution

Mr. Abbott said the government's decision to obtain a court ruling was a precaution.

"It is possible that the courts would decide that our regulations are unconstitutional. We cannot disregard that possibility."

An order-in-council, allowing for the court test, is expected to be passed within the next two weeks, a spokesman said. The court is not expected to hear the case until next February.

If a decision is not handed down before the date of expiry March 31 — the government likely will ask parliament to renew the controls, to give life to the regulations pending a court decision.

The spokesman said he also believed that a test of the controls by certain property owners in the Ontario Supreme Court likely will be dropped on the grounds that the issue will come before the Supreme Court.

Mr. Abbott said Ottawa lawyers are of the opinion that the controls are valid, and that parliament had the right to authorize extension.

The view would be brought before the court, by counsel to instructed by the Attorney-General of Canada.

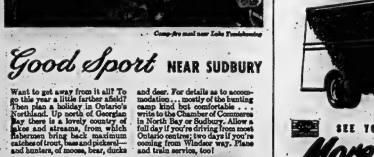
Meanwhile, the government would continue a policy of orderly decontrol.

Won't Perpetuate Controls

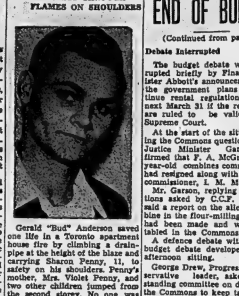
"Let me make it quite clear that the purpose of clarifying the legal position is not to perpetuate federal rent control," said Mr. Abbott. "On the contrary, the purpose is to continue our authority to proceed in an orderly way towards the eventual withdrawal of all controls. This has been our firm policy towards wartime controls in general and rent control is no exception."

However, the government is facing opposition, Mr. Abbott said he is writing provincial premiers to advise them what the government is doing and offering to help prepare "stand-by-legislation in case they want to enter the rental field.

He had made the offer a year ago after informing the provinces that the controls legislation was being contested in the courts by private bodies and the controls legislation would remain. The provinces declined to offer. Newfoundland was not concerned as it had its own rent controls legislation when it entered confederation last April.



CARRIES CHILD THROUGH FLAMES ON SHOULDERS



Gerald "Bud" Anderson saved one life in a Toronto apartment house fire by climbing a drainpipe at the height of the blaze and carrying Sharon Penney, 11, to safety on his shoulders. END OF BUDGET

Debate Interrupted

The budget debate was interrupted briefly by Finance Minister Abbott's announcement that the government plans to continue rental regulations beyond next March 31 if the regulations are ruled to be valid by the Supreme Court.

At the start of the sitting, during the Commons question period, Justice Minister Garson confirmed that F. A. McGregor, 61-year-old combines commissioner, had resigned along with a deputy commissioner, J. M. MacKeigan.

Mr. Garson, replying to questions asked by C.C.F. members, said a report on the alleged combine in the flour-milling industry had been made and would be tabled in the Commons Monday.

A defence debate within the budget debate developed at the afternoon sitting.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, asked for a standing committee on defence in the Commons to keep tab on the operations of the Department of National Defence. Defence Minister Claxton rejected the suggestion.

Housing, Communists, education, coal and municipal aid were among other subjects discussed in the budget debate.

James Rooney (L—Toronto St. Paul's) suggested the government consider constructing multi-storied apartment houses to ease the housing shortage in large cities.

People Moving Out

Dealing particularly with the situation in his riding Mr. Rooney said that as a result of the housing shortage, more and more people are moving to the suburbs. If apartments were available more of these people would remain in the city.

By replacing slum houses with modern apartment buildings the city's revenues would be increased.

Help for western coal miners was urged by C.E. Johnston (SC—Yew River). The Calgary teacher said the Federal Governments should double the $2.50 freight subventions on western coal to enable it to compete on the central Canada market with United States coal.

Owen Jones (CCF—Yale) pressed the government to unfreeze a fund of $23,000,000 set aside for loans to municipalities under the municipal improvements assistance act.

F. D. Shaw (SC—Red Deer) reiterated suggestions that the vote of 3,000 or 4,000 communists in Alberta riding of Vegreville had helped elect the Liberal member John Decore in the June 27 federal election.

Commies Oppose Socials

The communists, he said, had openly opposed the Social Credit candidate in the Vegreville constituency. Since the only other candidate was the Liberal, it could be assumed that he received the communist votes.

Joseph Noseworthy (CCF—York South) suggested the question of Federal aid to education as a subject for discussion at the forthcoming Dominion-Provincial conference on constitutional matters.

The former Toronto school teacher said federal aid is necessary to provide equal opportunity in education for Canadians in all 10 provinces.

Mr. Noseworthy suggested a federal agency to be set up on educational guidance and urged it to draw up a list of the various scholarships available. The scholarships are available in each province.

ENTRANCE EXAMS

Mr. Porter said the elimination of high-school-entrance examinations is designed to end the "arbitrary break" between grade 8, the last elementary school year, and grade 9, the first high school term. Under the four-division system, courses could be made more continuous.

The Porter plan met general approval with education officials, teacher and parents in Toronto. C. G. Goldring, Toronto's director of education, condemned the trend towards elimination of the two-level system of primary and secondary schools and also favored abolition of entrance examinations.

"The proposed system will bring us more in line with the United States and Great Britain," he said.

A. J. Skearns, Toronto's Board of Education chairman, said the change was expected because it is anticipated Ontario's Royal Commission on education will make recommendations along the same lines when it brings in its report.

In his address, Mr. Porter outlined the proposed position of teachers, students and curricula in relation to the four divisions. He said some 46 per cent of Ontario students leave school by the time they reach 16 and the system is designed to give them a well-rounded course so they will "finish formal schooling with a sense of achievement rather than a failure."

The primary division would be roughly equivalent to grades 1-3 for pupils aged 6-8. Consideration is being given to a system whereby a teacher would have pupils from all three age groups —perhaps 10 six-year-olds and as many aged seven and eight. Thus the youngsters would have the same teacher for three successive years.

"Under such an organization from eight to 10 pupils would move on the next division — junior—each year, while from eight to 10 beginners from kindergarten, or directly from home, would enter the class," Mr. Porter said.

Llmits Broken Down

"By such an organization rigid grade limits can be broken down, and it is hoped that much of the wastage at present resulting from retardation may be avoided."

The junior division will be organized similar to the primary division a class consisting of about 30 pupils divided among the age levels, nine, 10 and 11.

The intermediate division will be designed for pupils aged 12-16. Completion of this division would provide a well rounded schooling for those pupils leaving at the age of 16. "It must also provide vocation subjects for those pupils who have already decided to enter business and industry at the age of 16."

Exploratory Period

For those pupils planning to enter the senior division, the intermediate division would provide an exploratory period in which most pupils would select the course in which they wished to specialize. Plans for the senior division have not yet been completed.

Mr. Porter said the course of study issued by his department will be in general terms, indicating the objectives to be obtained and the principles to be followed.

"Responsibility for filling in the details will rest at the local level and it is anticipated this will be accomplished through wide participation in the construction of courses of study by groups of teachers and inspectors in co-operation with other professionally competent persons selected by local authorities."

The present 13 grades will be reorganized into four divisions:

1. Primary division — roughly equivalent to the present grades one to three.

2. Junior division—equivalent to grades four to six.

3. Intermediate division — the present grades seven to 10.

4. Senior division—Grades 11 to 13.

Any revisions will be spread over a few years in order to avoid abrupt changes which might adversely affect the educational progress of the pupils, Mr. Porter said.

Changes considered radical will be tested with small groups before being introduced generally, but certain definite changes in line with the program will go into effect in September, 1950.

Elimination of high school entrance examinations, Mr. Porter said, is designed to break down "an arbitrary break between grades eight and nine which prevents proper articulation between the elementary and secondary levels."

ONE DOWN, MORE TO GO

Steelworkers at the Bethlehem Steel plant, first of the steel companies to sign an agreement with the United Mine Workers, are shown putting blowpipes back in place to connect the blast furnaces with blowing engines. The workers expect the plant to be operating in full capacity in a matter of days. Meanwhile, C.I.O. President Philip Murray indicated that he may have another steel strike settlement to announce soon. — Central Press Canadian.

Happy Home True Worth and Strength of Nation

London, Nov. 4—(AP)—Queen Elizabeth Thursday held up a happy home and family as "the true worth and strength of a nation."

She spoke briefly in accepting an honorary fellowship in the Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists.

"I share with all my heart your belief that it is on the happiness of homes and family that the true worth and strength of a nation depend," the Queen said.

"But what has been so well described as 'the miracle of life and the source of all tenderness and love in humanity' demands more than even the best technical attention.

"It demands spiritual approach as well, and it is good to know that in your profession its members bring to their work a warm human understanding and a deep sense of moral values."

Martin's Summer

By Vicki Baum

"Yes, I have a mother. She's very tiny. I was taller than she at eleven years old. My father died before I was born, and so my mother was left alone to bring me up and look after me, small as she is. But I shall soon be very rich. That is a secret, but I will tell you. I have made a great invention that will bring me a lot of money. Perhaps I may become director of a factory or buy one for myself. But probably you don't understand anything about that?"

"Indeed I do. That is tulip land. I know all about that."

"Woof!" said Tiger suddenly, and planted himself straight in front of the door. Outside there was a gentle rustle of branches, and the sound of laughter came from the bushes.

"Oh, that's mother," said Puck. Footsteps crunched on the gravel and approached the door.

"Why, there's light here! Puck have you been bathing again?" asked a voice outside. It was the fangous and beautifully modulated voice of the Bojan. She entered as she spoke, and stood white in the black doorway. She wore a thick tweed cloak over a glittering dress, in her hand, as Martin saw very distinctly, was a peeled wand of elder. He saw very distinctly too, every button on her cloak. He saw, also, that the tips of her white shoes were dark because they were wet through. She had the slender neck and the soft chin of a young girl. Her eyes were black beneath blue lids. Above them was a wild surging mass of hair—red, but with the redness not of fire but of tropical flowers. Such was the Bojan.

"So sorry to see you have a visitor," she said on a slightly singing, slightly mocking note; and then she looked at Martin in his bathing cloak. Her look began at his bare feet and ended at his mouth, and there it rested with an expression that was at once both pricked and not quite controlled.

"He comes from the other side. He was out swimming in the storm. I pulled him out and gave him something to eat. He was very hungry after swimming," Puck said, holding on to Tiger's collar. The dog was growling, and his eyes blazed.

"I see," said the Bojan, and she began to smile. "And what is his name?"

"Dr. Hell," Martin said huskily, as he brought his heels together. This was not very effective—clothed as he was.

"Wait a moment, I have seen a picture of you somewhere," said Bojan. "Weren't we side by side in a photograph in some newspaper. Do you remember? I've quite forgotten how you came into it. But I noticed your face. And you were in a bathing cloak that time, too."

"It was when I made the two-hundred meter Austrian record with the breast stroke," he said. Bojan looked absent mindedly at his teeth and reflected. "Will you stay the night with us?" she asked vaguely. "It's true there isn't a room—and all literary people, not a sportsman among them. But if you could make shift with an attic..."

"Thanks," said Martin.

"Do you mean yes or no?" asked Bojan.

"No, thanks," Martin answered. He was a swimming instructor. This was no place for him.

Puck intervened. "The boy can take my boat and get across and I'll fetch it tomorrow," she said.

"You don't appear to observe that the boy is quite grown up," said Bojan. "You must take care how you behave with Puck, Herr Doktor. She is only a wild growth of the woods."

"Woof!" said Tiger, and Puck had to hold him.

"You must not be so angry with me, Bojan. How often have I got to tell you that?" she scolded in a whisper.

Bojan snapped her cloak round her. "Good-by Herr Doktor," she said. "Please see that Puck comes in soon to go to bed. Otherwise she'll be half-frozen tomorrow." She gave her hand to Martin, and he took it hesitatingly. It was a hot, almost fevered hand, unnaturally soft; and it seemed to wait for a word of good by from him. But with this strange and celebrated hand in his it rose of its own accord to his lips. It smelled of a bitter and sterilizing perfume, and Martin confusedly executed a kiss that missed its mark and left a trace of the perfumed air.

"You mustn't bite mama, Tiger," said Puck, when the Bojan had left the hut. Her little mouth trembled and looked very childlike, and her eyes had become bright and feverishly alert.

Suddenly she let go of the dog who had been straining impatiently at his collar and whining hoarsely. He shot out furiously into the park like a white streak and broke into a clamour of barks. Puck seized Martin's hand with a quick unexpected movement and hit the ball of his thumb. He started at the pain and cried out.

"What's the matter? Why do you do that?" he asked, shaking his hand to and fro. He held it to the lamp and there was the imprint of her teeth in a small oval that began to turn blue. Martin was vexed. Puck stood with her arms hanging at her sides, looking down intently at his hand. It was large and strong, and the finger tips were puckered with long swimming.

"I don't know what's the matter with me. I'm in a temper," she murmured. She went into a corner and stood there with her face to the wall. "Go away," she said into the wall. "But come back. Oh—no, don't. I don't know myself what I want—"

Martin did not like this sort of thing. Scenes drove him distracted. He went up to Puck and pulled his hands on her shoulders he turned her round. There were big tears on her cheeks. Martin bent down, gave her a kiss, and drew her head to his breast. This was very - simple, very natural. Puck remained leaning against him. She felt his breathing, heard his heart beat. There could not be a safer refuge than Martin's breast. She shut her eyes and gave a deep sigh. Martin for his part was not altogether pleased with the situation, but he did not know how he was to escape from it.

So they were still standing in the same position against the wooden partition when a man walked in the hut and said, "Good evening," in a high-pitched, pleasant voice. Martin pushed Puck a little to one side and made a bow. He was so used to going about in swimming-coat or bathing cloak and the was of simple a disposition that the strange encounters of the evening perturbed him very little. He gazed at the man and waited for him to speak. The man was extremely thin with a yellow sickly look. Indeed, without really being so, he looked deformed. His forehead and hands were of such an unnatural refinement that even Martin Hell observed it.

"I am Baron Doddersberg," he said.

"I am Dr. Hell," replied Martin.

Puck felt that a further explanation was needed. "This is papa" she said. "And this is the boat I went out in the boat to look for during the storm. You remember?"

"This Little Weasel of mine has a passion for saving life," the baron said in his pleasant voice. "Countless people owe their lives to her. It is her grande passion. Falls from iron Tooth, avalanches, landslides, storms on the lake, epidemics of scarlet fever—they are just what Little Weasel likes. Have you ever rested after your dangerous exploit? Do you know by the way what gave the lake its name? They say that in the Middle Ages twenty-four maidens of Wurmtal walked together into the lake to avoid worse dangers during a hostile raid. Now they lie in wait at the bottom for young men who swim over the lake. And as you are warned, Dr. Hell. And now, Puck, mama sent me here to accompany your guest to the boat. You are wanted indoors."

Puck took hold of Martin's hand the one she had bitten, and rubbed her cheek against it with the tenderness of a little animal.

Martin murmured something confused and unintelligible, and drawing his borrowed bathing cloak more tightly about him, followed the baron out of the hut. Outside there was a magic transformation. The motionless air was warm and calm. An unnaturally large moon swam in a sea of its own light. The lake lapped with a gentle sleepy sound at the foot of the promontory on which stood the castle, white among the tree tops. On the other side the shore was edged with a chain of light. That was Franzensee. There was dancing at the Big Petermann Music was being played there.

Martin gave a slight shudder. His blood had got thin and chilled beneath his brown taut skin during the last weeks. The baron cast a look at the tall figure beside him and pointing at his own bent shadow over the grass, he said:

"I'm afraid can't help you out with any clothes. Our figures are too unlike. You have the advantage of me there."

Martin, overcome by the necessity of carrying on a conversation with the celebrated author of philosophical works, replied: "Very good of you." He saw his shadow make a bow that, quite impressed him.

"I must ask you to make allowances for my little Weasel if her manners are not all they should be," said Dobbersberg after a short silence. "A first acquaintance with a poet is to be surprising. She is yet far from the conventional mold."

"Yes, indeed," said Martin, smiling softly in the radiant moonlight.

Yugoslavia Gets Limited Supplies Gasoline and Oil

Washington, Nov. 3 (AP) — Britain and the United States have eased their ban on the sale of commercial planes and aviation equipment to Yugoslavia. The first shipments—limited quantities of gasoline and lubricants, were cleared by the State Department today.

Diplomatic officials, reporting the Anglo-American move just before the fuel and lubricants sale was announced, said it marks the latest step by the west to bolster Marshal Tito in his fight with Moscow and her eastern European allies.

The State and National Defence Departments are reported to have decided on the move as another of the "calculated risks" of the cold war.

The matter was agreed upon with Britain. Then the two countries decided to notify other western governments of their action in the hope that they will do the same.

One idea is to clear the way for an "air lift" to Yugoslavia if that rebel against Moscow domination of world communism should be cut off by guerrilla attack from normal transpoi.

Food 'Snoopers' May Go in Govt. Slashing Program

By ALAN HARVEY

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 4.—(CP)—Conservatives whooped when Prime Minister Attlee announced that Britain's Food Ministry is cutting staff to save money.

In his economy program speech, Attlee told the House of Commons that £1,700,000 ($5,270,000) would be saved on food administration. Reductions would be made by streamlining regional organizations and shedding certain "refinements of control."

Opposition members interpreted the latter phrase to mean government food "snoopers".

"Snooper" is the Conservative word for food enforcement officers. Under defence laws in force, these officers may enter houses or stores to see whether such things as table jellies are being made without licence.

J. A. Langford-Holt, Conservative member for Shrewsbury, Shropshire, has referred to the food officers as Food Minister Strachey's "private police force."

This followed a parliamentary reply in which the government acknowledged that 50 per cent of the snoopers used to be policemen.

Langford-Holt said the snoopers may visit homes "at any time of the day or night, whether the householder is at home or away."

All the snooper needs is a card of authority signed by a Food Ministry official.

In April, 1948, there were 731 food enforcement officers. By April this year, the total had increased to nearly 1,000. In addition, there were more than 1,000 inspectors of food production and storage also holding the ministry warrant.

The Food Ministry now employs a total staff of about 40,000. Under the new retirement program, about 4,000 are expected to be released within 12 months.

Government opponents hope the snoopers are among those on the way out.

Broadsides Flow Freely Over Hockey Tickets

Toronto, Nov. 4 (CP)—Verbal broadsides flowed freely from both camps Thursday in Toronto's battle of hockey tickets, precipitated when Maple Leaf Gardens changed the color scheme of free guests issued city controllers.

City fathers were conspicious of their absence at the Toronto-New York Hockey League fixture Wednesday, first big-time engagement in the Gardens since their seats were switched from the exclusive, rinkside "red" section to the more common blue" section.

Central figures in the fiery, and sometimes hilarious, feud were Controller David Balfour and Conn Smythe, the Gardens' outspoken major-domo. Mayor Hiram McCallum kept out of it—and he advised his controllers to "duck."

Controller Balfour said he would accept no more tickets unless the Gardens managing-director writes him a properly-worded invitation to attend the N.H.L. attractions.

Mr. Smythe retorted: "Mr. Balfour is thereby doing a public service by making two more tickets available to the general public."

When Controller Allan Lamport returned the tickets, Mr. Smythe promptly scratched his name from the Gardens' list of complimentary subscribers.

Mr. Smythe denied Mr. Lamport's suggestion an increased city assessment for the arena may have been the cause for the ticket switch. The assessment this year was increased $300,000.

Found $200 Honest Boy Gets Gets $5 Reward

Toronto, Nov. 3—(CP)— A 16-year-old boy who returned $200 he found was described as "the most honest boy I have met in my life" by the owner of the money.

Bobby Hill, a messenger boy, found a wallet containing $100 in cash and $100 in travellers cheques. He located the owner at a hotel and returned the wallet to him. Bobby received a reward of $5.

WILLING TO PAY

Tusket, N. S. — (CP) — When residents of this Yarmouth County community decided on a new school they didn't balk at paying the cost. Though Tusket has a total tax assessment of only $34,000, residents last spring voted to tax themselves five per cent to pay for a $25,-000 school which was opened this fall.

Near-Riot Follows Release of 11 Top Commies on Bail

New York, Nov. 4. —(AP)— Eleven convicted top American Communists were released from prison Thursday night under heavy bonds. Less than three hours later a brick-hurling mob in Harlem—New York's predominantly Negro district—felled six policemen in a wild welcome-home for one of the Red leaders.

The Communists' big-city record ball bonds totalling $260,000 and walked out to a free-dom that may last a year until the United States Supreme Court reviews their recent conviction on charges of conspiring to advocate violent overthrow of the United States government.

Defendant Benjamin J. Davis, Jr., Negro city councilman, met a roaring welcome when he made a street-corner speech in Harlem a short time later. With him were defendants Henry Winston, also a Negro, and Robert Thompson.

Negro Singer Speaks

Negro singer Paul Robeson, left-wing target of two recent Peekskill, N.Y., riots also spoke.

A crowd of about 2,000 cheered the speakers and then began a torchlight parade up Lenox Ave., through the tense, crowded heart of New York's Negro district.

A handful of police hooted, Officers later said the marchers outnumbered the police by wav-ing their flickering torches.

The Communist parade swung across Lenox Avenue at 114th street. The paraders broke the thin police line and milled around the cars, chanting in tune with a round truck "we will not be moved."

From rooftops came a barrage of bottles, bricks, saucers, cups and broomsticks.

Windows Shattered

Missiles shattered windows in the cars. The paraders tried vainly to overturn a police car. Its windshield was smashed.

Six persons—four of them Negroes—were arrested. One Negro was charged with assaulting a policeman. The other men were accused of disorderly conduct.

The injured police were hurt severely, were taken to hospitals after they were hit by bricks or other objects.

The parade finally broke up at home of the crowd followed Davis' cuff to their meetings.

Davis, who is strong communist support, is running for re-election as councilman next Tuesday on the American Labor Party ticket.

The U. S. Government delayed the release of the 11 communists for hours Thursday. Finally, however, it conceded that their bail was in order.

The U.S. circuit court of appeals set bail at $50,000 each for four of the communists, who have bail-jumping records or are described as fugitives. Bail for the other seven was fixed at $20,000 each.

The Civil Rights Congress, labelled subversive by the U.S. Attorney-General, posted the necessary cash to put treasury bonds as bail.

The 11 convicted communists all were fined $10,000 each. Ten also received sentences of five years. The other got three years.

TWO KEY MEN IN ANTI-MONOPOLY PROBES RESIGN

Justice Minister Announces Resignations in House of Commons

Ottawa, Nov. 4 — (CP) — Two key men in Canada's anti-monopoly probes of dental supply, optical, bread and flour-milling firms have resigned their posts.

Justice Minister Garson told the Commons Thursday announced the resignations of F.A. McGregor, 61-year-old Commissioner of the Combines Act, and one of his two deputies, I. M. MacKellar, 34.

It was understood there was no relationship between the two resignations. Mr. McGregor was believed, to have acted to un-derline a protest against the government's handling of his reports on alleged monopolies or acts in restraint of trade.

Mr. MacKellan was believed to have made known his decision to resign from the Justice De-partment many months ago, but remained at his post to complete his work. He expects to leave Dec. 1 and take up the practice of law in Halifax.

The effective date of Mr. Mc-Gregor's resignation was not in-dicated by Mr. Garson, but it is reported to be Jan. 1.

A departmental spokesman said he presumed the men would be replaced, but he knew of no appointments pending or when such appointments would be made.

Only senior man remaining on the Combines Investigation staff is A. S. Whiteley, 36, one of Mr. McGregor's assistants, who joined the department 12 years ago.

Mr. Garson gave no reason for the Commissioner's resignation, but said he will table Friday an exchange of correspondence with Mr. McGregor and the Pro-putty Commissioner.

Will Table Report

Speculation on the commission-er's resignation comes at a time when the government has said it is going to tighten the com-bines law—has been boiling for the last two days.

Prodded by C.C.F. members Wednesday and Thursday, Mr. Garson said he would table Mon-day the department's report on an alleged conspiracy in the flour and milling industry.

Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winni-peg North Centre) asked when the report was received. He wanted to know if it was going to be held within 15 days of its receipt by the Minister as the law called for.

Mr. Garson said it was received "some time ago."

In evidence Thursday Mr. Gar-son said a loophole in the law lost the crown case against dental sup-pliers. Amendments would be in-troduced, he added, to plug the holes in the Combines Act.

As a means of coping with alleg-ed combines in the optical indus-try, action would be taken to stop patents, the Minister said, but he made no mention of proposed le-gal action against a western bread chain or a report on the flour mill-ing industry.

DISTRESS SIGNAL

Montréal — (CP) — After a wave of last holidays in Montre-al, Frank Smith came up with an idea for a flashing light to sig-nal when the cabbie is in trouble. By pressing a switch on the steering column the driver starts a light on the cab roof flashing an S O S signal.

GERMAN ISSUES TO BE DISCUSSED BY BIG THREE

Former Ministers To Meet in Paris.

London, Nov. 4 (AP) — The foreign office announced today the foreign ministers of Britain, the United States and France will meet in Paris next week to discuss German problems.

The spokesman said the meet-ing probably would begin Wed-nesday or Thursday, depending on when State Secretary Dean Ach-eson of the United States could reach Paris.

Some British sources speculated that discussions between Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin of Britain and Foreign Minister Robert Schuman of France a fill-in on the meeting of the Big Three to have Monday in Washington with Andrei Y. Vishinsky, Russia's for-eign minister.

These same sources said they hoped Vishinsky would not try to turn the Paris meeting of Paris into a four-power meeting on Germany.

The official agenda for the Paris meeting is still under study. But it is expected to cover such cur-rent problems as these:

1. Whether to end the dismant-ling of the war-potential indus-tries in West Germany.

2. Whether to give the West German government the power to run its own foreign affairs.

3. Whether to extend inter-national control of the industrial Ruhr valley to take in the heavy industrial areas of all western Europe.

4. Whether to revise the west-ern powers' temporary occupation statute in Germany to give the Germans more power over their own affairs.

Ford Will Run Assembly Line To End of Month

Detroit, Nov. 4, (AP)— The Ford Motor Company today threw a note of cheer into the United States Automobile Industry's gloomy picture by announcing it will be able to con-tinue nearly full production in all divisions but Lincoln through-out this month.

Earlier the company had plan-ned to shut down its huge Rouge plant between Oct. 15 and 15. That might have meant quick paralysis of the vast Ford system.

Emergency operation of Ford own steel mill at the Rouge fac-tory and purchasing news in the press" on the steel situation made the new plans possible, said a statement from E.R. Breech executive vice-president.

Breech said the company would continue production of Fords and Mercurys at slightly reduced rates after this month. Lincoln output will be halted after Nov. 15, but should be resumed in December.

Because of the move, about 130,000 Ford workers who had expected to be laid off within two weeks will be getting their pay cheques for the rest of the month, at least.

The Ford announcement came as Chrysler Corporation closed its Dodge, De Soto and Chrysler divisions because of a lack of steel, making idle about 35,000 of its 91,000 employees.

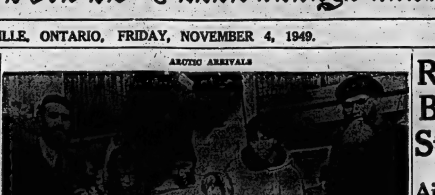
Chrysler has said it hopes to continue manufacture of Ply-mouths and Dodge trucks as close to U.S. Thanksgiving (Nov. 24) as possible.

General Motors Corporation has announced no shut-down plans but recently placed a few of its plants on a four day week.

Among other producers Hud-son Motor Car Company closed its plants Thursday with plans to resume operations Monday, and Nash Motors has announced it will shut down its two main plants in Wisconsin in the middle of November.

Breech suggested the possibil-ity that Ford might eventually have to operate on a four day week should the 33-day steel and the current coal strikes last much longer.

ARCTIC ARRIVALS



A doctor, missionary and three Eskimo children were passengers aboard the Transport Depart-ment icebreaker N. B. McLean which docked at Quebec this week from its annual patrol of the Hudson Bay shipping lanes to Churchill. Dr. Bernard Laramee, left, of Montreal, was aboard in his capacity as physician for the Indian Affairs Department. Father Marcel Rio, right, left his mission at South-ampton Island after a three-year stay. The Eskimos were brought out for medical care and study. —(CP Photo.)

Judge Reserves Judgment in Appeal Issue

Toronto, Nov. 4 (CP)—Mr. Justice C. G. O'Connor of the exchequer court of Canada has reserved judgment in the appeal by executors of the F. Ray Mc-Laughlin estate against income tax assessments for 1944-45. The amount in dispute is approxi-mately $28,500.

The Canadian Press erroneous-ly reported Tuesday that counsel for the estate claimed that losses of $290,000 incurred by Mr. Mc-Laughlin while operating a farm at nearby Oshawa should be exempt from income tax levied against the estate.

From 1920 to 1943 inclusive, losses aggregating $255,000 were allowed as a deduction from Mr. McLaughlin's investment income, counsel said. But following his death in 1947, the income tax de-partment disallowed 50 per cent of farm losses and all depreci-tion on farm buildings in its assessment of his 1944-45 returns.

The disallowance was made on grounds that he was not a bona fide farmer. Evidence adduced during the hearing was directed to providing deceased was a bona fide farmer and there was no reason for the department to deprive him of the right to the deductions allowed during his lifetime.

BANDMASTER DUNNE DIES

Man-in-Street Does Not Like Control Easing

Ottawa, Nov. 4 — (CP) — Eight little words — it all depends on the point of view — just about summed up the reaction from the man-in-the-street in Ottawa Thursday night to the govern-ment's announcement easing rent control regulations.

General speaking, landlords said the news was "wonderful" and "about time;" tenants called it an "outrage" and "the last straw."

Told that Finance Minister Douglas Abbott had announced that landlords now may increase rentals on shared accommodation by by 20 per cent, George Blackney, legal adviser to the Ottawa and Districts Tenants Protective Association replied:

"It is an outrage that people who occupy shared accommodation should have to pay even more than they are paying now.

"People who have been paying $30 will now have to pay $60 now. That is a great hardship. I don't think that many landlords will fail to take advantage of the opportunity to raise rents."

Ernest Bastien, president of the Ottawa Property Owners Association said:

"This is concession to land-lords which they will welcome.

"While rent control had its good points during the war, the emer-gency has, in my opinion, ended in this age of democracy the rights of the individual must be guarded at all costs. The principle of an Englishman's home being his castle seems to have been neglected during this period of controls."

C.G.E. WORKERS AT PETERBOROUGH SPLIT OVER ISSUE

Meeting Breaks up In Row, Blows Struck

Peterborough, Ont., Nov. 4 (CP) —Production workers at the Gen-eral Electric plant here are divid-ed into two factions over the issue of supporting the new right-wing C.I.O.-chartered electrical union. Both groups claim to represent the plant's employees.

The United Electrical Workers, long regarded in labor circles as leftist, broke with the C.I.O. at a meeting in Cleveland this week. The C.I.O. set up the International Union of Electrical Workers. A meeting of workers here called Thursday night to decide which group should receive Peterbor-ough workers' support broke up in an uproar during which at least one blow was struck.

The right-wing group, led by John G. Morton, voted to back the new union. But the other group, with president C. S. Jack-son of the U.E.W.'s Canadian sec-tion at its head, then held a meet-ing of its own, expelled Morton and most other officers of Local 524 and set up a provisional com-mittee of 20 members to take over the affairs of the local.

Union Offices Padlocked

Following the rump meeting by the Jackson forces, the right-wing group found that the union offices had been padlocked.

Morton said his group adopted this resolution by a three-to-one vote:

"The members of Local 524 vote full power to the executive board of Local 524 to act in their behalf to protect their membership, treasury and property of Local 524, to keep all the aforemention-ed in their own hands and that the contents of the C.I.O. and the Canadian Congress of Labor, and that the officers . . . be empow-ered to take whatever steps are necessary to carry out the same, to enable members to retain the con-stitution they have always had with the C.I.O. and the C.C.L."

Support Right Wing

Morton said later he had re-ceived word that General Electric workers at Cobourg had voted support to the new right-wing union.

The meeting of an estimated 1,000 workers at the local street Summer Gardens here broke up in confusion after a scuffle rushed up to the platform and swung at Morton. Morton adjourned the meeting and walked out with all but one of the members of his executive.

The rival section then heard Jackson denounce Morton and call for suspension of the right-wing lead-ership. Thereupon the meeting, on Jackson's recommendation, voted to suspend Morton and the other officers and to set up an interim committee.

Jackson told reporters later that the U.E.W. constitution provides that a local is constituted as long as seven members remain in it. Such a group is entitled to control the finances of the local, he said.

Rigid Controls Set By US on Shipment Strategic Goods

Aim to Prevent Re-Shipment To Countries of Soviet Bloc

Washington, Nov. 4 — (AP)— The United States government today slapped rigid controls on shipment of strategic goods to any place in the world — except Canada — to prevent re - ship-ments to the Soviet bloc.

Officials in China and Latin America particularly were cov-ered by the new rules.

Officials told a reporter the step was taken more with the idea of averting future re-shipment difficulties than because of any great current traffic in re-shipments to Russian-dominated areas.

Hitherto the department has applied these rigid controls only to Europe and adjacent areas, mostly along the southern rim of the Mediterranean.

The new action extends the control power to exports to any place in the world except Cana-ada, which has always been in a relatively controlled class of its own, even in wartime.

DEFENCE MINISTER REJECTS REQUEST OF OPPOSITION

Standing Commons Com-mittee on National De-fence Will Not be Named

Ottawa, Nov. 4 (CP) — The government once again has re-jected an opposition request for a standing Commons committee on national defence.

Defence Minister Claxton turn-ed down the suggestion made on Thursday by George Drew, Pro-gressive Conservative leader.

Mr. Drew said the report of a three-man commission on the navy indicated need for an in-quiry into all phases of national defence. He renewed an oft-repeated and oft-rejected plea for establishment of a defence com-mittee in the Commons.

"I would welcome such a com-mittee," replied Mr. Claxton, but I do not think that it is the right way to run the defence forces of this country."

He said a defence committee had never been established either in the United Kingdom or Cana-dian parliaments.

There would be "fullest oppor-tunity" to discuss the administra-tion of defence when its estimates were under study next week.

Wants all Information

Mr. Drew said the members had no right to discuss the $400,000,-000 in defence tasks without all the knowledge available to the government.

Report for a committee was em-phasized by the navy report and the adverse results of the recent Joint RCAF-Army operation on the Alaska Highway, Exercise Eagle.

Mr. Drew read a section of the navy report telling of un-sanitary living conditions aboard the Carrier Magnificent. If the organization of the navy was at all effective, this must have been brought before the defence de-partment over and over again. If they were brought before the department, then there must be some breakdown in organiza-tion.

Mr. Drew also agreed that criti-cism of over-crowding methods was warranted. He agreed with the commission recommendation that recruiting quotas be based on the patriotic willingness of young men to serve in the forces.

Cuts Only One Deer

The Progressive Conservative leader said the report opened only one window to the whole national defence organization. If these things were wrong with the navy, he suggested, that was as much wrong with other defence forces.

Mr. Drew said secrecy was no longer a reason for not setting up the committee. It could be swept into the waste paper bas-ket" when a Commons committee on the whole question of eco-nomic research was set up.

Mr. Claxton said he was glad to hear Mr. Drew say the navy report indicated the value of such inquiries. He had directed that the inquiry be made, and had made no effort to limit the scope of the investigation

Board to be Enlarged

The three-man commission in-cluded Rear Admiral E. R. Mains-bridge, R.C.N. (Retired), Ottawa lawyer, and L. C. Audette, mem-ber of the Canadian Maritime Commission.

Mr. Claxton said the commis-sioners made it clear that by the very nature of things, their report could not be critical. But they said this did not mean there was not a good deal of right about the navy as well.

Of unsanitary conditions aboard the Magnificent, Mr. Claxton said he believes "it was somebody's job to be critical but only cock-roaches." He felt the officers should have investigated such matters without reference to the minister.

National Advertising In Canadian Dailies up 23 P.C. in September

Toronto, Nov. 4 — (CP) — Na-tional advertising in Canadian daily newspapers increased 23 per cent in September, 1949, com-pared with the same month last year, the Canadian Daily News-papers Association reported to-day.

This compares with an increase of nine per cent in United States newspapers during the same period.

Total advertising during Sept-ember gained 11.4 per cent over September, 1948.

Home, School Club Discusses Comics

Oakville, Nov. 4 (CP)—Comics —good for children or not good for children? That was the ques-tion when members of the Hal-ton-Peel Home and School Club discussed the subject Thursday night.

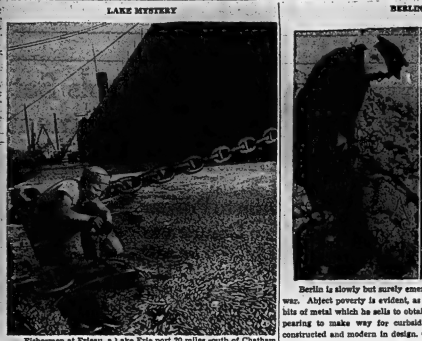
Emily Kerry, graduate librar-ian from this community 20 miles west of Toronto, had this to say:

"The harm done by comic is over-rated... but the idea of having admittedly poor litera-ture ... develops grasshopper minds. A good book will hold a child's interest. Why can't parents boycott sale of comics?"

Major W. Forth, chaplain of Orions Barracks here, said:

"A certain amount of control is necessary when comics become pornographic. A child must be free to choose. But the first duty is parental, the second is school and third the library."

LAKE MYSTERY



Fishermen at Erieau, a Lake Erie port 20 miles south of Chatham Ont., are at a loss to account for the millions of dead shiners and chub that have been washed ashore. BERLIN SLOWLY EMERGES FROM RUBBLE

Berlin is slowly but surely emerging from the pile of rubble which Allied soldiers saw after the war. Abject poverty is evident, as shown by the old man, left, scavenging in U. S. army dumps for bits of metal which he sells to obtain enough food to live. The mountains of brick and stone are disappearing to make way for curbside "stores," right, and for hundreds of buildings, some of them well-constructed and modern in design. Occupation authorities are encouraging the building of private homes. — Central Press Canadian.

FOR INDIAN HEALTH

The multi-million dollar hospital will serve 900 Indians who trap and hunt in the James Bay area. HAVE SUCCESS IN CANCER FIGHT

Five medical scientists of the Sloan-Kettering Institute and the Dept. of Medicine of the Memorial Centre of New York, have revealed that the experimental use of two hormones, acth and cortisone, has caused the dwindling away of certain types of cancerous growths in a few patients. Four of the five researchers who used the hormones on malignant tumors with dramatic results are (left to right): Dr. Konrad Dobringer, Dr. Rulon W. Rawson, Dr. Leonard P. Eliel, and Dr. Olaf H. Pearson. The fifth scientist, not pictured, is Dr. C. P. Rhodes. A new hope for ultimate success in solving the problem of cancer is warranted on the basis of the research so far done with the two hormones. — Central Press Canadian.

Shannonville.— The Home and School Association and the teachers of the local school were hosts at a very enjoyable Hallowe'en party held in the school on Monday evening from 7 to 9 p.m.

Mrs. Kenneth Juby entertained the younger attendants in the junior room, while Mrs. Phillips had charge of the games in the senior room.

"Musical Arms" was greatly enjoyed with Miss Helen Marion emerging the winner. Miss Audrey Hunt was "Pumpkin Pie Face" contest discovering a small doll after much string had been untied and paper unwrapped.

A "peanut scramble" proved an interesting item on the program. Mr. Ted Martin was the winner in the "corn-flake eating contest" and scored in the "apple whistler. Mrs. Spencer was his able partner. Bobbing for apples was enjoyed by both young and old.

Variety of Costumes

The array of costumes was indeed a credit to a small community. Viewed in their "march past" were ghosts, witches, gypsies, Highland lassie, Little Bo-Peep, Negress, sailors, tramps, Indians and costumes depicting Hallowe'en.

The judges, Mesdames Gordon Johnson, Boyce Cook and G. M. Fraser found difficulty in reaching a decision in awarding the prizes for the costumes, some having to draw for the prizes.

Prizes Awarded

Junior prizes—Donna Hartley, ghost; Steve Sword, old tramp; Linda Marion and Earl Spencer, bride and groom; Peter Caldwell, Hallowe'en costume; Ross Vivian, witch.

Candy and apples were distributed during the evening and delicious refreshments were served by the Local Council Members, Mrs. Boyce Cook.

Mrs. Kenneth Juby, program convener, is to be commented on her excellent evening's program and also Mrs. Phillips, for her very capable assistance.

Local Orange Lodge Holds Successful Hallowe'en Dance

Shannonville — The local Orange Lodge held a very successful Hallowe'en dance on Tuesday evening. The Rhythm Ranch Riders furnished the music for dancing.

A number were in costume on this occasion, and the judges must have experienced some difficulty in their decision. Mr. Arbuckle being attired in women's garb and carrying the baby while Mrs. Arbuckle was the husband. Sandwiches and coffee were sold at midnight.

Druggist Taken For Ride, Beaten, Robbed, Dumped

Toronto, Nov. 4 (CP) — An east-end druggist was taken for a "ride" Thursday night, beaten by two thugs, robbed of $200 and dumped in a ditch, he told police.

James Small said he stepped into an automobile he thought was a taxi, outside an east-end beverage room. He asked the driver to take him home. In the back seat of the car was another man, who kept quiet until they reached the suburbs, then told Small to keep quiet.

Small was taken to hospital when found wandering on the road on the outskirts of the city. He was treated for face cuts.

The Myth of Mummy Wheat

(By H. J. Bunker in The Listener of London)

From time to time we read of claims that wheat grains and other seeds recovered from ancient tombs have been planted, and, in spite of great antiquity, have grown to produce fine, healthy plants. These stories are usually put out in good faith.

A few years ago an Englishman of unimpeachable honesty brought home from Egypt some seeds which were undoubtedly genuine; it was quite certain that they were several thousands of years old.

The gentleman had these seeds planted in his garden, and, to the amazement of those "in the know", they produced a very fine crop of plants, indistinguishable from modern varieties.

On further investigation, however, it was found that the gentleman's gardener, thinking it most unlikely that the poor-looking seeds his master had brought home from Egypt would produce much of a show, had planted modern seeds alongside the old, in order, as he said, not to disappoint his master!

"Mummy" grains and seeds taken from ancient Egyptian tombs, and of undoubted authenticity, have, from time to time, been planted under strict scientific supervision, and it can definitely be said that, whenever this has been done, in no single instance has any of this seed or grain ever germinated. Such are the facts, disappointing though they may be.

What, then, are the actual facts as regarded the longevity of seeds? Naturally, it varies immensely with different types of seeds, and, without going into great detail, I can give you two interesting cases cited by Dr. Ramsbottom, keeper of the botany department at the British Museum of Natural History at South Kensington. As the result of air-raid damage to the herbarium of the museum in 1940, the seeds of some plants got damp, including a type of mimosa which had been brought home from China in 1793.

In spite of their long sleep of 147 years in the herbarium the seeds germinated. But this is not the record. A seed of the Sacred Lotus plant of the Nile, Nelumbium speciosum, was treated with concentrated sulphuric acid and then with water, and in a matter of a few hours it germinated, and is actually growing now at Kew Gardens.

This specimen is known to have been collected 237 years ago. This is the longest period of seed viability of which we are absolutely certain.

We do not know what determines the ultimate length of life of seeds, or why there is any limit to their viability! So far, we only know that the toughest do not normally germinate after two or three hundred years.

Perhaps one of the most interesting tests which has been done on the length of life of seeds or spores was a little experiment I was able to carry out some years back, when Tutankhamen's tomb was discovered.

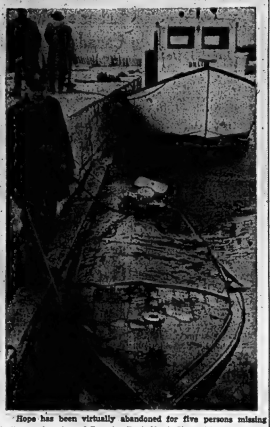
It occurred to some of us then here we had a case of a tomb which had definitely not been opened for over 3,000 years, so that we would have an opportunity of seeing whether bacterial spores, which are highly resistant, or, indeed, any other form of life, had managed to survive thirty centuries of dormancy.

So, when the inner chamber of the tomb, embodying the golden shrine round Tutankhamen's sarcophagus, was opened, sterile swabs, which we had sent out from England, were wiped on the walls and on various objects in the chamber.

They were then sent home to us for bacteriological examination. In every case the contents proved to be sterile. Indeed, the same applied to the various mould fungi and insects which were also found in the tomb: all were dead. The last spark of life had gone out some time during the 3,000 years.

So the cold facts of science have shattered these two stories about "mummy" wheat and disease-producing microbes living on in the tombs of the Pharaohs. It might have been more exciting had the wheat grain germinated to a living plant, or the bacteriological spore to an active culture, but science recognizes only one kind of romance, that of truth. It was Thomas Huxley who said: "A tragedy is a beautiful theory killed by a fact"; and, unfortunately, such tragedies have to happen every day in the world of science.

ABANDON HOPE FOR MISSING DUCK HUNTERS



Hope has been virtually abandoned for five persons missing in the rough waters of Georgian Bay's North Channel between Thessalon and Cockburn Island. The wrecked motor boat on which the four men and one woman left for a deer-hunting expedition on Cockburn Island is examined by Provincial Constable A. S. Gray. Police believe the boat swamped in the storm. — Central Press Canadian.

South Sea Sailors Still Like Cities

Vancouver — (CP) — The dreamy, lazy life of the South Sea islands holds no illusions for three hardy Vancouver mariners after their 13,000-mile Pacific cruise.

The happy-go-lucky trio — Philip "Pip" Brock, 35, Bob Fortune, 24, and John Wells, 23 — weren't showered with gifts by hula-hula maidens or native potentates.

They left here May 23, 1948, with $1,700 in food and $1,700 in cash. They sailed the length and breadth of the blue Pacific in their 40-foot cutter Escapee.

The sea-going trio found it tough all the way, and were forced to wire home for another $1,900 to get back.

"Nothing outstanding happened," said Brock. "We had a lot of fun, though."

Even so, the trio were unanimous. They prefer the smoky, crowded city of Vancouver to all the palm-swaying, sun-kissed islands in the blue Pacific.

Aussies Co-operate To Build Apartments

Sydney, Australia — (CP) — Eighty-three Australian families will soon be living in their own apartments, financed and built under a co-operative home apartment scheme.

The system, already popular in Canada, the United States and Europe, has not been used before in Australia, but local builders are adding distinctive touches to the imported idea.

The new venture was started by a group of citizens who contributed enough money to start the scheme going. Then they got a guarantee from the New South Wales government so they could borrow money on the best possible terms.

Now three modern buildings, containing a total of 83 apartments, are going up in Sydney suburbs. All are on hills overlooking the harbor and have refrigeration and hot water service. They are within a few miles of the city.

The plan's popularity is that it gives residents the same security of ownership they would have if they owned a house.

The apartments are attractive too. One block contains 37 two-bedroom apartments with windows from floor to ceiling and open balconies. Another block, with 38 two-bedroom apartments, has a 10-storey front almost entirely of glass.

Tenant-owners must purchase shares in the co-operative society for the full value of their apartments. They can move in by paying 25 per cent of the capital value and can pay the remainder over a period of years. Average cost of the apartments is £2,100 ($8,145), and the average weekly instalment ranges from £2/10 to £3/10 ($6.40 to $8.50.)

VICTORIA to TORONTO in 4½ DAYS!

"CIRCUMSTANCES made it necessary for me to drive my Hillman to Toronto in a hurry," writes Mr. J. C. B. Knox, of 766 Monterey Ave., Victoria, B.C. "I covered the entire 2,811 mile route in only 44½ days, averaging over 55 m.p.h. for long periods through the United States. Biggest mileage covered in a single day was 460."

"My Hillman behaved beautifully, cruising smoothly over Zelliwood Pass (7000 ft.) in high gear, and handling perfectly at better than 70 m.p.h. on the highway. Despite very long sessions at the wheel without a break, I was always perfectly relaxed and comfortable. When's more, my Hillman sneered and held the road better than any of the big cars I have owned."

("Gas consumption was at least 40 miles to the gallon. Driving costs) were no more than $1.00 per 100 miles".

Japanese Given Nobel Prize For Atomic Physics

By GUSTAV SVENSSON

Stockholm, Sweden, Nov. 4 — (AP)—The first Nobel prize ever won by a Japanese was awarded Thursday to Dr. Hideki Yukawa for his contributions to atomic physics.

Dr. Yukawa, 42, has been a professor of Theoretical Physics at Columbia University, New York, since last September. He was educated entirely in Japan. He did not even travel abroad until after he became famous.

The award amounts to 156,280 Swedish crowns (about $30,0000).

The Swedish Academy decided to shelve the 1949 Nobel prize for Literature because it was deadlocked over the top candidates, including Winston Churchill and the Italian philosopher, Benedetto Croce. Thirty-five persons had been nominated.

The Academy's deliberations are in secret. Churchill's candidacy presumably was based largely on his two books of Second World War memoirs, "The Gathering Storm" and "Their Finest Hour". The two volumes are the first of a four-volume series. Croce, 83, is the author of many works on philosophy, aesthetics and history.

Tourist Boosters On Busman's Trip

Halifax — (CP) — A hundred travelling tourist boosters went into the land of Evangeline recently and saw some of the things that historic Nova Scotia shows its visitors.

Members of the Canadian Tourist Association took a day off from their annual convention here. They rode north in buses through Rockingham and saw where the Duke of Kent erected a summer home in 1799 and roamed the shore facing silent and ominous Bedford Naval Magazine, resting place of 700 tons of high explosive.

Their guide told them of the village of Mount Uniacke, named after a family of lawmakers, one of whom was a parliament in the only duel ever fought in Nova Scotia. They swept through Newport, home of American painter Gilbert Stuart whose works include the best-known portrait of Presidents Washington and Jefferson.

From rolling farm country, the groups entered the fringe of the province's famed Annapolis Valley and the town of Windsor, site of old Fort Edward where plans for the expulsion of the Acadian French from Nova Scotia were formulated in the mid-18th century. Here they caught a glimpse of the home of Sir Thomas Haliburton, author of "Sam Slick."

They saw the dykes of Fundy tidelands built in 1760 to hold back turbulent Bay of Fundy tides which wash the province's northwestern shore, and the orchards from which come Annapolis Valley apples.

Tourists, themselves, for a day, these Canadians from Vancouver to St. John's noted gypsum works and candy factories, box plants and pulp mills. When they went north, water in Windsor harbor was 40-odd feet deep when they returned it was a mere trickle after Fundy tides had receded.

In Grand Pre, they wandered through the land described by Longfellow, who never visited the district. They heard of the old Acadians who left their homes at the point of the bayonets of "New England Redcoats." There is a museum packed with centuries-old relics.

At kentville, they stopped for dinner and, the board of trade produced barrels of apples. They all got one and a delegate from British Columbia's Okanagan Valley took two.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Tonight's the night. And to paraphrase a famous tirst war show let's "Push and Go."

Tonight is Hockey Night in Belleville.

Tonight, laddies of the grand fandom of hockey, the 'id is being pried off the pot of activities in Memorial Arena.

Tonight at 8.30, we 'opes, the first editions of the 1949-50 Belleville Hockey Association Junior Kockeis sweep into action against the balding kids who represent the Toronto Marlboro Club.

It's going to be a grand battle.

We have watched the Cookian cohorts in action. We have seen Coach Ken McNaught whip those big, and we mean big, puck-hungry kids into concerted action.

Tonight will see the first edition of the Belleville Bees'kie in action. They are up against a sturdy fast-skating team and (don't forget this), the Toronto team are coming here victory-bent.

Yeah, it's going to be a good game. The Belleville Hockey Association knew whereof it was doing when it arranged for definite notable officials

And who is here? None other than that grand old gentle Phil Sleam, who knows all the angles and who has been brought here to whistle the game.

LOOK WHO'S HERE

This red-headed guy was tough. We, on the expected beast and assigned to find out by various ways and means just what the Belleville District Hockey League consisted of were rudely jolted back on the haunches by this six-foot sorrel-topped giant, so to speak.

* * *

It happened last night in Memorial Arena. This big lug was shuffling from one dozen sweaters in one hand, six dozen hockey sticks in the other; five packs of chewing gum in his mere or less prominent molars, three insurance policies in his right pocket and a pack of fags in the other.

* * *

But he's a good sort of chap. He immediately pinned us to the figurative wall with this: "Listen, chum, you've been praising the Belleville Rockets and the CNE Diesels to the high hockey heavens. How about us?"

* * *

Ah, No. It isn't the redheaded impetuous but go-gut-it-"Kad" Carson of the CNE Diesels. After all you can't blame the guy. And in fact he's a very good friend of ours, as is the misses.

Okay, Jack, you're turn comes next.

Sam Snead Clings To One-Stroke Lead in Tourney

(By The Canadian Press)

Sam Snead clung to his one-stroke lead in the North and South Open golf tournament with a two-under-par 70 for a 138 total for 36 holes.

But the slamming man from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., was seriously challenged by six other par-busters as the field braced itself for today's 36-hole wind-up at Pinehurst, S.C.

Johnny Bulla, Pittsburgh professional, was in second place, one stroke away. In third place with 140 after a 69 Thursday was the National open champion, Cary Middlecoff.

Only three strokes away at 141 came Johnny Palmer of Badin, N.C., veteran Denny Shute of Akron, Ohio, and Ted Kroll, Philmont, Pa.

Branch Rickey and Fred Saigh parted company at St. Louis Thursday but they apparently parted with none of their ball players. Saigh, President of St. Louis baseball Nationals announced, "I held my own." That's more than many major-league club owners have been able to do with Rickey, shrewd president of Brooklyn baseball. Neither would admit having gotten to first base in player deals.

The International Boxing Club at New York moved the Roland La Starza-Cesar Brion heavyweight match into the Dec. 2 Madison Square Garden date after negotiations fell through for a non-title bout between middleweight champ Jake La Motta and Robert Villemain of France. The La Starza-Brion bout, bringing together two of the better young heavyweights originally was set for Dec. 9. A new match will be lined up for that opening.

Joe Micelli, 143½, New York, scored a technical knockout over Fritzie Pruden, 143¾, St. Catharines, Ont., in 1.39 of the sixth round at Brooklyn Thursday. Pruden had a badly cut eye. The fight was scheduled for eight rounds.

Manchester United, English League Tuesday-division soccer club, will make a six-week tour of Canada and the United States next summer, it was announced at Manchester Thursday. The tour has been arranged with the American Football League, incorporated Nov. 1, but contracts and itinerary have yet to be completed.

Soviet champion F. F. Vanin has bettered the world's record for 50,000 metres in a race at Tbilisi, Czechoslovakia, it was reported from Prague Thursday, running the distance in 1.39:14.8. The official mark is 1.40:46.4, set by Nikko Hietanen of Finland.

Stamps Hit Playoff Trail In Defence of Grey Cup; Big Four Squabble Not Settled

(By The Canadian Press)

It is playoff time in Canadian football with the Dominion champion cowboys from Calgary hitting the trail tomorrow in defence of the Grey Cup.

In the east, a playoff squabble between Ottawa Rough Riders and Montreal Alouettes is overshadowing the regular season schedule winding this weekend in two of the three senior loops.

Coach Les Lear' Calgary Stampeders tackle Saskatchewan Roughriders at Regina tomorrow in the opening game of a two-game, total point series for the Western Canada title and the right to meet the east for the Dominion crown.

In the East, the Big Four and CRFU schedules end Saturday. The Senior intercollegiate loop still has a week to go.

In the Big Four, where Ottawa and Montreal already have clinched the two playoff berths, Toronto Argonauts invade Montreal and the winless Hamilton Wildcats will make a last desperate victory bid in the Ontario league leading Rough Riders at Ottawa. Peatlieus Decided Playoff positions in the ORFU also are decided with Hamilton Tigers and Queen's Golden Gaels holding down the coveted spots. The Tigers wind up the regular schedule in a game at Kingston against Toronto Balmy Beach and Windsor Spitfires finish out their string again Sarnia in Windsor.

In the senior intercollegiate loop McGill will meet University of Toronto, while Queen's University tackles University of Western Ontario. The students in the senior league have little to gain except Toronto Balmy Beach and Windsor Spitfires finish out their string again Sarnia in Windsor.

BILL GREEN

A regular guy; he's not as mad as he looks, but the guy pictured above is the well known Bill Green, member of a squad that two or three decades ago, brought hockey championship glory to this city. Right now Bill is heading a committee of "old-timers" in an effort to raise funds to perpetuate the memories of the late 'at Boland and "Daw" Whalen.

The trophies, will be competed for annually in this respect. The Boland Cup will go to the best goalkeeper. The "Whalen" Mug will go to the best forward in the Belleville District Hockey League.

Guardian Accuses Labor of Making Canada Scapegoat

Manchester, Nov. 4 — (CP) — In a lengthy leading editorial, the Manchester Guardian today accused the Labor party's left-wing members of making Canada the "scapegoat" of the British economic crisis.

The influential Liberal newspaper says the thesis first broached by Health Minister Aneurin Bevan that Canada would be broke if British stopped buying Canadian wheat, now has been taken up by the party's left-wingers as a "painless" way of explaining Britain's financial plight to the electorate.

The Guardian warns that Britain would come off second best in any attempt to force Canada into the sterling area. The paper says Canada's economy is efficient and flexible and the Dominion could count on American aid if forced to revamp her economy.

"Canadians don't want to have to integrate themselves more closely in a North American economy, but it's not they who have to be very worried about the consequences.

"It's we who have to be worried last the talk of our left-wingers should finally make Canadians decide their patience and help for British recovery is not worthwhile. That patience is already being severely tested by fresh cuts in dollar imports which the government is now beginning to make.

"The worst thing that could happen for us now is to destroy Canadian goodwill by a futous reaction. That Canada either ought to or can be forced into the sterling area."

DAFFY-nition:

PEDESTRIAN — one who, for no good reason at all, walks. It might be noted here that there is only one more primitive method of locomotion than walking, and that is crawling. If therefore you are beginning to be worried about being called a walker or crawler, you have an easy out. As you have probably seen by the papers they've been building a gol-darn centrapsum called an "autowaiblia" for the past few years and many guys have paired with their hard-earned dough to become motorists instead of pedestrians.

Now there's a bunch of fellas up the 4-lane highway who have been making speeches and of pedestrians than anybody we how. And when you stop to think that people have been walking (or crawling) for the past 50,000 years and all of a sudden West End Motor Sales decide to boldly abandon this primitive pastime—it just makes you stop and think!

MORAL:

If you're tired of walking the boys to see are West End Motor Sales at Sweetheart Avenue and Kingston Road. And in case you haven't heard, Rawson Bus Lines have started a new service to Parkwood Heights, which will take you right to the door. Let, or phone 3766 and we'll pick you up. No obligation.

Gerry Coleman Of N.Y. Yankees Rookie of Year

New York, Nov. 4. —(CP) — Gerry Coleman, fancy-fielding second baseman of the New York Yankees, was voted today the American League's rookie of the year.

The slim 23-year-old resident of San Francisco joined Brooklyn's Don Newcombe of the National League as the front standouts of their respective circuits.

Both received the majority in an Associated Press poll of 116 members of the Baseball Writers Association throughout the major league cities.

Whereas Newcombe breezed past all opposition by capturing 13 votes, Coleman had strenuous competition from outfielder Roy Sievers of St. Louis Browns and southpaw catcher Alex Kellner of Philadelphia Athletics.

The wiry infielder, who batted only .276 but clouted only 3 homers, and drove in only 43 runs.

However, Coleman is the type who can do a lot of things to do them well. He is smart, aggressive, an excellent fielder, fast on the bases and hard to fool at the plate.

It should be a good show as Coach McNaught pushed his charges through a strenuous practise session last night.

Selke Disgusted With Canadiens In Present Form

By VIC MORRIS, Jr.
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, Nov. 4 — (CP) — General Manager Frank Selke of Montreal Canadiens may have good reason to be "disgusted" with his team's performance so far in the young National Hockey League season.

The pudgy little man who rules over 1,500 amateur and professional hockey players in Canada and the United States, is seldom critical of his club's team in his hockey empire, but this week he came right out and said:

"I'm disgusted with the way the team is playing."

He meant it, too.

Although posted in third place, one point ahead of the fast-climbing Chicago Black Hawks, Canadiens have the poorest goal-scoring record in the league and that includes the cellar-dwelling Boston Bruins.

Manager Selke based his criticism of the team on the "poor showing" of his forwards, who have accounted for only 16 goals in nine games.

Hints Few Shuffles

He didn't delve into the reason why the boys aren't putting the puck into the net, but he hinted that a few shuffles with his farm system might inject some life into the team.

"For instance," he said, "I had to pull Burt Herschfield, a strong forward, from Montreal Royals to steer him to Cincinnati for some fast grooming in the American Hockey League.

"Actually I don't like to do this because under our farm system it doesn't pay to push a fellow too fast. But I need some kids with a scoring eye and I think that Herschfield will come along and be up with Canadiens before the season is over."

What Mr. Selke was trying to say is that he has given his Canadiens warning that he'll move fresh youngsters in from his farm system the minute that his regulars stop ringing the register with goals.

Mr. Selke should get some consolation, however, from the fact that his team has been scored on only 12 times since the start of the season. But he does not add tells why.

"Customers pay to see their team win and without goals teams don't win."

MILTON WINS CHAMPIONSHIP

Little Britain, Ont., Nov. 4—(CP)—Behind the five-hit hurling of lean righthander Bruce Marshall, Milton, Red Sox won the Ontario Baseball Association intermediate 'C' Championship Thursday by walloping Little Britain Cornhies 14-4. It was the Sox's second straight victory, having won at home Saturday 6-3.

Over 300 talkative fans shivered through the nine innings as Marshall mowed down the first 20 batters and hurled no-hit ball until he weakened in the seventh. Milton backed up their hurler's fine efforts by clubbing two British pitchers for 14 hits.

SCHOOLING LOSS

Truro, England — (CP)—Education authorities said an estimated total of 18,000 school days a year were lost in Cornwall by children helping on farms during farming.

Western Wants Playoff Game In Own Stadium

London, Ont., Nov. 4—(CP)—Arguing that any senior intercollegiate football playoff this year should be held in London, the University of Western Ontario's Gazette said editorially today that big stand had the backing of the arts and science faculty.

With the Western Mustangs already assured of at least a playoff berth, the Gazette said it is only fair that a sudden-death affair should take place in the local stadium. The two previous playoffs involving Western were held in Toronto last year and in Montreal in 1948.

The Gazette said that the faculty stresses the argument, too, about loss in time and money of Western students flocking to another city for the title final. It estimated that a total of 5,000 local students attended the previous finals in Toronto and Montreal spending some $150,000.

So it is about time, the Gazette hinted broadly, that London cuts in on money like that. Besides, local fans should get a break on a playoff game, the same as Toronto and Montreal have had.

The editorial is signed by Ian McIntosh, editor and publisher of the Gazette.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By TREVOR ICETON

Toronto, Nov. 4.—(CP)— It seemed a good idea when the Ontario Hockey Association ordered the third period of an unfinished game to be played at a later date, immediately preceding the next scheduled game between the two clubs on the same ice.

The game, between St. Catharines Teepees and Toronto Marlboros in the O.H.A. junior division, was called off after the second period when fog on the ice surface at St. Catharines made play dangerous. Fans were told their seat stubs would be honored when the game was replayed at a later date.

Now, Chick (Stratford Beacon-Herald) Appel writes the St. Catharines club is on the well-known spot. "The ticket-holders were promised that they would be given another game for their money. If the O.H.A. edict sticks, then there is but one solution for the Teepees Club, and that is to honor the stubs at a future game."

Not Always Right

Everyone has a boss. Even referees, who can ignore criticism from players and fans and get away with it, must listen when their superiors talk.

N. D. (St. Thomas Times-Journal) Wilmore tells of a referee in St. Thomas who was checked up sharply not for any flagrant violation of rules, but just for bad judgment.

"His decisions in recent games haven't gone well with players, fans, and (obviously) officials," writes Whitmore.

Movie Column

Hollywood, Nov. 4 (AP)—It took years of trying, but Ava Gardner now is a big name at M-G-M.

She leaves next March for Spain and Britain, where she will appear in "Pandora and the Flying Dutchman" for M.G.M.

She will star opposite James Mason, who she says is a "dream-boat." She says he's the most cooperative and ablest actor she has worked with.

The Belle has also cast Ava for "Right Cross" with Dick Powell and Ricardo Montalban. This would follow her current loan-out for "Carriage Entrance" but Ava's got more for them. She's not going to do it.

Friday Footnotes

Dana Andrews plans to get back into production; his own films, despite his wounds from "No Minor Vices." He is nesting an idea f.-r a big-time film which would cost a mere $400,000. "If it is such a natural idea, I'm surprised no one has thought of it," he says, but that's all he'll divulge.

Margaret Sullivan, here for "No Sad Songs" after a six-year absence, says the greatest change she noticed in picture-making is the speed. "I like it this way," she says; "you don't get tired between shots."

Jimmy Durante, who has been absent too long from the screen, will get more action next year, M.G.M. has him down for a Van Johnson musical and the Caruso story, in which he'll play Mario Lanza's valet.

Move in Right Direction Says Board Chairman

A feeling that the announced changes in the Ontario Education system were a move "in the right direction" was expressed today by Miss Josephine Tickell, chairman of the Belleville Board of Education.

The announcement made in St. Thomas last evening by the Hon. Dana Porter, indicated that among other changes high school entrance examinations would be done away with and that the present grading system would be discontinued.

"Personally I think it is a splendid idea," stated Miss Tickell, "and the majority of the boards of education are of the same opinion."

Miss Tickell said that the local board of education some months ago had approved of the setting up of a senior public school and the changes announced by Mr. Porter included a change along this line.

She added that the change in the educational system naturally was not the bolt from the blue which it appeared, but rather had been given careful consideration by educational authorities.

The Kibitzer

Everybody likes a fat hand. Stuffed with aces and kings and queens, bridge players are more contented than cows. If stuck, they could get well with a hand like the one you see here.

So, when I got this shower of honeys the other night, I sat back purring like a cat. My opening bid was two hearts. This was a forcing signal that makes sure the bidding will continue.

The encouraging response of three no-trump from partner was music to my ears. Any answer other than two no-trump is recognized as the signal for showing slam help in the form of a sure trick.

If partner has a king as well as an ace we have a laydown grand slam. I had visions of this. So, I bid four no-trump. This is the signal for asking partner how many aces and kings he has.

You could have knocked me over with a whiff when he passed my four no-trump. He thought I wanted it played there. He had heard that good players do not always use four no-trump for ace showing.

Good player or not, you ruin too many good hands when you switch ideas in the middle of deals. Even if you do not like an agreed signal, warn partner in advance before you abandon it.

There are situations in bridge which can be determined only by special signals; conventions. The success or failure of a large contract depends on the information gained therefrom.

If partner does not agree with the convention, so be it. But let him offer a substitute that the pair will agree on. Or announce that he approves of none. But to ignore an agreed convention is a good way to wreck a good hand and a beautiful friendship.

All 13 tricks came in. We lost the tremendous bonus for grand slam by not bidding it. My partner was a bridge player. But who said he was good?

Little Benny's Note Book

Next Saturday is Sid Hunt's birthday party, and ma bawt a box of candy for me to take for a present, and this afternoon she was sewing up in her room, and I watched for a while, saying, G, ma, it's a funny feeling to think that I'm going to give some guy a whole box of candy and maybe I'll never even see one piece of it myself.

Yes indeed, the world is a funny place, ma said, and pritty soon I said, Well hay, ma, jimminy doonaleen, suppose that candy is stale!

Dont worry, it came from the Krinal Kandy Kitchen where it's made fresh every day, ma said, and I said, Sure, ma, but even the freshest candy turns stale, if you give it enough time, and how do you know they didn't sell you a stale box just to get rid of it?

My instinct tells me so, ma said, and I said, Well gosh, ma, that's no proof. If that candy is stale, Sid is libel to look at me funny all the rest of my life, and I'll never know the reason, I said.

All rite, what yo udont know won't hurt you, ma said, and I said, But heck, ma, maybe he'll tell all the other fellows and start a big scandle, and everybody will think I gave him a box of old stuff left over from last Christmas or maybe longer.

My, this is serious, what would you suggest? ma said, and I said, Well, if I opened the box careful and ate one piece just to make sure, and then spred the other pieces so no hole would show, and then rapped the box up carefull again, that's what I'd suggest, I said.

The result being ma gave me a piece of candy out of the last box that pop brawt her to se if it would sweeten my conscience. Which it did.

Tenders on New Municipal Building Close Saturday

Tweed — Tenders on the new Municipal building in Tweed will close on Saturday and it is expected that the municipal council will meet early next week to consider them. It is understood that a number of outside firms have tendered on the construction of the building. Ratepayers placed their stamp of approval on the construction of the building at a referendum in September. The department of Lands and Forests will occupy the second storey of the building while the first floor will contain the clerk's office, fire hall and rest rooms and the police office. The basement will house the fire new hall for the Tweed branch of the Canadian Legion. The council originally estimated that the building would cost in the neighborhood of $60,000.

Sang at Anniversary

The Junior Choir of St. John's United Church sang at Trinity United Church, Madoc, last Sunday night on the occasion of their anniversary services.

Under the direction of Mr. S. H. Connor with Mrs. Connor as accompanist, they sang three numbers, "Bless This House", "Have You Been in the Garden with Jesus" and "God Is Love". They were complimented by a great many of the congregation. After the service the members of Madoc choir served a delicious lunch which was greatly enjoyed.

Mr. Harold Emerson generously supplied free transportation for the choir to Madoc.

To Build at Northbrook

Arthur Snare has announced that he will erect a new building at Northbrook to house a billiard room, tobacco counter and refreshment booth.

The building will be of cement block construction and it was Mr. Snare's intention to make it a one-storey affair. However, he has been approached by the Provincial Police, Magistrate J. L. Lloyd, and two mining companies, to provide them with office space and he is now considering the possibility of making it a two-storey structure. Mr. Snare proposes to erect a building that will be a credit to the village of Northbrook. He has felt for some time that the Plinton, Northbrook, Clyde area was ready for an indoor recreation parlor and it was only recently that he purchased a lot on the main street of the village, north of the Kaladar telephone exchange office. Building operations will commence in the near future.

Public Speaking Awards Made

Melrose—The township public speaking contest held in the town hall on Tuesday evening attracted a large crowd. Ten contestants spoke on a variety of subjects which made it a bit difficult for the judges to decide on the winners.

The following girls carried off the prizes; Senior, Sheila Turner; Ardeth Brant, Juniors, Sandra Allan, Shelva Jean Cummings.

Each of the other speakers was awarded one dollar, donated by the township council.

The three names at the head of the list will compete with speakers from the other two southern townships at the Queen Alexandra School, Belleville, on Friday evening, November 4th. The best of luck is wished for the Tyendinaga contestants.

Curtail Production At Rubber Plant

Kitchener, Nov. 4 (CP) —Serious curtailment of production at the Dominion Rubber Co., Ltd., tire factory, effective this week-end was disclosed by a company official today.

Sharp decline in motor car production as a result of the Oshawa strike will mean a further layoff, he added.

Just how many workers will be jobless temporarily by the production curtailment was not revealed.

The factory here of B. F Goodrich Co. of Canada, Ltd., is not affected by either the steel strike or the G.M. dispute at Oshawa.

Company president George Sawyin said today there is no indication of any layoff in the Gooderich plant and he expressed the hope that such a condition can be forestalled until strike difficulties have been eliminated

TWENTY PERSONS REPORTED DEAD IN FLASH FLOOD

Worst in Venezuela's History Causes Damage Estimated at $10,000,000

Caracas, Venezuela, Nov. 5. — (AP)—At least 20 persons were reported dead in a flash flood which swept through Caracas suburbs Friday and authorities feared the death toll might run higher.

The flood, worst in Venezuela's capital in many years, caused damage estimated unofficially at $10,000,000.

Today hundreds of homeless Venezuelans searched frantically for members of their families missing in the flood.

It was South and Latin America's second major flood since Oct. 1. Heavy rains and floods in Guatemala during the first three weeks of October killed more than 300 persons and caused an estimated $50,000,000 of damage.

A six-hour downpour Friday brought a sudden rush of water here from the usually dry Guaire River, which already was swollen by several days of heavy rains.

Roaring brown waters first through the rude huts of hundreds of poor families living along the river banks. Radio patrol cars dashed along the river, warning dwellers on the banks to flee. Many of the hundreds left homeless said their flight from the swirling was a trick to dislodge them from their homes.

Horrified onlookers saw whole families bob by in the water, helpless and in many cases with their houses and furniture. Eyewitnesses said they counted at least 80 men, women and children struggling or unconscious in the flood waters.

At the race track near the river nine race horses were drowned and 11 others were injured.

Wolves Hazard To Night Flying, They Eat Rubber

Edmonton, Nov. 5 — (CP) — Latest hazard to night flying in the north is the appetite of wolves and foxes for synthetic rubber, A.A. Washington, Nov. 5 (AP) —A major new break in the 36-day steel strike seemed imminent today, while the United States government stepped in as peacemaker between John L. Lewis and the still-unbroken front of coal mine owners.

Republic Steel Corporation, the country's third largest steelmaker, made its 54,000 workers a pension offer in Cleveland. The C.I.O. United Steelworkers' district director there did not dismiss the terms out-right but said:

"With (C.I.O. President Philip) Murray's approval, we'll accept."

The No. 2 producer, Bethlehem Steel, settled early this week. Washington officials predicted that if "big steel"—United States Steel Corporation and its subsidiaries—gets into line, the backlog-work strike would still become country-wide.

Meanwhile, a second prominent steel company came to terms early today with the steel workers. Kaiser Steel Corp. was taking Steel of Costaville, Pa., one of the smaller Pennsylvania independent producers. It employs 3,000.

Terms were not made public but spokesmen for both sides hinted the key to the agreement was an improved company-financed pension plan.

Already Have Plan

Spokesmen for the company said Lafera already has a company-financed pension program of $83.50 to $115.50 monthly for workers retired at the both sides includes U.S. Social Security benefits. The Republican pact guarantees a $100 minimum pension at 65.

Ten thousand workers of the Timken Roller Bearing Company went on strike at midnight. They set up picket lines at five Timken plants—Canton, Wooster, Mount Vernon, Columbus and Zanesville, O. The union sought Timken's abolishment of the Bethlehem-type contract.

"There were stirrings on the coal front, too. Cyrus S. Ching, tireless chief of the federal mediation service, called southern bituminous operators here Monday to "explore all the possibilities" for settlement of the 46-day coalfield shutdown.

President Truman, some associates said privately, soon will make a final decision on whether to go to court, under the Taft-Hartley Labor Law injunction procedure, to force a resumption of coal - digging.

THIRD MRS. V. MATURE IS HEIRESS' DIVORCE

Aerial Photo Survey Experiments By Helicopters Marked Success

Ottawa, Nov. 5 — (CP)—Helicopters have come to the aid of the ground-grubbing surveyor.

Experiments with Canada's Topographical Service have today down fixed points, by oldfashioned methods, from the air, for the modern air photo survey of vast areas of our use.

This year, as an experiment, the service is modernize their methods. They used two helicopters with outstanding success in the Ungava Labrador area and around Fort Nelson, B.C.

The surveyors found the helicopters, equipped with pontoons, were able to operate successfully from both land and water bases and helped to make this year's aerial survey program the largest ever completed. More than 70,000 square miles of interportant mining, forestry, agricultural and other territory were surveyed.

Operation of the expanded work is indicated from the Resources Department's figures which say that less than 10 per cent of Canada's territory has been satisfactorily mapped by the four-mile scale."

As a result of this year's field work, more than 80,000 square miles of territory will be mapped by the end of 1950. Additional work also will make possible mapping at one-mile-to-the-inch of the widely - separated mining areas of Quebec-Labrador, the Yellowknife district of Northwest Territories, the Kimberley area of British Columbia, important areas in the prairies and the Lake Timiskaming district on the eastern townships of Quebec. The Maritimes and Newfoundland.

HOUSE APPROVES EXTENSION OF B.C. RAILWAY

83-Mile Stretch Will be Constructed

Ottawa, Nov. 5. —(CP)—Railways have at least one thing in common with sports promoters—they must have good connections if they want to make money.

The fact that the Pacific Great Eastern—British Columbia's provincially owned railway system—lacks such connections was emphasized Friday in the House of Commons. It now runs from Squamish in the southwest corner of the province to Quesnel in the middle. Neither has any connection with the main lines of any other railway.

However, the Commons took the first step toward remedying the situation when it gave first reading to a bill authorizing the Federal Government to help extend the railway to Prince George.

Since Prince George, 83 miles north of Quesnel, is on the main line of the Canadian National Railway the extension would give the P.G.E. a link with the rest of Canada.

The bill which will authorize federal payment of a $1,345,000 subsidy to assist in building the 83 mile extension, was given second after the House approved a resolution saying the same thing.

Lasting Prosperities

The commons also gave first reading to a bill authorizing the C.N.R. to take over the Terminals Railway Company at a cost of $450,000. The 113-mile line runs from Riviere du Loup, Que., to Edmundston, N.B., and Connell, N.B. This railway has the troubled too. It's a losing proposition. But the government said it's essential to keep it operating.

Welsh Couple Wins $600 Damage Suit From Landlords

Toronto, Nov. 5 — (CP) — A Welsh couple, who came to Canada less than two years ago, Friday won a $600 damage suit from their landlords.

Robert and Bridget Jones sued their landlords, William and Susan Dixon, for recovery of their furniture and clothing and a rebate on rent found by the Jones to be "unfit for habitation."

Jones told Magistrate Samuel Lector that after coming to the country but Canadians — they're mostly gulf rotten. I haven't met a good one yet."

He testified the Dixons charged $25 a month for two rooms and kitchen privileges. The Prices Board set rent for the premises at $7 for four persons and $10 for more than four. The Jones have seven children.

Jones said he stopped paying rent when the Board ruled it excessive. He was locked out of his apartment and clothes and furniture seized.

Tenants and Labor Groups Clamor Against Rent Increases, Landlords Want Controls Off

(By The Canadian Press)

Protests from tenants and from labor organizations continued to mount over Finance Minister Abbott's announcement that landlords may raise rents by 20 or 25 per cent starting Dec. 15.

Labor groups are discussing steps ranging from a one-day Canada-wide strike to public protest meetings to express their opposition. Meantime, a few spokesmen for landlords said they feel that this third post-war increase is not enough for them and that rental controls should be removed altogether.

The increases can be blocked in any province that replaces federal rental ceilings with ceilings of its own. Premier Duplessis of Quebec and it was "remarkable" that the Federal Government now is seeking a Supreme Court decision on the validity of rent control laws passed nine years ago, J. W. Conway, acting Saskatchewan Premier, Gardiner, has stated increase as "without justification."

Edmonton Gillespie, chairman of the Housing Committee of the Quebec command of the Canadian Legion, has urged government in allowing the increases to be broken fully. Canadians fighting men who died to make it possible for landlords to retain the present ceilings, asserted:

"Instead of families being protected, they are being exploited."

Throwing Cadet Into Bath Isolated Case

Kingston, Nov. 5 (CP)—Donald W. Strong of Rockcliffe, 22-year-old Royal Military College cadet who was scalded when classmates dumped him into a bath of hot water, was the victim of an isolated incident of horseplay of the sort that occurs from time to time among groups of young and high spirited young men," Brigadier D. R. Agnew, Commandant of the College said today.

"I am convinced it and I am making every effort to eliminate such childish pranks," he continued. Throwing cadets into baths is not an RMC tradition — and it will not be allowed to become a tradition."

After Church Parade

The incident occurred during group physical exercises after the cadets after church parade last Sunday. The commandant explained that the practice of the college was to give all the cadets the opportunity to develop a responsibility in junior leadership. Their activities during their six-weeks tour of duty was similar to that of an acting N.C.O.

"Last Sunday the morning and afternoon parades and the exercises other cadet acts who had been acting as junior commanders for but completed their tour of duty," said Brigadier Agnew.

Anticipating the possibility that cadets might wish to mark the occasion, a memorandum for "N.C.O.'s" tenure of office, the commandant said he had told the cadets that if they had approved of the actions of their seniors, "I would permit them to demonstrate in some form, providing it would not be offensive or bring discredit to any cadet."

"When the cadets were dismissed from church parade last Sunday, the four seniors were spontaneously picked up and carried around the square on the shoulders of their fellows." "Those participants were cheering for "Hey Are Jolly Good Fellows."

Unfortunate Culmination

"The 'chaired' cadets were carried in this manner around the square and the bath incident was an unfortunate culmination to the demonstration," the brigadier said.

There was no intention on the part of any cadet to seize an opportunity to "take-it-out" on Strong, Brig. Agnew said.

At Kingston Military Hospital Strong was out of bed today and showing no symptoms of his porter called.

"I will be back at the college over the weekend," he said. "I'm feeling fine already. It was just an unfortunate accident."

Six - Week - Old Son Kidnapped From His Crib

Utica ,N.Y. Nov. 5 — (AP)— The week-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kamorck was kidnapped from his crib Friday night, his mother reported.

Police broadcast an alarm for a black-and-tan sedan that was driven off with the boy, Stephen Henry, from the Kamorcks' small home.

The mother said she had fed the baby, an only child, shortly before 11 p.m., and put him in his crib, near the kitchen stove. She then lay down on a couch in the parlor to wait the return of her husband, who had gone out the 4 p.m.to-midnight shift at a nearby factory.

These events ensued, she told police:

She heard rustling in the kitchen a few minutes later, but thought little of it because she heard movements that "sounded like my husband moving there!" When there was no answer, she investigated and saw the kidnapper walking with the child to an automobile.

ANTI-MONOPOLY CHIEF, CABINET AIR THEIR VIEWS

Correspondence Tabled In House of Commons

Ottawa, Nov. 5—(CP)—A report of alleged activities of Canada's flour milling industry sparked the controversy between Canada's anti-monopoly chief and the cabinet. It culminated in the resignation of 51-year-old F. A. McGregor.

This was disclosed in 2,000 words of correspondence between the combines investigation commissioner and Justice Minister Garson, tabled yesterday in the Commons.

Mr. McGregor said he was resigning after 24 years of service and "before my time" because he has been sworn out as "combiner" and "because I am unwilling to "seriously threaten the usefulness" of the Combines Investigation Act.

"In an alarming degree prices of flour have risen," he reported in the flour-milling industry have been developing in the post-war years," the letter of resignation said in his letter dated September 1.

One of the ways to remedy this situation would be to publish full reports on this price-fixing, but this had not been done since the end of the flour milling report, Mr. McGregor said.

Justice Garson's "withholding for so many months" of the report was, Mr. McGregor said, another instance of "certain tendencies" which caused him "deep concern."

Clearly related to this was the "difference of opinion on basic principles" which was disclosed in "recent discussions" on the flour investigation and report.

Report Published

The commissioner said he was satisfied that the facts disclosed in the report "more than justify the action taken" in the flour case.

Mr. Garson had "expressed the opinion that the inquiry should never have been started."

Wanted - A Name For 20th Child

Soldiers Grove, Wis. Nov. 5 — (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schoephoerster still were searching today for a name for their 20th child.

Mrs. Schoephoerster, 39, joined dad at birth, was delivered Thursday by Dr. Abdul Hashim. Where all 19 of the others were born. The boy and his 39-year-old mother were reported "doing fine."

The oldest child is a 23-year-old daughter and all were single births except for twins born in a short time, claims Schoville, 42. He was 18, his wife 18, when they married.

As far as taking care of his family is concerned, there's nothing to it, Schoville, an oil salesman, said. "Mother does take care of the younger ones and the Lord takes care of the money."

SCOTS DENOUNCE BOOK

Glasgow, Scotland, Nov. 5 (CP), — Scottish Presbyterians here Friday might met to denounce as "wicked and untrue" a book about Scotland's western isles. The book by Alastair Alpin MacGregor describes the islanders as drunken, lazy, greedy, immoral, brutal and dirty. The islanders and their kinsmen, attending the protest meeting, decided to bombard the publishers with telegrams demanding the book be withdrawn "until cleaned up".

Grandpa Should Give up Rocker, Its Gentle Motion Needed by Baby

Trenton, N.J., Nov. 5—(AP)— Get out of that rocking chair, grandpa, and make room for daughter and the baby.

It seems the wrong generation has been monopolizing the porch furniture. At least, that's the opinion of Dr. Wayman Barber, staff psychologist of the New Jersey State Hospital here, who says the rocking chair's gentle motion is needed by babies from growing up neurotic.

Dr. Barber gave this explanation:

"Science tells us that infants at birth are in a state of shock and that this state can lead to development of a feeling of insecurity. The loving mother who cuddles her infant and rocks it gently to the accompaniment of a lullaby is playing a necessary role in helping combat possible neurosis.

"In my opinion," she said, "it is better to have a rocking chair when holding a baby, we'd have better babies."

Price Declines In Foodstuffs And Rises In Countered Increases in Butter, Coal and Gasoline

Ottawa, Nov 5 (CP)—Harrassed Canadian consumers got a thimbleful of cost-of-living relief in September.

The index eased one-tenth of a point to 162.2, second consecutive drop in two months and reflecting price declines in such foodstuffs as fresh and canned vegetables, eggs, oranges, beef, lamb and pork. Radio prices also went down.

These declines countered increases in butter, lard, coffee and lemons and sharp advances in the price of fuel, coke and gasoline caused by 10-per-cent devaluation of the Canadian dollar.

September was the second month in succession that lower food prices eased the price barometer from its all-time high of 162.8 in July.

The index, issued by the Bureau of Statistics Friday, is calculated on the basis that 1935-39 equals 100.

Made up of six price groups, each with varying values, the index was hit by two sharp changes in September.

The food group, most important of the index, dropped seven points to 205.0—lower by two-fifths of a point from the standing a year ago of 205.4.

Foot Up Four Points

The fuel and lighting group went up four points to an all-time high of 134.1. At the same time last year the group standing was 130.1.

A few high also was established for the clothing sub-index, climbing by two-thirds of a point to 184.1, caused by higher prices for men's winter overcoats and rubbers. The group a year ago stood at 181.0.

Lower radio prices subpoenaed fifth-of-a-point decline in home furnishings and services group, which dropped to 172.2. This compares with the all-time high of 183.1 last April and 165.1 in September last year.

Rents were unchanged at 123.2. Bureau surveys are made only on a quarterly basis. The next survey will be for the August - October period, to be calculated in October's index, and published early in December.

SIX PROMINENT CZECHS HANGED IN PRAGUE JAIL

Convicted of Armed Plot to Overthrow Communist-Led Government

Prague, Nov. 5 — (AP) — Six prominent Czechs, convicted as ringleaders of an alleged armed plot to overthrow the Communist government, were hanged today, it was officially announced.

The men were accused of preparing to lead a coup last spring. The government charged that they were "just at the point of executing a well-prepared revolt" when police caught them.

Among those executed were Petr Zenkl, one of the prominent positions in Czechoslovak public affairs before the Communists assumed power in February, 1948.

Those hanged were: Josef Charvat, chief of Prague security police during the first republic; Dr. Jaroslav Drabkyeas, prominent lawyer; Rosamot Candik; Vaclav Jay Polsony; Kvetoslav Prokop, and Vaclav Harak.

Details of the plot were not disclosed until Aug. 20 — after the defendants had been tried secretly and sentenced by a Prague court martial. The government charged the plotters were in league with "western imperialist power." The western powers were not identified in the government's announcement.

Heavy Snowflurry Ushers in Winter

A heavy snow flurry which lasted well into the night made driving conditions miserable Friday evening as visibility was hampered to some extent and the slushy snow made highway conditions slippery.

Despite the bad driving conditions, however no serious accidents were reported in the immediate Belleville area, although provincial police reported a number of minor mishaps.

One driver was stated to have lost control of his vehicle near the Trenton Air Station, the car skidding across the ditch and through the fence. Considerable property damage resulted. Hospital authorities today reported no admissions as result of accidents.

ONE FIFTY-THOUSANDTH OF AN OUNCE

In these days of precise measurement extremely fine tolerances are commonplace. Machine-shop practice measures minute fractional errors of but one ten-thousandth of an inch. You pharmacists, however, is often required to measure doses as infinitesimal as one fifty-thousandth of an ounce . . . or even less. He must weigh amounts so minute that they could easily be placed on the head of a pin.

If your pharmacist compounds for you a prescription containing atropine sulphate the usual dose is 0.00001736 apothecaries' ounce! Scopolamine, strychnine and colchicine are among other drugs that are likewise employed in exceedingly small doses.

Your pharmacist measures these amounts with accuracy because long and rigid scientific training has accustomed him to working with uncommon delicacy.—Reprinted from a copyrighted advertisement published by Parke, Davis & Company.

John Shannon Wins Trophy in Speaking Contest

With his talk entitled "Why I Want To Be a Farmer", John Shannon, a grade-four pupil in school section 22, Tyendinaga, captured the coveted Col. Vandervoort Public Speaking Trophy at the annual Public Speaking Contest, sponsored by the Belleville Hastings Educational Association, held in Queen Alexandra School last night. Young John was only upholding the family honor for, two years ago, his sister, Joan, won the Vandervoort Trophy and, as that were not enough, another sister, Rosemary, who spoke on the "Beaver", ranked third in last night's contest.

Another Tyendinaga student, Sheila Currie, Grade seven, speaking on "Indian Place Names In Ontario", captured second place.

John's talk sparkled with humor but when he finished many wondered if they were not in the wrong profession. He pointed out that the farmer is the one in need of money for, if a farmer wants to buy a car the day he had to do was sell a cow. John stated that he had a cow of his own boss and didn't have somebody looking over his shoulder to see that the job was done to suit the manager.

Farmer Too Busy

John also said that a farmer was too busy to attend to the Boy Scout meetings and any way he was too tired at night to carry out such 'pranks'. He said that some people remarked that the farmer made money while sleeping. This is true", he stated, "the corn grows and the cows are storing up a new batch of milk for the morning."

In remarking on the speeches, Mr. H. Mott, teacher at S.C.I., praised the boys on their speaking body and also the schools and teachers responsible for the training of the contestants.

Eric Denyes presented the Vandervoort trophy to John Shannon and he also presented the second place prize, donated by the county council to the best boy, Eric Denyes, and the best girl, Sheila Currie.

Second and third prizes of books were presented to Sheila Currie and Rosemary Shannon by Harry Harrison, who also presented each contestant with a silver dollar.

The large audience in Queen Alexandria will represent Hastings County at the Brighton District speaking contest, Friday, Nov. 11.

Piano Duet

"Parade of the Wooden Soldiers", a piano duet by Dianne and Sandra Keay, was offered as a bit of diversion to the speaking program and was well received by the large audience.

Following the speaking contest, Inspector Leslie Mason and Mrs. Mason were made with the presentations being made by Mrs. H. Mackenzie, inspector of Public Schools.

The Warden's Medal for highest marks in the Public Entrance exams was won by Miss Agnes Summerhayes, Grade 8, No. 4.

The South Hastings Educational Association scholarships were won by Miss Evelyn Olmsted, S. S. No. 20, Sidney; Lawrence Hall, Canifton and Miss Joan Walsh, S.S. 10, Tyendinaga.

School improvement awards, given each year by Ontario Educational Association, for the most improved school in each township, were won by S.S. 10, Sidney, Sidney public school and S.S.1, Tyendinaga.

'ALCOHOL EDUCATION' ASKED BY FEDERATION

Windsor—A course in "alcohol education" in Ontario schools has been urged by the Ontario Federation of Home and School Associations.

Toronto Letter

A letter to Provincial Education Minister Hon. Dana Porter, signed by Mrs. J. O. Arrowsmith of Toronto, federation president, asking the course be instituted as quickly as possible, has been made public by Mrs. D. Rose Phail of Windsor, federation publicity convener.

The federation's quick action is on behalf of its 83,000 members, follows intensive studies of alcohol courses such as the one introduced in the schools of British Columbia.

The federation's letter said: "We realize full there is at present no easy solution to a problem so deep-rooted and of such long standing. We recognize too, that many factors have contributed to the present situation, and that many approaches must be explored before a satisfactory solution may be found. However, we believe that education is basic to all of these and that reason we would respectfully recommend the Department of Education this action.

Objective Course

"Such a course would have to be objective in approach and scientific in nature as integral part of these subjects to which it properly belongs. We are aware that some provision for such education already exists, but if it is to be effective it needs a less general and more specific treatment is needed. To guard against misinformation and faulty approach we also respectfully recommend the preparation of a manual for reference material and that teachers be given special instruction in its use. We have studied such a course and examined such reference material."

Jeep With Load of Dynamite Is Blown up as it Overturns, Driver Manages to Escape

Wilbur Ferguson, employee of the Fred Eigle Construction Company of this city, narrowly escaped death Wednesday evening when the dynamite-laden jeep he was driving overturned and exploded on Highway No. 7 east of Actinolite.

Ferguson was proceeding west early in the morning when he lost control of the vehicle on a turn and it overturned in the ditch. It immediately took fire. The driver managed to clear the vehicle and he had presence of mind to warn other motorists of the danger.

Within minutes the dynamite in the jeep, amounting to 90 sticks and 50 caps, violently exploded.

The wreckage of the jeep was blown across the highway with parts being blasted into an adjoining field.

Traffic was tied up for a considerable distance as guards were placed to warn motorists prior to the explosion. Provincial Police Constable Hatch and Gould of, Tweed, investigated.

Slippery Streets Cause of Series Of Motor Crashes

Slippery streets caused by the night's fall of slushy snow were responsible for a series of motor accidents in the city which resulted in several hundred dollars damage to cars, but in no instance in which considerable damage resulted were reported but fortunately only one caused personal injury and this of a comparatively minor nature.

Early this morning Miss Ina Prindle, Plainfield was driving her car north on Dundas Street in the Front Street intersection her car collided with a southbound transport which was making a turn onto Dundas. The car skidded into the van of the transport just ahead of the rear wheels and was forced to the north curb.

Miss Prindle suffered a cut to her right knee and arm, while Robert Lloyd, 21, of Wesley Liddle of Shannonville received a bruised forehead. The entire front of the car was damaged.

On Highland Avenue, Frank Farrell, 11 Highland, slowed to make a left hand turn, when Wilbert Cox of Bobcaygeon crashed into the rear standing car to the tune of $200 damage to his own car, and $300 damage to the Farrell auto.

Harold Quinsey, 371 Coleman Street stopped for the traffic lights at Front Street, when driving on Pinnacle Street and the following car, driven by Roy Sweet, McAnanny Street, skidded on the railway track and crashed into the rear causing damage amounting to $200.

Thrill of Uncovering A Lost City

(From the New York Times)

The three young Americans who reported last week the discovery of a bizarre ghost city in the Afghanistan Desert south of Mersi had followed in their long the trail of many conquerors. This was certainly Darius the Great, Persian Kings of Kings; Alexander the Great; Genghis Khan, his sons and grandsons; terrible Timour Lenk, or Tamerlane; Mahmud the Turk and the Great Moguls who conquered India. The fatalism and indifference of the people dwelling round the ghost city seems to have been well expressed by the old poet of neighboring Persia:

Think in this batter'd Caravanserai,
Whose Portals are alternate Night and Day,
How Sultan after Sultan with his Pomp
Abode his destined Hour and went his way.
They say the Lion and the Lizard keep
The courts where Jamshyd gloried and drank deep;
And Bahram, that great Hunter—the wild ass
Stamps o'er his Head and cannot break his sleep.

The ghost city watched at least some of these ancient legions marching and countermarching as seems to have been abandoned about the time of the Crusaders-the twelfth or thirteenth century.

There is no hint as to when it was founded. But the ruins are said to be all of the Mohammedan period. One likes to think that the city may have traced its history back to the fabulous Caliphs of Baghdad, or it may have been the Seljukian Turks who put it on the map. It seems to have escaped the looting and slaughter inflicted on neighboring Herat by Genghis Khan's Mongols as well as the attention of Tamerlane who liked to commemorate his victories by building pyramids of human skulls.

Its extinction is believed to have been due to natural causes-lack of water, for the wells were all dry and the country all round is a wasteland. Desert seems to have moved in on the town as in many other parts of Asia and Africa.

The desert and the jungle and the erosion of time have covered many great cities. Archaeologists usually go to work to dig into likely-looking mounds for their lost cities and they may find them piled layer upon layer as at Troy.

The remarkable fact about the ghost city of Afghanistan is that it is intact and aboveground. Such a find is well calculated to stir the imagination but ll is unlikely that anything will be found there to compare with the discoveries that have been made in recent years in Crete, Mesopotamia and parts of Asia Minor, which have led to the rewriting of much ancient history.

Our young Americans in a jeep however had an experience somewhat like that of the Ten Thousands Greeks of Xenophon's Anabasis.

Shortly after the beginning of their long retreat to the Black Sea, as they marched along the Tigris, the Greeks came to the ruins of great cities whose once gigantic walls were still intact. Their guides and the people living round about could tell only the most fanciful tales of the lost cities.

The first city they came to, Xenophon writes was called Larisa. It had a wall 100 feet high and 25 feet thick and a circuit of two parasangs, or six miles. The second city, called Mespila, was much larger. The foundations of its wall were of polished stone 50 feet high and 50 feet thick. On top of this was a brick wall 100 feet high and 50 thick. The wall about Mespila as high as a 10-storey building had a circuit of six parasangs, about 20 miles. No Greek had ever seen anything like it.

The Greeks marched on, eager only to reach the sea. They never knew that they had been looking upon the ruins of two of the greatest cities of antiquity. The cities were Calah and Nineveh, heart of the great Assyrian empire that for centuries had lorded it over all the peoples of the Middle East.

Their very names has been forgotten in the brief span of two centuries. The ruins were not not even a name to the people of the Tigris Valley. Even among the wise Greek, knew nothing about the "barbarians" who had held all these lands in fee before the days of the Medes and Persians.

The Assyrian militarists par excellence had been sunk without a trace. It has remained for modern archaeologists to salvage them.

POPULATION GROWING

Toronto, Nov. 5—(CP)—Premier Frost said Thursday the population of Ontario is increasing at the rate of 10,000 a month, including immigration and births. The province is building enough houses to take care of the increase while also catching up a little with its housing backlog, he said in a statement. Present population is listed as "in excess of 4,500,000."

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

WINIFRED E. WILKE

QUEER TONGUES

Try to imagine a tongue which is twice the length of the head. Birds have such tongues like that. All our tongues are attached by muscles to a U-shaped bone; but in Woodpeckers this bone extends in two long slender threads which start between the eyes and curl around the back of the skull. The tongue then reaches forward in almost cylindrical form, ending in a hard point, on the sides of which there are sharp backward pointing barbs for pulling insects out of bark crevices. Large salivary glands secrete a sticky fluid so that small insects get caught. But Sapsuckers' tongues are differently built at the tip: this is frayed out into a sort of brush for sweeping in sap. All these Woodpeckers' tongues are provided with a muscular sheath which enables them to shoot out with great rapidity, probe deep into the depths of wood and dislodge grubs and ants. However there are a few Woodpeckers whose tongue have their base at the end of the beak., and the bone filaments pass around the eyes before curling backwards.

Hummingbirds are equipped for a diet of both liquid and solid food. Their extremely long proboscis tongues curl over from the sides to the middle, forming a double tube for sucking up nectar from flowers as we would suck up ice-cream soda through straws. The tips are brush-like, sweeping in diminutive insects which live in the honey.

The Chimney Swift possesses extraordinarily active salivary glands, and coats every little twig with saliva when making its nest. This gummy fluid cements the twigs together and causes the nest to adhere to the inside bricks of the chimney. The finished home looks like varnished wicker furniture.

Ducks are able to retain their prey because their bills have sawtoothed edges. But Puffins, with no such contrivance, are able to capture two, or even three fish, at one after the other, without losing the first. It is thought that the tongue holds the fish against the roof of the mouth.

The tongues of Parrots are perhaps the most different from those of Woodpeckers. They are particularly short and fleshy. Perhaps that is why these birds are able to enunciate.

However, it must be admitted that all these tongues are unusual. Those of most birds are covered with a horny tissue, and, as I variance with the tongues of Woodpeckers are poorly supplied with nerves. So the next time we ourselves a bird's tongue is the first organ to aid digestion.

Philip Child Writes Clever Mystery Story

(By The Canadian Press)

Readers who relish with novels of suspense will find a favorite in Philip Child's latest book, "Mr. Ames Against Time" (Ryerson).

No stranger to Canadians, Mr. Child, Hamilton - born professor of English at Barnard College, has taken a popular background—the thin-ness for his mystery story and turned out 344 pages of interesting reading in which the truth will finally triumph.

The story concerns the fight of a meek individual to save his son from the gallows, doomed for a murder he did not commit. Mr. Ames, a man in ill-health who had never been treated too kindly by world events, never before believed himself capable of waging a winning battle against fate in general. When his own sentence of death by hanging for his dying breath accused his son of murder, convicted a first of the son's guilt, Mr. Ames launched the battle of his life .he was certain of winning.

The murderer is known to the reader early in the story but Philip Child builds up the suspense element by means of the interminable men even when the hour of the execution is at hand. Justice lands on the proper penalty in its own way without the gallows needing its help.

Mr. Childs is a former newspaper man and author of short stories and books. It is little doubt that he used many of his personal experiences in casting his characters. He also shows a keen insight into the inner workings of people who live on the seamy side of life.

A story of a woman's confused love affairs and her fears, feelings about those around her, "Time In Ambush" (Collins) is a novel by a writer who is new to Canadian readers.

By the author of "Serpent's Tooth," Isabella Hughes, "Time In Ambush" is set in Toronto and suburbs with 30-year-old Ellis Carey its central figure.

What the novel lacks in action is offset by a liberal analysis of the motives and emotions that govern the mind of Mrs. Carey, who is never quite certain of herself in the presence of her husband and family friends.

Attractive and outwardly serene, Ellis is bewildered by the hard brusqueness of her seven-year-old brother — for which she secretly feels responsible — and by memories of a pre-marriage love affair while holidaying in England.

The novel moves to a climax when Leo Gould, her former lover, turns up in Toronto and her husband Hank hears about their affair.

"Time in Ambush" is a well-written study of a modern city family and of a heroine who is continually running away from life.

Frank Merriwell raced through literature before the air age got into high gear. Now it is Jack Hambleton's latest book an updo-date version of the youthful hero of the college diamond flies an airplane over Northern Ontario's flaming forests, saving lives and performing deeds of derring-do with abandon.

In "Young Bush Pilot" (Longmans, Green) Mr. Hambleton sees to it that Bill Hanson, age unspecified — giving him scope to grow with the country—has evidently young, receives his pilot's license with not more than one or two qualms for the reader and puts him on the staff of the Ontario Forestry Service. His first thrilling summer coincides with one of the worst fire seasons in the northland's history. Names though with flying colors, as expected. So does Mickey, his Irish terrier, who does his bit by catching a poacher.

As in Mr. Hambleton's first book about Bill Hanson, "Forest Ranger," "Young Bush Pilot" is meticulous in detail about the north and the work being done Former newspaper man and director of the province's Ontario' Travel and Publicity Bureau, Mr. Hambleton has travelled all over the north by air, dog-team and canoe. He knows what he writes about.

The author saw at first hand the ravages of the forest fire that threatened the town of Chapleau in the summer of 1948. The weeks-long fight against that blaze, one of the worst the north has experienced and Bill Hanson's part of it are the theme of "Young Bush Pilot."

Thoughtful readers searching for practical scholarly Christian solutions to modern turmoil will want this book by this well-known theologian. PROTEST BARLEY PRICES

Ottawa, Nov. 5—(CP)—Eastern hog producers have protested to the Canadian Federation of Agriculture about what they describe as high prices for western barley. It was learned Thursday. Federation officials are expected to meet with western growers and eastern hog producers in an effort to clear the air and find out what can be done to remedy the situation.

$1.45 A BUSHEL

Barley is being fed to pigs at a price of about $1.45 a bushel, is having a detrimental effect on hog production.

CROCUSES

"NOTHING SO SMALL OR HIDDEN SO WELL,

CROCUS STRIPED BEAUTY

The cheerful crocuses are admirably suited to the rock garden.' Plant in small groups of a dozen or more. They can be naturalized in drifts in the shrubbery border, where they increase in beauty year after year, and require a minimum of attention.

Bulb dealers list about two dozen choice varieties which are quite inexpensive. They may be forced in pots for the home and provide a bright dash of colour. The soil should be well prepared and enriched with bone-meal. Make sure of proper drainage, and plant where they will receive full sun. Plant the corms about four inches deep, and six inches apart. Do not cut the foliage in spring until the leaves turn brown, otherwise the bulbs will not mature properly

PROTECTIVE CLOTHING IN ARCTIC

An unusual all-wool cargo of men's clothing will be shipped from London early next month: destination, the Antarctic. It comprises protective garments specially designed by a well-known London firm for members of the Norwegian - British - Swedish Antarctic expedition which will be leaving for the South at the end of this year. The United Kingdom firm which has been responsible for clothing all the famous Arctic and Antarctic explorers, including Nansen, Scott and Shackleton, since 1884, has laid the main stress on color and high quality. A pattern has been carefully selected for the monotony from which explorers are bound to suffer during rigorous years in the ice region — the expedition is expected to be away for three years. Warm double texture woollen cloth is used in variety of plaids for pants, which are fitted with specially deep zip-fastened coat fold them inside heavy wool-lined boots. There are also gabardine slacks which can be worn straight, strapped round the ankle in battle dress style with pockets for instruments. Thanks to new uses of color and the latest developments in British woollen materials, explorers gain many advantages that were not before in warmth, comfort, ease of movement and, by no means least, in cheerfulness.

BEING A WEATHER PROPHET

"At this time of year predicting a long hard winter is an indood sport," notes the Cornwall Standard-Freeholder expressing the view that "somehow it seems that a queer twist in ordinary human nature prompts far greater numbers of woeful predictions than cheerful ones. Perhaps native shrewdness is behind this, for the winter will be bad enough anyway and by the time the daffodils push through the earth, it will be easier to base the time-honored 'I told you so' on a gloomy statement the fall before than on a cheerful one."

Signs that are mentioned include moss on the trees, the fat on the woodchuck, the store of nuts laid up by squirrels and chipmunks, serving as foundation for gloomy prognostications, the Standard-Freeholder comments.

The Cornwall paper calls weather forecasting a harmless amusement and remarks that the day is far past when such things were taken seriously, if they ever were.

Now as the first snow has come, the winter has put in an appearance and everyone will see what it is going to be like by actually living through it."

WALPOLE AND LAKELAND

One of Great Britain's proposed National Parks is the Lake District, that high and rain-washed area of North West England where silvery lakes gleam between high pikes, haws and fells, and walkers and climbers in their thousands gain many happy holidays, but their pleasure alloyed by the all too frequent rain that soaks them to the skin. In Keswick, the Cumberland town which lies under the slopes of Skiddaw, the little Fitzpark Museum was first built as a permanent home for the manuscript of the Lake poets. Wordsworth, Southey, Coleridge and others. In 1941 a familiar spectacled figure was often to be seen wandering round the Museum studying the manuscripts. It was Hugh Walpole, who had come to Keswick from his home in nearby Cabells. Walpole made several gifts to the Lake-land Museum and now, eight years after his death, has too has a place there for, although he was a New Zealander by birth, Walpole had adopted Lakeland as his own and had done a great deal by his writing to make it more widely known and beloved.

Yesterday Adamson visited the Museum and described it over the BBC. She saw the Walpole relics, given by the novelist's brother and sister, Robin and Dorothea. On the walls are some of his pictures, one being of his house in the pines, from which he looked out over the lake and fells and gathered the imagination the characters which have become familiar to so many readers of his books. There is a drawing of him by Stephen Bone and a fine bronze bust by Epstein. And there are letters from many of the most famous figures in modern literature; from John Masefield, wishing him well with "Judith Paris"; from Joseph Conrad, giving him good advice when he was a young man and signed "Yours paternally;" from John Galsworthy, and from J. B. Priestly, who discussed the modern novel as he and Walpole saw it. And in a case is the manuscript of the Herries series, written in Walpole's hand with very few corrections and with embellishments in red ink, sixteen volumes in all, bound in green and gold leather. It is a comprehensive and fitting memorial to a much loved writer.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST
(Copyright, 1948, Edgar A. Guest)

THE MULTIPLE SELF

I find when o'er the years I stray
A backward glimpse to get,
I cannot tear myself apart
From all I've ever met.

A boy's mind deeply is impressed
By what he elders do,
And what is worst of me, and best,
From some one else I drew.

For some there were who led me straight
A few who led astray,
And they are — though many call it fate—
Are part of me today.

In all that's best my friends must share,
In all that's worst, my foes,
For how his shadow falls, and where,
No human being knows.

Asks Mayor to Publish City Officials' Salaries

Ontario Intelligencer

Attention of Mayor Storey

I noticed in the Ontario Intelligencer one morning the first that your council had appointed a committee to consider the salaries of the mayor and aldermen.

As the election is drawing near I think the voters should know what we are paying for the administration of the city. I am going to ask you through the columns of this paper to state your salary and all the moneys you received in connection with your position as police commissioner, utilities commissioner, etc. This should also include the salaries of city officials — the aldermen and their bonuses. I think that these amounts are things the public should know.

Geo. A. Reid.

The jury took 90 minutes to reach its verdict after a 3 1-2 hour loquest.

Its recommendations were made, said the verdict, "on the basis of evidence given and to assist in prevention of similar occurrences in the future." The jury also said that the hospital staff should be rotated in the different wards and not kept in one ward.

Dr. G. H. Stevens, superintendent, said that Yelf was followed by a 34-year-old patient who had been in the hospital for 10 years. He said he was suffering from a form of sudden impulsive acts without obvious cause were not uncommon. The man would have committed the suicide on an impulse and not know why he was doing it. Dr. Stevens testioned by him the next day the patient admitted attacking Yelf "but was not capable of saying" ir the attack. He laughed about it and didn't realize he had taken a man's life."

CHAMPION

"Cookie" That's the nickname of Andrew Cook, "Big Boat" of the Olympics.

Cookie is a junior at the University of Maryland. He weighs a scant 120 pounds. When he was in high school in Washington D.C. entertained considerable doubt that "Cookie" could ever be taught to shoot. Later on an inter-club match "Cookie" was matched with the champion. But he kept at it. The booby-potter made a shrewd became the world champion at twenty. He won the 150-meter small-bore rifle championship in the last Olympics and took the U.S. Rifle Championship a few months later. All together he holds 29 national records.

Cookie's success in perseverance is so obvious that there is little need to explain why he won over better than honors he won are his ideas of living. Cookie living life every day on the square. He holds the athletic records of his school in high together. Regarding drinking he says, "I don't drink because I need a clear head a strong body, good wind, and steady nerves Drinking would hurt me in all these things that would make a good champion and a good athlete. So I am going to leave it entirely alone."

How bad it cannot be arranged some time for "Cookie" to say this over the radio and television. Cookie is a man of distinction.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

LITTLE MOMENTS

I believe that we can all look back and recall significant moments that have had a great influence upon our lives. The meeting of a friend unexpectedly while waiting for a street car, or entering into conversation with a stranger while waiting in a train, many cases this being the inception of "a beautiful friendship," as H.T. Webster would say.

These little moments of joy and thrill come to us in a number of ways, and always at unexpected times. Like those boys who love baseball sees his favorite team score a home run and the most happy little moments with us all when we get an encouraging letter from some unknown source that gives us a lift for the day. And then the little moment of elation on the part of a salesman when he has a good order for his house.

We need to treasure these little golden moments that spice our days with pleasure like small nuggets of gold in quartz. They form bright spots in our memory for the lesser days and years. A kind act takes but a moment to perform, but its influence may live for years.

It's the little moments that count most of all when an important decision is to be made. Napoleon did a great many things he beat the Austrians was that they did not know the value of five minutes! We are all familiar with the accuracy of time on the radio, where an advertiser pays for minutes. They count there too.

Elihu Burritt spent odd moments at the forge to learn some forty languages, and known as "the learned blacksmith." He became a noted peace advocate during the Civil War, and the little moments were significant to him. And many a boy and girl are making these little moments more precious than gold through their studies, in the little moments of odd moments when free from work, and all small school lessons where they are compelled often to walk that difficult path in order to gain knowledge that will make them valuable citizens later on.

ANXIETY

Anxiety is a word we often hear used by psychiatrists and other physicians these days. It is a word which is either used alone to label a symptom or as a diagnostic label in "anxiety state" and "anxiety neurosis." But just what does the term imply? Webster says, "Anxiety: uneasiness of mind respecting some event, future or uncertain." My friend states, "Anxiety: a feeling of apprehension, uncertainty, and fear, with anticipatory ideas of harm or disaster." You can see that it is a tough one to define, too.

Why am I discussing the meaning of a single word, and what does it have to do with your personal health? Anxiety is a very common feeling, one that we have to deal with all the time, and it is the basis of most neuroses. We have all experienced anxiety at one time or another, and to say that everyone who has ever done so is neurotic would be fantastic folly. But to lead healthy lives, we must understand our own reactions to certain situations as well as we must recognize those reactions in others.

We all seek for security; it is a universal striving. When security, as freedom from danger, is threatened, fear of anxiety is a likely reaction. But we must differentiate fear from anxiety. The two are closely related and both may be accompanied by physical sensations such as trembling, excessive sweating, pounding of the heart, and heavy breathing. When a mother is afraid that her child is going to die whenever it has a slight "cold", we speak of anxiety; but when the mother has the same feelings when the child is seriously ill, we speak of fear. If one is stricken with "stage fright" even though the child is thoroughly known, true anxiety is ours, but if one is trapped in a burning house, fear is felt. Thus we see that anxiety is an undue reaction of fear or danger which exists in the mind out of proportion to the real situation. The danger is there, but in the case of anxiety is imaginary danger.

I spoke of the fear in anxiety as being a disproportionate reaction to the real situation. But it only seems that way to the observer, someone on the outside looking in. In the case of fear the danger is obvious, and in anxiety it is subjective and hidden. The intensity of the anxiety is in proportion to the meaning the situation has for the anxious individual.

Now, the neurotic who has anxiety often doesn't even recognize it, but he does notice the general symptoms which accompany it. So he brings these complaints to the doctor. The common ones are nervousness, trembling, irritability, depression, and insomnia. Many vague fears may occur, especially fear of death and diseases.

Anxiety with fear or disease often results in symptoms of that disease. True, they are symptoms which originate in the mind, but they are very real indeed, just as are his fears. In this case it is necessary to prove to the patient with an anxiety neurosis that the anxiety is the origin of his symptoms.

The relation of anxiety to physical symptoms will be discussed at greater length another day.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Insulin is Not Poisonous

A real doctor who is a recognized authority on diabetes asks me to publish an immediate correction of a statement I made story about one Dr. Michael Smogyi, biochemist, who, according to Aunt Polly, says too much insulin can be dangerous because the insulin destroys vitamin B1 in diabetic and keeps him constantly tired, depressed and irritable through a chemical tug-of-war in his body.

Answer—I'm only a contributor and anything I may say in print must be based on fact. In the next place, I just don't see anything wrong in the story. Finally, if the diabetes authority or any other physician believes such errors very misleading or likely to do any harm, why shouldn't he or she protest directly to the editor and ask for immediate correction? Not that I mind sticking my neck out when I know why.

For Low Metabolism

Please discuss in your column what one can do for a low metabolism. Several physicians agree that this is my trouble but they have effected no change. (B. R.)

Answer—Send a self addressed envelope for pamphlet The Iodin Ratior.

Wine Friends

Every one who tries our coffee exclaims with delight and asks for the recipe. Of course we only refer them to the tea pot. (A. W.)

Answer—Method described in chapter How to Make Coffee and Win Friends in booklet What to Eat and Why. For booklet send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope.

Sir Neil Cantile Visits Kingston

Kingston, Nov. 5. (CP) —Lt. Gen. Sir Neil Cantile, director general of medical services for the British Army, on a visit to Canada to study army medical installations, Friday visited the National Defence College, Royal Military College, Kingston Military Hospital and the cancer clinic.

Expressing interest in veterans administration and hospitals provided for them, Sir Neil said he was impressed with what was being done in Canada in that respect.

"The military medical side is integrated with these hospitals and the doctors in the army medical service get much broader experience than they would get if they had to serve in military hospitals alone," he said. "We have yet got that advantage in Britain."

MARMORA—

Marmora.—Zion United Church of the Marmora charge celebrated its 65th anniversary last Sunday evening with every seat being filled for the event.

The Rev. E. M. Cadigan of Ottawa, former pastor, was the speaker and chose as his theme "To care less and yet not be careless". The preacher pointed out the mistake of assuming too great responsibility for matters in community, church, or other things, or having too great a desire to attend and control everything.

He was not advising his hearers to become careless, or to neglect the interest they should take in the welfare of the community, church or home. There is a difference between careful care and being careless.

The choir rendered two anthems Mrs. Ed. Hall being the organist. Quite a number of former residents were present to mark the anniversary.

Prince Edward-Belleville Women's Club Holds Bazaar

Neither leaden skies, nor dreary rain could lessen the enthusiasm of the many who wended their slushy way along wet pavements to the Armouries to the splendid bazaar and tea held under the auspices of the Prince Edward-Belleville Women's Club, in the newly-decorated assembly room of the C. A.

Into this alluring atmosphere of warmth, good cheer, and sumptuous spaciousness, made more spacious in its lovely garb of soft grey walls merging into creamy beige at the ceiling, the many guests were graciously invited by the president, Mrs. G. Lent, and the past president, Mrs. M. B. Wesse.

Within the large quadrangle, which was divided from the smaller, by garland ropes of twisted tissue in shades of mulberry and gold where the booths were placed, with their gaily decked tables, seating four, each with its dainty table cloth, centred with a crystal glass, holding yellow and bronze baby 'mums. At the rear, and flanking a slightly raised dark red velvet dais, were the Canadian Ensign, the Union Jack, and the Canadian Flag, these being flanked by upright bands of vivid blue in shades of dark, bright and pale, completing the floor to ceiling. Here too, was the dainty tea table, centred in its creamy appointment of lovely lace, silver services, deep yellow candles in silver holders, flanked with an oriental bowl, filled with yellow 'mums, and bronze chrysanthemums and sprays of huckleberry, presided over by Mrs. W. J. Bar-

Tea Room Staff

Inviting to the 'tea room was the gracious hostess, Mrs. D. Cornish, while those who poured from three to four, were Mrs. C. Ogden, Mrs. Fred Calnan; from four to five, Mrs. F. Fanning and Mrs. G. French, and from five to six, Mrs. C. Carpenter, and Mrs. A. Davidson. Those who served were: Mrs. R. Dufmage, Mrs. F. H. Sedall, Mrs. W. Lacas, Mrs. Jas. Bell, Mrs. D. G. Cornish, Mrs. C. Coleman, Mrs. W. Cavers, Mrs. L. Graham, Mrs. H. Holway and Miss Clara Anderson. Those who replenished the tea tables were: Mrs. R. Pierson, Mrs. H. F. Button. The treasurers were: Mrs. P. Perfitt-ment, and Mrs. L. Wannamaker.

Last came the fancy work table, conveyed by Mrs. S. Anderson; Mrs. F. Cory, Mrs. W. Davidson, Mrs. C. Nesbitt and Mrs. J. Tice. Here, as on the handcraft table, were many items suitable for Christmas giving. There were dainty doilies with lacy edges; a little doll in dress of yellow knit wool; embroidered table runners; crocheted pot-holders; embroidered tea towels edged with narrow blue crocheted lace, and embroidered with the blue bird of happiness amid a bower of wild roses; guest-towels with fancy borders; and a set of buckaback sleeve; more pillow slips with dainty white crochet borders; fancy aprons made from dainty handkerchiefs, and many other too numerous to mention.

Two Lovely Quilts

The needlework table were two beautiful handmade quilts with exquisite quilting, one was in white and blue, called the eight-point star motif, ring giving the effect of one, the double irish chain quilt, done on blue and yellow with touches of many colored pieces. These quilts went to the holders of the two lucky handkerchiefs 342 and 340, who were Mr. R. Rivest, of the Northern Telephone Co., and Mr. Gordon Latchford of Canniton.

The conveners of the bazaar and tea were Mrs. Ross Montgomery, and was centered with a huge silver plate of red Macintosh apples flanked by vases of white and mauve asters. Round about it were the delicious cakes and pies and cookies, loaf cakes; date squares, raspberry tart, jams, jellies, gooseberry conserves, hermits, nutlie cakes, chocolate cakes and heart shaped cookies raisin pie, apple pies, all tempting and good, and all finding ready buyers.

Next came the candy and novelty booth, in its care assortments of creams, taffy, coconut dreams; home fillers in spoon of sugar, little pink baskets overflowing with them, and little celophane bags with prizes, and a lucky number just enough. Beside the candies, were little trinkets having little plants planted in them. One was Peter Rabbit, struggling under a basket of baby tears, when no doubt, he fain would have preferred lettuce; then there was Angus, the Scottie dog, with his name-tag, and three upright tails; only two were tiny cacti, a box of artificial cactus paper and other articles added to the variety. The conveners of this were Mrs. W. J. Barker, Mrs. R. Boyd and Mrs. G. Spencer.

Interesting Handicraft

The handicraft booth showed what ambitious and clever hands, if but the will to do were in evidence. Here were all sizes of discarded empty bottles, of many shapes, beautifully bandpainted with flowers, some in delicate mauve blue violet, the ever loving forget-me-not, the golden Adder tongues, we used together on the way home from school, and generously were these added before home was reached.

Then there was like little sets of six fruit juice glasses made pretty with the bottles. Empty cream boxes had taken on new life and new uses, some had silk remnants, others had cushion tops; pop bottles had assumed a new style in the clothes sprinklers. Empty cream jars were converted into useful and pretty dresser sets. One box contained a travelling kit, replete with nail polish, file cushion, powder and soap. There were cream colored hot-pads for the kitchen and a heavy wallboard. All were pretty and very well done. Mrs. F. Osborne, and Mrs. T. Skeggs were the gracious conveners of this unique booth.

Boiling Water Tests Fidelity

Salisbury, South Africa — (CP) —A native who was charged in the Salisbury magistrate's court under the Witchcraft Suppression Act is alleged to have told his wife to put her hands into boiling water to test whether or not she had a lover. The native, Magadua, pleaded not guilty.

He said that if her hands were badly scalded it would mean that she had a lover. She suffered great pain and the next day there were blisters on the hands.

Magadua then assaulted her controller, who complained to the police. The man was remanded.

A Man's World Even in Kitchen

London — (CP) — The better chefs, it seems, cook at home too.

The newly-formed National Academy of Chefs de Cuisine had a reception recently, when it inaugurated a new British Cookery School, modelled on the lines of France's Societe Culinaire Francaise.

Formed only three months ago, membership already embraces 200 chefs, 200 assistant chefs and 100 students.

A reporter at the reception wanted to find out whether the married chefs or their wives did the cooking. Most said they did — but only one day a week when they "didn't mind" having a day off and letting the wife have a look in.

But the Academy's vice-president Alphonse Cadier, chef of London's Ritz Hotel, was one of three to hold out for self-cooked meals.

"What! Let my wife cook for me? Oh, no, monsieur, that would never do," he retorted.

SISTERS ALL

By Jean Lose Galloway

"At the jury sittings of the Supreme Court in Brockville, Ontario, Mr. Justice Gale was presented with a list of cases where being no criminal cases on the docket." This newspaper item needled our curiosity . . . Now why would they present Mr. Justice Gale with a pair of white gloves? Could it be that he did not already possess a pair? And why would he be given them when there were no criminal cases on the docket? Must be some reason.

We wrote His Honor to ask if he would be good enough to tell us the story behind the presentation and others like it, made from time to time across the land.

His reply is what he writes: "The story lay behind that one small traditional and extremely picturesque ceremony, the presentation and procedure of presenting a pair of white gloves to the judge who presides when there are no criminal cases on the docket, signifies the purity of the county from crime. . . But its origin goes deeper than that. In an English publication called The Green Bag' appears this reference:

"To wear gloves, or have the hand covered, is a mark of superiority, whereas to go without gloves is a token of submission, and as a judge owes submission to the sovereign whom he represents, and under whose commission he sits, it would be an assumption of too great dignity were he to have his hands covered when acting as deputy of the sovereign in the execution of the royal commission.

"But where there are no prisoners to try, or in ancient times, where no prisoner was to be condemned to death, and therefore time, the higher powers of the crown were not to be called in exercise, the sheriff signified to the judge, by presenting him with white gloves, that he might retain that portion of his attire of which he had divested himself while acting as his sovereign's representative. . . The gloves so presented are usually white, as indicative of the purity of the county from crime.

"When an assize town has no prisoner for trial to bring before the Queen's justice, or where in more ancient times, no prisoners had to be sentenced to death, the town was said to have a Maiden Assize, and the high sheriff presented the judge presiding in the criminal court with a pair of white kid gloves." . . . What a ticket.

Quinte Amateur Radio Club Meets

The regular meeting of the Quinte Amateur Radio Club, under the chairmanship of President Roy A. White, was held at the Kiwanis Centre.

About fifty members enjoyed an auction sale of electronic equipment. Harold Carruthers pleased members as auctioneer, and did much to make the meeting such a success. He was ably assisted by Charlie Young, and Jim Colligan.

The grateful thanks of the club are due three of the XYL's, Mrs. Jack Warner, Mrs. Gene Hitchon and Mrs. Allen Hughes, who so kindly prepared and served lunch.

The "Big A" Company generously donated a beautiful telephone hand-set for radio transmission as a door prize. Other door prizes, also much appreciated, were provided by Gene Hitchon and Harry Orevend.

Members present at West are spending a few days with Miss Lamoine West at Niagara Falls, Ont., and relatives in Niagara Falls, New York.

1st Belleville Brownies

The 1st Belleville Brownies really worked very hard this week. All the Tweenies made a special effort to prepare themselves for enrollment, and most of them have only to deal with washing up and brushing hair. We are all anxious to see who are going to be the first ones to be completely ready. The Brownies' working test, Golden Hand, are also well in their syllabus, and the following Brownies passed either one or two tests towards that Badge at the meeting on Tuesday—Sandra Newman, Nancy Osborne, Judy Daniels, Jacqueline Watson, Barbara Robb. The Sixers, who are for the most part Brownies who have passed their Golden Bar and Golden Hand, and are now working for Proficiency Badges, have been developing their selves by helping the Tweenies, and as leaders and helpers of the Pack are beginning to shape very well. We shall have more to say of their work in the future.

2nd Belleville Brownies

When the Brownies arrived at their regular meeting place they were surprised to see the room decorated with apples hanging to string and to discover Brown Owl and Tawny had planned a Hallowe'en party. The Brownies were all given a bite of one of the apples that the party started in the Pack room at Hackwell's last meeting. After each Brownie had received an apple they sat in "bow-wow" sitting there and listening to a Hallowe'en story. The singing game "Sweet Little Susie" was really loads of fun—picking up candies, and finally putting them in the basket, also a scramble for Hallowe'en kisses. The Pack was then closed with Fairy Ring, roll call and Taps, the Brownies were sorry to have had a happy, but not before extending their appreciation for the lovely surprise.

4th Belleville Brownies

The 4th Belleville Brownie Pack started meeting again at King George School on the 22nd of September, with 29 Brownies, 9 of whom were new Tweenies and 3 transferred from other Packs. The Brownies have been learning new games and sometimes having Fairy Ring in the autumn, when it is so warm and sunny. The Tweenies have been learning the Brownie Promise and how to tie a reef knot, and the Pack has started to practice semaphore as they can use the Brownie's secret language. They have been bringing treasures from out of doors and have started a museum with the most interesting of them. One day a Brownie brought a big bag of red haws from the thorn bushes and the Pack made necklaces by stringing them on wool. Because sitting on the floor in Pow Wow gets uniforming dusty, the Brownies made cushions out of big paper bags stuffed with folded newspapers and covered with Scotch tape. Zach Six drew their Six emblem on their cushions and they are going to keep them in special Six cupboards they are making out of orange crates. At the meeting before Thanksgiving They the Brownies had a special Thanksgiving Pow Wow and each Brownie told something she thought Brownies should be specially thankful for. At the last meeting in October the Brownies had a Hallowe'en party. They wore their cushions for a ring and were judged by their school principal Barbara Thrasher won first prize and Joy Butler second. They worked on their Brownie cupboards and each received a little treat at the close of their Hallowe'en fun.

Company 7 Girl Guides

Monday, was All Hallows Eve and the spirits and goblins came out in force turning Company 7's regular meeting into a ghostly gambol. About 40 Guides and their guests enjoyed traditional Hallowe'en games and folk dancing. Prizes were awarded for costumes and games. Then the Guides gathered around their campfire, which was guarded by a grinning jack-o-lantern, and the Captain spun a ghostly yarn. The Patrol leaders served cookies, chocolate milk and candy. When they had tidied up the scene of their gathering, the ghosts each received a rosy apple and faded into the night only to appear again for another year.

BOY SCOUTS

The 8th Belleville Scouts, enjoyed a wiener roast at Parkwood Heights Wednesday evening. The boys then had a sing song around the fire with Scout Master Doug. Burns giving selections on the bag-pipes and accordion. Rusty Miller and Jack McDonald played their trumpets, Cake and chocolate milk were served by Mrs. Burns and Mrs. Clapp, the chocolate milk being donated by the 8th Belleville Ladies Auxiliary. 8th Belleville Cubs and Scouts

The 8th Belleville Cubs held their Hallowe'en party at Queen Mary Park Crescent Monday.

Tomato Growers Express Desires At Annual Meet

Picton—Tomato growers in Prince Edward county tabled their beefs good naturedly Thursday evening during their annual meeting held at Picton Shire hall when cigarettes and regarding future growing conditions were discussed.

Following are the motions passed by growers expressing their desires:

1. Growers do not want to pay any cost of grading. 2 They want no rejection of No. 1 tomatoes. 3. They want the cull clause limit raised 10 per cent. 4. They want only one grade for tomatoes with no size stipulation. 5. They want grading stations on neutral grounds, not on canners' property, and under no circumstances on the company platform. 6. They want all farmers written notice as to the time and date the factory closes. 7. They do not want company pea grading during 1950. 8. They want factories to install intensive scales.

Addressing the meeting were A. N. Butler, M.P., for Northumberland and A. N. L. Butler, research worker.

Value of Boards

Mr. Anderson stressed the value of marketing boards and urged that these be continued or tomato growers would be set back 10 to 20 years. Mr. Butler urged growers not to be afraid to do away with poor farming practices, stating they were not farming the same land which their fathers farmed. Therefore different methods were necessary.

Canadian Navy's Declaration Of Independence Book of Week

By DOUGLAS HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Nov. 5 (CP)—The book of the week is a 74-page document that may come to be known as the Canadian navy's declaration of independence.

Parliamentary reporters, survivors of multitudes of its labored and prosaic brethren, remember nothing quite like this 37,000-word report of a three-man commission on the navy. For it has some of the roll and the swat of th- sea itself and it bears the unmistakable imprint of an unmistakable hand.

The hand is that of Leonard W. Brockington, Welsh-born Ottawa lawyer whose nautical commands have never surpassed a boyhood rowboat but whose record at law as professional scholar, executive, broadcaster and master of words made him an excellent anchor man in Parliament's navy reort.

It concludes by saying "no one could sit face to face with the hundreds of young Canadians, officers and men, who told us the truth as they saw it, without a pride in the clean, strong manhood with which this land is blessed."

This is the prose of the Mr. Brockington who, according to Ottawa legend, finally objected to the removal of "purple passages" from the sailors' hymn book to write for former Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

"Ah, Brockington," Mr. King is supposed to have told him, "you forget that people remember purple passages."

It's there to refer to remember in the navy reort.

It is no crack at the magnificent traditions of the R.N. nor a cry for removal of all its heritage; it is merely a reflection of something far broader than the navy itself.

It comes out in prose that is definitely Brockington, so much so that the translators had a tough time making French out of part of it like . . . observations of the inevitable, rather than amid adversions of the inevitable."

It quotes Nelson, Churchill and Stephen Leacock. It recommends that sailors read the sea stuff such as "Moby Dick" and "The Ship" rather than "a string of unrelated snippets by a variety of authors."

Satisfied With Lot

It speaks of the "poison" or malcontents and, in contrast, talks of the commissioners' "pleasantest hour" with three recruits who "were lonely, full of the sense of adventure, satisfied with their lot."

It concludes by saying "no one could sit face to face with the hundreds of young Canadians, officers and men, who told us the truth as they saw it, without a pride in the clean, strong manhood with which this land is blessed."

HOUSE APPROVES

During the private bills hour of the night sitting the commons gave third and final reading to 81 Quebec divorce bills. A total of 39 others were given second reading—approval in principle. All votes were on division, by which some members indicate objection without calling for a formal vote.

A routine bill authorizing the government to cover deficits of the Canadian National Railways and Trans-Canada Air Lines was given first reading.

During discussion of a resolution to this effect the government was asked to revise the pension system and capital structure of the C.N.R.

John Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre) said the $25-a-month basic pension paid to retiring C.N.R. employees is totally inadequate. He was supported by Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre).

Objects of Criticism

A. L. Smith (PC—Calgary West), calling for a revision of the C.N.R. capital structure, said it is senseless to have the government annually make up C.N.R. deficits incurred because of C.N.R. debts to that same government.

Canada's big railway systems were the object of criticism during sailing earlier discussions. Opposition members suggested C.N.R. and C.P.R. should take over or at least do more to develop small railway lines.

Mr. Smith said that since the federal government is embarking on a plan of subsidizing railway construction, it might just as well take over the C.P.R., making it part of the C.N.R.

Speaking for Social Credit leader, said he suspects that the railways have lost their pioneering spirit, have advocated removing the charter rights of the railways unless they took an interest in developing the small lines in more remote areas.

Howard Green (PC—Vancouver-Quadra) asked about the U.S. proposal that a 1,200-mile rail line be constructed to Fairbanks, Alaska from Prince George.

Transport Minister Chevrier said there was nothing he could say about it because the until representations were made on an official level by the U.S.

ANTI-MONOPOLY

In the comments Mr. Garson said in reply to Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre) that the report on alleged flour-milling price-fixing has been in government hands since last Dec. 29.

Mr. Knowles had said that under the act, such a report had to be made public within 15 days of delivery to the minister.

Mr. Garson said he would table the report in the commons Monday.

He introduced a bill to amend the Combines Act and said it will carry into effect three recommendations by Mr. McGregor "designed to strengthen enforcement".

Brought Before Industry

Mr. Short brought these views before the milling industry and decided that his own firm should put in an offer. Three smaller and the other firms thought justifiable.

"The other mills finally confirmed to this price, but not without protest," Mr. Garson wrote. "As a result the price of flour and mill feed went up by the uniform amount to the level which Mr. Taylor, as chairman, had suggested.

"In commenting on Mr. Taylor's statement to me to be a satisfactory explanation of what had happened; and that in the absence of other evidence there seemed to be nothing in Mr. Taylor's explanation to warrant further inquiry in respect of the uniform price rise which had excited your suspicion."

Speech Mannerisms Among Members Varied as the Members Themselves

By MEL SUFFIN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Nov. 5 — (CP)—Newcomers to parliament are constantly amazed by the apparent ease with which seasoned members roll through the long speeches.

In fact, a look at Hansard — the verbatim report of parliamentary proceedings — will indicate that most members will seldom say something in 10 minutes if they can take 40.

That's further illustrated by the fact that Commons rules place a 40-minute time limit on most speeches.

After speaking for 40 minutes, a member can continue only with unanimous consent of the Commons. He rarely is refused that consent, probably because the other members realize they may find themselves in the same spot sometime.

They also don't object because they can always leave if they find the speech boring.

Attention

Speech mannerisms among the members are as varied as the members themselves.

Prime Minister St. Laurent, for instance, talks with the short, clipped phrases typical of professional lawyers combined with the inevitable careful selection of words necessary for a member of the government.

George Drew, as a former premier of Ontario, also carefully chooses his words, delivering them in one of the loudest, and clearest voices in the Commons. He invariably gains momentum after starting off slowly and quietly.

J. J. Coldwell, C. C. F. leader, retains slight traces of an English accent in his smooth delivery which often serves as though he were reading a written speech.

Voices

Here are a few others among parliament's notable voices:

John Diefenbaker (PC— Lake Centre) eloquent, court - room style orator with a western drawl and plenty of arm-waving.

Solon Low, Social Credit leader: straight - forward delivery of nearly-level laughs.

Rev. Dan McIvor (L — Fort William) sermonic and fervent, like an old-time evangelist preacher.

Jean Francois Pouliot (L — Temiscouata): Wryly humorous jabs with poker - face delivery.

Angus MacInnis (Vancouver East) pleasantly rasping voice of a man who has spent many years in the Maritimes but living on the west coast.

P.R. Vote System Will be Used

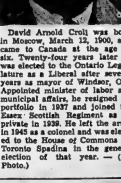
Winnipeg, Nov. 5 (CP)—It's not necessary to be a mathematical genius to understand the proportional representation method of vote compilation, but it sure helps.

Proportional representation—or P. R. as it is termed by those who deal in its intricacies—will be the system used to establish winners in the three Winnipeg ridings—north, centre and south —and in St. Boniface in Manitoba's Nov. 10 provincial election.

Four members are to be returned in each of the Winnipeg ridings and two in St. Boniface.

The great simplicity there are more than two candidates use the single transferable vote system. Under it, a candidate is elected without further ado if he obtains half the total vote plus one. Otherwise, the low candidate is dropped and second choices on his ballots are used to decide the winner.

The faculty of Manitoba professors and an insurance company official will handle the complicated P. R. computation. The three experts estimate it will take nearly three days to declare the winners in the four ridings. Since the election is on Thursday this means they will wind up their job late Saturday night.



VERSATILE LAWYER

David Arnold Croll was born in Moscow, March 12, 1900, and came to Canada at the age of three. Several years later he was elected to the Ontario Legislature as a Liberal after several years as mayor of Windsor, Ont. Appointed minister of labor and municipal affairs, he resigned his portfolio in 1937 and joined the Essex 241th Regiment as a private in 1939. He left the army in 1945 as a colonel and was elected to the House of Commons for Toronto Spadina in the general election of that year. — (CP Photo.)

Tragedy Treads N.Y. Stage As Theatre Season Opens

In Manhattan:

By PAT USSHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Nov. 5. —(CP) — Tragedy trod the New York stage this week as the theatre season belatedly got under way in earnest.

The finest of the incoming productions was "Lost in the Stars," a musical adaptation of Alan Paton's moving novel, "Cry The Beloved Country."

A compassionate novel has been brought to the stage of the Music Box with impressive fidelity. Rouben Mamoulian directed the production of this tale of crime and punishment and of relations between the black and white races in a South African setting.

Todd Duncan is magnificent in the role of Stephen Kumalo, a native clergyman and father of a wayward son. Leslie Banks portrays in restrained but heartfelt fashion the part of James Jarvis, the leading white character.

The haunting and melancholy music by Kurt Weill catches the dark, forlorn atmosphere of the book.

It is a performance so eloquent that few can see it through with dry eyes.

The infamous Hubbard family are back on Broadway in a-musical satellites and composed by Marc Blitzstein, called "Regina." They are as virulent a gang as they were in Lillian Hellman's play, "The Little Foxes," on which the musical is based.

Heading the cast in this handsome, spectacular production at the 46th Street Theatre is Jane Pickens as Regina Giddens. She sings splendidly and acts forcefully as the scheming sister.

Refined Torture

In "Montserrat," a historical play about Bolivar's struggle to free Venezuela from Spanish rule Emlyn Williams enacts the part of Izquiredo, a pitiless Spanish Colonel. His acting is so distinguished that it is difficult not to admire the colonel, even as he sends six innocent people to death before a firing squad. William Bendix also is impressive as Montserrat, a young, idealistic Spanish captain who betrays his uniform because he sympathizes with Bolivar.

Lillian Gish, who adapted the drama at the Fudon Theatre from the French play by Emmanuel Robles, has made it a taut and engrossing study of character. Her acting reaches a high point of intimacy.

Most U.N. Delegates View Social Functions as Necessity

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Lake Success, N.Y., Nov. 5—(CP)—For many United Nations delegates, cocktail parties are the only burning more midnight oil.

Rene Jutras, one of Canada's top delegates to the U.N. assembly, views most of the social functions as a diplomatic necessity. Unless the party breaks up early, he's up early the next morning to prepare for his duties the next day as Canada's representative in the assembly's 56-member administrative committee.

"For a newcomer to the U.N. as I am, a United Nations assembly is a lot tougher than a session of parliament," Jutras said in an interview during which he outlined the packed daily schedule filled by delegates.

Early in the present U.N. session he was the Dominion's top representative in the special political committee as well. Then he sometimes did not finish his homework until 3 a.m.

And at 7:30 a.m. awakening is the rule for the 36-year-old former R.C.A.F. flight lieutenant.

That leaves 1½ hours for breakfast and any personal business before the daily meeting of the whole Canadian delegation under the semi-formal chairmanship of L. B. Pearson, External Affairs Minister.

Start From Hotel Early

The delegation dashes into its four cars at 10 a.m. to start the ho- -long drive out from New York to U.N. headquarters at Lake Success.

The committee meetings are scheduled to start at 10:45 a.m. but seldom get under way until 11 a.m. and last about two or 2½ hours.

There is usually a two-hour break for lunch but even that time is taken up with assembly work. Usually Jutras grabs a sandwich at the plainly-furnished press bar after waiting in line for about 20 minutes.

Occasionally some committee problem calls for a luncheon meeting on a group of delegates to trade ideas and perhaps come up with some compromise. These usually are held in the delegates' dining room - or at one of the country's restaurants to be found within a couple of miles of U.N. headquarters.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

They ventured; they visited and they visited. In case you don't know what that means, and we are only guessing, the Toronto Marlboro Junior "B's" dropped into town last night and gave our Junior Rockets a sample of the old hockey game as she is played in good old Toronto.

Yep, we saw everything last night, even if we did miss the first period. The remaining two chukkers convinced us but plenty that these Toronto boys have come out with another edition of their fighting rough-and-ready forebears. Lest we forget, our Junior Rockets finished up on the short end of an 8-5 score but in the long end of something that satisfied Manager Bill Cook and Coach McNaught.

Had the rafters been loose and available, these impetuous youngsters wearing the Dukes insignia would probably have called these more or less lethal weapons into action.

They threw elbows, knees, hockey sticks, surplice, vertebrae and everything else but the city hall, and they would have used that if their chief scout had not realized that it was nailed down, in an effort to teach these out-of-towners a lesson in hockey as she is played in Tawnania.

There were two other fellows out there on the ice. They, in case you don't know it, come under the heading of officials. Or referees, take your pick as to what name you will be wrong. Personally we think they went along for the ride. In any event, they had the opportunity to wear white sweaters. For which, as we used to say in the army, we give thanks.

It was rough, rugged hockey in the strictest sense of the word. With no iotes of allib-ing, and every fan there will bear us out in this statement the Rockets while not exactly angels to this classy Marlboro Dukes team, plainly lacked meddlin and hoss play.

That should be expected. The gentleman from Tawnawnto who set on our left in the press box, was continually bemoaning the fact that "we" had to play "our" games that have been on the ice". That was to be expected. But perhaps he didn't realize that we were not in the press box but now a Toronto newspaper once in a while and study, or have read to us the sports copy from the newspapers.

Such antics, egad, to think these damned young upstarts from the village of Belleville should dare to throw a furtive look, an elbow, a knee or a hockey stick at one of those lesions of forebears who made hockey in Hogtown. Gad, we should say, what is this place coming to.

Then just to make things interesting and to probably make Messrs. Stein and whatsisname, his co-partner in the Barbara Scott act visit Belleville and take in a hockey game, was a hockey game, exhibition or otherwise, somebody started to punch someone else's nose. Retaliation,? sure. That meant a fight.

Four times it happened, with the sinners being sent to durance vile in the cooler. Somebody get a bucket of cold. Someone else came up with a potential "shiner". The fans, the seriously came up with the impression that the junior Rockets "will do?.

They were up against fast - skating, hard-shooting junior "B" squad last night. They were not at their best. They couldn't be, with two practices under their belts. They met a rough, tough, bruising bunch of boys, taught hockey in the traditional Toronto style, but they met them on their home, beach for punch and as we have we saw Garry Schreiber, who started in goal for the Rocks give away a dirty look.

Manager Bill Cook and Coach Ken McNaught tossed out a bunch of huskies last night that should be a credit to not only the Belleville Intermediate "B" hockey association but to the city as well. It is not fair for this corner, or the fans at large to judge them on their performance last night. As we said before, these youngsters have had a couple of two or three practices. They cannot be expected to show their teeth till that sort of practice. But they showed a lots of potential ability, guts, and spirit last night to warrant the faith of their management and fandom.

* * * *

Personally we are of the opinion, and we, of all people were kept in the dark regarding the strength of this team, that the 1949-50 Rockets "will do". They have speed, weight, scoring power and everything that goes to make another wanta. All that is lacking at the moment, and that will come in time, is practice and play.

* * *

Last night regardless of the defeat, the game was more or less of an experience with the Rockets manacement. The team has not been selected as yet, so we are informed. Coach McNaught and Manager Bill Cook now have an inkling of the team's strength at their finger-tips. We are not in a position to say definitely at this time from what we saw last night this city will be represented by the best Junior "B" club it has had in years.

* * *

And by such token, so goes the Belleville and District Hockey League. Scouting the Rockets Juniors last night were the master-minds of the CNR Diesels, the Northern Electric line of those guys of the new-Tender at the Queen's U. Dugout), the Trenton Flyers and No. 6 R. D.

Cute DI Vess, eh?

All of which, kiddies, amounts up to the fact that the Belleville District Hockey League which starts next Tuesday, with its Five-team set-up appears headed for the best season since inception.

* * *

Northern Electric, the CNR Diesels, the RCAF Flyers from Trenton and their service feudists from No. 6 R. D. are rapidly rounding into shape. It was rumored that the loop would resolve itself into a two - team affair. That is definitely not correct. We have covered practices of all the squads. We saw the junior Rockets under pre - season fire last night and without the slightest hesitation state that the 1949 - 50 Belleville District Hockey League will be productive of the best hockey seen here in years. And that goes for the O.H.A.

Good News for Queen's, Parry to See Only Limited Action in Game With Gaels

(By The Canadian Press)

The news was good for Queen's Golden Gaels but not for the league-leading Western Mustangs today on the eve of the clash between the two intercollegiate senior teams in London.

Out of London came the doleful word Friday night that Jack Parry, the all-star halfback and key man in Johnny Metras' 1949 grid machine, will be available for "limited" action. Metras said that Parry has a leg injury and will be used only on passing plays.

The college games—at London and the McGill-Varsity game in Toronto up the eastern senior football program. McGill and Varsity are in a three-cornered tie. Out of the games today and the two which get the Intercollegiate schedule next week could come a four-way tie.

In the other eastern games, the Big Four and the Ontario Union wind up their schedules with games which have no bearing on the final standings. In the west the playoffs begin, Calgary Stampeders going to Regina to play Saskatchewan Roughriders.

The two leading Big Four teams—they'll meet in the playoffs—finish up at home. Ottawa Rough Riders entertain the last-place Hamilton Wildcats; Montreal Alouettes get a visit from Toronto Argonauts.

In the Ontario Union, Sarnia Imperials go to Windsor and Toronto Beaches to Hamilton to play the Tigers. The Tigers and Sarnia are in the two playoff berths.

Squabble Ended

A Big Four squabble between Ottawa and Montreal over playoff dates ended Friday when the league executive ordered Au to meet the Roughies at 3 p.m. in Montreal next Wednesday for the first of a two-game, total-point playoff series. The second game will be played in Ottawa next Saturday.

For Montreal, the league decision was a defeat and Al president Leo Dandurand said: "We will just have to take it."

Alouette officials had claimed that a mid-week afternoon game would not draw a large crowd.

"In the whole thing there seems to have been no consideration for the Montreal public and none for the work we have put in here in Montreal," said Dandurand.

Another Blow

Meanwhile, the luckless Als learned they may receive another blow. Parks Jarks play their home games in Montreal baseball stadium and general manager Jimmie Bavasi of the Montreal Baseball Club said yesterday the rent may be hiked.

"My contract with the gloucestive may push Hagerty (Coach Leo Hegman of the Alouettes) around but it won't push me around. I have to protect my employer's interests and I won't answer $1,500 if they play in the afternoon. I stand to lose money. They may not take in enough at the gate to pay the ushers. The Big Four executive may push Hagerty (Coach Leo Hegman of the Alouettes) around but it won't push me around. I have to protect my employer's interests and I won't answer $1,500 if they play in the afternoon."

Puck-Chasers Wield Weapons On Four Fronts

National Hockey League puck-chasers will wield their deadly weapons on four fronts this weekend.

So long as the customers heed league President Clarence Campbell's warning to stay off the ice, the morality rate on fans should be low. But tickets are still at a premium, the players can't afford to alienate too many fans' affections by cracking noggins with their Chicago tommyguns.

But there are enough issues to settle in the ice-lanes and rinks to guarantee they'll be trying to use their sticks with deadly effect on opposing goalies—and, fair enough, on one another.

One big clash comes at Toronto Saturday night when the Maple Leafs play host to and entertain Red Wings for first place. They're tied now, each with 11 points in eight games. In another Saturday night game, Canadiens will be trying to close up on the co-leaders when they tackle the last-place Boston Bruins at the Forum.

Both Toronto and Detroit also play Sunday matinees. Detroit is at home to the fifth place New York Rangers while Toronto meets the fourth-place Black Hawks in Chicago.

Tough One at Chicago

The Hawks will be throwing two of their league-leading scorers at Toronto's Turk Broda. Metro Prystai and Doug Bentley, each with 11 points, top all points collectors, even if Reardon does hold the lead-boasting lead.

In Montreal yesterday, Canadiens coach Irvin told newspaper men about Reardon's Wednesday night lapse of memory in Chicago (the Rendlera clipper forgot the customer is always right).

The affair "was really not much," said Irvin, adding that Reardon's 10-stitch cut was inflicted accidentally.

Stood up in Goal

"Grbich stood up in his seat, with one foot on the railing, reached over the netting which fronts the promenade seats and grabbed Kenny Reardon by the shoulder-pad. The pad was pulled off the shoulder, Reardon went off balance, swung around, and his stick struck Grbich on the head."

Irvin said Grbich's friends started to swarm over the netting and out on the ice so Leo Gravelle rushed in with his stick swinging but didn't hurt anybody. Neither, he reflected, did Billy Reay "who took a cut at one of these jerks but missed him."

Irvin may have to tell the story again—to a Chicago judge the next time Canadiens visit the Windy City. That is to be Nov. 14, when Reardon and Gravelle, out on bail, are to answer the charges of "assault with a deadly weapon" laid by Grbich.

Woman, Two Men Sent to Hospital With Stab Wounds

(By The Canadian Press)

A melee of fans and players broke out after a suburban high and football game at Detroit Friday night, sending a woman and two fellows to hospital.

Two of the three, including the woman, were reported to have suffered stab wounds. One man was held for questioning.

Most of the 3,500 spectators and players took part in fighting on the field immediately after a game at Melvindale, Emil L. Pipp, police chief at the suburb, reported.

Mrs. Viola Higgins, 34, a negro, and Gerald Blakner, 19, were reported to have been stabbed. Jack Lowe, 23, also was injured. Police arrested Banks Higgins, 34, husband of Mrs. Higgins, for questioning.

The fracas broke out after a game between River Rouge and Melvindale. River Rouge won 7-0.

Fight Stopped

An unemployed groom was slightly injured in a fall Friday and a racing sheet operator was taken into custody in Los Angeles in connection with the case after an attempt to fix a horse race at Rockingham Park Oct. 24.

William K. Weaver of Nogales, Ariz., pleaded innocent to eight counts of malicious interfering with race horses. He was held on $12,500 bail by Judge Scott of the Rockingham County Superior Court.

Los Angeles police, at the request of New Hampshire authorities, arrested Weaver (Bob) Wilson on charges of aiding and abetting Weaver in administering and interfering with race horses at Rockingham on that same date.

With a far-away look in his eyes, Clark Griffith, boss of the Washington ba'l frankly like to have Baltimore Orioles back in the American League.

"You never can tell," said the 79-year-old president of Washington Senators, "there might be an opening some day for a league."

He declined to elaborate at Washington on the opening but it was reported in Griff favors dropping the profitless St. Louis Browns and transferring Baltimore if a vacancy occurs.

The Orioles were left by Vernon Cardy of Val David, Que., was fined $10 and costs in William F. Wharton Memorial Trophy event for conformation hunters at the Canadian National Horse Show, at New York. The showing, however, added two points to the horse's score to give him the lead, with 14 points, in the conformation hunter championship, one of the shows big blue ribbon events

At Detroit, Police Commissioner Harry S. Toy said today he may ask the Michigan Boxing Commission to suspend the Letter Felton-Tony Pellone fight scheduled at Detroit Wednesday night. Toy said yesterday that highlighted by of investigation by police into the October 21 fight in which Detroiter Felton won a decision over Kid Gavilan of Cuba.

"As long as the Gavilan-Felton fight is under investigation, I do not think it wise procedure for Felton to fight again," Toy said. "It will take us at least another week to conclude our inquiry."

B.C.I. Juniors Defeat St. Mikes By 7 to 1 Score

The B.C.I. junior football squad defeated the St. Michael's Hawks 7-1 in a hard-fought game played in regal fashion before a crowd at the O.S.D. field yesterday and by so doing the B.C.I. twelve won the Bay of Quinte Junior championship.

Tom Lewis put the Collegiate lads in the lead early in the first quarter when he went around the end to collect five points in the game's only touchdown. Barclay kicked the pig skin between the posts for the extra point.

St. Michael's picked up their lone tally when Green kicked the ball over the touch line for a one point rouge. Milligan kicked a point over the deadline to close the scoring.

Few Surprises And Big Scores Dot Hockey Games

(By The Canadian Press)

Big scores and a few surprises dotted the schedule of six Ontario Hockey Association games played last night.

Both senior games ended with lopsided scores. At Toronto the leading Marlboros dumped the third-place Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen 9-1. Hamilton Tigers, after losing six straight games, blasted out a 9-0 victory at home over the second slot Owen Sound Mercurys. Another big surprise came at St. Catharines when the Teepees, in top spot in the junior series, were defeated 9-7 by the tail end Barrie Flyers.

Barrie Flyers handed the junior Toronto Marlboros their first defeat of the season at Barrie when thew dumped the Dukes for a 5-4 3-2 victory. Barrie and Marlboros now are tied for second place, one point behind the Teepees.

Guelph Biltmores defeated Galt Black Hawks 5-4 in overtime at Guelph to keep in the running in the tie for fourth place with Galt and St. Michael's. Galt Stratford Kroehlers are still tied with Windsor and Oshawa Generals for last place in the East, both defeating the Toronto St. Michael's 8-3 last night.

The senior Marlboros had little trouble with Dutchmen. They took a 6-1 lead in the first frame and increased it to 7-0 in the second, almost scoring at will.

Blair Scores Three

Chuck Blair scored three times for the Dukes. Bill Johnson and Alfie Childs each scored twice and Johnny McCormack and Al Buchanan once. Doug Verity got the K-W goal.

For the Tigers Clare Shillington and Jack Taylor each scored twice. The other goal was picked up by Johnny Conick.

Jack Hill and Jack Green were the Galt snipers.

In the senior loop Kitchener and Marlboros will play a return engagement at Kitchener today and Hamilton will travel to Owen Sound to carry on hostilities there.

Four games are scheduled in the junior series. Stratford plays at St. Michael's and Barrie plays at Marlboros in one doubleheader in the afternoon. At night, Guelph travels to Galt and Oshawa Generals, who did not play last night are at home to Windsor Spitfires.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Nov. 5 — (AP) — Stan Lambert, a football coach at Lamar College in Texas, protests that the current substitution rule makes it too hard to call plays from the bench. They have to risk the jobs, says Stan, by signaling this duty to a green kid.

Maybe so, but I've heard the whole thing, but we always thought the college game was going to teach the boys certain things to do. One is how to accept responsibility. Another is sportsmanship. . . . In the football rules coaching from the sidelines is termed "unsportsmanlike conduct" and calls for a 15-yard penalty. . . . from this distance, we'd say Lambert's complaint sounds like a good excuse for saying he didn't want to trust his exams to "green kids" and insisted on writing out the answers himself.

Sports Mention

Only three National Hockey League players have scored hat-tricks. Form Dutsault and Pete Babando were born in the United States. But now, Leafs' Gus Mortson has recently were "imported" to play in Toronto. Dave Slater, youngest son of the celebrated George, isn't allowed to play football with the Princeton Freshmen because his dad wants him to go into basketball. . . .

When Glen Crowe, Buffalo Bills' center, was left off the All-American selections he replied, "They're my ten children over there and I'm satisfied". . . . Clem really has something to crowe about. . . .

Toronto Marlies Display Too Much Condition, Zip In Defeating Rockets 8-3

By GEORGE M. CARVER
(Sport Editor)

Rough, rugged hockey rang up the curtain in Memorial Arena last night when the Belleville Rockets (1949-50 edition) went down to defeat before the Toronto Marlboro Junior "B's" in an exhibition tilt. The score was 8-3.

In all fairness to the Rockets, while they looked crude at times before the fast skating well-conditioned Toronto team, it must be remembered that last night was their third experience "on skates".

At that they came through with a sparkling performance. They appear to be a heavy fast-skating crew, with lots of potential fire-power and as was proven in four fisticuff melees with the foemen. They plainly showed a lack of condition, but that was to be expected.

Coach McNaught threw out five fast-skating lines that appeared to be able to hold their own going both ways. He tried out young Garry Schreider in the nets for the first period and part of the second and then threw in B. Tripp, the junior goalie. And from what this writer saw, Tripp will do.

They Had the Practice

The Marlie Dukes with something like six weeks of practice and exhibition games, regardless of the fact that their mates' minds insisted that it was their first time on the shovel in many ways, in fact all ways the result of coaching, and experience.

It was a rough rugged-brushing game with 17 penalties being handed out by Referees Phil Stein and Joe Kinsella of Toronto. And they could have doubled that count had they so wished.

Lack Condition

The Belleville youngsters, although they lacked the finish and play-making polish of their Toronto foemen, showed that they did not lack for guts. Four fistfights enlivened the proceedings, and as a matter of fact the game ended with two or more players throwing punches.

1,000 Fans At Game

Nearly 1,000 fans saw the hockey inaugural. Scouts from the Belleville District League were there as were those of the Toronto Maple Leafs, Chicago Black Hawks, and the Boston Bruins.

Natty in their new black, white and red uniforms, the Rockets battled gamely for the entire game but they definitely tired towards the end. And, for that matter, so were the Marlies. They at least, even if they did come out on the long end of an 8-3 score, knew they had been in a hockey game.

Score Three in First

The Marlies rang up three goals in the first period with Joe Maxwell scoring two and Bob Primeau, son of the illustrious "Joe" accounting for the third. As the period neared its end Pietsch scored in and rammed home the rubber for the Rockets' first goal of the season.

Early in the second period Don Hogan grabbed a loose puck, sailed in on the Marlie goalie and made no mistake. Seconds previous Wright had had the same opportunity but Art missed the post by a pig's whisker.

Marlies took over from there on and they sank three goals in the middle session. The game was still rugged and rough with both teams losing strength through penalties. Reid, Nester and Jago were the marksmen.

Wrights Scores

Came the third period and Welbrock, one of the Marlies stars ripped through for another Toronto goal. Art Wright, battling behind his blueline, suddenly dashed away, flanked by Graham and Mulholland, he raced in on the Toronto goal. The light flashed.

With momentum to go and with the lads displaying pugilistic tendencies, Waldrake with Maxwell and Moore raced in to score the final goal.

The spectator suffered a bleat cut in a melee during a game between Canadiens and Chicago Black Hawks Nov. 1. Two of Reardon's team-mates, Leo Gravelle and Billy Reay, were also charged in separate incidents, but charges against Reay were dropped. President Bill Tobin of the Chicago club posted $100 bonds for Reardon and Gravelle. — (CP Photo.)

Upland Game and Solunar Periods

Press releases from the various conservation agencies of the country indicate a bountiful supply of game in the upland covers for the 1949 season.

The ringneck pheasant a favorite in the sections of the country where it has established itself, has recovered from its calamitous public "scrub" population number of two years ago, and the nesting season has been good in most areas.

The ruffed grouse, perhaps the most typically sedate of our upland birds, has turned the corner and is now on the upgrade. Once more we can find at least a larger number of these birds in their haunts.

More Woodcock

The woodcock have staged a great come-back since the disastrous season of their wintering grounds in the winter of 1939-40. Now, largely through the exercise of wise conservation measures, these birds are back to 1938 population figures.

By and large, this fall promises great sport for the upland gunner.

Be that as it may, however, it pays a hunter to be familiar with the feeding habits and the typical behavior of his quarry.

Take the ringneck, for instance. He spends a great deal of his time in the dense protective cover of the swampy places. Hunting him in the tangles of alder, cattails and willows, with "punch grass" and soft footing underneath is a thrilling sport.

Of course he likes cornfields too but when disturbed he will leave those and head for the nearest refuge in the heavier cover if he is not feeding actively.

Good Hunting Periods

During the Solunar Periods, however he emerges from the coverings and comes into the fields to feed. Once there he is reluctant to leave until he has eaten his fill. Then is the time that you will get your best shooting.

Instead of high-tailing it for the heavy cover he is content to hide in the nearest hedgerow or weed patch. The dogs have a chance to locate him for you and he will give you good shooting.

Ruffed grouse, as shy and wary as any of our game birds, often make things tough for the gunner. When these birds are not actually feeding, they are almost impossible to approach successfully.

Long before I knew anything about the tables and the effects of Solunar Periods on wildlife, I knew that there was a great variance in the behavior of these birds. Sometimes they would flush close and give an excellent shooting. At other times they flushed well out of gun range. Naturally I wondered why.

The answer is this during Solunar Periods grouse, like the pheasants, move into the feeding cover and they are loath to flush until they are disturbed. Then they will lie close for the dog and give you good shooting.

Warry When Well Fed

Between Solunar Periods, when they have full crops, they loaf about the dusting areas or sit in the evergreens and preen their feathers. Then it is that they are very shy in the extreme and hunting them is a difficult chore.

So far as the gunner is concerned, ruffed grouse during Solunar Periods are ruffed grouse during the resting period behave like two different birds.

Rabbits are much the same. During the Solunar Periods they leave the resting cover for the brush piles, groundhog holes and other protective cover and feed in the open where you can find them. Between times they are in their cover and hunting them then is difficult to locate them.

And as it goes, right straight across the board. Knowing this, the best system is to plan your hunting with the aid of the solunar tables.

Look up the times of the Solunar Periods and then arrange to be in good shooting cover at those times. That way you will find the best sport that the day in the field has for you.

It pays to keep track of the daily Solunar Periods.

Toronto, Nov. 5 (CP)—Some people will do anything to win. Jack (London Free Press) Park, in a recent column, tells about the London football squad which won the Canadian Intermediate Championship about 1900. Any idea which seemed to have merit was tried in an effort to win games. In a brilliant display of genius, one member of the squad figured out a play in which the ball carrier was literally thrown over the line of scrimmage.

Hugh Labatt, the quarterback and one of the smallest men on the team, was elected to the role of "flying quarter".

The play called for the quarter to take the ball and fade back into the arms of the husky backs," writes Jack. "They would then toss the quarter, with the ball clutched in his arms, over the line of scrimmage."

The play was tried twice, each time for a gain of 10 yards. Everybody on the London squad was happy about the whole affair. All except Labatt. After two trips he turned in his uniform.

Canada Gains

Canada can gain much from displaced persons who have come to our country seeking a new life. They can open new doors to industrial development, add new culture to our young country. And they may also help us win international recognition in sport.

Ted Murdoch of the Kirkland Lake, Northern Daily News notes that Andrea Kekesy, pretty professional Hungarian skater, was among 1,800 D.P.'s who arrived in Canada last week. Mrs. Kekesy won the Olympic double-skating championship at Berne, Switzerland, last winter.

"Already she has signed a contract with the Ottawa Royal Minto Club and will start practising for her professional career this week, writes Murdoch.

The Answer

Grant Sound Mercurys of the Ontario Hockey Association senior league has taken a controversial step in an effort to get the fans to home games. They have banned radio broadcasts of home games.

"(Tuesday night) was the first time the rule was enforced, and call it incidental or what you may, the attendance was highest for the year," writes Dan (Kilchener-Waterloo Record) Odette. "An estimated crowd of 1,800 was on hand—about 900 better than any previous gathering this season."

London, — (CP) —Because she believes attention was harmful to Greta, Miss M.B. Hartwell, acting headmistress of Orange Hall Girls' County School, Edgware Middlesex, did not allow her pupils to take part in the annual borough sports day.

"To anybody who knows anything about girls it is obvious they are not made for athletics," she wrote to the Hendon Education Committee explaining her decision.

"I have only got to look around at some of the girls in my own school to reconcile myself with this view."

Hendon's chief medical officer Dr. A.Y. Adamson said: "There is no medical reason to contradict the point of view.

"Girls compete in sports all over the world and are no more likely to strain themselves than boys.

Physical education instructor Mrs. Mrs. Maureen Tyson — nee Gardner and one of Britain's Olympic sprint stars — took twue with Miss Hartwell in a letter to the Daily Mail.

"Leading colleges...now include athletic events in their curricula (except long-distance running)," she wrote. "Sprinting, hurdling and jumping are certainly included.

"I find it impossible to reconcile the teaching of a strenuous game like tennis with a ban on athletics.

Some horse-players feel that their backer will one day end them up in a strait-jacket. But authorities at Cloverleaf Mental Hospital, County Tipperary, find the reverse is true.

They regularly give a number of their patients five shillings (72 cents) each to make money bets on the races at Clonmel.

The freedom to make decisions about likely winners, say the doctors, gives the patients a sense of confidence, and their conduct indicates to what extent they are ready to return to normal life.

Mrs. Diana Fishwick Critchley, at 37 the oldest British finest woman golfers has won this year's English Women's championship beating Lady Katharine Cairns 3 and 2.

She won the girls' championship at the age of 15 and took her first women's championship 17 years ago.

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle:

Tame Muskrats Big Attraction At Moose Jaw

Moose Jaw, Sask. — (CP) Minnie the Muskrat is the centre of attraction in Moose Jaw. Minnie is a matronly muskrat in the Serpentine at Crescent Park. She's the darling of a group which meets along the park paths to feed her every day.

The social gathering usually includes Minnie and her mate, Billie. The muskrats now are so tame that they swim across from their home in one of the Serpentine's islands when they see their friends approaching, usually late in the morning or early in the afternoon.

The muskrats leave the water, climb up the bank, cross the footpath, then sit up and beg for food beside the bench where their human friends are seated.

As tame as any kitten, they allow themselves to be stroked and petted, and will climb all over their benefactors to reach food. They down little pieces of food on the spot, but carry large chunks home to be eaten or shared with their young, for Minnie is mothering a family of seven, her third litter this year.

The fame of these tame muskrats and of their daily tea parties has spread far beyond the city limits. Visitors from as far away as Chicago have dropped in; dozens of still snapshots and hundreds of feet of moving pictures have been taken at the scene by camera enthusiasts.

The muskrats first became tamed by a parks keeper, who finally got them to come at his whistle and take food from his fingers.

Then, early in July, Mrs. T. McCrie, Mrs. W. A. McCallum, Jack Osborne and William McIntyre started to feed them, and a daily routine soon was established.

Before long the little animals became so tame they would wander far from the water to take food from their friends. They reared three families in the Serpentine, and as the young grew up they struck out on their own and left their parents' home.

Getting Rid of Leaves No Cinch

Somehow it seems to me there are certain chores some people never were intended to do. You might say they weren't designed for the part. For example, take me. I've found that leaf-burning just isn't my dish, Graham Hunter writes in The Christian Science Monitor.

In the first place, I'm not a leaf-starter in leaves. That alone ought to indicate something. Each year it takes some smart manoeuvring on the part of my wife to get this chore rolling. Of course, inwardly this gives me a cosy glow, realizing that I'm married to Mrs. Efficiency herself, but outwardly the work still remains to be done.

Hint for Nature

Another indication that leaf-burning is a square hole for a round peg like me lies in my approach to the whole business. For years I've clung to a secret hope that this year maybe just perhaps the trees will decide to retain their current verdure and not trouble themselves working up a new look for next spring. Of course nature knows best, but still I should think that soon, just once of the present foliage could be made to serve for more than one season. It would accomplish a lot of lives, my own included, and save no end of human horsepower.

Each autumn this leaf problem creeps up on me. A few quiet business next day. Next day a handful more zigzags into retirement. Thus the pleasant snowballs until along about Saturday my wife is leaving the rake where I'll practically fall over it. This is known as a gentle hint.

If this doesn't produce the desired action she switches to her heavy artillery, known as family-line logic, which goes something like this: "Doesn't the Wample's yard look tidy since Joe Wample burned his leaves! I'll just bet he plays a wonderful game of golf this afternoon."

Goes to Work

Well, personally, I can't see the slightest connection between Joe's golf and leaf disposal, but I know I'll be inviting more logic if I hazard any defence, so I climb out of my easy chair, grab the rake, and face nature stoically.

"Good idea, dear," I remark casually; "I had planned this job for today anyway."

At this point nature, not content to litter my yard with slightly used leaves, whisks up a spare breeze and the fun begins. Ever rake leaves in a breeze? Then you've learned it's folly to rake in any direction but one—with the breeze.

So I rake along briskly until—suddenly I wind up in a corner of the yard alongside the garden of our neighbor, Mrs. Fribble. This lady can be depended upon to appear now out of her kitchen, flicking her fingers and watching she's doing, and twitter: "Too bad! You won't burn them there, will you? That's awfully near my parsley bed."

Test in Exercise

Of course, I'd feel a perfect ass to parboil Mrs. Fribble's parsley, so I smile, wave gally, and shout, "Oh my, no, I'm just pushing them around for the exercise."

About now the wind mercifully whooshes up from the opposite direction and away about my leaves around and past me. I'm left combing the strays out of my hair and watching Cuthbert, our cat, jump on them.

Several more distracting shifts in the breeze occur before I give up and I finally round up the little charges into a neat pile in the middle of the yard. Then at last! My wife can well be proud of the neat action she reported. In triumph I apply a match and the smoke mounts upward. Relaxing in the sensation of a job well done, I remind myself to be nonchalant about any compliments.

Fire Chief Arrives

This reverie is almost instantly exploded by the shrieking of a siren which draws rapidly nearer, announcing the arrival of our fire chief — red car, fire extinguishers, dignity and all.

"It's pretty dry weather for a fire, isn't it?" he grates in that flat, accusing tone reserved for firebugs. "Let's see your fire permit."

During this small talk his assistant is burying himself undoing my labors by methodically squirting out the fire.

"Oh, you forgot to get one, eh?" the chief continues in his best official voice. "I'm sure the judge will like to hear about this. Shall we say 10 o'clock tomorrow?"

As the glittering car sweeps off and the neighbors pull their heads back through their windows, my wife eyes me as though nature had slipped a cog. "Will you never learn to be prepared before tackling that chore?" she sighs.

Well, as I was saying, it would seem there are certain jobs some folks never were intended to do. And would you look at that breeze! Let the boss' leaves all over the yard again!

Quinte District Conservation Notes

(Week Ending October 29th.)

Hatchery officials at Glenora have completed all preparations for the taking of whitefish spawn-taking operation in the Bay of Quinte area. A crew of seven men have been employed for the past two weeks driving stakes and setting the four pound nets used, near the shore of Hay Bay.

According to manager Arlie Brown, some whitefish have already entered the nets and provided the weather remains cool the fish may start spawning by November 10th.

Two years ago this fall, when the last spawning took place, between 65 and 70 million eggs were collected, 80% or them being released later in the "fry" stage in the Bay of Quinte and Lake Ontario.

* * *

Continuing with the transfer of speckled trout fingerlings, Hatchery staffs continued to move some 82,000 fish from Warings Creek near Glenora to White Lake Ponds. Slightly over 125,000 fingerlings in all, will be transferred and retained at the White Lake station over winter ready for distribution in the spring.

Work on the new ponds has now been completed by the Department of Public Works and one pond is already in operation.

* * *

Rangers spent most of the week closing up headquarters and towner stations as the fire season drew to a close. Equipment is being brought in to the Chief Ranger headquarters for winter storage, and pumps, motors and other mechanical equipment, checked and tested for any repairs that may be necessary. Fire towers have also been inspected, and left in readiness for reopening next April.

Tree markings, lands inspections, timber estimates and telephone line repairs were other main activities of field staff during the week.

Lake trout are now appearing on the shoals and have started to spawn. According to Inspector Bob Shephard, a 9lb. female trout will deposit approximately 8,000 eggs, about 8% of which under natural conditions, will hatch and 2% ultimately survive. In addition to predator fish and other natural agencies which reduce the survival to a small percentage, illegal fishing at this time when parent fish are very vulnerable, is particularly serious. Notwithstanding the co-operation sought from all sportsmen during this period, overseers are taking no chances, patrolling spawning areas particularly at night when poachers are usually active. Artificial restocking, in itself, is not adequate to meet the ever increasing demand for good game fishing, and there is no question that protection of parent fish during their natural spawning period is a vital conservation "must" by all concerned.

Several complaints about dogs running at large were investigated by Conservation Officers and in one case at least a large buck deer was found on Weller's Bay beach which had apparently been driven into the water by dogs and died from exhaustion. An R.C.A.F. pilot reported the fish to Overseer, Claude Winters at Wellington, who investigated.

If it's any consolation to disappointed duck hunters, large flocks of ducks have been reported about 15 miles off shore, in Lake Ontario. Fish and Wildlife officials predict that only rough weather will break up the flocks and force the birds to find refuge in inland waters.

Zone Foresters, Edwards and Griffiths, spent most of last week judging the Ontario Boys' and Girls' Forestry Clubs, organized early this year. Sponsored by the Ontario Department of Agriculture, Agricultural Representatives organized three clubs last spring, one at the North Hastings High School, Bancroft, another at the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School, and the third at the Sydenham High School.

Points were awarded for reforestation plots, field notes, exhibits of leaves and wood, an identification competition, and various questions on forestry. Bill Edwards commended on the excellent collections made by several club members and the general all round results achieved. Club standings will be announced later.

Preparations are being made to hold a woodlot demonstration for agricultural students in the Sydenham High School. This will take place in the vicinity of Sydenham on November 4th and will feature methods of woodlot management for better yields.

DAFFY-nition:

PEDESTRIAN . . . one who, for no good reason at all, walks. It might be noted here that there is only one more primitive method of locomotion than walking, and that is crawling. If therefore you are beginning to be worried about being called a walker or crawler, you have no easy out. As you have probably seen by the papers they've been building a go-dam contraption called an "anicmowhile" for the past 50 years and many pounds have parted with their hard-earned dough to become motorists instead of pedestrians.

Now there's a bunch of fellas up the 4-lane highway who have made more money out of pedestrians than anybody we know. And when you stop to think that people have been walking (or crawling) for the past 49,999 years and all of a sudden West End Motor Sales is rightly claiming the primitive pastime—it just makes you step and think!

MORAL:

If you're tired of walking the boys to see see West End Motor Sales at Herchimer Avenue and Kingston Road. And in case you haven't heard, Rawson Bus Lines have started a new service to Parkwood Heights, and you can visit either one by riding.

Or phone 2766 and we'll pick you up. No obligation.

Martin's Summer

By Vicki Baum

"The blame or the credit mine for bringing her up as I have. I lived for many years in the tropics, you see. I brought back with me besides malaria a complete distisfaction with Europeans. I write books about it—but whoever altered men by books? Good lord, I've no delusions about the . Promotheus might of the printed word. But as for Puck, my Little Weasel, she at least has been brought up by me after my own mind. Brought up—no, my dear sir, that is just what she hasn't been. I wished to see whether the soft and primitive woman of the tropics—with all the enchantment of her simple unspoiled instincts —could not flourish over here too. Well, there you see the result. She is a delightful child, at least, find her delightful to me."

As this sounded like a question Martin replied with alacrity: "Yes, indeed." He was in excellent humor. He had had a meal.

"It may, of course, be objected that such a little girl runs a risk, a greater risk than another, when she arrives at maturity. She is already a little woman at sixteen. There is something on the alert in her now. Well, there is nothing now to rely upon but her instinct. We must rely on that. There you have it—the test of my theory. We see every day the kind of individual that comes out of a generation whose instincts are starved. You look at me with surprise, my dear sir. But surely inspiration springs from dissatisfaction with existing conditions. One may preach the religion of the body, even when one's own body is in default. Believe me, great achievements always result from deficiency." Dobbersberg smiled with a certain constraint. Martin was silent in consternation at such a flow of words.

"Are you actually a scientist, or is the title of doctor merely an ornament?"

"I am a chemist," said Martin and felt that he now had firm ground beneath his feet. "I have always been interested by the practical side of chemistry. I am weak on the theoretic side. I have always been a dabbler and an experimentalist. And I quickly found my specialty, Photo-chemistry. I was in the Oluma Works. I had had luck unfortunately. All those of the staff who had been recently appointed were dismissed owing to an amalgamation with another firm. Now there's nothing for it but to wait . . ."

"I see," said the baron politely. "And have you anything else in prospect?"

"Yes, of course. I have excellent prospects. I can't say anything about that as yet, but I am expecting a decision every day—I am expecting a letter . . .

"Indeed!" said the baron vaguely, a trifle bored. "That is splendid. Listen, there's the Little Wessel singing up there. She sings like children and Negroes. All that she experiences she makes into songs. Do you hear?"

Martin listened smiling; he could hear her voice quite distinctly. It was sweet and of a remarkable flexibility. He would have liked very much to hear the words, but they were lost in the murmur of the trees and came to him only as a succession of melodious notes. While Martin was standing thus, listening attentively with parted lips, the baron had loosed the boat from its post in the boathouse.

"I am giving you the rowing boat; only a savage Puck can get along with the stern-oar," said the baron from the landing stage. "Bring it back tomorrow. We shall be delighted to see you whenever you like to come."

Martin waved a farewell in the singer's direction, through the clear evening air, and crept into the boat. A moment later the moonlight fell in drops at each stroke of the oars into the transparent water of the lake.

Thus ended that remarkable evening on which Martin had his first boi'meal at Frauensee.

Frau Mayreder, the gloriously beyond belief—glowing summer days all blue and gold. All the mountain tops stood out sharp and clear round the lake, the Iron Door, the Hoher and Breithorn, the Honey-pot, the High wall. Once again they were to be seen below in the water, looking as if they were taking a bath. Martin was out by six and had tested the temperature of the water—16 degrees centigrade. He went round to the front near the office and chalked up 19 degrees C. in huge figures on the blackboard. With a little grunt at his own picture and its accompanying placard by the entrance, he went off to his work. Mats, late a foundling of the workhouse and now promoted to an official of the bathing establishment, was sweeping the sand with a stiff birch besom. The Saxon gentleman was there already taking a sun bath in his striped bathing drawers. He was always the first to appear and the last to go, for he wished to make full use of his season ticket during the fine weather.

There were people already lying on the beach, playing ball or doing physical exercises. Frau Pauline Mayreder, who weighed six pounds too much, was doing her exercises with zest. She was bending from the waist without much success; she was swinging her arms, and undulating inwards and outwards at the hips in pursuance of a complicated system. She lay on the ground and tried to get her legs over her head. This came to no good, and she went purple from her exertions, so she sat down on the sand with her legs stuck out straight in front of her like a baby. Martin, as he passed raised one fair eyebrow. Frau Mayreder remained seated where she was and contemplated Martin's back view.

A few intrepid swimmers were already in the water. For those who not swim there was a space marked out by flags, and these Martin had to move daily according to the level of the water. From here was to be heard a continual shouting and bawling. Martin was kept in a constant state of irritation by this little colony of non-swimmers. Every five minutes he went along with an anxious face to see if one of these tadpoles were drowning.

The gangway from which he gave lessons was carried on posts out into the lake, and was always besieged by inquisitive onlookers who wished to see the handsome new swimming instructor. Between his knees Martin gripped his pole, and at the end of it one unhappy beginner after another bobbed about in the water, while Martin gave the time: "One—two—three. One—two—three." These lessons were not the least of the benefits that the fine weather brought him, and he was beginning to lose count of them. His passed his arm over his perspiring brow and tried to reckon up how many times over he had learned his thirty gross chen.

Martin went up to Matz, who was collecting the dirty towels. "Matz" he said, "run along sharp to the post office and ask if there's anything for me." Matz was off like a shot. Three times every day he was sent to the post; he was used to that.

On the way back to his gangway he ran the gantlet of all eyes and at the point there was a view of the tennis courts he stopped for a moment with a smile on his face at once wistful and tense. A hard single was in progress between two athletic young men one fair and the other sleek and dark. An elderly man in a striped blazer sat aloft on a high seat with a rack across his knees, and called out the score. He called the fair-haired player Bobby, familiarly and without ceremony. The other, whose play was not so good, he addressed more distantly as "count." Martin looked on until the fair-haired fellow had won the game. It was the same young man whom Martin had encountered on the promenade the day he arrived when he was lying on his stomach.

Martin strolled on over the sand with a fleeting thought of brown eyes and slender knees. He went over to the telescope and focused it until he got the bathing hut of the Dobbersberge in the wavering centre of the lens, and there on the other side sat Puck on the springboard — so far away, but in the telescope so close and so distinct. She was wearing a loose bright red frock and she was dangling her legs. She looked like a cherry or a strawberry hanging from the bushes over the water. Martin felt he could taste strawberries as he looked at her and he smiled. He fancied he must be a little in love with Puck, and felt inclined to cultivate this little seedling of emotion; it was so pleasant and it gave one a purpose in life days and a purpose to his evenings. For, after all, it was nicer to do the regular practice swim across the lake for a girl's sake and not just for the dinner that came of it. . .

Herr Strudl's broad shadow was thrown across the sand. "Herr Martin, you are attending to business," he said, with as much politeness as he could muster for a sportsman. Martin flushed with anger and went along to the gangway where Matz was already waiting for him.

"No letter?"

"Nothing!"

Martin sighed.

The gangway was crowded with people, and the water ran down from their bathing costumes onto the planks. The sun was blazing. Martin's brow was as knit with wrinkles that he looklike a worried dachshund.

Politburo Leader Says War Would End Capitalism

32nd Anniversary of 1917 Russian Revolution Marked

By EDDIE GILMORE

Moscow, Nov. 7—(AP)—Russia's Red Army today led celebrations marking the 32nd anniversary of their 1917 revolution. Top political and military chiefs accused the United States of fomenting a new blood bath of war designed to make the world an American colony.

The main attack was made Sunday night by Georgi M. Malenkov, Communist politburo member, who claimed that such a war would mean an end to Capitalism in the world.

It was echoed today by Marshal Alexander M. Vasilevsky, Minister of the Soviet armed forces, at the spectacular and traditional military ceremonies in Moscow's historic red square. Vasilevsky spoke briefly from atop the tomb where Lenin, founder of revolution's chief hero, Nikolai Lenin, lies in state in a glass coffin.

Vasilevsky reviewed thousands of Russian foot soldiers, tanks and motorized weapons streaming for hours through Red Square. The goose-stepping troops and marching soldiers was led by Premier Stalin's deputy Defence Minister, Marshal Rokossovsky of Poland.

Malenkov made his charges at the United States Sunday night as the principal speaker in ceremonies at the Bolshoi Theatre, inaugurating the anniversary celebration. He charged the United States was plotting "to enslave the entire world."

Malenkov vigorously said that the Soviets "do not want war and we shall do everything possible to avert it."

"In the hands of the Imperialists," he said, "atomic energy is a means for the production of mass weapons, a means of intimidation, an instrument of blackmail and coercion."

THREE CHILDREN LOSE THEIR LIVES WHEN HOME BURNS

Mother Escapes From Window Although Severely Burned

Jonquiere, Que., Nov. 7 — (CP) — Three children lost their lives Saturday when fire believed to have been caused by an overheated stovepipe swept the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Edmond Lessard in the parish of Ste. Marie De Jonquiere.

Victims were: Georges Lessard, five; Luc Lessard, three, and Germain Lessard, three weeks.

Their mother escaped from a second-storey window with a fourth child, Marcelin, seven. Mrs. Lessard was severely burned.

The fire broke out in the Saguenay district home shortly after Mrs. Lessard had prepared breakfast for her husband who then set out for work.

Provincial Police said Mrs. Lessard went back to bed and was awakened by the smoke. Somehow she attempted to go downstairs but fire blocked her path.

Mrs. Lessard and Marcelin were able to break through an upstairs window, leap to a shed roof and descend to the ground by a ladder brought by a neighbor's boy.

The boy helped Mrs. Lessard out the window and then tried unsuccessfully to enter the house to rescue the three trapped children.

Firemen said they believed the kitchen stovepipe caught fire and started the blaze.

British Warship Is Standing by In Yangste River

Hong Kong, Nov. 7 — (Reuters) — A British warship was standing by off the Yangtze river mouth today as the communist-led British freighter Tainan, outward bound from communist-held Shanghai, negotiated with a Chinese nationalist warship.

The nationalist warship, blockading the communist port, was reported by a spokesman in Taipeh she would be released only on condition the Tainan left Shanghai and discharged her cargo.

The Tainan, on her way to Hong Kong, anchored at midnight—lack resulted.

A British naval spokesman in Hong Kong today admitted that a Royal Naval ship was present but declined to comment.

A delayed dispatch from the Nationalist base in Chusan Islands quoted Chinese Naval commander Ni Yun Tu as saying that the British frigate Alacrity on Saturday defied a national warning to "keep outside China's sea territorial waters."

The report said Alacrity was then waiting to escort the Tainan from the mouth of the Yangtze.

Ni Yue Si had given an assurance that the Tainan would not be safe but asked the British warship to "keep off."

The Alacrity's captain was reported as replying:

"I cannot think that a area outside your territorial waters and shall consider myself free to move as I like."

SAYS HE WAS BEATEN AND ROBBED BY YOUTHS

Toronto, Nov. 07 — (CP) — Alex Bernard, 47, told police he was beaten and robbed of $145 early today by five youths who were promised to take him to a bootlegger. Bernard said the youths, whom he met in a west-end beer room, took him into a lane and hit him on the head with a bottle.

Missionary and Two Eskimos Lost in North

Winnipeg, Nov. 7. (CP) — Army authorities said today a missionary and two Eskimos are missing in the Churchill region on the Western shore of Hudson Bay.

Army units at Churchill are standing by pending a call for search aircraft, they said.

Officials said the missionary, whose surname is believed to be Lemoine, left Churchill and has been unreported since Oct. 30.

RCAF authorities in Winnipeg said Dakota search plane might be rushed from Winnipeg to the Churchill area to assist in the search. A veteran Arctic civilian pilot, Ernest Vaughan Gillis, has been out looking for the three missing persons.

Eskimo Point is about 170 miles north of Churchill.

Engineer Claims Skilled Iron Workers Active in America Before Columbus

Washington, Nov. 7 (AP)—Evidence that people skilled in iron working lived in America hundreds of years before Columbus arrival was claimed today by A. R. Mallery, Washington engineer.

Metallurgists of the National Bureau of Standards and Archaeologists of the Smithsonian Institution said they could not yet have confirm nor discount Mallery's claims at this time.

It is Mallery's contention that people "from the Scandinavian countries and the Mediterranean" came to America.

Claiming evidence of the existence of an iron-working people in pre-Columbian times in Ohio, Mallery says it is his belief that they were wiped out by the same "Black Death" plague that scourged Europe in the 14th century.

For one thing, he says he has discovered near Clarksville, Va., an ancient iron-smelting furnace which he estimates was constructed "some time before the year 1 A.D."

RUSSIAN MARSHAL MOVES TO POLAND AS ARMY HEAD

Rokossovsky to Head All Defence Plans

Warsaw, Nov. 7 — (AP) — Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky has left his post as head of one of Russia's major armies to become Poland's Minister of National Defence and Marshal of the Polish armies.

His appointment was announced here today after Moscow radio revealed that Rokossovsky, a native of Poland, had been released from red army service for duty with the Polish Army.

The 52-year-old Rokossovsky has been chief of the Soviet Northern Group, with headquarters in Legnica in Poland.

Rokossovsky also will be appointed to the important Council of State — a post expected to give him a strong voice in government as well as military affairs of this Soviet - orbit country.

Rokossovsky commanded one of the Soviet Army groups that liberated Warsaw.

A Polish government communique said President Boleslaw Beirut "in view of the fact that Marshal Rokossovsky is a Pole and that he is very popular with the Polish people, has requested Russia to make him available for Polish service."

Russia since the war has assisted in establishing and training all Polish armed forces.

The Polish government announced that Marshal Michal Zymierski, Minister retiring Minister of National Defence, had requested President Bierut to allow him to resign "in connection with new tasks and a new state function entrusted to me."

The nature of Zymierski's new duties was not announced.

Says Relations Industry, Workers Best in History

Toronto, Nov. 7 — (CP) — A. R. Mosher, president of the Canadian Congress of Labor, said today that Canada's industrial pioneers can be proud that present relations between industry and organized workers are the best in history.

In an address prepared for delivery to the Canadian Club, Mr. Mosher outlined Canada's Labor movement and said it should point to the average citizen.

"It is doubtful whether the relations between employers and organized workers have ever been better in any country than Canada than they are today," he said. "Of course, there can be no assurance that labor disputes will not occur in future, but . . . the significant improvement in labor relationships is due to the development on a greater sense of responsibility on the part of the labor movement as well as a better understanding . . . on the part of the employers . . .

McGregor Report Says 11 Firms Sought to Control Prices of Flour, Rolled Oats, Millfeeds

Ottawa, Nov. 7—(CP)—F. A. McGregor, resigning combines investigation chief, today accused 11 firms of being parties to a combine which "sought to control prices" of flour, rolled oats, millfeeds and course grains in every province from 1936 to 1945.

"During many periods" said the controversially-retired official in the Commons by Justice Minister Garson, "agreements to maintain price uniformity have been completely effective."

The RCMP record report that prompted Mr. McGregor's resignation charges that "the evidence in the files" activities "is a record of a series of agreements which were broken at will" only to be followed by renewals of or modifications designed to bring the parties back into an agreement".

The report was submitted to the government Dec. 29, 1948.

Mr. Garson said Friday the 11 companies had been prosecuted.

Mr. McGregor said the firms were members of the association of the Canadian National Millers Association. He listed them as:

Lake of the Woods Milling Company, Ltd., Montreal.

Quaker Oats Company, Ltd., Montreal.

Lawrence Flour Mills Company Ltd., Montreal.

A Polish government communique said President Boleslaw Beirut "in view of the fact that Marshal Rokossovsky is a Pole and that he is very popular with the Polish people, has requested Russia to make him available for Polish service."

McDonald and Robb Ltd., Valleyfield, Que.

Quaker Oats Company of Canada, Peterborough.

Lakeside Milling Company Ltd., Toronto.

Maple Leaf Milling Company Ltd., Toronto.

Purity Flour Mills Ltd., Toronto.

Robin Hood Flour Mills Ltd., Moose Jaw, Sask.

Ellison Milling and Elevator Company Ltd., Lethbridge, Alta.

Western Canada Flour Milling Company Ltd., New Westminster, B.C.

Government "withholding" of the report for 10 months was one of the main grounds for the resignation of Mr. McGregor as Canada's anti-monopoly-chief. He also said there were "differences of opinion on basic policy" over the report.

Mr. Garson said Friday facts given by Donald Gordon, wartime head of the Prices Board, would seem to indicate that the government should not prosecute the industry under the combines act in respect of matters" arising while it was under Prices Board control.

Mr. Gordon said the uniform level of a September, 1947, price rise by the industry was in line with suggestions by K. W. Taylor, Mr. Gordon's successor as Prices Board head.

Mr. McGregor said he recognized that the firms "greatly assisted" the wartime board at a "clearing house" for problems affecting the industry, but he took exception "to the same practice with which exception is taken with regard to cartels, that of agreements to remove competition in price."

Canada's Gain in Population Factor in Current Prosperity

By FORBES RHUDE
(Canadian Press Business Editor)

When you are looking for reasons why conditions have remained so generally good in Canada this year, give a thought to increase in population.

Only a few years ago Canada was a country of 11,500,000, and not so many years before that 9,000,000, or 7,000,000. Now we seem to have breezed through the 13,000,000 mark almost without realizing it, and here we are at an estimated 14,000,000, with the year's fast pace towards 14,000,000.

That makes a big difference in the demand for bread and butter, shoes and stockings, suits, automobiles, coats and sweaters, the machinery needed to make them; and for employment of people.

For all that prosperity is, is having enough of these material things for one another, and seeing that they can exchange them through the channels of trade, of business and trade.

True, population alone doesn't mean much. It wouldn't mean much to put 13,000,000 Chinese in Canada, probably that more people would be hungry.

When 1951 census time rolls around, Canada will have made the greatest population gain of any decade in her history.

It comes at a strategic time, at a time when her resources are in demand, a c when, unless world economic conditions go to pieces, they will remain in at least considerable demand. It comes at a time when Canada is embarked upon a number of expansions that are not likely to be halted even if world conditions do deteriorate.

And under the impetus of the good conditions at the end of the war, the increased population is in itself a means of softening the blows of a reasonable amount of set-backs.

The United States for years was able to be virtually a self-supporting economic unit because of its enormous power of her own large and growing population. Only recently is it going way from being in such a self-sufficient position, but 13,000,000 more people in Canada's resources at their command will give her better chance of riding out storms than would the smaller Canadian populations of earlier years.

The most notable previous population increase was in 1901-11, which played a big part in opening up the west agriculturally. The increase of this period corresponds with the beginning of industrial greatness.

Baldwin Sought Little Advice Before Edward's Abdication

By DON GILBERT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 7. (CP)— The late Earl Baldwin asked the Archbishop of Canterbury's advice only once during the crisis which culminated in the abdication of King Edward VIII.

This was disclosed today with the publication of Alan Prince of Lockhart's biography of the late Archbishop Gordon Lang who died in 1945.

The late Primate's diary of the abdication crisis was written the Prime Minister on Dec. 5, 1936—the day King Edward quit the throne and became the Duke of Windsor—asked the Archbishop's advice. Lang said no, he proposal be make "morganatic" the marriage with Mrs. Wallis Simpson.

Under this proposal the King's wife would not have been crowned. She would have had the status of a queen Both Baldwin and Lang said no.

The Primate was aware of Edward's attachment for Mrs. Simpson before the Prince of Wales. In 1935, the Primate had a "long and intimate" talk" on the matter with Edward's father, the late King George V.

Later when Edward became Parliamentary Association.

WORKER'S WIFE CONFESSES BABY KIDNAPPING HOAX

Tells Inquest Child Died When Dropped

Utica, N. Y., Nov. 7 — (AP) — A remorse - stricken mother has confessed that her fix-weeks-old son was killed in a fall from her arms and that her story of kidnapping was "made up" out of fear of what her husband would say.

"I dropped my baby," Mrs. Stella Komorek blurted out at a coroner's inquest Sunday night.

The sobbing admission from the plump, 25-year-old mill worker's wife came 11 hours after the body of her son, Stephen, was found in a millpond, 300 yards from the modest Komorek home in nearby Marcy.

Coroner Preston R. Clark gave a verdict of accidental death. Authorities said no charge would be placed against Mrs. Komorek.

During hours of steady questioning by police Sunday, she broke down to her story that the infant was snatched from its bassinet in the kitchen late Friday night by a strange man.

But under grill by the coroner's inquest, she broke almost at once.

"Now, Stella, tell us what happened," Dr. Clark said to her.

"I dropped the baby," Mrs. Komorek blurted out. "He wiggled and I dropped him. He was feeding him. He fell on his head. His eyes rolled back and he was dead."

Says Soviet Wants To Know What U.S. Would Do

New York, Nov. 7 (CP)—Russian diplomats have been told by negotiating diplomats of other countries as to United States intentions in case of a Russian or Satellite invasion of Yugoslavia, the New York Times says today in a dispatch from Berne, Switzerland.

The questioning of persons believed by the Russians to be informed on United States policies reached its peak just before the statement of Dean Acheson, United States Secretary of State, that the United States would halt the sweep of the Red Army Satellite in the event of aggression, the Times story says.

The Times correspondent adds: "That, as one diplomatic source here (in Berne) said, is what the Russians wanted to know. But Soviet curiosity has not been very satisfied and the probings continue."

Toronto, Nov. 7 — (CP) — Three men from London, Ont., were arrested here Sunday and booked on charges of breaking and entering and theft at Hagersville, Ont., near Hamilton, earlier.

Harold Henderson, 21, Cliff Handley, 40, and Theodore Becker, 36, were held in police cell car-chase through city streets.

Police said they found a quantity of cigarets, radio and other loot reported stolen from the Hagersville garage.

Plane, Missing 4 Days Found, Two Passengers Dead

Craft Carrying 5 Persons Crashed 100 Mi. From Rouyn

Trenton, Nov. 7 — (CP) —The R.C.A.F. here reported today that an airplane with five persons aboard missing since Nov. 3 was located at 12:10 p.m. EST today 100 miles northeast of Rouyn, Que. First reports said two of the plane's occupants were dead, two injured, and the fifth uninjured.

An air force official said the missing plane was located by an R.C.A.F. Dakota from Trenton. The Dakota's crew located the plane after first seeing two persons walking along the ground carrying a wooden panel on which was written the letters "SOS."

A man, parachuted into the area, subsequently found the missing plane and made a report on its occupants.

The plane, with pilot Frank Hawkridge and mechanic Elmer Potts, of Gold Belt Air Service as the crew, was bringing prospectors out of the north before the final freeze-up.

The airline officials said there were four or five passengers but they had no way of knowing their identity because Hawkridge had left Noranda only a few hours before leaving the Lake Chibougamau for Rouyn.

Both crew members are from Rouyn, Que.

The plane left here Tuesday for Lake Chibougamau, 300 miles to the northeast.

It landed at Bachelor Lake, about 110 miles away, on its way back and took off about 7.30 a.m. Thursday.

Officials at Bachelor Lake reported the plane was expected to stop about 30 miles from there to pick up another man.

That was the last time the craft was seen or heard.

Officials said the plane was equipped with a radio but it was possible that the radio might not be heard here if it were damaged in a crash-landing over a wilderness area like Lake Mistassini.

EAT CHEAPLY AT SCHOOL

Palmerston, Nov. 7 — (CP) — Parents of this Wellington county community will be glad to know they can eat as cheaply at school as at home. Pupils of the local high school can get a basic lunch, including stew and tea for 15 cents. They can also ask for 10 cents. A half-pint of milk can be bought for three cents.

Hundreds Kiss it at 25 Cents a Smack, But is it Chip Off Old Blarney Stone?

San Francisco, Nov. 7. (AP) — Hundreds kissed it at 25 cents a smack, but the question is: what was it?

The 15-pound chunk of limestone was flown here from Ireland with advance publicity that it was a chip off the real Blarney Stone. You know, the stone that gives the gift of the gift of gab. Or so they say.

It was displayed early Sunday shortly after a St. Mary's Church festival crowd had paid $472 for the privilege of smearing it with lipstick. Women, the custodians of the stone, were by far the best customers.

But only minutes after its display began, the stone's origin was challenged.

James Cumming, past president of the United Irish Society and custodian of the stone, groaned: "The worst thing is that the London Daily Mail's New York correspondent called and said the stone was a phoney. It is."

With that Cummins said he has documentary evidence that it was the real thing—still as far as he is concerned.

A friend of mine—Pat Collins —who lives in Cork, sent it and sent me it was from Blarney Castle."

But the cops were inclined to view the whole case—Blarney Stone and disappearance — with suspicion.

The City Health Inspector, Dr. J. C. Geiger, had frowned on the whole thing from the start. Such mass kissing, he said was unsanitary—germ spreading.

Fire Chief Vance Speaks on Dept. At Y's Men's Club

In an interesting and informative review of the development of the local fire department, Chief Gerald Vance addressed the Y's Men's Club at their regular weekly meeting in the Y.M.C.A. To those who have felt that the fireman's life is one of loafing, he brought to the attention of his audience the numerous calls made on the department for service beyond fire fighting. "The fireman must always be ready for any call; to rescue a cat, to save a life by a pulmotor or to aid in numerous ways for the welfare of the citizens and the community," he said.

The modern fire department's first job is the prevention of fires, the Chief asserted. Sometimes when the fire marshal issues orders to clean up property people do not willingly co-operate, he added. His first responsibility is the protection of property, however, and he must do everything possible to carry out this duty, he stated.

Reviews Department

Looking back on the early days of the department, Chief Vance related a few events of interest. In 1916 there were 10 men, and the Chief whose 24 hour duty was paid for at the liberal rate of $40.00 a month. A double shift with 12 men was inaugurated in 1921 and the first motorized equipment was procured. The first ladder-truck, which is still in use, was introduced in 1928. In 1928 fire-men went on a six-day week and the personnel was increased to 19 men and the Chief. After the death of Chief Brown in the Cobalt Lock fire of 1929, Chief Lynch succeeded and remained till 1946.

A pumper was added to the equipment in 1933, Chief Vance continued. In 1944, three additional pieces of apparatus were added and the personnel numbered 23 men and the Chief. In 1946 another pumper was purchased along with a 75 foot aerial ladder a new fire hall was opened and the department was increased by four men.

Shows Increase in Calls

The increased calls for service of the department was well illustrated by the speaker, when he pointed out that in 1916 there were 37 alarms and in 1948 there were 348 alarms and this number had been exceeded by September 1 in 1949. The department has the responsibility of protecting 50 million dollars worth of property. The strength of the department at 30 men requires the co-operation of all citizens, Chief Vance stated, if the protection is to be adequate. He pointed out that a small fire department cannot be expected to do the work of a large department. There was a need for a new hall in the east-end to handle fires on Front Street. Citizens could also help by more wide consideration in the parking of cars which constituted a great fire hazard.

Another fire hazard, the Chief Chief pointed out, was the accumulation of rubbish which constituted a moderate citizens could prevent. The department has also been overworked hard to educate the citizens during fire prevention week, a campaign "to teach property to conduct fire drills in schools, to inspect fire escapes and the fire department equipment, particularly the fire alarm system, to be believed was the finest in Canada, and by sponsoring an essay contest on fire prevention." Last year 1,200 essays, all 1200 essays were submitted.

The annual Remembrance Day function on an annual appropriation of $47,500 was provided last year for new equipment, he stated.

The speaker was introduced by Wilfred Richardson and received a hearty vote of thanks from Rose Booth.

At the next executive meeting called by President Gerry Hyde, the final details of Radio Auction for children will be worked out and piloted. All merchandise for auction will be reported by this time.

Poppy Day Receipts Total $1,044.87

Poppy Day receipts on Saturday totalled $1,044.87, it was announced today by officials of the local Canadian Legion poppy fund drive who expressed their appreciation to the many poppy salesmen and saleslgirls who assisted in making the day a success.

Poppy fund officials expressed their satisfaction with the results of the day considering the inclement weather. Receipts from the sale of poppies this year were slightly over $250 under that of last year it was stated. Sales of wreaths this year amounted to approximately $2,000, which is a slight addition to the poppy sales. Figures in both instances are gross.

Net-proceeds from the sale of poppies and wreaths is put into a fund for the emergency relief of local war veterans and their families.

POLICE BULLETIN

Only routine matters occupied the attention of police officers over the weekend.

There were several minor accidents amounting to little more than fender clashes with no personal injury reported.

Several young boys in the vicinity of Victoria Avenue, and MacDonald Ave., were reported to be using a rifle on Sunday afternoon. When police arrived on the scene they had apparently moved out of the district.

Saturday afternoon a Sidney township resident was walking along the sidewalk when a dog owned by a Front Street apartment resident sprang at his trouser leg in his teeth and ripped the fabric. The dog's teeth apparently left scratches on the leg, and the mere cloth but police said the skin was not broken. The dog's owner agreed to pay damages.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 7, (CP) —Prices pushed upwards as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Western oils were strong, continuing Friday's advances, in climbing to the highest average level since 1937.

Industrials slowly gained fractions, tending to slip slightly under profit- taking in mid-session. Base metals advanced to the highest point in 12 years but weakened at the late-way mark. Senior and junior gold producers showed a wide list of moderate advances.

Volume for the first three hours was 763,000 shares, about 156,000 shares more than Saturday's similar period.

Advances ranged up to 25 cents in Western oils with Atlantic Oil Pacific Petroleum and Calmont selling at new tops.

Imperial Oil featured the industrial board, advancing to a new high at 23 1-2. The advance in Imperial and in Western oil stocks began Friday following news of a new Imperial well, indicating a possible oil pool near Edmonton, Alta.

Norands gained 7-8 at 69 1-2 in the base metal list. Canmont, East Sullivan and United Keno Hill' slipped.

Reds Dominate Almost Third Of the Globe

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

This is the 32nd anniversary of the Bolshevist revolution which overthrew the Czarist government and established a Red regime which in the succeeding generation has extended its domination to almost a third of the globe.

It is one of history's most amazing conquests. Not only has Russia created the huge Red bloc of countries which owe allegiance to Moscow, but agents have penetrated even the uncivilized parts of the world to establish Bolshevist cells which pledge their fealty to Moscow.

The chief weapons employed in this "world revolution" have been ideological persuasion and outright force, of these the ideological method has been responsible for most of the success. The Second World War of course assisted greatly, since numerous countries both in Asia and Europe were occupied by Soviet troops, thereby establishing immediate Russian control.

Britain's prime Minister Attlee adds another weapon which mustn't be overlooked. He says Russia is using its United Nations veto as an "instrument of power politics and for furthering the imperialistic aims" of the Soviet Union.

The Prime Minister gave Czechoslovakia as "a shining example of democratic practice between the wars" which has now been "reduced to the status of such countries as Bulgaria, Poland and Romania, which have never had much more than a / cade of democracy."

A Model

Czechoslovakia does indeed provide an excellent example of how Bolshevism works. The Czechoslovakia does indeed provide an excellent example of how Bolshevism works. The Czechoslovakia which was created at the end of the First World War was thriving, democratic concern with an enlightened and peace-minded population.

Then came the Second World War and Russian military occupation, toward the close of the conf' Since that time the country has been largely Sovietized.

Regimentation of the public begrn immediately. Early in October arrests of small business men and other middle class elements a year began with the apparent idea of wiping out the middle class.

The government cracked down heavily on the activities of the Catholic church. The government has taken control of all church administrative, financial and appointive affairs.

In this manner has Czechoslovakia been made an unwilling member of the Soviet bloc. The consuming of the sturdy little country is typical of Bolshevist methods which have operated with efficiency in so many other countries.

Mother Slashes Throats of Four Small Children

Sterling, Ill., Nov. 7—(AP)—A 35-year-old mother said Sunday night she slashed the throats of her four small children because a "saint kept telling me to do it." The woman, Mrs. James Monaghan, made the statement at a hearing in which she was adjudged insane within three hours after her husband found her hacking one of the children.

Hospital attendants said all the children are expected to recover. They are Mary Ellen, two months; Richard, 20 months; Michael, three and James four.

Mrs. Monahan still wore the blouse and slacks splattered with the blood of her babies when she left the special jury hearing and was taken to a state hospital.

At the hearing, she asked whether the children were still alive. Assured they were, she said "it would be terrible—a disgrace—for them to go through life with scars."

Her husband, a steelworker, testified that Mrs. Monahan had not been well since the birth of their last baby.

He was working in a shed at the rear of their three room home, he said, when Mrs. Monahan began slashing the children with a knife. He stated that when she finished his work and returned to the house, Mrs. Monahan had James sprawled on a kitchen table and was slashing at his throat.

Monahan said Mrs wife also attempted to cut her own throat but inflicted only a minor scratch.

Kiel Ships Scrap From Cemetary of Sunken Craft

Kiel, Nov. 7 (Reuters) Kiel, one of Germany's great wartime shipping centres, today is the Baltic's principal harbor for exporting scrap.

Monthly shipments often reach 20,000 tons of scrap, much of it obtained from salvaged wrecks taken from the "cemetery." By the end of August a total of nearly 350,000 tons of scrap had been sent abroad from Kiel, most of it to Britain.

When the war ended in May, 1945, some 500 submerged wrecks totalling nearly 1,000,000 tons were scattered in the fjords and channels of the Western Baltic, between Lubeck and the Danish border.

Among them were 234 German submarines. In the former German naval harbor at Kiel alone, there were 40 submarines, most-sunk by their own crews to avoid their capture by British forces.

Many submarines have now been raised, generally by lifting them under water to Kiel where they were dragged to a slipway and broken up.

Some Repaired

Although most of these vessels from the bottom of the sea are broken up for scrap, some have been repaired. In some cases the engines, machinery and valuable equipment have been salvaged.

Many vessels have been patched up and towed to Britain for breaking up, the largest being the 23,000-ton former luxury liner, New York.

The presence of so many wrecks still littering the approaches of the German Baltic harbors is a constant danger to shipping.

The Dutch motorship, Pinguin, struck a wreck near the Kiel lightship and sank in 10 minutes, Sept. 16. The Swedish motorship, Mira, struck the wreck of the Goelsenau off Falster, Oct. 4, and although she did not sink, two of her crew were killed.

With much difficulty channels have been swept through the minefields to the harbors, but these are only about 1½ miles broad and are strewn with wrecks.

Salvaging of the wrecks has not been accomplished without loss of life. Five German divers were drowned last year in Kiel Bay alone. Sixty divers are regularly employed in Kiel on the laborious and dangerous work of repairing the sunken ships for salvage.

Gnr. A. McKenna Most Proficient Soldier in Regt.

The annual awards in the form of cash prizes were presented by Major Bert Frink at the regular parade of the 9th Anti-Tank Regt. RCA held last week. Gnr. A. McKenna, received the award for the most proficient soldier on parade selected by a point system throughout the year by R.S.M. Lacey. Gnr. A. Price received the cash prize for the man making the most progress in the M/C class as selected by A & T Instructor Sgt; J. Harper.

It was announced by Major Frink that in addition to the regular awards next year would see presentations also to the men making the most progress in the wireless and gunnery classes respectively.

Following the presentations the regiment was dismissed and remainder of the evening spent on the newly reconditioned bowling alleys in the Armories. The gunners of the 32nd Battery eked out a close verdict over the 34th Battery and now await the winners of the sergeants' mess and officers' mess series for the regimental championship.

Regimental Sports Officer Captain Clarke has lined up an interesting sports program for winter season with each Thursday devoted to a sport parade. Following the bowling series champions will be declared in volley ball, basketball, badminton and as soon as equipment is available floor hockey.

With specialist classes having commenced on the first of November new recruits are most welcome and any young men wishing to associate themselves with the artillery the senior branch of the army and able to come up to the high standards would be made most welcome, it was stated today by Major Frink. Training is conducted in the local armories on Tuesday and Thursday evenings commencing at 7.45 p.m.

MCGREGOR

The report says:

"In the war years regulations established maximum levels beyond which prices could not be increased. In this period concerted efforts were made to prevent competition by securing agreement as to prices which the members would follow. Such joint action was neither required nor sanctioned by the Prices Board or any government agency. Board policy was definitely directed to the maintenance of competitive conditions with many diverse sellers."

The report added that the firms say the nature of their operations "requires heavy capital investments, resulting in relatively inflexible overhead costs and that the determination of prices by independent action of individual companies would result in price wars leading to a state of chaos in the industry."

But, Mr. McGregor says, such considerations were placed before the royal commission on price spreads in 1935—A year before the period encompassed in the report and a time when the milling industry was "in extreme difficulty." The commission had reported that the public interest would be best served "if price competition if maintained between milling companies".

COMING CHANGES IN EDUCATION

The course of education in the schools of Ontario is not going to be what it has been. That can be seen in the radical change which has been planned in the system of education. The division into elementary and high schools is to disappear and with them naturally entrance examinations will be dropped. Changes will also be made in the curricula and in the teaching methods according to Education Minister Dana Porter.

Thirteen grades now make up the present setup of education and these are to be reorganized into four divisions, primary, junior, intermediate and senior. There will be no longer the dividing line between primary and secondary schools.

The statement issued by the Minister of Education contains the remark that there will be special changes in various school subjects to meet the changing needs and conditions of education in a changing world.

One of the points noted by the Minister is that some 46 per cent of Ontario students leave school early, that is, before they reach the age of sixteen. The education of the future is therefore to provide a course that is ample so that if a boy leaves school at the age of sixteen he will have had a well-rounded course and be able to feel that his work in school has been a success instead of a failure, the Minister of Education says.

This aim is to provide for pupils who will be leaving at the age of sixteen or so "to enter business and industry."

One of the objects is to break down the rigid grade limits and it is hoped that "much of the wastage at present resulting from retardation will be avoided," Mr. Porter stated.

Mr. Porter noted that the changes to be made will be spread over a few years so as to avoid those abrupt changes which might otherwise develop. Accordingly changes of a radical nature will be tried out with small groups before they are generally introduced.

The disappearance of the entrance examination is designed to break down what has been looked upon as an arbitrary break between the grades eight and nine which "prevents proper articulation between the elementary and secondary levels."

Changes in methods of education are not surprising in an age which is witnessing changes of the greatest importance. For a time it has been felt that the break between primary and secondary education as hitherto by the entrance examination will be removed. For a while this examination has been losing importance as not a large number write on entrance subjects.

Relief from rigid regimentation is also one of the aims of the progressive system of education.

The program of change is one that will be watched with the closest attention by parents and others.

WELL WORTH IT

Set down among the most thoughtful of expressions that sentence — more often spoken mentally than aloud —"It was well worth it." The situation is as follows: All night long there was gay laughter, and dancing to the tune of a piper. It now is morning. The piper must be paid, and time and a half for overtime. While reaching for the billfold, there is a moment to review the evidence, weighing it in the balance, the night against the morning. If the verdict is heavily in favor of the dance, the response is spoken with gusto and good cheer. If the expression is spoken with gusto and slightly away from the dance, it is spoken persuasively and in an effort at self-reassurance. In either case, it is a product of consideration and of thought, and is not one of those sentences thrown together from a series of hollow sounds. There is nothing hollow about the ratio between pleasure and payment.—New York Times.

THAT NICE OLD MAN

When I was eight or nine or ten
I knew a lot of nice old men
Who lived along our shady street
And spoke to me whene'er we'd meet.

Though of their years I wasn't told,
I thought of them as very old;
For they were strong and straight and tall
And I was only ten and small.

I thought, to stop with boys to chat,
Wear trousers and a derby hat
And own a watch and chain of gold
That every grown-up must be old.

Today I know, though somewhat slow,
One "nice old man" was thirty-eight.
And there was one who lived next door
Whose age was only forty-four.

All little boys of ten, or so,
as I,
Will live to learn, as time goes by,
That "nice old man" who lives next door
Today is only forty-four.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

A lady complained to me that she would have to get her eyes examined.

"In church," she said, "I can no longer see the choir."

"Can you hear them?" I asked before I could recollect my manners. For there are a great many people in the world who honestly do like to watch a church choir singing dance faces. On the other hand there are a great many people who myself whose singing life has been more or less wrecked by the choir. When I was very small I was always taken to a Presbyterian church which had a choir that was utterly comic. When I think of them now, I get a pain in the stomach. There was not an un-comic fact in the whole outfit. The tenor was a fat man with a large, up-lifted grey beard. The bass turned sideways when he sang, in an attempt never quite complete, to conceal the fact that to get his low notes he had to sing out of the side of his mouth, from under a drooping moustache that waggled. The soprano were lean, gape-mouthed, awful. The contralto who did solos, quivered like custard and jelly every time she reached for a note. As a child, I got spanked for snorting and giggling in church. I was always trying to fasten it. A choir, even now always gives me that pain in the jaws you get from trying to keep a straight face.

In the Anglican church I found the choir stands sideways to you, and you see, as a rule it is the end man or lady. That is not too bad. In the Catholic church, I was delighted to discover that the cathedral choir is in a gallery. I like the choir church, unseen unless you see somebody's head bob back and forth around. Being a newspaperman I have never been free to consider my worship in church. Some of us are in duty bound to listen. The worship of our fellow-citizens; and some strange things I have seen. But choirs always give me a pain somewhere in my jaws, my stomach, somewhere. Personally, I love singing. But I hate to see it being done. It is time those who sing should know that some of us just can't bear the sight of it. As kids we got off on the wrong foot.

Dead Hobo King Rests in Richest Bed He Ever Knew

New York, Nov. 7 — (AP) — Dan O'Brien, who called himself "The King of the Hoboes", had the kind of funeral he probably would have wanted.

And today he sleeps in a satin-lined casket in a pretty little cemetery that is a richer bed than he knew during his 90 years.

Dan died last week at New York's Bellevue Hospital — broke, as usual.

But friends came to the funeral Friday in a little mortuary chapel. Some were well dressed; some came from the Bowery.

"Professor" Glusepe Ravilla, the "Paganini of the Gutter" who fiddles outside Carnegie Hall, played "Ave Maria" on his violin.

Box Car Betty eulogized him. The colorful clergyman, Rev Charles F. Potter, added his words. . . . By reading go-getters he preached relaxation. . . to city people he sang the song of the open road.

Dan had never done much, didn't work, played with the kids, and told people to take it easy. He was himself first a painter's grave, but his friends said no. Real estate man Morris Morganstern, and Sammy Fuchs, proprietor of the Bowery Follies, put up the money for the coffin and plot.

"Dan's not dead," declared Box Car Betty, who won't give her real name, "they'll say that for a hobo. We'll see his face again and we'll hear him speak. He's a prince and he'll be back for a convention up there."

And she wept.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rose

By BILLY ROSE
BANTAM BIOGRAPHY

He's dead now, so the story can be told. His name was Jack Lait, and I first met him back in the 20's when it was fashionable to be slifty-eyed. Near the great Broadway boys tell it, only a sucker gave a square deal, even at break. At the time, Mehler was working for Hillboard, the show business weekly, and his take-home pay was barely enough to keep him in calories and cigarettes.

When I met him again a few months later, he was wearing custom-built shoes and riding around in a Stutz Bearcat.

"Tell Papa everything," I said. "It's about a big-time confidence swindle," said Mehler. "The film companies, as you know, are currently paying crazy prices for stage plays, and breaking their necks to get a line on all contemplated productions. Well, on the strength of my connection with the Billboard, I've been selling them synopses of nonexistent plays for $50 apiece, and turning out about five a week."

"That doesn't explain the Stutz," I said.

"You'll soon know," said Mehler, "I recently decided to cash in on the phony scenario racket myself, and write and sell the same one to each of the seven studios. And at the end of the week I've been clearing seven hundred dollars, every penny of it cheese."

The following year I met Mehler coming out of the Silver Slipper Club, and this time he was sporting a mink-lined overcoat.

"What's the swindle you're working now?" I asked.

"No more making up my own plots", said Jack. "I got fed up with the quality of the stuff I was turning out, and since I was flipped that if I wrote them my self the supply would never run there nor relevant.

Broadway that's neither here, out and I could sell as much as the market would absorb. I'm turning out two plots a day, dividing them into three acts and synopsizing them."

"Any complaints?"

"Not a one," said Jack, "although the critics say I almost got caught with my adjectives down. A story editor phoned and told me his company was interested in 'The Web of Judas' and wanted to know where he could get hold of Joel Howard, the author. Quick like a train, I told him 'Joel Howard' was a pseudonym. I said the author was out of town and I'd get him the script in a few days.

"Then I dug up a young playwright I know and offered to split with him if he would hang out a play based on my synopsis. Which he did, and half a week we got $8,000."

Well, what with this and with that, it was two years before I met Mehler again. He was now a big-time operator, and on a social purpose would be served by the attempt. Brief mention of a few might serve to aid a few fearful or negligent persons to recognize the necessity of early attention.

We can save space and time by eliminating any discussion of injury. Bleeding into the urinary apparatus may occur at any point on the substance of the kidneys, the pelvis of the kidneys (the pouch connected to the kidney which collects the drops of urine from the substance), the ureters, (tubes which convey urine from the pelvis of the kidneys to the bladder) the bladder of the urinary system or urethra (the tube from the bladder). Obviously the location of the bleeding must first be determined and often on this entails special examination.

Stone in the kidney, or a stone which has left the kidney, may be wedged in or descending through the ureter may give rise to bleeding. Stone in the bladder is commonly quite painful. Stone in the kidney may or may not be painful. Other diseases of the kidney may cause blood in the urine. Bleeding from the ureter is unusual due to the presence of a stone. Bleeding from the bladder wall, or interior of the bladder is frequently the source of blood in the urine.

Tumors of the bladder will usually cause the first appearance at first by the appearance of blood in the urine. There are several varieties of these tumors—some malignant (cancerous) and some benign (non-cancerous). ABNORMAL BLEEDING

The appearance of blood in the urine is a sign that should lead any intelligent person to consult a physician without delay. Often, because the bleeding may be painless a person is apt to be uncertain-nate and to put off seeking competent aid because of the unwarranted fear of a painful examination or because of his hope that the situation will soon clear up. Too often, it does not "clear up," and the fear or pain of examination is usually groundless. There is no direct answer to the question as to what may be the appearance of blood in the urine. Like other signs of illness, it may be due to a number of causes. It is far beyond the scope of this talk articles to indicate all of these and no useful purpose would be served by the attempt. complex, tubular instrument into the bladder. This instrument is known as a cystoscope.

This apparatus is costly and great skill is essential to its proper use. Even as it is, it is may introduced into the bladder with very great discomfort and the information thus obtained is absolutely essential and can be derived in no other manner. One can easily see that a complex procedure may be necessary to determine the nature of the bleeding but these procedures are usually quite brief and the attending discomfort very slight. Fear of examination leads to complications and should never deter one from seeking early attention when the necessity arises.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

What People Say

Man has hydrocele which they say should be operated on. Aside from aching at times it gives him no trouble. Most people say it should not be cut out if it hurt and that is all the more.—(G.S.S.)

Answer — That if anything is to be done the man will have to consult a physician eventually. Why not now?

How is Breathe

Ever since I learned the technique of belly breathing from your booklet I have used it with fine results. It strengthens my abdominals and stomach, exercises my diaphragm and, especially, gives my voice more power and resonance. (M.D.)

Answer — You mean it strengthens the belly—the abdomen is a cavity and the stomach is an organ in that cavity. Vocal improvements is not the only benefits derived from natural breathing. It acts as a booster for the circulation, too. The technique and physiology of breathing are included in the booklet, How to Breathe. Send twenty-five cents and a stamped self-addressed envelope and ask for it in writing.

Search for Bodies Is Abandoned

Thessalon, Ont., Nov. 7— (CP) — Search for five United States persons, missing since Monday and believed drowned in Northern Lake Huron, was abandoned Saturday.

Ontario Provincial Police gave up dragging operations in the North Channel where the bodies is believed to have drowned during a trip from Thessalon to Cockburn Island.

No trace of the group but been found since their 18-foot motorboat was washed ashore Monday on the island 14 miles from this Northwestern Ontario town.

In the party were Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hostetler of Sturgis, Mich., Paul's brother Jacob, age 44, Elkhart, Ind., and Perry, 38, of LaGrange, Mich., and Paul's father, Charles Hostetler, White Pigeon, Mich.

Landlord Gives Tenants a Break

Kitchener, Nov. 7—(CP)—If other landlords were as generous to his tenants as A. B. (Alfie) Weber of nearby Cambridge, there would be no need for rent controls.

Mr. Weber owns four well-constructed dwellings in this community, all of which contain living double the rent he charges for them.

Furthermore, the decontrol legislation which permits landlords to increase rents by 15 per cent is being applied to only one of his four dwellings, Mr. Weber said today.

Mr. Weber has a double house on Victoria St. North, one side of which rents for $25 and the other for $30 monthly. The reason the latter rent is higher than the other is that the latter was simply refused to pay Weber $35 monthly. He said he was getting this place "dirt cheap" at $35.

Another modern dwelling with five large rooms is rented for a mere $40 a month. And ultra-modern house containing six rooms, sun porch, watersoftener, plastic wall boards, etc., rents for only $41.80.

This philanthropic landlord says the only rent he plans to increase is on the latter house. This will be increased to $30.

"I don't think that's too high," he says reluctantly.

Rowswell, Ottawa. Rev. Northcote Burke officiated at the double ring ceremony, in Christ Church, Deer Park, Toronto, and Mr. John Lovick was at the organ.

A graceful gown of gardenia white satin was worn by the bride. The bodice was finished with long fitted sleeves, and portrait neckline offset by a berths collar of Guipure lace over satin. The bouffette satin redingote, forming a circular train, was gathered to the pointed waistline, revealing a full lace underskirt. Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by Mrs. Robert Secord, matron of honor, Miss Susanne Rowswell and Miss Jean Anne Young.

Gowns of rose wine velvet, they were matching hats trimmed with ermine tails, and carried matching muffs adorned with small white chrysanthemums and trailing myrtle. The groomsman was Mr. Bruce Lang, and the ushers were Messrs. Phillip Rowswell, Walter Heyes and Neil McLeod.

YESTERFELT—MARRISETT

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the Thomasburg United Church parsonage, on Tuesday afternoon, October 25, when the Rev. Morley Clarke united in marriage Elsie Mae Marrisett, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carmel Marrisett, of Flinton, and John Arnold Yesterfelt, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Vesterfelt of Marmora.

The bride looked charming in a floor length gown of satin and lace, the tight fitting bodice was fashioned around the neck and featured a sweetheart neckline and long pointed sleeves. She carried a white Bible with a lace handkerchief.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Joyce Marrisett, wearing pale pink brocaded taffeta.

Mr. Ira Vesterfelt was groomsman for his brother.

Supper was served to about 20 guests at the bride's home. The table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake. The room was decorated with pink and white streamers.

Later in the evening and following a reception was held in the Flinton Community Hall, the happy young couple left on a honeymoon to Oshawa and Toronto, Ont.

"Y" Round - Up

(Contributed)

The slim, quick-talking, energetic president of the Y's Girls Hi-Y Club, Jerry Hyde, is to be congratulated on passing another milestone. Jerry, always ready with a quip and a smile, entertained the members of the club and their friends to an enjoyable evening at his home, the "occasion being the president's birthday."

An impressive induction ceremony was held in the Girls Hi-Y Club. After attending Christ Church as a group, they came to the "Y" and held their ceremony in the auditorium. A number of parents witnessed the interesting service, handled capably by president Marion Vesterfelt assisted by Milla and Joe Erwin, the club's mentors, assisted in the ceremony, and Bill Dunn, program secretary at the "Y", was the special speaker of the evening. Fourteen new girls were welcomed into the club, and with these additions the membership is now well over twenty.

The response to the Effective Speaking Course has been really grand, according to all reports. Many groups have come into the class so rapidly that numbers now have to be limited. A waiting list is being prepared for those who would like to attend a similar course in January.

Although class members come from widely scattered vocations and varied backgrounds a very happy fellowship has been enjoyed by all in the meetings to date. Members are getting acquainted with one another, and all have a common desire to improve along the important line. Represented in the class are engineers, salesmen, stenographers, managers, homemakers, clerks, mechanics, farmers, students, and instructors.

The Phlat Sorority have made rapid gains in the past few weeks. Membership has increased from seven to fifteen, and Miss Marion Bennett has been secured as mentor to this active business girls group. The group has advanced under the capable leadership of Lorene May, and they are planning several projects for the near future.

In a special meeting Tuesday night the Phlat Sorority welcomed three new members into their groups. The new girls were Corrine Spring, Muriel Hibbard and Marilyn Payne. After their business meeting the girls had an enjoyable recreational period when they played such games as bridge, checkers, pool o'click, smarty-try-it, Chinese checkers, and chess.

The "Y" radio discussions will commence Tuesday night, at 10.00 P.M. A short series of five Tuesday night broadcasts will bring the Phlat and the Phalanx group together to debate the lively subject, "The Place in Hell the Worst Home." Betty Gibson and Marie Marinoff will represent the Phlats as will Larry Powers and Don Dudley the Phalanx. Remember, folks, be sure to tune in the radio for this opening discussion.

The Phalanx group is planning a big dance this week to be featured by a jitterbug contest. It is reported good prizes have been obtained, a popular orchestra, the Nighthawks, will play, and an all-round good evening entertainment is assured those attending.

The hobbycrafts is now a going concern. The woodworking group meets on Tuesday night under the leadership of George Baldwin, Carl Devonas, and Philip Pinkle. The boys have started making book ends and picture frames, and work on a number of other objects will commence shortly.

The Thursday night airplane group has likable Bill Brown and Ken Caverra as leaders. Model airplanes are being made, and the boys are picking up many facts pertaining to planes and flying from the well informed leaders.

The Thursday night bridge and chess club is gaining in popularity, and new members are turning out each week. It is hoped next Thursday will be the biggest night yet, and that everyone will enjoy the fellowship and the recreation these fine table games offer.

Club Activities

The Holloway Street Energetic Club were hosted to the Harmony Club of Tweed at the church on Friday evening.

The president, George Crestric, gave a warm welcome to the visitors on behalf of the club before turning the meeting over to the chairman, Ruth Burke.

Mrs. Morden gave two humorous readings which were very much enjoyed. Miss Clarke gave an interesting and inspiring talk on the mission work in Japan stressing the fact that, although the countries were at war, the Christian Japanese did not want war; that many committed suicide rather than take up arms. She said that never was there a better opportunity for missionaries to do effective work as to the people were ready and eager for Christian teachings.

A few lively games and contests were enjoyed and really got the two clubs acquainted. Refreshments were served by the executive and the "Tattler" was read by Don Fraser.

Guests of honor for the evening were honorary presidents, Arnold and Nellie Campbell, founders of the club. Arnold spoke briefly, complimenting the president on his successful term of office.

Prince Charles Eats Soap And Bathes With Rubber Duck

London, Nov. 7 (AP)—He is a prince but he doesn't know it.

He eats soap. If he gets a chance, bathes with a rubber duck and has teeth too numerous to mention. He hammers with a spoon.

He has no idea the grown-ups fussing around him are a King, some Queens and a number of princesses and dukes.

That is how a Buckingham Palace official sums up Prince Charles of Edinburgh who is one year old this Nov. 14.

He may be king some day, but such a possibility is in the dim future. The emphasis at the moment is on the fact that Prince Charles is a baby—and his mother, 22-year-old Princess Elizabeth, wants him to be an inconspicuous baby.

She doesn't hide him. Anyone in Scotland in Aberdeenshire might have seen him daily as he was wheeled about by Nurse Helen Lightbody. In fact some of the neighborhood children got to know him pretty well.

Shielded by Mother

But Princess Elizabeth shields him against wider curiosity. Buckingham Palace's outstanding publicists trying to get a "profile" of the youngster were told that it is the royal view that a baby a year old or less has no personality character. He cries, laughs, eats, sleeps and blubbers.

But no matter how much he may be shielded, the baby is heir of Commonwealth and world interest. Proud of him and destined to boast many royal naval colleagues is the prince's father, the Duke of Edinburgh, a lieutenant in the Royal Navy. Grandmother Queen Elizabeth and Great-Grandmother Queen Mary are solicitous.

The constant concern is not to give this baby an impression that there is anything unusual about him." It was said at Buckingham Palace.

Prince Charles, who pulls himself up on furniture and manages to be active, is described as being a "tumbler rather than a toddler." He has, in the jargon of the nursery, "fine mother's eyes and his father's mouth and nose." The eyes are blue and the hair is red. His toys must be well hidden when the time comes to stop playing. His soft, blond hair doesn't want to stay put.

The Princess likes quiet pursuit especially. It was from children of Hamburg, and their aunt, Princess Marie Louise, that Prince Charles got his first taste of Punch and Judy.

The surplus presents are given to other children.

School for Parents Radio Lecture Arouses Interest

Belleville Collegiate Home and School Association's committee held a successful meeting Thursday afternoon at "Listeners In" to Dr. R. H. Laycock's School for Parents," over CBC network.

Discussion which followed was of an informal nature. A genuine interest in parent education and a desire to meet the adolescent teen-age problems in a frank, practical manner was evidenced.

The opening lecture "To Count for Something," proved that even Shakespeare had been concerned regarding the difficult teen-age transition from child to adult, when he expressed the opinion "There should be no age between fifteen and twenty." Again Bernard Shaw in his cryptic manner said "Youth is altogether wasted on young people." Laycock himself made a rather thought provoking statement when he said his listeners that the teen-age's brain reaches maturity at fifteen. From here on Laycock led his audience step by step through the inward sensations, and the feelings of teenagers, with the outward signs of behaviour which parents so often misinterpret.

Strong Challenge

From the discussion following, it could be seen that Dr. Laycock's points had presented a strong challenge for parents who wished to study the many phases of youth development, both at home and in school.

A second meeting has been planned for the coming Thursday afternoon broadcast Nov. 10th at 3 p.m. at the home of Mrs. W. H. Finkle, district convenor of Home and School Association. The title of the speech's second talk will be "To Make Decisions". All meetings thereafter will be conducted in smaller groups of six or eight parents planned by neighborhoods in order to facilitate easy contact of members.

Recording Made

Many members also listened in to the CBC health broadcast from Toronto when Frank Chisholm, director of the World Health Association. A recording was made of this address by the committee and it is planned to, re-broadcast this instructive lecture to health groups of Belleville Home and School Association, as well as other organized.

All members of Belleville Collegiate Home and School who are interested in listening to the remaining broadcasts of "School for Parents", are welcome to attend the second lecture group Nov. 10th or 16 phone for further particulars to Mrs. Ernest Kelsey, 1938-R, Belleville.

Graduates Are Vital Part Of the Life of a University, Queen's Alumni Here Told

The assistance given to any university by its graduates is of vital importance to the institution, Dr. W. A. Mackintosh, vice principal of Queen's University told upwards of 100 grantees at the inaugural dinner of the Belleville and district Alumni Association at the Hotel Quinte Friday night.

"Any university can appeal only to people who have the training, intelligence and who know the importance of independent teaching. It is of extreme importance that a steady flow of capable students are available, that are the vital life of the school and which must be kept going," Dr. Mackintosh said.

Relationship of the university to its graduates is also of extreme importance, the speaker said. If the interest of the grads wanes, it will be difficult for the college administration to seek effectively.

Dr. Mackintosh reviewed the history of Queen's stating that while it was old in years it is still young and vigorous, and has just passed through a trying time. "Last year," he said, "the university had 2,300 students which caused grave problems especially housing. Now the student strength has been reduced to 2,000 and it is expected to go down to 2,000. The reason for the reduction in the student body is to enable the faculty to concentrate its work.

Many Veterans

"The post-war period saw the student body composed of 60 per cent war veterans. Now that number is reduced to 20 per cent. Everyone was impressed with this highly responsible group of students who greatly appreciated the assistance given by the government.

"The veteran students handed me a cheque for $5,000," Dr. Mackintosh told the graduates. "This money will be used for students of the future who will find the way hard. It was a generous gesture on the part of the veterans, one which we greatly appreciate."

Spoke of Needs

Dr. Mackintosh spoke of the needs of Queen's University. "We are looking ahead and planning generously," he said. "Needs are not arising from expansion but rather from new requirements and new standards."

"We have a new mechanical engineering building and have added a sort of dugout to the physical building the cost of which has been met by the Dominion Government. We need an administration building, if only to get these people out of the library.

"Provisions have been made for a men's residence," Dr. Mackintosh said. "This will not come rapidly but it is generally agreed that it is a great need. It is becoming more difficult for students to find proper suitable accommodation.

He was of the opinion that it is a great advantage to any city to have within its confines a small university. Big universities have a disadvantage in that 60 per cent of the student body must come from its own areas. Queens must have a group drawn from an area wider than Kingston.

Queens, however will continue to be national in scope although the greater majority of its students are drawn from Ontario.

The university needs more faculty in English, the speaker pointed out. "Students are becoming more illiterate each year" he declared. "There is nothing better than to be able to speak with ease and write distinctively. There are many things to be done regarding this, because the university is a living, growing thing with its strength flowing from one part to another."

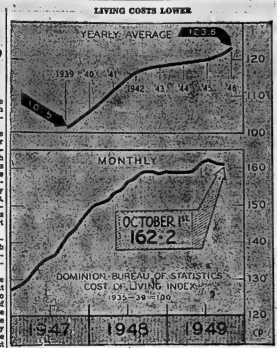
Dr. Mackintosh was introduced by Chairman Stuart Robb who also expressed the appreciation of the graduates for the address.

Dr. G. S. Cronk, proposing the toast to the university said that it was the duty of all graduates to support the school. In time of necessity it is imperative that the alumni do its share. Queen's, he said is rich in tradition built by men of faith and vision. These men laid foundation in the past and the university traditions are being carried on by Dr. Wallace and his staff of brilliant loyal teachers.

At the election of officers which followed the principal address Stuart Robb was named president of the newly formed Alumni Association of the city and district. H. R. Park is the vice-president with G. D. Dies secretary-treasurer. Mrs. A. W. Doyle, Arts '15 and Dr. G. S. Cronk, Meds. "15" are the honorary presidents.

Named to the executive were Lorne McDougall, Douglas Sews, Dr. A. I. Miles, Mrs. Ruth Forrester, Douglas Burr and J. A. Jarvis, all of Belleville; A. F. Browne and Glen Clarke will represent Picton with Charles Huskard, Deloro, representing Central Hastings with Dr. Beach of Frankford.

Leo Riggs presided at the piano for the singing of well-known Queen's songs with George Gaubier acting as song leader.



A drop in food costs offset increases in the price of fuel and other commodities affected by dollar devaluation to bring down living costs in September for the second straight month, the Bureau of Statistics reported in its monthly Cost-of-Living Index. The index dropped one-tenth of a point to 162.2 from 162.3 in October. The Sept. 1 figure of 162.3 represented a half-point drop from the preceding month.—(CP Photo.)

Noronic Disaster Probe Will Be Adjourned Again

Toronto, Nov. 7 (CP) — The Federal inquiry into the Sept. 17 Noronic disaster will be adjourned again almost as soon as it is resumed today.

J. W. Pickup, senior counsel in the probe, said Sat., that Mr. Justice R. L. Kellock of the Supreme Court is "not yet ready to pass judgment".

"Therefore there will be a further adjournment," said Mr. Pickup.

Mr. Justice Kellock heard testimony from dozens of witnesses in an effort to learn the cause of the fire which destroyed the cruise ship at her Toronto berth, with a death toll of 119.

No Change Seen In Present Setup Catholic Schools

Toronto, Nov. 7 (CP) — Education Minister Dana Porter said Friday at a press conference that no change is foreseen in the present setup of Separate schools despite the new educational system to be introduced in Ontario.

Mr. Porter amplified some of the details of the plan and emphasized the flexibility of the school system under the proposed changes.

Children attending Separate schools will finish Grade Eight as at present, then go into Grade Nine in the new intermediate level.

Transition Smoothed Over

Mr. Porter said that under the new plan local school boards will have more say than at present in the choice of subjects, so that they can fit them to local needs and buildings will house all the levels of schooling.

Mr. Porter said:

"The change system will do away with the abrupt cleavage between public and high schools and will smooth the transition from public school to another."

To make the transition smoother, high school entrance examinations will be abolished Mr. Porter explained that one of the reasons behind the grouping of the present 13 school grades into four divisions is that pupils with more ability than others will not be held back by artificial grade levels.

If, however, in the teacher's opinion a pupil is ready to advance to the intermediate school after only two years in primary school it will be permissible.

Mr. Porter said changes already have been made in the normal school curriculum to provide teachers to operate the new system. A summer course will be available next year for teachers who wish to brush up on the new tactics.

Next September the new scheme will be put into operation in each of the first grades of the four levels with the complete changeover taking place over three years.

Looking Ahead in Ottawa:
Two Top Jobs in Federal Civil Service Goes Wanting

(By The Ottawa Staff of the Canadian Press)

Ottawa, Nov. 7 (CP)—A 9,000-a-year job with large powers to probe multi-million-dollar corporations is open in the federal civil service but the government doesn't expect any great flood of applications.

It's a tough one and it can open wide the channels of unpopularity.

It's the job of commissioner of the Combines Investigation Act, centre of the current controversy over the resignation of Commissioner F. A. McGregor because of differences with Justice Minister Garson over an investigation of the flour-milling industry.

Open, too, is the $5,700-a-year job of Deputy Commissioner L. M. McKegan. The two resignations mean, in effect, the loss of the top men in the government's anti-monopoly section are quitting next month.

A. S. Whiteley is the other deputy commissioner.

Tough Job

Unknown to the consuming pupils he seeks to defend, the commissioner has complete power to initiate investigations into what he thinks may be price-fixing activities in the courts.

The commissioner can launch any probe he desires and then be plaintiff, his reports in the government's lap to act on as they see fit. It was what they did with his report on the flour firms—submitted 10 months ago—that prompted Mr. McGregor's resignation.

Although Mr. Garson has said flatly that the flour industry won't be prosecuted, he will table the report on it Monday. Some form of a rebuttal on its facts is expected to emerge from or through Donald Gordon, Deputy Governor of the Bank of Canada and former Prices Board chief.

Mr. Garson's opinion against prosecution was based on Mr. Gordon's advice affecting assurances given the four industry and other industries in their wartime co-operation in maintaining price ceilings and rations.

Statutes

The heavy job of revising the statutes of Canada will go on for about 10 years. A government-appointed commission has been at work for months in the largest co-ordination of the country's laws, bringing them up to date since 1927.

Job of the commission is to consolidate all changes in the laws made over the last couple of decades, wrapping them together in a set of volumes for easy reference. Most of the basic work now has been done, but it will be a year before the job has been finally okayed by the commission and is ready for presentation to parliament.

Not result will be a stack of books about two feet thick. It will have to be approved by parliament, but the whole mass of changes will not be submitted to the lawmakers. A simple bill approving the revision will be introduced, probably at the 1951 session.

PLANE FLOWS INTO HILL

Akron, O., Nov. 7 — (AP) — An unscheduled, cargo - laden DC-3 plowed into a hill somewhile south of Akron-Canton airport Friday night, killing three men.

The dead are James R. (Bud) Harrington, owner of the plane, John E. Franklin, 26, chief pilot, and Robert Yarano, 36, a Harrington mechanic.

AMOROUS HUSBAND

Bremerton, Wash., Nov. 5 (AP)—A 31-year-old woman who said she wanted to get rid of her husband because he was too amorous is in jail on an attempted murder charge. "I love her and want her back home here with the family," said the husband. The wife, Mrs. Margaret Susan Platt, signed a statement she made a $324 down payment in a plot to have him killed. "Willford wanted to make love every night of our 13 years of married life and I couldn't stand it," Mrs. Platt told officials.

Subscriptions Coming in At Greatly Accelerated Rate

At a greatly accelerated rate, subscriptions have been coming in to headquarters of the Red Feather Community Chest Campaign in the past two days. Over 500 additional subscriptions have been reported for a total of $11,021 representing approximately 70 percent of the minimum objective of $16,000. While this is an encouraging turn in events, after the slow start, the executive of the campaign headed by Harry C. Ackerman with Judge J. C. Anderson as vice chairman, look with concern at the difficult task of obtaining the remaining nearly $5,000 unless all citizens speedily accept their responsibility in this major community effort of the year.

All workers are urged to complete their canvass and turn in their reports to the campaign office without delay. They appeal to the public, the citizens, the business and professional people, men and women, and employers and employees, the entire community to unite in these final but critical stages of the campaign by responding generously. No one should allow this opportunity for participation in humanitarian service in the community to pass without sharing in it.

Failure to reach the minimum objective can only result in a curtailment of essential services for the welfare of the entire community by the Victorian Order of Nurses, the YMCA, and the Children's Aid Society, whose deficits, the result of free or below cost services must be met in this major community effort of the year.

Already some citizens who have seen the possibility of failure of the campaign have sent in an additional contribution. Others are invited to do so and to consider if their contribution divided among three outstanding agencies for the welfare of the community has been as generous as it might have been. Those who have not been reached by a canvasser should send their contribution direct to headquarters in the YMCA building now.

British Political Quarters Believe Stalemate Possible In Next General Election

By FRASER WIGHTON

London, Nov. 7 (Reuters) — Political quarters in Britain believe that this next government, whatever its political color, may have a much shorter life than the present Labor administration, now more than four years old.

In all party circles there is a growing fear that the forthcoming general election, whenever it is held, may produce a political stalemate which would result in a further dissolution within some 18 months of the new government taking office.

The major issue of the election, due any time between now and next July when the government's present mandate expires, is clear cut. The electorate has to decide whether the Socialists or Conservatives are best fitted to extricate Britain from her present economic difficulties.

Beevy May Influence

It is, however, recognized that some last-minute political bogey, such as has produced a landslide in the past, may again influence the swing to left or right.

But political quarters feel that such considerations as the government's record of achievement, or "next-five-year-plans" from either Socialists or Conservatives are likely to weigh less now than they would in normal circumstances.

Social and Conservative official quarters are optimistic of victory. There is no general expectation of spectacular reversal of the present balance of opposing forces, however.

A view widely held among political observers is that if there were an election now, Labor would probably "scrape back" into government with a much reduced majority.

No Prediction Made

Many government opponents—and a proportion of its supporters—predict that if Labor waits another six months, until the full effects of devaluation have become apparent, the party's chances will be considerably reduced.

Labor has a majority of nearly 200 in the present parliament. No party is expected to achieve a majority of more than about 60 in the next.

It is calculated that a swing of between seven and eight per cent in the total vote would be sufficient to turn the scales against Labor. That is to say, if seven to eight per cent more of the electorate voted Conservative, and the same proportion fewer voted Labor, the government would be defeated.

No political quarters is prepared to predict the outcome of an election deadlock. Parliamentary circles generally avoid the word "coalition," though sections of the general public speak increasingly of the national situation calling for "a combination of the country's best brains."

Toronto, Nov. 7 — (CP)—Police are holding a former employee of a Toronto dairy (Findlay's) on a charge of arson following the burning of the firm's stables early today. Four horses were burned to death and a fifth had to be destroyed.

Dairy employees entered the smoke-filled stables to save seven other horses.

Firemen said the fire was set in seven places and an eighth place had been prepared for ignition. Police arrested the former employee after he was reported to have been seen near the stables before the fire.

Leo Dandurand Says He Will Refuse Presidency

(By The Canadian Press)

Leo Dandurand, fiery president of Montreal Alouettes and next in line for presidency of the Big Four is pressing for an "independent" to head Canada's "top football operation.

Dandurand was one of the central figures in last week's squabble between the Als and Ottawa Roughriders over Big Four playoff dates.

Dandurand said in an interview at Montreal Saturday that he will refuse the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union presidency at the annual meeting next January, and revive his two year old scheme for an outsider without team affiliations to head the league and serve without salary.

Under the Big Four rotating system, heads of the various clubs take turns at presiding over the I.R.F.U. and Dandurand, now the league's first vice president, will have his turn next year.

He said football's best interests "can be served by bringing in as president an individual free from and prejudicial ties within the league."

Amid new reports of a possible gambling "deal," the Michigan Boxing Commission Saturday at Detroit cleared three suspended officials in the Kid Gavilan-Lester Felton fight.

The commission, exonerating referee Morrie Sherman and a suspended fight judge, closed its investigation, but a police inquiry continued.

Police Commissioner Harry S. Toy said the fight still had an "aroma" and that he would go with an inquiry until" satisfied all angles had been covered.

At the same time Toy reported evidence obtained in a gambling club raid led to further suspicion of a betting deal in the Oct. 31 bout.

One hundred and eighty-three bonus players will be tossed to major league baseball club owners—along with 6,000 others — when the annual draft meeting is held at Cincinnati Nov. 17.

A bonus player is one who is paid to sign a contract by a particular club and he is so designated throughout his career. They come from every league classification in baseball—from the American Association and International League—the AAA circuits —down to Class D.

Freddie Mills, British holder of the world light heavyweight boxing championship, will defend his title against Joey Maxim in London an. 24 next it was announced at London Saturday.

The contest will take place at Earl's Court Stadium, which has a seating capacity of nearly 20,000.

The fight is being presented by London promoter Jack Solomon in conjunction with Harringay Arena Limited.

At St. Adele, Que., the Canadian Ski Instructors' Alliance Sunday re-elected Louis Cochand of nearby, Ste. Marguerite as its president and announced that its annual school for professionals would be held at Mount Tremblant Dec. 1-8.

Travelling ski schools with personnel from the Laurentian region would operate early in 1950 at Huntsville and Port William, Ont., and possibly La Riviere, Man.

Frank Skaff of Baltimore was signed Sunday to a one-year contract as manager of the International Baseball League's Buffalo Bisons.

Skaff, a former Baltimore Orioles infielder, managed the Savannah club in the Class-A Sally League last season. He succeeds Paul Richards as manager of the Bisons. Richards resigned last month after the local club won its first pennant in 13 years.

At Paisley, Scotland, Hull Volunteers of the Eastern Canada Hockey League ended their short Scottish tour Saturday by defeating Paisley Pirates of the Scottish Ice Hockey Association 6-3. The Volants, who started their five-week tour Nov. 1, lost to Falkirk Lions 2-0 in their first game. They play in London against Harringay Tuesday.

Hamilton Wildcats and Notre Dame De Grace Bombers will meet in eastern Canada junior playoffs. The starting date of the series has yet to be announced.

Executive Member Of Hockey Club Has Resigned

Kitchener, Nov. 7 — (CP) — Art Diesbourg has resigned as an executive member of the Kitchener — Waterloo Flying Dutchmen Club, Ontario Hockey Association Senior League entry.

Diesbourg made his resignation to President Walter Weber in a letter Saturday. Diesbourg told reporters the move follows a series of differences with other executives.

He said the matter came to a head following an alleged statement by another executive on the signing of goalie Bev Bentley. Diesbourg says he arranged the deal.

He voiced no criticism of the coaching and management of the team on the ice

Reason was that Morgan can play third base and there's a place for him at that corner of the Brooklyn infield. Police Probing Reported Theft Of $28,000

Sarnia, Nov. 7 — (CP)—Police continued their investigation during the weekend, into the reported theft of $28,000 from the Lake Shore home of Mrs. J. F. Morrison, elderly widow of a former hotel owner here.

Mrs. Morrison reported late Friday that the money in bundles of $100, $50, and $20 bills had disappeared from "a deer hunting box" in the basement of her home, seven miles northeast of here.

She told reporters Sunday she is not certain how much cash was in the box. She had kept "several thousand dollars" there, she said, together with some jewelry.

Mrs. Morrison is the widow of J. F. Morrison, former owner of the Colonial Hotel who died three years ago. The hotel was sold less than a year ago by Mrs. Morrison for a price reported at the time to be about $200,000.

Asked where police got the figure of $28,000 she said, "Oh, I suppose I must have said that, but I don't know — I couldn't have lost that much. I just couldn't."

Talks Continue To Settle Strike At Oshawa Plant

Oshawa, Nov. 7 (CP)— Talks aimed at settlement of a strike of 5,500 General Motors Production workers resume here today.

The discussions between representatives of the company and of striking Local 222 of the United Automobile Workers (CLC) started Saturday and then were adjourned until today, with both parties agreeing not to make public the trend of the talks until a decision is reached.

W. A. Wecker, president of the General Motors of Canada, and George Burt, Canadian director of the U.A.W. are taking part.

The union called the strike Oct. 26 after 4 union members were dismissed when they joined in a work stoppage in protest against an assembly line speed of more than 40 cars an hour. The union has taken the position that the strike will continue until the four men are reinstated, while the company seeks to have the question of the dismissals submitted to arbitration.

With Mr. Wecker at the conference table behind closed doors at the big automotive plant were five other company officials. Thomas MacLean of Windsor, assistant Canadian director of the union, was on hand to assist Mr. Burt, together with six officials of the Oshawa local.

Wallaceburg Wins From Napanee To Capture Title

Wallaceburg, Nov. 7. (CP)— The Wallaceburg Legionnaires brought the intermediate O B A. B championship to Wallaceburg for the first time in history when they won the deciding game from the Napanee Legion team 7-6.

The game played in raw, cold weather before 1,500 fans was a see-saw battle with Napanee holding the lead in the early innings.

The series went four games with Wallaceburg losing 2-1 in Napanee and playing a tie game here later. They squared the series last Sunday with a 6-4 win.

Strategy played an important role in the closing moments of the game. Wallaceburg led by one run in the ninth. With one out, Napanee had Hayes on third. Napanee called for the squeeze play in an attempt to tie the game. But Axel Devriese, the Wallaceburg catcher called for a pitch-out. Pitcher Jim Cleary threw a wide breaking curve which Burtt tried to bunt but couldn't reach and Hayes was an easy out coming to the plate. Burtt ended the game by grounding out to first.

Grove led the Napanee attack with three hits, including Hayes and B. Grove each had two hits and pitcher Hooper cracked out a double. Napanee made two double plays while Wallaceburg had one.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

It's over, at long last. Saturday the Napanee Athletics, playing in parkas and red underwear, blew a 4-3 lead and took the short end of a 7-6 score in the final game of their Intermediate "B" championship series with Wallaceburg. It was the end of a long, long grind for the Gibbardville gang which revved worthy representatives of Eastern Ontario on the lengthy jaunt down the titular trail.

* * *

Saturday was trail's end for the Joe Killoran crew. They proved to be one of the best teams to come out of this neck of the woods in some time and they acquitted themselves like sportsmen and gentlemen both on and off the diamond. They swept aside the opposition in their parent loop, the Belleville District Baseball League, after a momentary slump. Snapping out of this temporary lethargy the Gerow clan rose to sensational heights when they raced through the Eastern Ontario Baseball Tournament staged at Kingston with not a defeat chalked against them. They brushed aside playdown opposition and went on to meet the starry Western Ontario champions from Wallaceburg in a stiff four-game series. It seems a shame that a grand gang like the Athletics could not bring home the titular bacon — but like the sportsmen they are, they realize that someone must lose. It had to be Napanee, but we're confident they will prove as gallant in defeat as they were proud in victory.

Tomorrow night the Belleville District Hockey League will inaugurate the third season as a pro - O. H. A. loop. Those unclassified tendists, Northern Electric and the CNE Diesels, that played a sensational series for the championship and the Queen Intelligencer Trophy last winter will open the seasonal ice drama in the first game of the doubleheader feature. Keen rivalry will also feature the second tilt which brings together in the opening clash, the Trenton Flyers and No. 6 Repair Depot.

* * *

There's a decided French-Canadian tinge to the goalkeepers of the Diesels. There's dai Maurcese, b'ars, she is back in der same scrib with a fellow French Canadian Routhier in an understudy role. Behind the blue line are such stalwarts as Vern Gerow, Joe Nolan, Hank Reeves, Bill Hurst, Earl Cousins, of Marmora, Sadler and others. Up on the firing line are the old reliables Leo Goyer, Tim Williams and Gerry Maher 1 nite first line of check troops with Doug. Basiedo, Dougie Day and Doug. Free, a newcomer; Don Smark, Jack Wardaugh and Bruce Woodman, late of Kingston along with others in the supporting roles. Looks like a powerful, potent crew.

* * *

Free, who originally hails from Campbellford, comes here with plenty of hockey experience. He has played with Peterborough and other senior squads and in 1947-48 starred with the Ayr team of the Scottish League. Free should be a fine asset to the sitisating divisions of the District. So much at the moment for the CNE squad. We'll have the "lowdown" on Northern Electric in tomorrow's play. RCAF squads are reputed to be possessed of plenty of power with not a few of the familiar faces back in action. The Belleville juniors show plenty of potential strength and as was said before, when they are in condition should make plenty of trouble for other teams in the league.

* * *

Belleville Collegiate Institute senior gridders couldn't get started early enough on Saturday, and came home on the short end of an 18-11 score after a COSSA semi - final battle with the starry thrice-champion Peterborough Collegiate Institute dynamiters. The series is a points-to-count affair, and next Friday, the clans clash again, with the BCI juniors piling about 13 points for their own rights. Our scout in Peterborough reports that the "Red" Townsend crew might have fared better had they started off on the right foot. But they lapsed, 'tis said and before they could recover, time ran out and they now face a seven-point deficit. Peterborough were without the services of their starry triple-threater Al. Northcott, while BCI waged war at full strength. Ever the Townsend team is still full of wim and wigor, and they feel they have a better-than-even chance to come out on top. More power to 'em.

* * *

The world is apparently all right, and as the saying goes, what's wrong rests with the people that are in it. Perhaps the globe is travelling too fast. Perhaps there's a subtle change taking place in the personalities of people. We recently attended a meeting of the younger fry of the city, that is, we went to the place and scarcely a person turned up. In direct contrast, we "sat in" (and got ourselves a job, incidentally) yesterday at a meeting that was heart-warming to say the least. It was the conclave of the Old Timers Hockey Association, born but a few hours ago, that met for a sincere purpose, one that should meet with the approval of all who read this pillar.

* * *

The "old fellas", the stars of yesteryear, the "guns" that carried the banner of hockey for Belleville in many bitter fights not only here but in the far-flung (are you listening, Mr. Hart?) sections of the province, met for the express purpose of perpetuating the memories of those of their hockey generation who played with them and have since passed on. It was a grand gesture on their part especially Bill Green, former hockey great, who served with the junior and other teams of many years ago. There was "Toots" Holway, brother "Bouncer", the famous "Gunner" Arnott, Sammy Simmons, "Bun" Frechette, "Hank" Fenn, who was suspended, once, literally, from a goalpost. And many others. Were all the fine gang at the gentlemens ago, Ed. Thomas, Stan Hagerman, Bert Finkle, Vern Weir were unable to be present but promised their support.

* * *

The boys did not make any boasts about what they felt should be done. They organized the Old Timers Hockey Association with Bill Green as chairman, yours truly as recording secretary and Hank Fenn as treasurer. The object and sole aim of the newly-born association is to raise funds to purchase suitable trophies which will perpetuate the memories of famous Belleville hockey players of the past. Two trophies will be presented to the Belleville District Hockey League during the coming season. One is the Boland Trophy in memory of that grand goalie the late Pat Boland and his brother Nate, and the Whalen Trophy which will honor the memory of the late "Daw" and "Ted" Whalen, starry forwards of Belleville teams of long ago.

* * *

The Boland Trophy will be presented to the outstanding goal-keeper of the Belleville District Hockey League while the Whalen Trophy will be given to the outstanding player. Both are for annual competition and replicas of the trophies will be given to the winners through the generosity of the teams of Belleville District Hockey League.

* * *

Funds to purchase the trophies will be raised by the members of the Old Timers Hockey Association. A move detailed story of the meeting appears elsewhere on the sports pages, but just in reminder, those people who played hockey years ago with city OHA teams and who wish to contribute to the fund are asked to get in touch with Treasurer Hank Fenn, at 40 Cedar Street or telephone 558. Or in case you are downtown at night leave contributions at Ed. Thomas' Tobacco Store.

* * *

The purchase of these trophies is a grand, generous gesture on the part of the fellows who played hockey two decades ago. Their's is the desire to not only perpetuate the memory of these grand chaps of their era who have passed on, but to create an incentive for hockey players of the present day. It is expected that upwards of $150 will be raised for the purpose.

"Maple Leaf" and Driver Ed. Pine Win Many Trophies and Titles

Ed. Pine, well-known Belleville speedboat driver, and Mrs. Pine, are pictured above with a few of their many trophies, cups and prizes. To date Ed. has won some thirty trophies including four gold cups emblematic of regatta championships in his class. He is thrice Canada point-winner of the American Power Boat Association and a year ago his "Maple Leaf" .225 Class II queen was adjudged the United States point winner. The many beautiful trophies won by Mr. Pine are now on display in the windows of the jewelry shop of Mr. Paul Maguire, 325 Front Street.

Old-Timers' Hockey Assoc. Of Former Players of the City Formed to Honor Memories

At a highly successful organization meeting of former OHA hockey players, especially juniors, of the city, a new sports association came into being.

It is known as the Old Timers' Hockey Association which has been organized for the express purpose of perpetuating the memories of players who have passed on through the purchase of trophies.

Bill Green, well-known junior of years ago, was named chairman of the newly-formed O.T.H.A. with Geo. Carver appointed recording secretary and Hank Fenn, treasurer. "Toots" Holway and Chairman Green were named a two-man delegation to secure the necessary trophies.

To Honor Memories

The O.T.H.A. will raise through its membership, funds to purchase two large trophies which will honor the memories of the late Daw and Ted Whalen, and Pat and Nate Boland. One will be known as the Boland trophy which will be presented to the outstanding goalkeeper of the Belleville and District Hockey League, and the other the Whalen trophy to be given to the most valuable player to his team.

The trophies will be put up for annual competition with replicas presented to the winners each year. The Belleville District Hockey League will purchase the miniatures.

Present at the meeting were Bill Green, "Toots" Holway and Bouncer" Holway, Hank Fenn, "Bun" Frechette, Sammy Symons, "Gunner" Arnott, Eddie Lee and others.

To Start Immediately

Canvassing for the funds will be done by members of the association. Those of the old boys desirous of donating to the Trophy Fund are requested to leave their contributions at the Ed. Thomas Tobacco Store, Front Street. It is proposed to get started on the scheme immediately so that presentations of the trophies may be made at the end of the Belleville District Hockey League playoffs.

Names of former players connected with Belleville hockey in the Whalen-Boland era were brought out at the meeting. It was alcitly a "memory" job, and if some names are left off the list it is because of oversight, and not intention.

Mentioned were Ed. Thomas, Stan Hagerman, Vern Weir, Jack, Bill and Henry Canning, "Soup" and Gilly Goyer, Derby Jeffery, George Clapper, Johnny Baker, "Sandy" Burrows, Jimmy McGuire, Johnny Hibbard, Murray Green, Jack Cummings, Jim Hunter, Pete Morgan, Bill Cook, Bill Holway, along with "Toots" and "Bouncer", Bill Green, Hank Fenn Bun Frechette, Sammy Simons, "Gunner" Arnott, Jim and Shud Ethier, Peeny Mills, Claude Tice, Harold Smith, Bob Gerow, Walter Gerow, Bill Pepper, Cy Barrieg, Al Wardhugh, Speedy Cook, Louis Lewis and others.

Association treasurer Hank Fenn may be contacted at his home at 40 Cedar Street, telephone 558.

Cleveland Barons Way Out in Front In American Loop

(By the Canadian Press)

"Break up the Barons" is the cry of opposing teams in the western division of the American Hockey League today.

For even at this early stage of the schedule Cleveland Barons are showing unmistakable signs of making it strictly a one-team dash for the league crown this season. The Clevelanders added to their already healthy lead during the weekend with a victory and a draw. Saturday, they edged Indianapolis Capitals 4-3 and Sunday they held Cincinnati Mohawks to a 3-3 tie. It was their fifth consecutive game without a defeat.

They now lead their closest rivals, Indianapolis and St. Louis Flyers, who are deadlocked for second place, by six points. The Flyers moved into second place Sunday with a 3-2 decision over the Cups.

Meanwhile, in the league's eastern section there was a closer scramble for top billing.

New Haven Ramblers vaulted over Buffalo Bisons into first place with a pair of weekend wins.

The Rare Jets scored Pittsburgh Hornets 3-1 Saturday and handed a 2-0 loss on the Blades Sunday at New Haven.

Hershey Bears and Providence Reds split their weekend twin bill with the Bears taking the first game 3-2. Saturday and Providence winning out 5-2 Sunday.

Springfield Indians edged Buffalo 6-3 in another contest Saturday night. Kelly Burnett scored all four Springfield goals.

WEEKEND STARS

Calgary Half Way to Dominion Final Berth While East Teams Prepare to Start Playoffs

(By The Canadian Press)

While the east still talks playoffs in both Grey Cup and Senior Intercollegiate divisions, Calgary Stampeders are themselves half way to Toronto to defend their Canadian football title.

Coach Les Lee's Stampeders showed their power in defeating Saskatchewan Roughriders 18-12 at Regina Saturday in the opening game of the Western Interprovincial Union playoffs. The winner of the two-game, total-points series will represent the west in the Grey Cup classic at Toronto's Varsity Stadium Nov 26.

Stamps will take their six-point lead into the final game of the series—an afternoon contest at Calgary on Friday, Remembrance Day.

The east's two Grey Cup leagues are still two weeks away from electing a champion to meet the west. Saturday's schedule windups cleared the way for league playoffs this week. In the Big Four, Montreal Alouettes and Ottawa Rough Riders will meet Wednesday afternoon in Montreal and Saturday at Ottawa in their two-game, total-point series. Sarnia Imperials and Hamilton Tigers will play a similar series for the Ontario Union title, Friday in Sarnia and Saturday in Hamilton.

The winners will clash for the honor of trying to match the Grey Cup back from the west, where Calgary's upset 12-7 victory over Ottawa last year took it.

Runs to Form

With nothing much at stake, the East's schedule windups ran fairly well to form. The size of Alouettes' 35-3 victory over Toronto Argonauts at Montreal was a surprise. In the other Big Four game, Hamilton Wildcats again put up a stiff fight but lost 19-11 to the Riders at Ottawa to finish with a pointless record in 12 starts.

In the Ontario Union, Tigers made sure of first place by drubbing the tail-end Toronto Balmy Beach 39-7 at Hamilton as halfback Jackie Stewart scored all six Tiger touchdowns. Sarnia, Hamilton's playoff opponent, meantime lost 11-1 to the third-place Windsor Rockets.

The Intercollegiate Union provided most of the East's football thrills as McGill defeated University of Toronto 12-8 at Toronto and Queen's tied Western Mustangs 18-1-8 at London, Ont. The ties eliminated Queen's title chances but, with the schedule winding up this Saturday, the other three are still in the running.

The only bright spot of Argonauts dismal season came with the announcement that Royal Copeland had won the Jeff Russell trophy as the player deemed most valuable to his Big Four team on the basis of playing ability and sportsmanship. Similarly, Hamilton Wildcats were delighted when the rookie award went to young Jimmy Loreno.

Dr. J. J. O'Connor, Big Four president announced the awards in Toronto Sunday. The winners were chosen by vote of the four clubs, who all nominated candidates.

Choice Not Unexpected

Choice of Copeland, 24-year-old native of North Bay, was not unexpected. The blonde halfback who has a heart to match his all-round ability, once gave up fighting in a losing cause, Loreno, who comes from Oshawa, where the halfback played three seasons in junior ranks.

The Argos took an early 10-1 lead and stayed in front. Quarterback Keith Spaith's passing arm sparked the victory. The import tossed touchdown passes to Ron Pantages and Sugarfoot Anderson and set up Pantages' touchdown and two field goals. Spaith also booted two of Calgary's three singles.

Calgary had a scout at the Ottawa game in Al (The Eye) Williams a former Stampeders president admitted he didn't learn much as Riders coach. Wally Masters used his second stringers mostly against Hamilton.

In the other Big Four game at Montreal, Import Virgil Wagner clinched Eastern scoring honors again by racking up two touchdowns and a convert against Argos to bring his 12-game total to 77 points. McCance converted two of Alouettes six touchdowns and kicked a single to take second place with 68 points.

Stewart's six-touchdown game at Hamilton, believed a record in modern Canadian football history, still didn't win the Tiger half for second laurels as the Ontario Union He finished with 45 points in 11 games, two less than team-mate Joe Caprioli, a place-kicking expert whose points were all made by his toe.

McGill Redmen played a near-perfect game to topple Toronto's Blues before a Varsity stadium crowd of more than 20,000. They tried only four forwards and completed four compared to Varsity's eight of 28, fumbled the ball only once to Varsity while recovering three blues bobbles, and made good with majors on their only two real scoring chances.

Queen's almost snared the victory over Western that would have kept their title chances alive, leading 18-13 as late as the last quarter. But Mustangs, even without the injured Jack Parry and Bob McFarlane, again showed their famed closing drive when Blake Taylor plunged for a major and Doug Gray converted to tie the score.

Games Add Situation

The tie caused an odd situation in the Intercollegiate title race, due to the rule that says a post-season playoff is held only if the first-place team has been beaten or tied twice by the second-place club during the regular schedule.

Western now is one point ahead of McGill. Should Mustangs tie McGill next Saturday, they would win the title without a playoff because they beat McGill in their previous meeting. Should McGill win, they would meet Western in a sudden-death playoff for the crown. But if Western should beat McGill ,Varsity then would have a chance because, by beating Queen's the Blues would tie McGill for second place.

The Blues, who beat Western once, then would play off with McGill for second place and if they win would play Western for the title. A McGill victory in this game would automatically make Mustangs champions.

So the situation is that Western is assured or at least a playoff chance. McGill must best Western next week to force a playoff. Varsity must hope for a Western victory and win themselves over Queen's Queen's are eliminated.

Detroit Red Wings Come up With Two Wins Over Weekend To Move in Front of N.H.L.

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Jolly Jack Adams made it clear his own Detroit Red Wings were inclined when he reflected aloud that anyone betting on National Hockey League games should be measured for a straitjacket, what with the absence of anything like form.

So what did the Red Wings immediately do? They came up with the most form-full showing of the season with two week-end victories that put them all alone on top of the standings.

The Wings started their spree by beating the Maple Leafs 4-3 before a Toronto Saturday night crowd of 13,733 to break their first-place tie with the Leafs. Then they went back home and l...nked New York Rangers 7-0 Sunday night before a Detroit crowd of 12,254.

Coach Hap Day's Leafs kept two points behind the Wings meantime by going on to take the fourth-place Black Hawks' measure 4-3 before a Sunday night Chicago crowd of 17,108, in the other Saturday night game, Boston Bruins tied the third-place Canadiens 3-3 before 12,603 Montreal fans and thereby climbed into a last place tie with Rangers.

All six clubs except Boston and Montreal now have played nine of their 70 games, Those two each have played 10.

Wings Looked Good

The Wings looked good in their hard-hitting game against Toronto. Between trying to dodge thumping body-checks tossed indiscriminately by Wild Bill Ezinicki, they played a 1-1 stalemate in the first period, went ahead 3-1 only to see Leafs tie it up with two third-period goals, and finally went ahead with seven minutes remaining.

Ted Lindsay fired the winning goal, his fifth of the season, on a breakaway set up by veteran Sid Abel. The earlier Detroit goals were scored by Abel, George Gee, and Pete Babando, with Gee also getting an assist in Babando's. Captain Ted Kennedy netted two Toronto goals and Cal Gardner the other.

Goalie Harry Lumley turned in his second shutout as the Wings looked even better against Rangers. They scored four in the first and three in the second, then coasted home in a scoreless finale.

Jerry Couture started the scoring early in the first period with two tallies within 17 seconds on the harassed Chuck Rayner. Lindsay netted his sixth of the season, Gord Howe made it 4-0 and Max Mclvah, Marty Pavelich and Jimmy Peters completed the runaway. Though Abel didn't score, he picked up two assists to tie Chicago's Doug Bentley for the individual point-scoring lead with 12 points.

Leafs Snap Streak

The Leafs snapped the Hawks three-game winning streak at Chicago. The Hawks led on two occasions before Toronto went ahead on Howie Meeker's second period goal and clinched it on Joe Klukay's third period, Tally. The opening period ended in a 2-2 draw after Bill Mosienko and rookie Bert Olmstead scored for Chicago and Gardner and Harry Watson for Toronto.

Ed Harrison's third-period goal gave Boston their tie at Montreal. Outside of that, all the scoring came in the second period when Canadiens took a 3-2 lead on two tallies by Maurice (Rocket) Richard and one by Elmer Lach. Johnny Peterson scored twice for Bruins.

The teams don't play again until Wednesday night when Montreal meets Rangers at New York and Chicago plays at Boston.

Peterborough C.I. Defeats Belleville 18-11 in First of Points-to-Count Senior C.O.S.S.A. Semi-Final Series

By DON ROSE

The first of the C.O.S.S.A. championship "two game-points to count" series was staged in Peterborough on Saturday in the Nicholas Park between "Red" Townsend's Collegiate seniors and the Peterborough seniors (Representatives for the Red Feather Campaign's Rugby Jubilee for this district). The final results were as peculiar as the game itself. Peterborough's well polished troops made B.C.I. appear half asleep in the first quarter, but our locals turned the tables in the remainder. Harry Brown, centre linesman for the Collegiate, suffered serious injuries on the kickoff and was rushed to the Peterborough General Hospital. He is suffering some pain but we all hope that he will be up and around soon. Later Hubert of the Peterborough squad suffered head injuries and was also rushed to the hospital. Nevertheless, with injury, snow, cold and surprise at times the game was fast and exciting to the final whistle and the Peterborough Petes (so-called) may again keep their name—The Peterborough Re-Petes.

The score was 18-11.

Brown Hurt

The first quarter started with B.C.I. receiving. This is when they had their first misfortune in the game. Hard luck followed and each time the B.C.I.ers were forced to kick after making only a few yards. Kilbank sparked the Petes' first major by plunging 25 yards to scoring position. Kilbank bucked again and was stopped only after crossing the line. The convert was also credited to Kilbank. One point was awarded towards the end of the quarter but a series of passes put Peterborough back on that sacred spot with Hubert carrying the ball over. Our boys blocked the kick. Several serious fumbles followed with Petes again gaining scoring position. But overanxiousness resulted in an offside. Quarter time ended (5-0).

Change of ends left the Petes still on B.C.I.'s 10 yard line. Our boys held and Peterborough was forced to kick for a single. B.C.I. began to make some progress but Peterborough intercepted a forward, only to fumble on the play in which Buchanan recovered for the Collegiate. A series of downs followed with the Petes recovering on another fumble. A 33 yd. spot pass to the quarter put the Petes in threatening position again, but our fast recovering team held firm and Peterborough was forced to kick again for another single, (13-0).

The third quarter started with B.C.I. receiving and marching up the field for their first major. Dorian was on the receiving end of a long forward which put B.C.I. on Peterborough's 15 yard line. The Dorian from McBride acted pass connected again for 5 pts. Buchanan dropped one through the bars for the convert. Belleville really showed enthusiasm now, and played real ball for the remainder of the quarter.

We Finally Score

Bucks proved worthwhile in the opening of the fourth. K. Allen, A. Galbraith, D. Walmsley ran through the sleeping Petes line. J. McBride then came through for the Collegiate with a 25 yard. centre half back for another big one. The convert kick did pass through the bars but the Collegiate was offside on the play. A forward pass off kick formation worked from Galbraith to McBride but the ball was returned as there had been some tripping by the fired linemen. In desperation McBride threw a 25 yard pass to L. Faulkner who was credited with catching it because of interference. Only one minute of play remained and the ball on the Petes 10 yard line but effort was unsuccessful as the Petes managed to hold. It could have been closer but for such a poor display B.C.I. Should be proud of the finish and Peterborough should be just the opposite.

The next game will also be at Peterborough on Friday. Admittice Day and the boys would appreciate any support at the game. Passage on a Rawson Bus can be obtained by phoning Allan Galbraith or Mr. Townsend at the Collegiate.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Nov. 7 (AP)—Next week a 58-year-old grandmother resumes her impersonation of a seven-year-old brat.

This sort of thing has been going on since 1912, when Fanny Brice first dreamed up Baby Snooks. It is likely to continue as long as there is breath in the famed comedienne.

Miss Brice seems resigned to a life with "Schnooks," as she calls the radio moppet. I mentioned that her fans would also like to hear some of her wonderful routines of yore.

"How about another show? I hear they're dragging out the Ziegfeld Follies again."

"They would have to drag me back there to do it," she replied. "I would never leave California willingly."

Television?

"Maybe yes. But I wouldn't do it the way it's done now. No one can put a different show on every week and keep it good. If I did, I'd rehearse a show carefully, then put it on three or four weeks—the same show every week. That way everybody would see it."

A Parody

That leaves her with Baby Snooks, who was born in vaudeville in 1912. It started as a parody on a pampered movie child. One night she was forced into entertaining at a party. She did her whole routine in the baby talk she used in the movie baby number and it was a howl.

She did the character off and on for years and in 1937 put it on the radio.

Miss Brice was off the airwaves during last year's radio upheaval. She used his time to give birth to an autobiography.

Loves Nickey

"It's an amazing experience," she said. "It's like being psychoanalyzed. There were days when I felt very sad. And days when I felt very happy."

Sh e promises to tell all in the book, including her feelings about her two husbands.

About Billy Rose, she told me: "He comes out all right in the book. Mainly I say how smart he is."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The player with a fistfull of aces, queens, and kings should never sit there wistful of what the future brings. Unless the guy is stupid or wants to be alone he opens with a two bid in loud, declative tone.

Comes to me a letter with the east hand you see here:

♠A
♥A Q J 10 7
♦A K Q 8 4
♣K 5

I am asked whether this hand should go to a grand slam if partner makes an encouraging response.

Here is a hand that counts ten tricks. It may develop an 11th trick if partner has dovetailing cards. Therefore, most would find out whether north has the ducats that fit into his picture.

South opens this hand with two hearts. In answer, if north says two no-trump he denies having a sure trick. At once south learns that north has no ace. Game is the best he can then expect.

If the immediate response by north is anything other than two no-trump a sure trick is promised. It must be the club ace or K Q of spades. With either a small slam is in prospect.

South then bids diamonds and rebids them, if necessary, to find out their best trump suit. When this is discovered, south bids four no-trump; the prober of aces and kings.

If the north reply to four no-trump is five diamonds, it shows one ace and no kings; five hearts, an ace and one king; five spades, an ace and two kings.

From such convention signals well south know if he has enough for only a small slam. Or if he has a cinch grand slam. Or if he has a good gamble for a grand slam.

What should south do if north signals one ace and only one king? The missing king may be in hearts. Did. you ask me what I would do? Let me out of here.

Congradulations, pop said. In the werds of Benjemin Franklin, "Allways try to be helpful and wise, and you'll have a big edge on the other guys," he said, and I said, The last errand I went was got onions and grapefruit in 2 separate bags.

pop said, and I said, I took the grapefruit out of the bag and put them in the refrigerater, or otherwise you mite not of had a cold grapefruit for breakfast tomorrow morning, and besides they were in a exter strong big bag, perfect to blow up and explode.

That keeps the record strate, pop said, in the werds of Confucius, "Look your motives in the face, and 10 to one you'll get some place," he said, and I said, The only trubble was, I exploded it rite there in the kitchin when ma didn't happen to be looking, and she dropped a carton full of eggs on the floor and it wasn't so good for the eggs. Ma was going to tell you, so I thawt I better tell you myself, I said.

eggs cost now? pop said, and I said, Yes sir, ma told me. But jimminy roosalem, pop, I bet there never was a time when people didn't think everything was expencive, I said.

ON SPEAKING TERMS AGAIN

Died in Hospital

Soon after his car was struck by a Canadian National Railways passenger train William Lurie, 25, of Maple, north of Toronto died in hospital.

Ernest Hughson, 68, Kingston, was killed when his car collided with another at Kingston.

In Northern Ontario's Sudbury district, Albert Baskerville, 31, guiding a party of eight Ohio hunters, was fatally shot when John H. Balazs of Cleveland mistook him for a deer.

Victor Truelove, 53, of Westport, Ont., died in Hospital from injuries suffered when he fell 25 feet from a ladder.

Allan Edwards of Toronto, was drowned in Lake Simcoe, about 50 miles north of Toronto, when a wave overturned his small motor boat.

Fell Under Train

In Québec Province George J. Cooper, 24, of St. Lambert, a Montreal suburb, was killed when his motorcycle slipped and he fell under an oncoming taxi, and William Brien, 21, was killed at St. Johns when his car went out of control and crashed into a telephone pole.

Romeo Levac, 27, was drowned at the Queen's Wharf area west of Montreal, when his car plunged into the Soulanges Canal.

Fifteen-months-old Pierre Villiard died in a Montreal hospital from head injuries shortly after he was given a "playful push" by his two-year-old brother, Marcel.

Hilyard C. Prosser, 43, of Pine Glen, N.B., was found dead following a scuffle on the highway near Hillsboro, 15 miles south of Moncton.

Gordon Earl, was drowned at Cowhead, Nfld., when his boat capsized while he was bird-hunting.

WORKER'S WIFE

"I was afraid of what Henry (her husband) would say," she continued.

Expressed Doubt of Story

Police, noting the absence of a ransom demand or other kidnap motive, privately had expressed doubt of Mrs. Komorek's story since she reported the child kidnapped.

Pressed at the inquest for details of the baby's fall, Mrs. Komorek said "I picked him up quickly. I thought he was dead and put him on the kitchen table."

Mrs. Komorek said she then got a burlap bag from the basement, wrapped the body in two blankets, and tore a strip off one to tie the top of the covering bag.

"Then I took him down by the pond," she said.

She denied, however, that she had placed the body in the water.

"I left him on the bank," she said.

She related that her 34-year-old husband was extremely fond of the baby. Their only other child, a seven-year-old boy, was struck and killed by an automobile four years ago.

DAFFY-nition:

PEDESTRIAN — one who, for no good reason at all, walks. It might be noted here that there is only one more primitive method of locomotion than walking, and that is crawling. If therefore you are beginning to be worried about being called a walker or crawler, you have an easy out. As you have probably seen by the papers they've been building a gol-darn contraption called an "automobile" for the past 50 years and many people have parted with their hard-earned dough to become motorists instead of pedestrians.

Now there's a bunch of fellas up the 6-lane highway who have made more motorists out of pedestrians than anybody we know. And when you stop to think that people have been walking (or crawling) for the past 50,000 years and all of a sudden West End Motor Sales is rapidly abandoning this primitive pastime—it just makes you stop and think!

MORAL:

If you're tired of walking the boys to see are West End Motor Sales at Herchimer Avenue and Kingston Road. And in case you haven't heard, Rawson Bus Lines have started a new service to Parkwood Heights, which will take you right up to our lot. Or phone 3766 and we'll pick you up. No obligation.

Martin's Summer

By Vicki Baum

"Who's next," he asked, swallowing his annoyance. It was Pamperl Mayreder's turn; he was to have his first lesson. He was six years old, and his little stomach was so plump that his bathing drawers would not stay on at it. His mother pushed him up to Martin. His knees bending inward a trifle were trembling, and so was his under lip. Frau Mayreder with her hands on the little fellow's shoulders, was trying to explain, and Herr Mayreder, who couldn't swim, stood anxiously by full of pity for the child. Herr Mayreder was fat, his arms were short and the back of his dry bathing costume was covered with sand.

Martin took Pamperl by the hand to comfort him and then stooping in front of him showed him how he was to move his arms. Martin was lean, sinewy, and Pamperl very small. Martin had magnificent muscles beneath his taut skin, and his chest was a sight to see. He had the broad shoulders of a swimmer, and their movement was free and supple. He had a fine down of tiny white hairs all over his body. Frau Mayreder's eyes were fixed upon his phenomenon in a stupor. Pamperl was then laid on an ingeniously constructed rest where he sprawled his legs in all directions, Martin was serious and intent on the matter in hand.

"Charming," whispered a lady in a striped zebra-like bathing cloak, who stood in the front row of the circle of spectators.

A blue vein started out on Martin's brown and perspiring forehead. "Clear the gangway, please," he said sharply.

Murmurs of protest. The attractions of Fraunsee were not so numerous as to warrant such a peremptory embargo on the joy of gazing at the new swimming instructor. Martin clenched his teeth and whistled. And now it was time for Pamperl to enter the water. With trembling knees he descended one step and then another, on the third he began to howl. Martin went down to him and taking him by the hand led him to the shallow water. He played games with him. When it came to children he had the patience of an old nurse. He splashed about with him in the water and showed him a little fish as it darted away. He dipped Pamperl's hand in the water, then his arms, and then the whole of his little body. Pamperl gasped with fright, but soon he overcame his fears and resigned himself obediently to the water, while Martin climbed out and grasped his pole.

Frau Mayreder, who had been looking on in a trance, felt a sudden desire to take lessons in swimming instructor in her arms and to press him tightly to her breast [illegible] its all-too-tight silk covering. Frau Mayreder was quite horrified at the onset of an emotion she had never experienced in her life before. She was thirty-three this Frau Mayreder, and generally esteemed a pretty woman. She weighed six pounds more than was necessary, and, heavens, how tight her bathing dress was! Her legs, too, were rather on the short side; indeed, the whole of Frau Mayreder's person was rather too short and too broad in all its proportions. In a flash she saw herself standing in the brilliant sunshine on the gangway beside this athletic, this swimmer, this perfect mold of young manhood. Flitting down the steps into the water she splashed her breast and arms, as she had been taught to do, and set herself to swim beside Pamperl.

She swam in an old fashioned way, almost upright in the water with her legs right down and her shoulders almost clear of the surface. Her remarkable swanlike strokes did not advance her one inch, and all the while her back was as hollow as an old brood mare's. And now while Martin shouted out his instructions and supported with his knees the pole and Pamperl too, splashing at the air, while froth and spray and laughter and shouting and all the indescribable noise of children on a summer day surrounded him on every side, he suddenly heard quite clearly a conversation that was going on behind him on the gangway.

"There's our Adonis at last; now you can enjoy a close look at him at your leisure. Don't you enjoy it?" asked a contemptuous man's voice.

"I don't know what you mean, Bobby," a girl's voice replied.

With rage and joy at once Martin recognized the beautiful voice he had heard on the promenade, and a tremor of delight passed through him.

"Just what I say. Don't you stand hours together gazing in admiration at the poster in the hall with the picture of swimming instructor?" said this unpleasant Bobby.

"That must have been Carla," the voice replied, "I don't care myself for good looking young men."

"If it was Carla in the hall, it is certainly you every evening on the terrace with your eyes glued to the telescope when the fellow swims across the lake to the crazy baroness."

"What fellow? What telescope and what baroness, and who is crazy? I believe you're crazy yourself, Bobby!"

"Why all Fraunsee is talking of nothing but its handsome Leander. You're carrying innocence too far, May."

"I believe he's in training; that interests me, of course. I watch him, then, I admit. He has a magnificent arm stroke, in my opinion—the right arm particularly. Yesterday I took his time as nearly as I could—just short of 22 minutes to the other side. That's pretty good, you know. When the water's a little warmer, I must swim across the lake too."

"Right! I offer myself as trainer. True, I'm not a swimming instructor ..."

Martin was in such a rage that the oar in his hand popped in his veins. He drove his fingers through his hair. The pole dipped and Pamperl swallowed a mouthful of water with most piteous results.

Martin fished Pamperl out of the water with a jerk.

Please clear the gangway," he called out in a voice that was hoarse with anger. "I must have room."

At this moment, just as Martin bossed Pamperl on to the landing stage he saw an arm from which the middle one drank the slippery drop in a soft vapor. From this arm to his own there streamed, like a crackling current of electricity, such a warmth and delight that he started back. He looked up and met the look of those brown eyes of which he thought he had only dreamed—gold and smoke-topaz in a setting of pale blue enamel. Martin stood with the child's swimming belt hanging slack and dripping in his large hand.

The boy(a) voice said: "Excuse me, but I wanted to practice a diving here."

"Please do," Martin replied, and stepped to one side. For a second the girl's body braced itself and then shot off in a dive. The springboard shook a little and, below, the water seethed with the small commotion that follows upon a clean dive. Martin felt his chest expand as he drew a deep breath. He ran to the springboard and straight as an arrow he shot through the water in a magnificent dive as if at the start of a race. It took him far out into the lake without a stroke, and then turning he saw the girl on the steps again laughing and waiting for him. As he scrambled out behind her he saw, close before his eyes, her knees, incomparably shapely and set as straight as a die with the line of the leg. Then she ran up the ladder to the high diving platform. Martin stood there dripping with the water running from his hair over his eyes; he scarcely knew where he was.

"Now we shall see the lovely twins dive again from the five-meter diving board," he heard Herr Mayreder saying. Herr Mayreder was putting on his pince-nez, which had rather oddly by a cord from the breast of his bathing costume.

Martin looked up to the high diving board and grasped it all in a flash.

Up there stood two girls—very much alike, almost indistinguishable. They laid their hands on each other's shoulders and then, bracing themselves, with their toes grasping the edge of the platform and their pretty heels poised above, they sprang into the air and plunged into the water.

The man in the striped pullover, Bobby by name, turned to the count with whom he had just been playing tennis, and who now leaned his meager hound figure against the rails, and said:

"Pretty girls, these Lyssenhops —the prettiest in the whole of Fraunsee, and you absolutely can't tell them apart! Funny!

"Yes, old Lyssenhop told me he didn't know one of his daughters from the other himself. They're always making fun of people by passing themselves off as each other. If a man fell in love with them he'd never know which of the two to begin with," said the Count, who wore a monocle with his bathing cloak.

"With both, for choice," Bobby decided.

Something came over Martin. With his eyes on the two girls, who had just come out of the water and were now running a race over the sand, he bellowed to himself to join in the conversation. His forehead was puckered like a child's, with a network of little wrinkles. He was besieged by a turmoil of emotions, and in his excitement he almost shouted.

"I can't understand how anybody could take one for the other. They are entirely different. In the first place one is much prettier—no comparison. Also she is better form and has a better figure. The other is positively knock-kneed. And then the first swims with the trudgeon, and the other with the breast stroke, and none too well at that. There couldn't be any question of confusing them."

The two men turned to the swimming instructor, in silent astonishment. The count fingered his monocle and said in a nasal voice:

"Most interesting! You are giving a professional opinion? Most interesting ..."

Martin realised suddenly that the long morning on the gangway had given him a touch of the sun. Possibly even a slight sunstroke. His head was humming and singing so oddly. He clenched his teeth and said: "I am not a professional, I am an engineer. My name is Heil—Dr. Heil."

He breathed, and hate beats together in a curt bow that was returned by the count with a nod. Up, and with some hesitation.

"I've come a horrible cropper over your name, completely bowled over," said Martin to May Lyssenhop.

And May replied questioningly and blissfully: Yes!..."

Each generation has its own experience of love and speaks of it in its jargon, in novels and poems, in the black and white of the printed page, the declaration, "I love you," is all very well, but for a young man of today to speak so sentimentally to a girl of today would seem quite out of place. For these young people have a new sense of shame and delicacy. They play and swim and romp together. They dance and kiss and enjoy themselves to the full without a care. But they do not say: "I love you." They would be quite ashamed to say it.

FIREMEN CONTROL BLAZE IN EAST BLOCK OF PRISON

Armed Guards With Extra Ammunition Patrol Walls to Prevent Break

Kingston, Nov. 8. (CP)—Armed guards, provided with extra ammunition, were stationed around the walls of Kingston penitentiary early Monday night as firemen fought a blaze in the east cell block of the prison.

There was no indication of incendiarism, however, and all prisoners were marched into another section of the building. Jail officials said that all 150 prisoners bedded in the east cell block were outside the section when the fire broke out and there were no injuries.

The Kingston fire department joined the prison's fire department to fight the fire for almost five hours before bringing it under control. Clouds of grey smoke poured from the roof of the building but damage was limited to the roof and rafters in the old stone building.

Cause of the fire was given by R. B. Coldwell, federal penitentiary commissioner, as defective wiring.

G.M. Dividend To Shareholders Over 190 Millions

New York, Nov. 8—(AP)—One of the biggest cash dividends in United States history will go to General Motors stockholders Dec. 10.

It totals more than $190,000,000. With other payments already made this year, it will bring the company's grand total of dividends for 1949 to more than $250,000,000.

This is an all-time record for General Motors Corporation, and financial circles said it probably is an all-time record for United States.

The year's earnings will amount to $8 : share for common stock, which has a par value of $5. The stock closed Monday—before the company announcement—at $89-12½ a share. The extra dividend will be 80 per cent of the par value and 4 times the per share of Monday's price.

Reaction to the news on the New York Stock Exchange was that delayed until tomorrow, since the exchange is closed today for U.S. elections.

Price of Shares Advances

The San Francisco Exchange still was unaware, however, today of the announcement hit the tickers. The price shot up immediately $2.62½ a share to $71.75. The new dividend will be paid to stockholders of record Nov. 17, and will be $4.25 a share for common stock. Preferred stockholders will get regular dividends.

The huge dividend comes from record-breaking earnings recently reported by the company. Sales for the first 9 months of this year totalled $4,458,000,000, more than $1,000,000,000 over the comparable 1948 figure of $3,436,000,000. The net profit for the first nine months of this year was $502,000,000, compared with $377,000,000 for the same period last year. This year's total dividend will be $21,664,000.

Of the company's 44,000,000 shares of common stock, E. Du Pont De Nemours and Company holds 10,000,000 and will receive nearly one-quarter of the dividend. The Du Pont board will meet about Nov. 18 to decide its own dividend action.

In a joint statement, C. E. Wilson, General Motors president, and Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., chairman, said requirements of the last four years made it necessary for the company to increase the percentage of profits for new plant and bigger expenses.

Ottawa, Nov 8. (CP)— The Commons Monday heard conflicting views on alleged price-fixing activities in the flour-milling industry.

Justice Minister Garson tabled a 60,000-word report in which F. A. McGregor, chief combines investigator, charged Canada's 11 main flour milling companies with agreeing from 1936 to 1947 to fix common prices for their products.

The bulky document hit members only a few minutes before Trade Minister Howe started a four-hour debate on which Prime Minister St. Laurent and Mr. Garson joined to defend the government's decision not to prosecute the companies. They also defended the government's action in not tabling earlier the report, dated Dec. 29, 1948.

The ministers said the flour-milling industry was assured during the war that uniform price-fixing would not be subject to prosecution under the Combines Investigation Act. In fact, they said, the government's prices board encouraged uniform prices to facilitate administrative problems of price controls, they said.

The government's actions were sharply criticized by opposition spokesmen — John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre); M. J. Coldwell, national leader; Solon Low, Social Credit leader, and Angus MacInnis (CCF — Vancouver-East).

Charged With Breach

Mr. Diefenbaker charged the government with a breach of the Combines Investigation Act, which required that reports be tabled in Parliament within 14 days after they are received by the minister.

Mr. Coldwell said that regardless of the flour-milling industry's activities during the war, it should be prosecuted for alleged price-sticking activities prior to the war.

Sent Man to Trial On 'Reframed' Charge

Brantford, Nov. 8 (CP)—George Grechuik, 30, of 8 Park Avenue, Monday was committed for trial on a charge of rape following Tuesday's hearing in the original charge. The new charge includes a clause setting out Grechuik's alleged assistance in aiding another man, Wilfred Abbott, 23, of 151 Marlboro Street, and formerly of Newfoundland, to commit the alleged offence.

The criminal code of Canada stipulates that "one who assists another to commit the offence of rape is also guilty of rape."

Abbott was committed on Nov. 2 for trial at the sitting of the spring assizes of Supreme court next April.

ELK SEEN IN CITY

Peterborough, Nov. 8 (CP) — Residents here have been accustomed lately to see elk in the city's residential section. Two of the animals have appropriated a section of woodland near Mayo Public School and have been seen on the streets after dusk. Residents believe the elk are from the Crown Reserve of Apsley, 33 miles to the north.

TRUMAN'S 'FAIR DEAL' PROGRAM MEETS N.Y. TEST

Dulles and Lehman Battle for Senatorship

(By the Canadian Press)

President Truman's "fair deal" program, attacked by opponents as leading to "statism" and "the welfare state", came in for a major public test today at the hands of an estimated 5,500,000 voters in the key New York state election for United States Senator.

The bitter New York contest between Senator John Foster Dulles, long-time Republican internationalist on international affairs, and Democrat Herbert H. Lehman, three-time former governor, has overshadowed a number of other contests and issues in scattered sections across the United States.

The two men, both prominent public figures, campaigned hard to fill out the unexpired term of Democratic Senator Robert F. Wagner, who resigned because of ill health last July. Republican Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York appointed Dulles to serve until the election.

Wagner's term will expire in January, 1951. Ordinarily a Senate election by itself is a short local contest excites little public interest.

But the international position of the country and the Truman fair deal definition of the "fair deal" issues have pushed the race into a preview of the 1950 campaign when the control of the U.S. Congress, now Democratic, will be at stake.

Embraces President's Program

The 71-year-old Lehman embraced President Truman's "fair deal" program calling for greater social security, free the sack, a national health program, increased education subsidies and other social services.

Elderly Man May Have Been Actress Father

Hollywood, Nov. 8 — (AP) — Actress Ann Harding today said there is a "possibility" that an elderly man who died last Saturday in Seattle may have been her father.

"I am so bewildered and confused," she said, "I haven't seen my father in 30 years."

The elderly man, whose illness of cancer made him mute, penned a letter to his bed-side hospital attendants in which he identified himself as John Dufferin Rutherford, 66, a Marlboro Street, and formerly of Newfoundland, to commit the alleged offence.

The criminal code of Canada stipulates that "one who assists another to commit the offence of rape is also guilty of rape."

Abbott was committed on Nov. 2 for trial at the sitting of the spring assizes of Supreme court next April.

Persistence of Toronto Girl Results In Identification of Titian Painting

Toronto, Nov. 8. —(CP)— A painting which sold for $5 at auction 50 years ago has been identified as the work of a pupil of the great 16th century Italian painter, Titian.

The value and importance of the 400-year-old canvas was recognized recently because of the persistence of its owner, Betty Tothe of Toronto and (69 North Park Street) Brantford.

For years she had a hunch it was a "lost master"—or something close to it.

Miss Tothe, who is a dress designer, finally submitted the painting to George Chapelier of

No - Party Declaration Urged On Britain's Economic Crisis

York, England, Nov. 8. (Reuters)— Cyril Garbett, Archbishop of York, today called for a "no-party declaration" by political leaders on the facts of Britain's economic crisis.

In an address to the York Diocesan Conference, the Archbishop warned Britons that they were "confronted with a crisis comparable with months after Dunkirk."

He urged leaders of all parties to issue an agreed "downright statement on the extreme gravity of the present situation," when the people knew the stark realities of the situation they would be ready to the occasion, he said.

Unless there is a radical change Britain will have no money for overseas food or raw materials and countries will be afraid to trade with her for fear "that all they send to us may be lost in the general crash without any hope of repayment."

"Our position as a great power would go," Dr. Garbett said. "We should sink to a third-rate bankrupt state."

The government is trying to avoid bankruptcy by cutting imports, increasing exports and reducing expenditure.

"It is, however, sure that the government will not obtain the necessary support of the nation as a whole for these various measures unless the extreme gravity of the crisis is brought home to all.

"I know it is impossible now to advocate a coalition government—neither party would consider it," he continued. But it ought to be possible for the leaders of all parties to issue an agreed downright statement on the extreme gravity of the present position," Dr. Garbett said.

"When the people know the realities of the situation, they will rise to the occasion and by hard work, sacrifice and self-restraint unite together in a great and resolute effort to save the nation in its hour of trial."

USSR and US Should be Better Friends-Vishinsky

By EDWARD E. BOMAR

Washington, Nov. 8. —(AP)— Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky of Russia says the Soviet Union and the United States ought to be better friends.

The honor guest at a glittering Soviet Embassy reception Monday night, Vishinsky talked informally with newspaper men on this general theme—but his agreeable observations "off the record."

His general line: the common feeling of Russian-American friendship has fallen asleep but since day it will awaken and confound the enemies of freedom.

Smiling amiably, Vishinsky shook hands with more than 1,000 dignitaries. They jammed the embassy for the annual celebration of the anniversary of the 1917 revolution.

Vishinsky came from the United Nations General Assembly session in New York for the occasion. He had a private 14-minute talk with State Secretary Dean Acheson and Mrs. Roosevelt shortly before Acheson left by plane for the Paris Meeting of the Foreign Ministers' meeting at Paris. Both he and the State Department refused to discuss that a social call.

Then for about three hours, the East-West cold war went into a state of suspension. The envoys of most of the countries in the Western Hemisphere and Western Europe which have rejected communism chatted briefly with Vishinsky and with Soviet Ambassador Alexander S. Panyushkin.

One envoy missing was Yugoslav Ambassador Sava N. Kosanovic whose government is on distinctly bad terms with Moscow at the moment. He was not invited.

19 Filipinos Killed, 16 Hurt During Election

Manila, Nov. 8. (AP)— Filipinos braved gunfire today to elect a president.

By 6 p.m., when the polls closed, 19 had been killed and 16 injured. Many more deaths were feared in outlying sections.

Forty towns were under constabulary control.

Disorders were widespread. The National Commission on elections was flooded with complaints. Ballots were stolen and the chairman of the rival Progressive Election Commission was kidnapped.

At Ormoc, Leyte, supporters of one candidate reported their poll inspectors chased into the hills and the situation out of hand. Candid Progressive reported six towns terrorized by followers of President Elpidio Quirino, leading in the five scattered returns received here.

Quirino, a Liberal Bukbalahap country, where fighting is almost constantly going on, was there quiet. Thousands of armed men patrolled highways and the polls, keeping the communist led Huks in the hills.

The voting will determine if Quirino will serve a four-year term.

His opponents are Dr. Jose P. Laurel, Nacionalista Party candidate who has made an unsuccessful political comeback since he was jailed and punished during the Japanese wartime occupation, and third party Jose Avelino, former Liberal party chairman who split with Quirino this year and became the dark horse in the race.

Manila itself was quiet. The capital was expected to roll up a big vote for Laurel in keeping with its tradition as anti-administration.

FOURTH LARGEST STEEL PRODUCER SIGNS CONTRACT

Agreement Spurs Effort To Wind up Both Strikes

Washington, Nov. 8. (AP)—A strike-ending agreement at Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation today spurred efforts to wind up both the 49-day steel strike and the 50-day stoppage in the United States coal fields.

Government mediation officials, now busy at each seeking a coal settlement, greeted with satisfaction the news that the fourth largest U.S. steel producer had signed a contract with the C.I.O. United Steelworkers.

The Jones and Laughlin settlement was announced Monday night at Pittsburgh. The company employs 40,000 workers. It's the 90th member of the steel CIO. United Steel Workers.

James and Laughlin is the second major steel producer to settle with Murray's union on identical terms.

Bethlehem Steel signed a contract last week incorporating most of the steelworkers' pension demands. It set up an average $110-a-month pension at age 65 for men with 25 years' service. The company pays the full cost, expected to be nine cents an hour, while the union and worker contributes to the government's old age and survivors' system. The federal benefits are included in the total pension.

Others Likely to Fall in Line

The pact opens the possibility that other large companies will fall in line and settle the 500,000 CIO steel strike with the 450,000 steelworkers off their jobs..

Mrs. Arthur Pitre Ordered to Trial, Bail Increased

Quebec. Nov. 8. (CP) —Judge Alphonse Garon today ordered a criminal assizes trial on a charge of murdering suicide charge for Mrs. Arthur Pitre, key witness in a double slaying which left dead the death of 23 persons in a plane crash Sept. 18.

Mrs. Pitre's trial will be held at a date to be fixed later.

Judge Garon increased a request by the crown for increased bail for Mrs. Pitre and ordered the amount rom $300 to $850.

Judge Garon ruled against a motion by Mrs. Pitre's defence counsel that she be given a summary trial on a charge of murder without jury. He said that at the present stage of proceedings he could not order a summary trial.

Will Seek Summary Trial

Her counsel possibly will renew his attempt for a summa y trial at a later stage.

Today's court appearance by the black-garbed 41-year-old widow concluded the preliminary hearing on the attempted suicide charge. She had told attorney of J. Albert Guay, alleged perpetrator of the time-bomb destruction of a Quebec-bound plane at Sault Au Cochon.

Lt. Dan Mayer of the Quebec Provincial Police was the first outsider at the scene of the crash. He said after landing on the second ice-bound river within a few hundred yards of Sault-au-Cochon, he saw a man trying to help pole the plane towards the bank of the river.

Other Hebrides Folk Incensed By Charges Funerals are 'Boisterous'

Glasgow, Nov. 8. (Reuters)— Inhabitants of the Outer Hebrides, the blue misty islands off the northwest coast of Scotland, are incensedby charges that their funerals are "boisterous and irreverent."

Scottish author Alastair Alpin Macgregor, in a new book called "The Western Isles", declares that solemnity, in any marked degree, "is seldom exhibited at the island burials."

"At many a funeral in the western highlands and islands the providing of a copious supply of whisky is still deemed a matter of prime honor, and one which the natives observed to the full until very recently, when it was agreed that too much brawling and fighting took place afterwards."

Macgregor alleges that the islanders are taught from an early age to revere whisky as one of life's chief glories, and accuses many of them of being greedy for money, completely lacking in civic sense, and lazy.

The women, he says, are left to do most of the work and many men of the islands are wife-beaters.

Three Survivors Of Plane Crash Marooned 4 Days

Tell of Explosion Taking Lives of Two Companions

Rouyn, Que., Nov. 8. (CP) — From a hospital bed today, a badly-burned mechanic told of four "horrible" days he and two prospectors spent marooned and hungry beside a wrecked plane in which two of their companions lay dead.

Elzear Potvin of Amos, Que., suffering from burns to hand and foot, facial cuts and bruises, told the four days "are like a nightmare to me now. All I remember is that Bill Whitney was a hero."

Whitney, Potvin and Gaston Lavallee survived the plane crash, 90 miles north of here last Thursday, which claimed the lives of the -pilot, 34-year-old Frank Hawbridge of Iroquis, and

Speaker Outlines Ideas To Improve School Magazines

More than 80 high school editors from Peterborough, Bowmanville, Picton, Napanee, Lindsay, Kingston and Belleville gathered at the Collegiate Friday evening to discuss and exchange ideas for improving their school magazines.

The guest speaker for the occasion, Professor B. C. Diltz, from the College of Education was introduced by Mr. Linton Read. Professor Diltz is well known in literary circles—winning wide acclaim for his English text books and other works. His topic was "The Improvement of the School Year Book."

He advocated a writers' club within the school for the purpose of bringing out hidden talent, and encouraging creative writing. He suggested a theme to be played upon throughout the magazine—something like Maple, Bowery, readers realize the spirit of the school. He also stressed the necessity of the necessity of a revised literary section; his opinion is that short stories are of more interest and his remedy would be the substitution of verse articles pertaining to things of general interest.

He proposed bringing humor out mainly in the verse section, and suggested limericks, the limerick, quatrain and ballad. "Do not copy humor; take it first hand from school life and you will variety, vanity, unkindness, and sacrifice."

"Show the spirit of the school through action pictures of games and important functions; through unposed snaps taken in the classroom. Let the pictures be a mirror of the school" commented the speaker in conclusion.

During the course of the evening and under the direction of The Spragues and Mrs. Wishart, a delicious pot-luck supper was served by members of the elevator staff. Later on in the program Don Rose led an open discussion on problems arising in the production of school year books, such as publicity, prices, advertising, canvass, and subject material for the art section.

Credit is due to the Hi-Y who provided entertainment for visiting delegates to attend the dance following free of charge.

Teen-aged Boys Cause Parents Some Anxiety

The young teen-aged boys were having a whale of a time as they played hide and seek around the building of a milling company premises and the excitement grew more intense as they cavorted around and stop freight cars spotted in the C.P.R. yards.

Then the caretaker of the milling company spotted the boys and police were notified.

The police cruiser quickly hove into sight, the boys were rounded up and the offi::: of the law threatened dire consequences if they w:re again caught in railway property. The boys left thoroughly subdued.

That was at mid-afternoon on Tuesday, but at 9:30 that night the lads had not yet turned up at home. Again police were notified and a patrol officer had been on the trace of the teen- agers.

Then shortly after midnight there was a long distance telephone call from Toronto. The police sergeant there notified local officers they had picked up the young teen-agers from Belleville. The names corresponded and arrangements were made to have them brought back to their homes.

Canada's Fighting Fish Portrayed In Colored Film

The fighting fish of Canada in their native habitats from Nova Scotia to British Columbia are vividly portrayed in the colored film "Famous Fish I Have Known" being shown at the Belle Theatre today and Wednesday.

Pike and pickerel, the fighting "muscy", the variegated trout and other piscatorial beauties for which Canada is famous are pictured in the film, ranging in size from the water in battling fury after long and tense struggle.

A feature of the film is the delightful narrating given by one of Canada's outstanding feature writers and a fisherman of repute, Gregory Clark.

"Greg" carries a fine sequence of informative talk freely interspersed with his own inimitable humor. He frequently refers to a "little man" in the film who is always in the way. The identity of this "intruder" is a delightful denouement to theflim. It is a must for fishermen of the city.

ANAF Strengthens Top Position In Darts League

The Army, Navy, Air Force Veterans Association further grip on first place in the Belleville Services Darts League at the six weekly games last night when they defeated the Fallwell Supply Company and by an 8-5 score. The win puts the ANAF well out in front of the pack.

Canadian National Railways Veterans had a close series of matches with the Hasty Pees and eventually came out on top of a 6-5 count.

In the other match, also a close series of games, the Bell Anti-Tank Regt. clung to its second place spot in the league standing with a narrow 7-6 victory over the Brewers' Warehouse team.

IN MEMORIAM

GIBBS — In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Gibbs, who passed away November 8, 1946.
Sweet is the peace the broken hearted find in silence kept and tears confined.
For the loved one gone before
We shall see the grief is removed.
Though the smile may hide the tears
Memories keep the heart in chains.
Despite the passing of the years.
Sadly remembered by daughters Vera and Phyllis, sons-in-law Archie and families.

WOODBECK — In loving memory of our dear father, Samuel Woodbeck, who passed away 10 years ago, November 8, 1939.
The love I loved is now laid low
His loving voice is still.
The hand so often clasped in mine
Lies now in death's cold chill.
Dear father, you left us all
When I am alone I recall
For memory is the only thing
That grief can not steal.
Ever remembered by his wife and family.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 8. (CP)— Industrials continued climbing into new high ground on the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Activity slowed to a crawl but gains ranging from fractions to a full point were scattered over the industrial board.

Golds tended slightly lower and base metals and western oils held steady.

Volume for the first four hours was 801,000,000 shares, about 162,000 shares less than Monday's similar period.

The slow advance in industrials carried the list to the highest price level in four years. Standard Paving and Powell River sold at new highs following year end extra dividends. Gains were chalked up despite lack of direction from New York where the market is closed for elections.

McIntyre sold at a new high in senior golds before settling. Some pressure in mid-session pushed several junior producers into the minus column.

Osisko featured base metals, climbing steadily in brisk dealings. Key issues were down fractions. Western oils showed signs of continuing Monday's advance that carried them to the highest level in 13 years, but settled into a narrow rut under profit taking sales.

Groves Says U.S. Lost A-Bomb Secret in 1946

Newark, N. J., Nov. 8 (AP)— The wartime head of the American project says the United States lost it's "biggest ace," secrecy of the Atom bomb, in 1946.

Maj. Gen. Leslie R. Groves said Monday night the atom bomb gave the "ability to bargain with the Russians."

The United States lost that in 1946, Groves added, "when Dean Acheson, then undersecretary of State, released a report made to him by David Lillienthal, head of the Atomic Energy Commission.

"The Russians got their hands on that report—and we lost our bargaining secrecy.

Butter Jumps 2 cts. Pound at Toronto

Toronto, Nov. 8—(CP)—Retail price of butter jumped two cents to 66 cents a pound here today and a dairy spokesman predicted it will go up another cent "in the near future."

The source said the hoist was due to a normal, seasonal drop in production and the federal government's announcement last week of plans to unload its stock of about 60,000,000 pounds at 60½ cents a pound. Previously, the government had set prices to wholesalers was 59 cents a pound.

He said wholesalers were unable to stock up during the summer when prices were cheaper, bought surplus butter at 58 cents a pound in order to keep the price from dropping.

Norway Maples For Replacement Arrive In City

The shipment of young Norway maples ordered by city council for replacement of older trees cut from city streets, has arrived in the city and the trees are available for planting.

The cutting of older and diseased trees in various parts of the city has been the cause of alarm by certain members of the city council who claimed that soon the city would lose its name for beautiful streets lined with luxurious shade trees.

Residents wishing trees planted to replace ones that have been cut or for planting in new areas are asked to contact City Engineer Charles Mott, or Alderman Bruce Lattimer, chairman of the council tree planting committee.

Extreme interest is centred on the opening game between the CNR Diesels and Northern Electric in the first game of the Carlton Flyers and 6 R. D. in the second.

THREE SURVIVORS

"That man was William, who although crippled by an earlier air crash, badly shaken, and in need of food and rest, kept the little party of survivors alive by his efforts," Lt. Mayer said.

"It was William who did not even expect to find them alive. When the injured men saw him they stumbled towards us crying with joy, and talking like children when they saw their parents for weeks. Yet these men were invariably tired, kept the Bride of Three Hours

Matachewan, Ont. (CP)—Mrs. Val Clemens said in an interview today she was a bride of three hours when her husband left on a prospecting trip in northwestern Quebec's mining country where he died.

Now she is waiting for his burned, lifeless body, found Monday in the wreckage of a Norseman aircraft that crashed 75 miles northeast of Rouyn Nov. 3.

Mrs. Clemens said she didn't know her husband was on the plane until told Sunday by a reporter. She learned of his death Monday night through a phone call to Gold Belt Airways, Rouyn, owners of the plane.

"We were married Aug. 8 at 8 a.m. and left on the 11 o'clock train for the trip," she said. She received a letter from her husband at the beginning of October, saying he expected to return at the end of the month.

She said she believed her husband was en route home when the plane crashed.

Matachewan is 80 miles west of Kirkland Lake.

Ald. O. Lloyd Gives Talk On City Council

The present system of holding city council committee meetings wherein only members of a particular committee sit in is perferred to the former system under which all council members attended committee meetings.

This feeling was expressed Monday evening by Alderman Orliff Lloyd in an address to members of the local Kinsmen club on municipal affairs. The talk by Alderman Lloyd was the first of a series of "classification" addresses that members of the Kinsmen club will give before the club.

Alderman Lloyd urged all young men should show interest in civic life and assist "education" received by a young man entering municipal life was reason worth while, "You learn to be tolerant and get to understand your fellow colleagues," he said.

Serves On Two

The speaker pointed out that each Alderman under the present system of municipal government was called upon to serve on at least two committees. These committees were under separate chairmanships and met independently of other members of council. Recommendations passed in committee were then tabled for ratification at the next general meeting of council.

"I feel that the present system is much better because it cuts out interference from citizens and from ward heelers," stated Mr. Lloyd. "It puts the onus on members to use their own brains instead of listening to John Doaks."

The alderman stated that under the previous system recommendations passed in committee were frequently defeated in open council.

$2m§ Spend Money

Alderman Lloyd admitted that the present council was spending money but pointed out that Belleville was going ahead and to do this a city must spend money.

He said the present assessment of the city was nearly fourteen and a half millions and had the second greatest industrial expansion of any city of its size in Ontario. Also there were only three cities in Ontario with a lower tax rate. Taxes levied last year amounted only to $36.79 per capita which was the 4th lowest in Ontario. Population increase had been close to 4,000 in the past five years.

Industrial payroll in the city had almost doubled in the past five years. The ten payroll was $4,300,000 while today it was $8,-250,000. "All in all we need not be ashamed of the fair city of Belleville," he concluded.

Harold Griffin, Northern Electric employee was also called upon to give a classification address. He briefly outlined his remarks to personal introduction and then made two suggestions which he felt would better the Kinsmen club.

Critical of Attendance

He suggested that club attendance be based on attendance at projects, rather than at club meetings and also thought that a time limit on club meetings would be beneficial.

Other business matters, including the proposed club community swimming pool project, were brought up for discussion. Highlights of progress on the swimming pool project were given by the project chairman Cleo Colling.

President Ernie Colebourne presided over the meeting. Entertainment during the dinner meeting was provided by Walter Taylor, Fred Stone, vocalist Mary Lennon and the Rhythm Ranch Riders.

COMBINE-CHASER QUITS

F. A. McGregor, 61-year-old federal combines commissioner, has resigned with a warning that price-fixing combines have been developing to an "alarming degree" since the war. In correspondence with Justice Minister Garson tabled in the Commons, he indicated disapproval of government policy in combines investigations. — (CP Photo.)

Fireman Climbs In Upper Window To Open Door

Members of the city fire department were called out late Monday evening to assist a damsel in distress who found herself locked from her residence on Chatham Street. Firemen set up a ladder to an upstairs window with one of the firemen crawling through to open the door from the inside.

Shortly after midnight firemen were called to Front Street in front of Symons tobacco store where a container of garbage was reported afire. A passerby who carelessly tossed a cigarette was believed responsible for the blaze.

UE Workers Pass Vote Of Confidence

A meeting of workers of Belleville Lock Co. Ltd., of this city, members of Local 533 United Electrical Radio and Machine Workers of America, last night passed a vote of confidence in the international and district officers and resolved "to remain within the parent organization which has been responsible for the many improvements in wages and working conditions in our industry." Also to "reject the intensive attempts by unfounded red-baiting to confuse and divide our ranks."

The meeting was addressed by Canadian President C. S. Jackson who came here from Peterborough and reported that injunctions had been issued in the United States to restrain the dissidents from UE policy from using a name similar to the UE for the purpose of confusion.

He also reported large support against the secessionists in Peterborough, that Mr. Jack Morton, ex-president of the Peterborough local is meeting with very little success and that the great bulk of membership are sticking with their union.

HELP ERADICATE TB

It is only 49 years ago since tuberculosis was the first cause of death in Canada. It is difficult to believe that today after the determined efforts to battle the disease which have been put forth by health societies it should in such a brief period of time be ousted from its preeminence as a killer to become the seventh. But even yet too many die of this dread malady. In fact it still remains the chief cause of death of persons in those very important years between fifteen and forty-five in which so much of life's work is accomplished.

This is the challenge facing the people of this time to do the utmost to remove this as a cause of death of so many people, which is a very severe drain on the life of the nation.

It is the duty of everyone for his or her own sake and for the sake of others, and for the sake of the nation that this disease be removed as a cause of death of so many.

AGAIN PERSIA

Persia, known in modern days as Iran, is becoming Persia again. That is not an extraordinary decision to make for ancient Persia was one of the mightiest states in the far ancient world. In its hey-day ancient Persia once meant an empire that stretched from the Indus to the Danube from the Oxus to the Nile and on the shore of the Narrows in the Dardanelles, a great king once sat on a marble throne at Abydos and poured a libation from a gold cup into the Hellespont as his Persian Immortals led the way across the bridge of boats to the intended conquest of Athens.

Mystery wraps the beginnings of such states as Persia but there is enough evidence to show that the ancient Persians were Aryans or Indo-Iranians. However at what period of history they began their migration cannot be determined though the records show that it was at least before 1400 B.C. Some have claimed that the migrations took a long stretch of years to accomplish — over thousands of years, beginning from 2000 or 2500 B.C. They are generally believed to have been the first of the Iranians to come as far as the Persian Gulf and to be the first of the Aryan group to adopt civilization and practise monotheism.

One bit of fame attaches to them for which the modern civilization has a right to feel a deep obligation to these people once so remote as time — they introduced the horse to civilization.

Where the Persians dwelt appears to have been a territory which was vastly different from what it is today. There rose civilizations in that part of the world — an epoch perhaps the greatest in many ways in all man's life on this planet for there flourished the flower of rising civilization.

Persia has been before the world's eyes since before the time she started on that momentous failure which brought her down, when she tried to conquer the great outpost of the rising civilization of the west—Greece. At a later date Persia fell to the most brilliant of world conquerors, the young Alexander the Great.

After more than two milleniums Persia (or Iran as it has been) is again before the world.

THE ATMOSPHERE WE BREATHE

As we are about to enter the winter season the following remark from the Department of Health Information Service is something which might well be taken to heart by every one. It is this: "Keep the atmosphere in which you live from overheating, from stagnant atmosphere which by lack of invigoration makes for irritability and encourages colds. It makes ventilation difficult because entering air seems chilling by comparison. Working in rooms at abnormally high temperatures causes dried and sallow skin, nose, throat and chest troubles and a decrease of appetite. Health in Canada is a personal affair. Make sure your health is adequately protected.

IMPULSES

It has been observed that the world owes its onward impulses to men and women who are "ill at ease." The ease that is just another form of idleness is not the "summum bonum" (chief good) it appears to be to the thriftless. It is actually "dis-ease," for activity is a characteristic of health, by which one's destiny is joyfully fulfilled. If any reluctance is felt towards the performance of school work, a determined effort should be made to overcome it, for it depends very much upon the attitude of a young person towards study what the future course of his or her life will be. Enter into the task with zeal, and it brings a sense of satisfaction; engage upon it with distaste, and the result must fall short of expectations.

The twin keys to unlock the doors to progress are enthusiasm and industry. They are within reach of every one. Let young people see to it that, at the beginning of this new school year, they make full use of them.—Hamilton Spectator.

JUST FOLKS

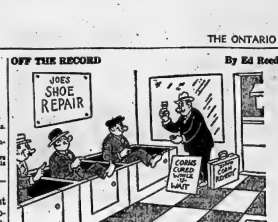
RAIMENT

His coat was worn and old,
Too thin and frayed
To shield him from the cold;
Past any tailor's aid.

He tossed the wrap aside;
Put on a better one.
'Twas just the coat had died.
The man stayed living on.

This garb of flesh we wear,
Sturdy at first and whole,
Grows, with life's stress and tear
Too frail to shield the soul.

Past mortal skill to mend,
Strength for all service gone,
Raiment Time cannot rend
The spirit then takes on.



"Why so, Joe—I thought he was a friend of yours."

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

Some young friends of mine who have small children have solved the baby sitter problem in a unique fashion.

They live in residential block in which they live are two other couples, also young, with one child of two years of age; the other with two children, 18 months and 3 months old.

It is the mother of the sole two-year old who really deserves the credit for the invention. She belonged to a Tuesday evening bridge club that meant a great deal to her.

"You keep my child Tuesday afternoons," she proposed to the young woman living next door, "and I'll keep yours any other day of the week. . . ."

The plan worked. In no time at all, it became a regular weekly fixture. The third young mother was shortly initiated. And now these three young women have a routine of the most extraordinary character. They keep each other's children, turn about, two whole days a week. The children are brought over to the house, whose turn it is to be nursery for that day, shortly after nine o'clock; and that mother declines herself to minding babies all that day until 5 p.m. The other two mothers have the day to shop, play golf, or do whatever they can never do. And as far as minding the children is concerned, it is no more trouble to look after four or five than it is to mind one or two. We become somewhat kindergarten teachers . . .

As for night baby sitters, they can be hired. It is the problem of the day-time baby sitter that makes young motherhood a bit more formidable for our girls brought up in these free and easy times.

Gandhi's Killers Will be Executed Week From Today

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

One week from today the law of India is scheduled to exact the death penalty on the gallows from two Hindus who murdered a nation on Jan. 30, 1948, of Mohandas Gandhi, one of the greatest spiritual leaders of all time.

If any one ought to be hanged, surely that fate should befall Narayan V. Godse, who fired the fatal shots, and his fellow conspirator Narayan B. Apte. Theirs was a crime which not only India but the world at large cannot forgive.

By all odds they should be punished. Still, as one who knew the saintly little Mahatma, I believe if he could make his wishes known he would say that the sentences of death be commuted.

Indeed, Gandhi rendered his personal verdict even as he died. He was walking across the lawn of his prayer meeting grounds in New Delhi, to attend a gathering of his followers, when the assassin struck.

As the 78-year-old Mahatma felt the impact of two or more bullets he raised his hand in the Hindu sign of forgiveness.

That is what would be done today, were he alive. I once was told me that his greatest inspiration for his Christ's Sermon on the Mount. This being the attitude of a life-long exponent of non-violence, one wonders whether the Indian government will pay any heed to the clamor for hangings, and commute the sentences to imprisonment.

Should any move of this sort be made it would have to be initiated officially by Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru, who would act on any recommendation made by Nehru and his cabinet. An appeal for a new trial already has been rejected by the Privy Council.

It will be interesting to see what happens.

5,000 Laundrymen Bring 800 Machines To This Convention

Kansas City, Nov. 8. (AP)— There won't be any dirty shirts at this convention.

Nearly 5,000 laundrymen from the United States, Canada and seven foreign countries are sure of that when they opened the 52nd annual convention of the American Institute of Laundering Sunday night.

They have their clothes cleaned and show the public how they do it—they brought along 800 laundry machines, weighing 8,000,000 pounds and worth $500,000.

The delegates are invited to bring in their soiled linen for demonstration washing—free.

Crying of Child Saves Eight From Coal Gas Fumes

Toronto, Nov. 8. (CP)— A crying baby saved eight persons from asphyxiation by coal gas fumes today in a west-end house.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Bergie, got up to see why baby son, Hyman, was crying. They collapsed in the fumes.

An upstairs neighbor, Mrs. Sylvia Horowitz, came downstairs to help. She managed to stagger to the phone before being overcome.

Firemen said "we found unconscious bodies all over the place. We used the inhalator for 40 minutes."

Mrs. Horowitz said "we all owe our lives to little Hymie."

Kandahar, Afghanistan — Condemned Zahir Shah, Sam Merlotti of Everett, Wash., had an extra guest for dinner recently — His executioner, a visiting Afghanistan.

Sam, who has cooked from Ketchikan, Alaska, to Saudi Arabia, usually feeds Morrison-Knudsen construction workers. But when he was asked to prepare the royal dinner for touring King Mohammed Zahir Shah, Sam went right to work.

The king, who had looked strange to Afghan eyes—coat turkey, and pie with a flaky crust. His Majesty and his retainers did not hesitate.

"Real nice fellow, that King," said a proud server," Sam said later. "Durned if he didn't eat four drumsticks and three pieces of pie."

The comfort didn't last long. He said two other men held him up as he continued on his way home and got the $19.50.

THE APOTHEOSIS OF VITAMIN BUNK

Interesting column in Sunday paper was devoted to a half page on the personal decorations and achievements of the doctor and among other things, declared the reporter, the doctor is "credited with abolishing such nutritional deficiency as pellagra and scurvy in the South"—and the doctor, head of the column reported some of the effects the doctor has obtained from the "new miracle vitamins," called vitamin B-12. "Some of the audience of doctors and medical students gasped" at all this the newspaper line says.

What! Only gasped? Medical students might reasonably express amazement like that. But doctors should remain imperturbable, especially doctors who are guilty of bilking their gullible customers with such "boosh" for doesn't such Barnumesque publicity bring more suckers to the office for more feeding by the office girl who dresses like a nurse and rings up $3 to $5 a shot from the victim.

According to the newspaper story the doctor gave the credit a bit of the "new miracle vitamin," related with amazement in fact, to a man with pernicious anemia. While four days the man's anemia synonym was vanishing the red cell count was up to normal!

Perhaps that shocked gasping the audience enough. At any rate, the newspaper story continues, the doctor then told of a woman with nutritional deficiency who had been considered practically incurable for the insane. After twelve hours the institution's report on woman was given a wee, wee bit of B-12, and by now you probably guessed, "she was discharged four days—she was sent home. That's all, folks." Some one, for what condition, the doctor, or maybe the reporter, did not indicate.

And still the audience of doctors and medical students are there like a lot of—doctors and medical students.

Well! The professor finally used his clincher. He exhibited X-ray pictures of a patient with enlarged heart; first a picture before the patient received vitamin B-12 which showed the heart back to normal!

Without saying so this report conveys the impression that the "new miracle vitamin" abolishes pernicious anemia, insanity and pathological enlargement (hypertrophy and/or dilatation) of the heart in four days.

On the face of it that is sheer bunk.

I can't conceive what advantage the doctor can derive from such Barnumesque publicity. I have followed his work in the field of nutrition with interest and admiration, and I have quoted him in this column many times. I hope that this Barnumesque report was not voluntary on his part, but just a bungling attempt on the part of the medical scribe to make the doctor spoke to "educate the public."

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

HERE IS THE PLACE NOW IS THE TIME

When Jesus began to preach His message was: "The kingdom of heaven is at hand;" not "The kingdom of heaven is coming;" but "The kingdom of heaven is here." The riches we are looking for are lying at our feet. There is no more glorious place on earth than the place where you are now standing. There are no greater opportunities than the opportunities confronting us right at this very moment.

The roving eye and the restless heart are the cause of much unhappiness in this world. Start living right where you are. Be assured that the ground on which you stand is holy ground and that the common bush along the pathway of your life is aflame with divine fire, if you will but turn aside to see it.

LIFE BEGINS AT FORTY

"Life Begins at Forty." A man wrote a book about that some years ago. On Saturday nights many folks are heard on the theme, "Life begins at Eighty."

As a matter of fact, life begins for you, and it begins right where we happen to be. Those distant fields are green, and the windows of the house on the faraway hill look as if they are made of gold. But that is only an appearance. The field right here is just as green as the field in the distance, and our widows would appear golden if we stood somewhere else and looked back upon them when they are flooded with the late afternoon sun.

Worth Repeating

Ellis county was "the kingdom of heaven is at hand;" not "The kingdom of heaven is coming;" but "The kingdom of heaven is here." The riches we are looking for are lying at our feet. There is no more glorious place on earth than the place where you are now standing. There are no greater opportunities than the opportunities confronting us right at this very moment.

The roving eye and the restless heart are the cause of much unhappiness in this world. Start living right where you are. Be assured that the ground on which you stand is holy ground and that the common bush along the pathway of your life is aflame with divine fire, if you will but turn aside to see it.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE GREATEST COLLECTOR

Little do we realize how great a collector is the mind of ours. It can become a veritable storehouse for knowledge that any of us can use. It is a pity that so much it continues to collect. And no two minds ever collect the same, so that every mind is unique in itself.

We constantly keep collecting unconsciously. We are influenced by everything we see and hear, though we do not use it at the time. That is why it is so important to form a taste for good reading, to make friends with those who inspire and stimulate, and to cultivate a creative mind. You will never run short of space in the mind of memories.

Stefan Zweig once wrote a beautiful story of a German collector of etchings, entitled "The Invisible Collection." This man had one of the finest Rembrandt collections in Germany, but later he became blind so that he could no longer see them, but he would take out his collection and run his fingers over the prints and tell his friends about each. Things got tough, however, and the collector had to sell or handle, dispose of most of them for food, and he spoke thanks in their place. The lover of these prints never knew the difference, for he had all their beauty locked in his mind as well as in his portfolio, so that they were to him never lost.

Our choicest memories are among the most precious of all that we collect, and store within our mind. We go to them time and time again, as we go to some inspiring book in our library, or to some beautiful picture that we can meditate upon them. Thus is this mind a collector of memories.

Build and foster all of its creative life would be if we could only remember the things of today! Where then would be our great writer, lecturers and teachers? Only as we collect ideas, information, and even friends, do we become well rounded in living. It's the storing away of experiences and knowledge in the mind. And every day it's a sort them out and put them safely away for later enjoyment.

SQUIRRELS CAUSE PANIC

Niagara Falls, Nov. 8 — (CP) — A householder here doesn't mind black squirrels in his yard, but he draws the line at entering them in his home. Recently squirrels got into his living room and knocked over an end table, everything moveable. A few days later, another of the animals got into the kitchen and moved the plate rail, smashing a cup and saucer which had been a wedding gift 30 years ago.

CHARGE OVER-PRICING

Washington, Nov. 8 — (AP)— Housing Expediter Tighe Woods said Sunday that $3,068,592 in cash or adjustments has been obtained for veterans in the United States who complained about houses they had bought. The complaints charged over-pricing or failure to meet minimum engineering specifications. They were built under the Veterans Housing Emergency Housing Program.

Two-vote Margin

Jack McNie, 29, Hamilton advertising executive, was elected president of the Young Progressive Conservatives , by a two-vote margin over Wallace Nesbitt, 30, Woodstock lawyer, who was chosen later as first vice-president. Mr. McNie succeeds Ted Conover of Brampton.

The three-hour election meeting for the Association's slate of officers was full of campaign fireworks and heated verbal battles. The Nesbitt delegates lined a noisy, placard-waving campaign. The McNie forces displayed only lapel badges.

The election of Mr. McNie was immediately challenged by Margaret Scales of Toronto who charged "someone used a ballot book from a riding which he is not, and never has been, a member." Mr. Nesbitt, who polled 113 votes, settled the issue by moving the election be made unanimous.

Later, during the election of vice-president, Otto Lindsay of North Bay rose to a point of order and charged Northern Ontario delegates were not being given a fair deal in the voting that it was "all Toronto." Chairman David Fulton, Progressive Conservative federal member for Kamloops, B. C., suggested announcing the hometown of each candidate might straighten out the situation and Mr. Lindsay concurred. He was elected sixth vice-president.

Of the 14 positions, 12 went to Southern Ontario delegates, including four Toronto members.

Other Officers Named

Other officers included: Secretary, Mary Skeana, Toronto; treasurer, George Hogan, Toronto; vice-presidents, Wallace Nesbitt (acclamation); Fred Peel, South Waterloo; Edward Ruston, Renfrew; Frank Green, Port Arthur; Alf McAllister, London; Otto Lindsay; Mrs. Rosemary Harris, Toronto; Gordon Stewart, Windsor; A. J. Stewart, Ottawa; auditors, John Jasperson, Essex South; and Dr. William Buth, Toronto.

Premier Frost, addressing the youth section, urged delegates to take an interest in public affairs through their party and to undertake the organization of an association in every riding.

"Give your country the benefit of your personality, your vision and your ideals," he advised. "I asked you to go out and interest people far and wide in your cause."

A resolution asking that the liquor laws be amended to prohibit sale of liquor in dining lounges was defeated but 10 other resolutions were adopted. They included raising the salaries of school teachers, co-operation with the federal government in providing scholarships for needy university students, asking for establishment of an historical sites commission calling for enlargement of the department of publicity and information and for a distinctive Canadian flag.

PERSISTENCE

Three years ago, says Miss Tothe, she saw a reproduction of the painting in a magazine. That confirmed her belief that the canvas was valuable. Her friends weren't nearly so impressed.

"I was so excited," she admits, "that I took it down and hid it." Miss Pentland made her a gift of the canvas.

With her friends still skeptical Miss Tothe set out to determine once and for all whether her hunch was right.

She went to New York and visited art galleries and dealers' shops to determine how many Titians there were in that city. She found no copy of hers. On future New York trips, she had no luck on identification of her canvas.

But last Sept. 25 Miss Tothe took it to Chapellier, the man who cleaned and restored Gainsborough's famous "Blue Boy." Without hesitation, Miss Tothe says, Mr. Chapellier realized her painting was valuable.

After careful examination, he said he was convinced it came from Titian's studio. He now is ferrying it; Miss Tothe expects it to be returned soon.

The canvas, still on the original stretcher, Mr. Chapellier says is a 20-by-25-inch portrait of Lavinia, Titian's daughter.

"Soap and water. . .have never found much favor in these parts. Such a thing as a hot bath—one of life's greatest solaces—is looked upon by nearly all the inhabitants as a piece of nonsense, wholly unnecessary. . .

"In these communities sexual life begins early. Girls have scarcely left school when pregnancy sets in."

James Grant, editor of the Stornoway Gazette, a western isle newspaper, has challenged the author's criticisms.

He challenged macgregor to say when and where there had ever been a boisterous or irreverent funeral in Lewis or Harris, the author's criticisms.

"The Danger", Grant declared, "is that the book may be accepted as true by those who have no opportunity of checking its statements."

A CLUSTER OF SMALL TREES

They stood all Summer clothed in green,
Beside my garden fair
And served a screen from passers-by
But made no picture rare;
But now beneath November snow—
They're clothed in radiant hues,
Of green and gold, crimson and bronze—
A sight for all to view.

A sight to gladden heart and eye
The picture they now show,
Their beauty gives the heart a thrill
When earth is gray below;
So like, methinks, to carefree youth,
Absorbed in self and gain,
Revealing naught of love and truth
Till touched by grief and pain.

INDIAN SUMMER

The sunlit fields, all brown and bare,
The twinkling waters of the stream,
The purple haze, the amber light
That lure us to the realm of dream.
Weave round our hearts a magic spell,
A spell of restful quietude—
The spirit of the summer past
Brooding o'er lake and hill and wood.

So, when life's summer days are past
And age comes like the withered leaf,
Youth's roses faded, torn and dead,
Life's harvest like ripe corn in sheaf,
Hearts may retain the light and glow,
The spirit of the summers dead.
As Indian Summer smiles to show
The glory of the days long sped.
—Helen B. Anderson.

At time of writing, Thursday, November 3rd, all are enjoying beautiful weather. Although the trees have lost most of their foliage, and gardens are bare and empty, The lake is sparkling in the sun, and chrysanthemums are blooming here and there. The ladies of the W.A. of the United Church entertained at an afternoon tea in the town hall last Thursday. The tables centered with vases of flowers, and the room decorated with pumpkin faces and other reminders of Hallowe'en. The president, Mrs. B. Wilkins, with able assistants, waited on the guests. The town hall was at one time the Methodist school, and the old battered door gives evidence of the vigorous attacks of those days. Now, an old school room seems to hold the spirit of the past, and as I enjoyed the tea, it seemed that the joyful laughter and chatter of purils was hovering near.

The Manor House, seems lonely and deserted, as Mrs. (Dr.) Garratt, the owner, who spends summers here, left last week to spend the winter in the United States with a sister. A fine notice, recently erected, tells in beautiful gold letters that the Manor House, the oldest house in the village, was erected in 1788 by the pioneer Daniel Reynolds. All hope to welcome Mrs. Garratt on her return in the spring.

Anniversary services in Wellington United Church on Sunday were well attended. Rev. A. E. Pastor, Rev. W. J. H. Smyth, M.A., B.D., of Parkhill, Ontario, conducted the services assisted by the resident pastor, Rev. J. P. Lane. While here Mr. Smyth was a guest at the parsonage, and also visited Mr. and Mrs. G. Taylor.

Money Not The Secret of Chic

A simple blouse, such as this one of white jersey, is always in good taste, says Movie Star Maria Ferrer. . . . Wear with matching or contrasting skirt.

By HELEN FOLLETT

MANY girls have an idea that, with a big fat balance in the check book, they could be a lady of fashion. Money helps, no doubt about it. It's nice to have around the house at any time. Yet there are women who cling money like crazy, have more frocks than they can wear and an array of hats big enough to start a store, but they always look dowdy. They do not make the grade. You can guess the reasons —they lack good taste and do not give enough attention to grooming.

With a flare for clothes any woman can pick up some good buys these days. The smart one will seek simple designs in millinery as well as frocks and coats. A well cut dress of good material, with almost no ornamentation at all will out-class the fussy over-decorated one every time. A neat belt and some costume jewelery and the wearer rates high.

Little Things Count

And don't forget that the little things count! A bit of powder and a touch of lipstick, a slap-dash manner. Lip borders are siggy or the teeth have picked up some of the red pigment, or the color is too vivid. Plenty of subjects to be kept in mind.

Old Country Letter:

'State' School Teachers Getting Set to Renew Fight for Increases

By H. L. JONES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Thousands of teachers in Britain's "state" schools are getting set to renew their fight for increased salaries and allowances. They mean to press the issue to a finish.

Last July the National Union of Teachers, which embraces most of the estimated 200,000 teachers in schools run by local authorities, applied for a flat increase of £150 ($468) annually. There were some conferences and the discussions were then adjourned until late November.

Teachers in Britain's public (U.K., Private) schools are not affected by these claims. There the masters work on a previously-agreed salary paid by the school.

Discontent in Ranks

The N.U.T. claims to have a good case. It says a good many of its teachers are making considerably less than the national average minimum wage of £7 a week.

The union says there is discontent in teaching ranks. It has not mentioned the possibility of a strike, but in one or two places local feeling has made itself felt.

In Glasgow, for instance, the city faces a crisis. Glasgow's more than 8,000 teachers, handling some 174,000 children, are discussing a strike unless they get a flat increase of £5 a week.

Keep Children Home

Thousands of parents in Glasgow are holding meetings and planning to keep their children from school unless the education authority gets busy building new classrooms and modernizing existing ones.

The authority is already paying out more than £2,300,000 annually on its services. It says it can't afford to pay teachers more and that it is doing all it can to improve school conditions. In addition, it claims, it needs more teachers.

Teacher salary scales in Britain are complex. They range from a starting rate of £300 a year for men and £270 for women, less five per cent for superannuation.

Pay by Degrees

There are increments for teachers with university degrees, ranging up to £60 for men with first-class honors. But teachers say these rates are not enough in the face of rising living costs.

In addition, teachers claim the treasury should give them an income tax concession to cover the cost of buying books, supplies and periodicals which they need to keep up to date.

Battle is Brief, Pekinese Killed, Victor Impounded

The little Pekinese squared up bravely to what must have seemed a monster dog, part collie and part police. There was an angry exchange of growls and hostilities commenced.

The battle was brief and could have only one possible ending. The police dog grabbed the little Peke. There was quick scuffle, a violent shake and the little fellow lay still in death, his neck broken.

But justice may still be done. The big dog is now under arrest at the home of city dog catcher Thomas Thorne and efforts are being made to establish his owner. The police dog has no collar nor tag. The owner of the brave little Pekinese is Mrs. Betty Lodsman, South Pinnacle Street.

The little dog met his doom when he accompanied his mistress on a Sunday afternoon visit in a strange neighborhood.

Murder Verdict Set Aside by Appeal Court

Toronto, Nov. 8 (CP) — The Ontario Court of appeals today quashed a murder conviction against Clarence Sandry sentenced at Welland last Sept. 23 to hang Ontario Court of appeals Monday Harold Sandry, 19-year-old high school student from Buffalo, N.Y.

The Appeals Court found the 23-year-old laborer of Humberstone Village, near Welland, guilty of manslaughter and sentenced him to 20 years in penitentiary. Saendry had been sentenced to hang Dec. 7.

Saendry said at his trial he had been drinking heavily and "blacked out" last May 14 when he shot and killed the Buffalo youth. Also wounded in the shooting affray at Pleasant Beach was Szeziky's companion, Joseph Lloyd Angelo, of Buffalo.

Szeziky and Joseph were reported a winner-roast party of Buffalo students.

J. J. Robinette, K.C., appelant's counsel, in asking for the murder verdict to be set aside, said he had also gin which Szendry had been drinking, had "very peculiar properties and consumption of almost a bottle results in a most vicious effect."

He said Szendry was normally a "very quiet person," but that on this one night he was acting "phenomenally."

Chief Justice Robertson said the longer a man is kept from 20 years and set aside the conviction of murder on the special facts of this case. He did not elaborate on the "special facts."

Wage Increases May be Sought By T.L.C. Unions

Ottawa, Nov. 8—(CP)—Trades and labor congress unions may seek new wage increases as a result of higher rents and a possibly-higher cost of living resulting from dollar devaluation.

T. L. C. president Percy Bengough said Monday each member unions make their own policies on wage demands.

But any increase in living costs "automatically makes them think in that direction," he told a press conference, held to introduce Gordon G. Cushing, new secretary-treasurer of the congress, to Ottawa reporters.

Mr. Cushing, 36, was formerly secretary of the Calgary Trades and Labor Council and secretary-treasurer of the Alberta Federation of Labor.

Against Communism

Mr. Bengough said provincial labor federations and district labor councils had been following up "quite rapidly" a resolution passed at the T.L.C. annual meeting recommending that Communists be removed from executive positions.

The Winnipeg district Trades and Labor Council had already acted approved of a by-law which would make delegates from affiliated unions sign a declaration that they are not members of the Communist Party.

The proposed by-law must first be approved by the T.L.C. executive. Mr. Bengough declined to speculate whether it would be approved.

Mr. Bengough also said he "regretted" the resignation of F. A. McGregor, federal combines commissioner and said Mr. McGregor had done a "good job" in the post.

SHANNONVILLE Visiting Clergy, Choir Feature All Saints Day at Trinity Church

Shannonville — A large congregation attended a most interesting and reverent All Saints' Day service in Holy Trinity Anglican church on Tuesday evening. Clergymen present on this occasion were the Rev. J. Grant Sparling, of Christ Church, Belleville, and the Rev. Mr. Becker, of Adolphustown, who assisted the rector, the Rev. E. M. Caldwell, in this service.

A special feature of the service was the presence of twenty-six of the members of Christ Church male choir, who contributed very fine selections under the leadership of their choir master, Mr. Arthur Simpson. Mr. Dana Cooke, Christ Church organist presided at the organ. Christ Church should be proud of their choir. It is understood the boys practise from two to three hours each week and that there is always a "waiting list" to share the same. The young boy soprano deserve special comment for their excellent efforts.

During the service the choir rendered three selections "God Be in My Head", "Teach Me O Lord, the Way of Thy Statutes" and "The Twenty-Third Psalm" (Brother James Air).

Mr. Sparling, the precentor and led in the singing of the 148th and 150th Psalms and the Prayers for the evening.

Mr. Caldwell read the first Scripture Lesson based on the wisdom of Solomon.

The second lesson taken from John 5 was read by Mr. Secker

The rector expressed thanks to Mr. Sparling, Mr. Secker, to the choir master, organist, and choir for being present for this service.

Inspiring Message

Mr. Secker was the guest speaker. He inquired how many present considered themselves saints. Often conception of "saintliood" is wrong because it is thought that holy faces and holes have no contact with earthly things. A saint does not live apart from the world altogether, but is devoted to God and His service in this present world, and tries to live His creed.

Christianity in a life to be lived not just a faith, on belief, stated the speaker. All are striving to live the faith, but are called to be saints; all creeds have the same fundamental principle. God is tri-une. He creates, redeems, sanctifies and gives power."

One of the greatest tasks of the church is the creation of a better world, out of the present one and every Christian has a part to play.

"If we believe in the power of the Spirit we should witness to others, of the fire and holiness of this creed," said the speaker. "By our zeal, power fire, and holiness we witness for the church and Christ. Created, converted, on fire for Christ, will mean a revolution in our lives. We should live in the world, but not of the world, although the Christian does not need to be a prig or a prude, but a real live Christian. Because many church members are different to bed at home or in the world" asked Mr. Secker. In olden days they witnessed to others their belief and were not afraid to oppose and correct. There is much in modern life the Christian should oppose."

Too Much Wasted Time

Mr. Secker stated that "there are too much time wasted in which knowledge could be stored up. Too few read Christian church literature to find out all about their belief. We need to consecrate our time because we were redeemed by the blood of Jesus: Today there is a lot of "congealed blood" in Christ's followers. The weakness of the Christian church is not caused by so-called converted people have been re-born. The problem of the church will not be solved until we have more converted people. Converted from a "laissez-faire" point of view to an enthusiastic one. Let us pray all before I. We are living in an age when something of this sort must take place if the world is to be saved.

Continuing, the speaker added, "we must re-create ourselves, our families, our country, and so the world. Christ came to re-create. If we are followers, we must create something better. We must have more learned laity. Nicodemus came stealthily by night to get information so must we in order to do more work."

The speaker summed up his most interesting sermon with the thought that we should rebuke all which we see is wrong, thus witnessing to our creed. If only we would live our creed what an influence this Christian Church would have in the world"

The Rev. E. M. Caldwell pronounced the benediction. After the service the choir, clergy and friends were entertained to a luncheon at the rectory by the members of the Ladies' Guild.

American Housewives in Germany Threatened With Dose Dishpan Hands

Berlin, Nov. 8 (AP)— Russian politics in Germany is threatening the American community in Berlin with a severe dose of dishpan hands.

The United States Labor office complains that it is running out of maids and housekeepers.

Some American families already have felt the pinch and the housewife who has been accustomed to plenty of household help is back in the kitchen again.

The Labor office, tongue-in-cheek, blames the Soviets. They explain it this way:

In the last few weeks the Russians have released almost 150,000 German prisoners of war, a big gesture to back up the new Communist government of Eastern Germany. Thousands of these men are from Berlin and have been in Soviet prison camps since as far back as 1942.

Reunited with their wives for the first time in six or seven years, they want no more lonely nights. The wife must be at home where she belongs, they insist.

This means these women, who have kept the world from the door by serving the Allied communities as domestic servants, are picking up the threads of their own home life once more.

They no longer can be counted upon to work late in the day, over the important dinner hour, and inevitably not to stay in the house where they work overnight. That just about destroys their usefulness as a domestics, except for mornings and afternoons when the average American household doesn't need them anyway.

This is not to say that Berlin with its 250,000 unemployed, lacks maids and housekeepers. There are many for a few available. But United Army rules require some knowledge of English before a German applicant can join its labor pool. There are few domestics who can speak English, even a smattering.

P.C. Association Of Ontario Meets

Toronto, Nov. 8. (CP)— Possibility of a fight for the presidency loomed today as the Progressive Conservative Association of Ontario opened its annual convention with some 800 delegates expected to attend.

Highways Minister George Doucett was reported a possible candidate to oppose re-election of A. D. McKenzie as president. Mr. Doucett has given no indication whether he intends to run for the office.

An open battle for the presidency of the Young Progressive Conservative Association of Ontario was shaping up as two candidates campaigned openly for the office. Wally Nesbitt, 30-year-old Woodstock Crown Attorney, and Jack McNie of Hamilton are seeking the post, now held by Ted Conover of Brampton.

HANDS IN TRAINING...FOR ONTARIO

Learning Business Practice

IN Ontario the wheels of industry turn for the benefit of every single one of us. Our lathes, dynamos, drill presses, farm combines, tractors, business machines, etc. are producing goods and services which earn dollars. These dollars provide food, clothing, medical care and other necessities which contribute to our security and high standard of living. Every single one of us, therefore, has a very personal interest in the flow of a steady supply of trained workers to industrial plants. Those workers will operate machines which are important to our way of life.

We should appreciate, then, the co-operative efforts of government, industry and labour in the field of employee training. In schools and in factories our workers, young and old, are given the opportunity to develop new and specific skills in every field of business and industrial activity. For instance, every effort on the part of office workers to become proficient in typing, filing, shorthand and secretarial work, will mean greater business efficiency—will help to make Ontario a finer place in which to live and work.

THE BREWING INDUSTRY (ONTARIO)

Our Way of Life Rewards Trained Hands

Ontario workers know they can earn more, have executive responsibility and enjoy a higher standard of living in direct ratio to the skills they acquire and the way they make use of them. That's always true in a free economy — that's why our competitive system will continue to make Canada great and a great place in which to live.

COMMONS HEARS

Mr. Low said he wished to protest strongly against the "reprehensible withholding of the report of a responsible officer so that the house will not know what the report contained."

Mr. MacInnis said there was ample evidence out of order to indicate the companies manipulated prices.

At the House recess, Gordon Graydon (PC-Peel) sought to have ordered production of, and to permit debate on the "situation created by the government's arbitrary action in authorizing drastic increases in rentals."

He was ruled out of order on the grounds that the report could be discussed later in the day on a motion to go into the supply. However, the topic was not reopened because of the prolonged debate on the Combines report.

The House voted 108 to 48 against a CCF motion urging the government to make income tax deductible for income tax purposes.

Charges Levelled

Mr. McGregor, who gave the government a day's delay in tabling the flour-milling report as one of his reasons for asking it to resign Jan. 1, 1950, made these charges against the flour industry 70 per cent of Canada's productive capacity in the flour-milling field:

1. "It is clearly established by the evidence before me at least 1936 there have been continuing efforts on the part of the principal milling interests to control and maintain agreements amongst themselves and with others which would fix common prices for the sale of flour, mill-feeds, millfeeds and coarse grains which they sold."

2. "During many periods between 1936 and 1947, agreements to maintain price uniformity have been completely effective." The finding of the firms' officials "is a record of a series of agreements which were broken at times, to be followed by renewals or modifications designed to bring the parties back into agreement."

3. No exception is taken to authorized activities under the Prices Board but the firms continued then to make "agreements to remove competition in price" when such "prices were fixed or neither required nor sanctioned" by the board.

4. Diplomatic approaches followed by threats of reprisal were made to small, independent millers "if they did not comply" with efforts to keep prices "in step close" to price levels set by the alleged combine.

5. Bargain firms kept a double set of minutes of meetings so that the "frequent agreements and understandings on prices" could be kept in "confidential memoranda."

6. The same sort of price-controlling activities have been going on in the western bread-baking industry — legal charges are pending against a number of firms — and "measures have been taken" to link them with the alleged flour-milling combine.

Firms Listed as Members

The 11 firms, listed as members or associates of the Canadian National Millers Association were:

Lake of the Woods Milling Co., Ltd., Ogilvie Flour Mills Co. Ltd., St. Lawrence Flour Mills Co, Ltd., all of Montreal; Arnold and Robb Ltd., Valleyfield, Que., Quaker Oats Co. of Canada, Ltd., Peterborough, Lakeside Milling Co, Ltd., Maple Leaf Milling Co, Ltd., Toronto; Robin Hood Flour Mills, Ltd., Moose Jaw, Sask.; Ellison Milling and Elevator Co, Ltd., Lethbridge, Alta., and Brackman-Ker Milling Co. Ltd., New Westminster, B.C.

Mr. St. Laurent said the government had given the undertaking that if the companies did their best during the war they would not be pilloried after the war and be subjected to prosecution under the Combines Investigation Act.

The Prime Minister said he had experience with prosecutions under the Combines Investigation Act. He recalled a case in which questions arose over whether a case could be prosecuted in the courts when the original deeds had taken place more than two years previously.

The continuity of alleged price-fixing had been found in the case of the milling companies because if there were price-fixing activities, they had ceased when controls were imposed at the start of the war."

Not Under Jurisdiction

Mr. Howe, who served as Minister of Munitions and Supply during the war, said he was familiar with the undertakings given to industry, although flour-milling did not come under his jurisdiction.

He objected to the contents of the McGregor report only as it applied to the period when the industry was under the control of an administrator of the prices board and the document period immediately thereafter.

"I have no comment to make about the report of the commissioner on the conduct of the industry prior to that, period or subsequent to that period as I have no knowledge of the fact," said Mr. Howe.

He had been asked by Mr. Garson some months ago to read the commissioner's report. He had asked Mr. Garson to hold up the publication pending further investigation, because he was "amazed to find that the flour-milling industry should be condemned for carrying out policies that were obviously those of the prices board and common to all control boards.

The industry had given the government "full co-operation throughout the war years and willingly accepted profit control more onerous than that applied to any other industry."

Mr. McGregor's report represented a "violation of the government's undertaking not to prosecute the industry under the Combines Investigation Act for wartime agreements on prices.

"Those agreements had the prices board, Mr. McGregor had not called attention to administrative irregularities of which objectionable under the Combines Act.

"It was a shock to me to discover that, having failed to take action at the time, it has subsequently would attack the industry on the basis of practices during the control period in his other capacity as commissioner of the Combines Investigation Act," declared Howe.

He read a memorandum from Donald Gordon, wartime chairman of the prices board, who took issue with remarks of Mr. McGregor's statement.

FIREMEN CONTROL

City and provincial police joined prison guards to guard against any attempt of a mass break during the excitement. The wing 10 years ago was the scene of one of the most sensational prison breaks in the province's history when the Meekhan brothers had a large group of convicts from the block, slugged the guards at the main gate and obtained short-lived freedom.

Officials took all precautions against any similar break and motor traffic and pedestrians were kept moving past the limestone block penitentiary.

The east block where the fire broke out was originally a tailor shop and was later used for isolation cells, but was rebuilt into a modern cell block.

Warrants Accuse Couple of Slaying Calgary Waitress

Detroit, Nov. 8 — (CP)—Detective-Lieutenant Bruce McCannell of Calgary is on the way here with warrants for the arrest of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Wallace on a charge of murder.

The warrants accuse the couple of slaying Yvonne Levesque, 23-year-old Calgary waitress, whose nude and battered body was found last Aug. 11 in a Calgary alley.

Detective John Morin of the Detroit homicide squad said Monday night that Wallace, a tow-headed ex-oil worker, Sask., gave his investigators a statement in which he told of pounding the girl over the head with a bottle of beer while his wife held the struggling girl. Mrs. Wallace, 46, told police she had no part in the slaying and knew nothing about it.

Wallace said in the statement that while Miss Levesque lay dying, Mrs. Wallace wrote a suicide night cabin, his wife assured him she could "fix it up to look like a sex crime."

Wallace told police that a fourth person was in the bedroom at the time, Donald W. Henderson, 46, of Clive, Alta. He said Henderson "passed out" on the bed during a drinking party to which Henderson and Miss Levesque had invited him. The girl was found only a few hours.

Police reported finding Henderson dead over the living room of the girl from Pincher Creek, Alta., whom he had introduced as his bride-to-be. While police tried to revive Miss Levesque, Henderson disappeared. Calgary police still hold a murder warrant for him and say that he now may give himself up.

Detroit homicide officers said Wallace's Detroit - born wife, Wilhelms, 32, "tipped off" Canadian police that her husband had crossed the border. They said the woman got in touch with the authorities after Wallace beat her up.

G.M. Earnings At Record High For Nine Months

New York, Nov. 8.—(AP)—General Motors Corporation Monday declared a year-end dividend of $4.25, payable Dec. 20 to holders of record Nov. 17.

This with prior payments for the year to $6, against $4.50 in 1948.

In March this year General Motors paid $1.25, continuing the rate in the first and September quarters.

Last year the company made payments of 75 cents each in March and June. It raised the dividend to $1 in September and then paid a year-end of $3 in December.

General Motors also announced it would retire next month its entire long-term indebtedness—an issue of $125,000,000 of notes sold in eight life insurance companies in August, 1946, when it raised money for plant expenditures.

Directors also declared the regular quarterly dividends on the preferred stock—$1.25 on the $5 series, and $1.31¼ on the $5.25 series—to be paid Feb. 1, 1950, to holders of record Jan. 9.

General Motors' earnings were at a record high at the end of the third quarter.

The net profit for the first nine months was $502,-414,029, far above any 12-month period in the company's history.

The third-quarter earnings of $198,735,388, equal to $4.45 a common share, hit a quarterly high and compare with a net of $130,-391,550, or $2.87 a share, in the third quarter last year.

Sales of all General Motors products totalled $1,603,405,456 in the third quarter and $4,458,079,-385 for the first nine months the year.

These figures compared with $1,307,685,561 in the comparable quarter last year and $3,436,331,-992 in the first nine months of 1948.

In a report to stockholders, General Motors Wilson, president, have operations will be reduced drastically if the coal and steel strikes continue. Some 42,000 men already are on reduced schedules.

'Plus Power' Engine Features 1950 Hillman Car

Toronto—Claiming that the experience gained in Canada over the past two years has been used in the creation of its new models, Rootes Motors Limited announce a larger engine as a feature of its new Hillman Minx which goes on display across Canada this week.

The "Plus Power" engine has been enlarged to an internal capacity of 77.20 cubic inches. Forty-two brake horse power is developed at 4,300 revolutions per minute.

This new Hillman engine considerably increases pulling power, get-away, cruising speeds and hill-climbing ability. It also means less gear changing.

According to J. T. Pank, head office official in Toronto, the new engine uses no more gasoline than its predecessor which, under normal driving conditions gives the owner an average close to 35 miles per gallon.

Other features of the 1950 Hillman Minx include: Re-styled interior for more head and leg room and an advanced designed cooling system for more rapid warming up.

WILL BE COMMITTED

Hudson, N.Y., Nov. 8—(AP)—An axe-wielding former blacksmith ran amok Sunday and wounded one of two state troopers called to subdue him before he was wounded himself by the troopers' bullets. He will be committed to a mental institution.

CAR TROUBLE EXCITEMENT CAUSE WOMAN'S DEATH

Toronto, Nov. 8 — (CP)—Excitement over car trouble brought on an attack of cardiac asthma which Sunday night caused the death of Mrs. Jessie Henry, 54, police said. Mrs. Henry, with her husband, had been driving just west of Toronto when the automobile engine became overheated. She suffered a seizure when the husband pulled the vehicle over to the side of the road to look at the engine.

Dr. Colin Dafoe Performs Rare Chest Operation

Following is a newspaper article account of a rare accessory lung operation that was performed at the Leicester Isolation and Chest Unit hospital in England. The surgeon performing the operation was Dr. Colin Dafoe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dafoe of Madoc, and husband of Dr. Charlotte Dafoe, former assistant to Dr. H. E. Moore in this city. The newspaper article follows:

"Sitting on the settee in the quiet comfort of a Leicester home yesterday I was privileged to see the preview of one of the most amazing surgical films ever taken.

"Stage by stage, on the drawing room screen, I saw skilled surgeons' hands remove a patient's accessory lung—an operation never before accomplished on a living subject.

48 Known Cases

"There are forty or so cases of "accessory lungs" known to the medical world.

"This triumph of surgery — screened as an all-time record—was performed at the Leicester Isolation and Chest Unit hospital, and which the film was being written in the operation theatre. Mr. M. H. Michaelson of Westminster Hospital was responsible for his remarkable hospital photography. His cine camera worked with expert thoroughness to make the film possible.

"A medical committee at the Chest Unit confirmed the existence of the accessory lungs in an extremely rare condition. It was decided to operate. It was realized that the patient was not fortunate to have lived so long. The operation was complex and delicate and the patient has been cured.

"This film is to be shown to medical men and women throughout the country. It represents another chapter in the annals of Leicester Hospital achievement."

Democracies Must Prepare Selves For Third War - Wallace

St. Thomas, Nov. 8. (CP)—The democracies must prepare themselves for a possible Third World War, Dr. Robert C. Wallace, principal of Queen's University, Kingston, said here Monday night.

He told the 51st annual Farmers' night program of the local Kiwanis Club that there is "real danger" of another conflict and "we must make sure that the Russians know we have the power to use, if we must use it."

"Fear creates tensions," he said. "Tensions lead to incidents and incidents break out into war. Humanity has been on this plane we call earth for some half-billion years and during that period has settled its major tensions by war and may continue to do so.

"Is there some way of preventing war and all the troubles resulting from it? It can be done if we can understand each other better and eliminate the cause of fear."

Dr. Wallace said that force never solves all that education teaches.

"If communism cannot get what it wants by education it undertakes it by force. We are not going to abolish communism immediately because it is too strong.

"If we must never give up our policy of war but we must try to understand. It has taken a long time to get as much peace as we have and it may be a long time before we eliminate strife across the way of handling difficulties."for third,

Lottery Tickets Seized and Two Arrested

Montreal, Nov. 8. (CP) —Two men were arrested and more than 100,000 lottery tickets confiscated here Monday following two raids by Provincial Police on an alleged lottery ring.

Police described the "ring" as one of "the biggest in operation in Quebec province."

Arrested were Leon Dupont, 30 of Ile Bourdon, Que., and Louis Joseph Bergeron, 27, of Montreal. Dupont, said by police to be the "main organizer."

Police officers swooped down on Dupont's home and seized more than 100,000 tickets, an electric stitcher to seal them, two addressograph machines and 100 cases of plates bearing ticket numbers and weekly hockey schedules.

Bergeron, arrested at his printing shop where police carried away about 1,000 of the cards, several small press and other printing equipment, was later released on bail of $1,500. Dupont gained his freedom on a $1,000 cash bond.

Police said the tickets sold for 25 cents each and paid off on regular combinations of scores in the American and National Hockey Leagues. Prizes ranged from $1,200 for the first four high lume before we eliminate strife
